A LABOUR UPHEAVAL

A CHALLENGE TO THE DOMINION TRADES AND LABOUR CONGRESS

SUMMARY ACTION

(Special to The Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, Man., July 17.—Winnipeg labour is now in the throes of an internal unheaval of the first magnitude, owing to the vote taken and the resolution passed in the Trades and Labour Council Tuesday night which constitutes a flat challenge to the Dominion Trades and Labour Congress from which body the Local Council derives its charter.

At Tuesday night's meeting, which has percipitated a crisis in labour affairs in this city, the Trades and Labour Council, in the teeth of serious warnings and appeals to reason, on R. A. Rigg, organized for the Congress, passed a resolution declaring for organized to proceed in accordance with the policy of the "One Big Union."

Add Strength.

Much additional strength was added to the vote yesterday. Delegate Mr. Muchlon, International organizer from the south, referred to the local men's continuous growls about the results of the recent strike and to their complaints that many men were out of work and that they had to be reinstated and that discrimination had been shown. "What is the use of camouflaging the thing and holding out useless hopes," he asked." These men, (referring to firemen, policemen and others), "are not going to be taken back to their jobs. We have been doing our best to effect a reconciliation, but have met with no results except for some promises. These men are not going to get back."

R. A. Rigg said he had telegraphed headquarters in Ottawa about the action taken by the local body and that he expected to learn what steps would be taken within a short time.

Summary Action.

Summary action by the Dominion Trades and Labour Council is expected to follow. Conservative labour leaders anticipate that the Council's charter will be cancelled and that a new Council, comprising unions loyal to Congress, will be authorized.

Organization of the Conservative wing representing labour affiliated will be big central organizations and representing their manner of procedure in labour matters, is now expected to follow.

The report of the "One Big Union" was adopted by a "yea" and "nay" vote, Mr. Rigg said, so there was no telling exactly how the vote stood. Representatives of several unions, he said, refused to vote, on the grounds that they had not received instructions form their locals to do so.

Mr. Rigg spoke for half an hour against the "One Big Union" before the vote was taken. After wards, he said, the vote was taken without discussion.

POST OFFICE WILL OBSERVE JULY 19

Postmaster Edgar of this city has received the following message regarding the celebration of Peace on Saturday, July 19th:

"From Postmaster-General, Ottawa, to Postmaster, Peterborough:

"Saturday, July 19th has been proclaimed a public holiday and day of thanksgiving for victory. The day is to be observed by your office with the usual hours as for holidys. No letter carriers on this day."

AN ENQUIRY FOR LOST RELATIVES

The following letter has been received from Spokane, Washington, and is an enquiry for the whereabouts of a man, who is said to have at one time lived in Peterboro.

Spokane, Washington, July 10, 1919

The Examiner,—

Dear Sir,—My father, George O'Hare and his brother Felix went to Wisconsin in the early days. Felix was killed in a lumber camp. There was a brother John and one or two more but I do not know their names. There were five girls. My father and mother parted and I was not allowed to know where my father lived at Ellensburgh, Washington for many years. He later went to Alaska. His parents lived in Peterboro or near there.

BIG DRIVE FOR TRADE

GERMANS PLAN A WORLD DRIVE TO RESTORE HER BUSINESS RELATIONS.

AFTER BUSINESS

(United Press.)

BERLIN, July 17.—As part of an energetic drive to restore her business relations with foreign lands, German business experts will be sent forth to all the leading countries in the world either as "free lance" investigators or as attaches of German Embassies and Consulates. Aside from this movement, which is of government origin, private concerns and trade organizations are forming elaborate programmes for the recapture of German overseas commerce. The mission of the government experts will be to gather data in all lines of trade. Moreover they will endeavour to foster better relations between German business and the business of the country to which they are attached. Presumably they will act directly in connection with the Trade Bureau recently formed as an adjunct to the Foreign Office.

German leaders admit, however, that they cannot proceed with their big campaign immediately because there are not sufficient manufactured products on hand. What Germany needs to-day, if she is to regain her trade position, is more raw materials and more food.

URGES HARMONY IN RANKS OF LABOR

HUGH STEVENSON OF TORONTO ORGANIZED TRADES COUNCIL HERE.

Hugh Stevenson, a provincial factory inspector, formerly of the Typographical Union, revisited Peterborough last night and attended the meeting of the Trades and Labour Council which he was instrumental in organizing seventeen years ago. It was highly gratifying to him, he said, to hear the roll call of the Unions now represented on the Council. This was eloquent testimony of the growth of Unionism in Peterborough. He advised the members of all locals to work in harmony, to avoid bickerings, and with complete unity Labour could push on for better things. He denounced the One Big Union, stating that without the help of the big reserve funds, Canadian Unions would be helpless. Besides, there were the various benefits provided for old and infirm members who needed assistance.

A delegate questioned some of Mr. Stevenson's opinions and pointed out some of the advantages of the O.B.U., emphasising the co-operation it would effect among closely related of employees in the same plant. The Council passed a vote of thanks to Mr. Stevenson for his address.

RAILWAY EMPLOYEES STRIKE IN BOSTON

Baked Beans Town is Tied Up.

BOSTON, July 17.—The car service on the street, subway and elevated lines here and in twelve adjoining cities and towns, was tied up to-day by a strike of eight thousand union employees of the Boston elevated railway system.

BIG OFFER FOR JACK DEMPSEY

(United Press.)

LONDON, July 17.—Geo. MacDonald, representing Promoter B. Cochrane, will leave next week for America to make an offer to Heavyweight Champion Jack Demsey to meet the winner of the Carpentier-Beckett go on Sept. 2nd.

MacDonald, it is said, has been empowered to offer a one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollar purse. The fight would be held in London.

HAMILTON WILL OBSERVE HOLIDAY

Hamilton's city fathers have changed their minds and reversed their former decision. The city will officially observe the holiday on Saturday in celebration of peace. The grocers and butchers have decided to remain closed from Friday evening to Monday morning.

THE PEACE CELEBRATION

When Peterborough Peace Celebration [illegible] we believe it will be admitted that it was worth while [illegible] the day set aside by the Government with our own [illegible] and making a Demonstration that will be remembered [illegible] one for Peterborough citizens to have [illegible]

Peterborough is in a different [illegible] ically every other Town or City in the Province, [illegible] has already been given to what was termed the [illegible] ce. As it happened, it did not mean anything [illegible] off; and a hastily gotten-up day on Saturday, [illegible] amounted to nothing more. And the celebration [illegible] sincere on 11th August as if celebrated on [illegible]

There is no doubt but that [illegible] Peterborough there has been a daily [illegible] the Signing of Peace, which, for downright [illegible] than the feelings displayed in a public [illegible] we can make the day we celebrate, 11th August, a [illegible] will long live in the history of the City if we [illegible] the proper spirit, and forget any little differences [illegible] have existed between those who have wished for one day or the other.

Nothing can be properly accomplished in a home, in a business, or in a community unless all those interested work together in harmony to get the best results. And it is hoped and felt that our Citizens will get together, as they are doing, and make Peterborough's Pace Celebration the biggest, most sincere, and real Peace demonstration that has been observed in any Ontario city.

THE INDIANS ARE DISAPPOINTED

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, July 17.—Owing to the fact that some uncertainty has been created over the recent announcements that the Prince of Wales will not visit the Six Nations Indian Reserve while visiting Canada, keen disappointment has been expressed by a number of returned Indians.

As a result of this, the Examiner correspondent sought an interview with F. Onondeyoh Loft, one of the Chiefs of the Reserve, who has been resident in this city for some years. Mr. Loft, although 59 years of age, recently returned from France, where he was serving as a lieutenant in the Forestry Corps. While in England he was received by the King and feted generally by Royalty.

In expressing his views of the announcement, he said: "It will not only be a reflection, but a misfortune and a calamity, if in the itinerary of the Prince the Indian Reserve is passed by at this time. By virtue of the splendid part the Indians played in the War, fighting side by side with the white men for the freedom of not only Canada, but the world, they should not be overlooked.

"The Indians can give a historic touch to his visit which no white man can give. It is not asking that they should merely be included in the reception tendered by the white men. They should be granted the privilege of making their own preparations on their own ground and in their own manner. If the Prince comes to our Reserve he will be invited to sit in council with the Chiefs, invited to smoke the pipe of peace, and probably unveil a memorial tablet at the Six Nations Council House. He will see the social life of the people, and get an insight into [illegible] believe in these long, tiresome addresses [illegible] such occasions, and bear constant repetition of [illegible] city to city. His visit should be made a [illegible] pastime. I think he [illegible] was in a few [illegible] demonstrations of the British, and our King, who greets his subjects as many as [illegible]."

Y.W.C.A. GIRLS AT STONEY LAKE

The Y.W.C.A. summer cottage on Stoney Lake will be filled to overflowing this week end, when girls representing the various Sunday schools will gather for a conference under the auspices of the Girls' Council of Peterborough. Miss Nina Yeomans of Belleville, and Mrs. Dingman of Nestleton, will be present as leaders and will give addresses. A very interesting programme is arranged, the keynote of which is the C.G.I.T. standard for girls. The four sessions will be interspersed with much fun and frolic. A bonfire and stunts programme is arranged for Saturday evening. On Sunday morning the girls will attend the service at Juniper Island in a body and will contribute a musical number. On Sunday evening a sunset song service will be conducted at the camp, to which all cottagers are invited.

The girls who have been at the camp during the past week are: Miss Ptolemy, Miss Beatrice Payne, Miss Adams, Miss Elliott, Miss Lancaster, Miss Burgess, Miss Stubbs, Miss Brown, Miss Florence Johnston, Miss Helen Burgess, Miss Marie Fry, Miss Winnie Cooper, Miss Helen Parker, Miss Grace Evans, Miss Jennie Saunders.

There are still some vacant places left during the month of August, and the girls are urged to hand in their names as soon as possible, in order that room may be reserved for them.

HAVELOCK STORES WERE BURGLARIZED

TOWN IS APPARENTLY WITHOUT POLICE PROTECTION.

On Tuesday evening several of the stores in Havelock were burglarized and the cash removed from the cash drawers. The amounts stolen range from twenty dollars down. The front doors of the stores were pried open with a crowbar. There is no clue to the identity of the robbers. "Are the police investigating?" one of the merchants was asked.

"We have no police" he replied.

ONE-MAN STREET CARS OPPOSED BY T. & L. C.

One-man cars must be approved by the Ontario Railway Board, Mr. J. J. Gibbons, of Toronto, wrote the Labour Council last night, but the Peterborough street cars are owned by the Hydro-Electric Commission and the Commission is not amenable to the Board. The International Union of Street Car Employees is opposed to the one-man cars, but providing they are in accordance with the laws of the country there is nothing to prevent their use. The Council directed to the City a resolution protesting against the two new cars in Peterborough, affirming them a menace to public safety.

MAKE ANOTHER ATTEMPT.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, July 17 — A Vienna despatch to the "Temps," says the Communists are preparing to repeat on July 21 efforts made in April and June to overthrow the Austrian government.

MAGISTRATE DUMBLE DRAWS CRITICISM OF LABOUR COUNCIL

FACTS OF RECENT CASE WILL BE SENT TO ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

The Trades and Labour Council last night appointed a special committee to obtain and forward to the Attorneq-General the facts of a police court case in which Magistrate Dumble sentenced two boys guilty of robbing stores to ten and five strokes of the police cat o' nine tails. In the discussion depending upon the understanding of the case by the various members, it was stated that the Magistrate had imposed a fine upon the parents of the children and in the event of their inability to pay it the children were to go to jail. And continuing this particular statement, it was asked whether boys of seven and nine years could be sent to jail. So wrought up became some of the members over what they declared "injustice and outrage," that they urged steps to be taken for the removal of the Magistrate. There was also the assertion that Chief Thompson's counsels had an influence in some of the sentences of the police court.

BELIEVE HERMIT WAS MURDERED

(Canadian Press.)

SHAWBRIDGE, Que., July 17.—The death of Leon Demers, a hermit, who lived in a shack in the woods near here, supporting himself by making axe handles, was pronounced a case of murder by a coroner's jury yesterday.

AVIATOR LANDED NEAR BYERSVILLE

REMAINED IN THE CITY OVER NIGHT —A DARING FLYER.

'Flight Lieut. Arthur Cooley, of Toronto, formerly of the Royal Air Force, treated Peterborough to an exhibition of the latest stunts in aviation last night at half past eight. Lieut. Cooley left Toronto last night and by easy stages travelled east, stopping at the various towns on the way. He was in Lindsay yesterday and landed in Peterborough just north of St. James street, (south of Byersville). His landing was about the neatest ever seen here. The field is long and narrow, but Cooley hit the field from one side and stopped within twelve feet of the fence, and a number of willing hands soon pushed the C-[illegible] under the trees for the night.

Lieut. Cooley is on a trip east to book up engagements for exhibitions at the different fall fairs this year. He was the guest of Mr. Reg. Turner, of the Exhibition Board, last night.

He flew over the river at a height of 1800 feet and then dropped suddenly to within a short distance of the ground, doing the Immelman curve, looping the loop, somersaults, and in fact everything now put to the credit of daring aviators. He then travelled west and was soon lost for half an hour over the west end of the city, where his feats of daring were repeated.

Lady Passenger.

At noon to-day Mrs. Reg. Turner went up for a flight, being the first Peterborough lady to essay a trip into the clouds. She was followed a little later by her husband. At one-twenty o'clock Mr. J. J. Turner, chairman of the Reception committee of the City Council, went up, and at two o'clock Mr. R. Denne, President of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, made his debut to the elements above. Several other passengers went up during the day.

CANADIANS IN BISLEY MEET

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, July 17.—Lieut.-Captain Marriott, Military Cross at Bisley during the war, won the first stage of the King's Prize, taking the Bronze Medal, after a tie with Lieut. Vincent, of Hamilton, Ont.

Altogether eighteen Canadians got into the second stage of this competition.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR PRINCE'S VISIT

BIG NAVAL AND MILITARY PARADE TO BE HELD.

(Canadian Press.)

TORONTO, July 17.—For the visit of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales to Toronto, it is proposed to have a big parade of naval and military veterans on the grand stand enclosure in the Exhibition Grounds.

It is desired to include in this all the wounded men in the hospitals, for whom special provision will be made.

It is suggested that all returned officers, non-commissioned officers, and men should communicate with the organisation which concerns their overseas unit.

As there will be a large number of veterans who are not identified with such organisations, special arrangements will be made to take care of these, so that every overseas man will have the opportunity to take part in the welcome of His Royal Highness.

WITNESS PLACED UNDER ARREST

(Canadian Press.)

WINNIPEG, Man., July 17.—For refusing to give evidence during the inquest on the man killed in the rioting of last month, A. Berrill has been placed under arrest, the Coroner remarking that such a refusal was unprecedented.

WILL ASSIST THE FARMERS

(Canadian Press.)

WINNIPEG, Man., July 17.—The Saskatchewan Government will assist the farmers in the crop failure area to move into sections of the province and Manitoba, where success is possible.

TROOPSHIPS REACH CANADIAN PORTS

(Canadian Press.)

MONTREAL, July 17.—The steamships Cedric and Royal George will arrive at Halifax on Saturday and Sunday, and the Melita at Quebec on Sunday, with returned soldiers.

The Regina, with nearly two thousand troops and nurses, is due at Halifax about 23rd July.

MORE ATTRACTIVE OFFER FOR PURCHASE OF STREET RAILWAY MADE BY BECK

SIR ADAM UNFOLDED THE DETAILS OF A PROPOSAL WHICH ALD. EDGAR SAYS SHOULD BE SATISFACTORY TO THE PEOPLE.

WAGE INCREASE FOR MEN

What Ald. Edgar describes as a satisfactory price for the street railway was quoted by Sir Adam Beck to the deputation from the Council's Railway Committee yesterday. Aldermen Edgar, Morrison and Crowe were deputed to urge the Hydro-Electric Commission to undertake this summer the extensions on the Monaghan Road and on Park street to Lansdowne and Lock streets.

In yesterday's interview Sir Adam Beck unfilded a proposal which Ald. Edgar said would be given in detail to the Railway Committee tomorrow night. Ald. Morrison intimated at the Trades and Labour Council last night that this offer mentions a further increase in the street car fares in order that the city would be assured that the railway was a profitable public utility.

There are several new cars also available for the local system if it is considered advisable to buy them.

Increase for the Men.

The wage increase for the street railway employees which has been mooted here recently was mentioned by Sir. Adam Beck, and it is understood that forty cents an hour will be announced shortly.

BIG CELEBRATION IN WINNIPEG

(Special to The Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, Man., July 17.—This city will celebrate peace day for nineteen solid hours on Saturday without a break. There will be public dancing on the market square all night. Nineteen bands are expected. Several big delegations are coming from Minnesota and the Dakotas. Fireworks are being rushed from Hamilton on a special train. Every piece of fireworks obtainable will be utilized.

PRINCE WILL NOT VISIT PETERBORO

COMMUNICATION TO THAT EFFECT RECEIVED THIS MORNING.

His Royal Highness, Prince of Wales will not be able to visit Peterboro while on his Canadian tour according to a communication received from Lieut. Col. Hon. Harold Henderson, the Governor General's Secretary by the Mayor and Mr. J. H. Burnham M.P., this morning. Both the City Council and Mr. Burnham invited the Prince to visit the city and the following letter was received by Mr. Burnham and the City Clerk:

Ottawa, 10th July

Dear Mr. Burnham—I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the ninth instant. As at present arranged a visit to the city of Peterboro is not included in His Royal Highness' itinerary, nor do I see how on this occasion it will be possible to pay a visit to your city. The question of visiting Peterboro about September 15 or 16 is I regret to say, quite out of the question as by these dates I hope he will have reached the Prairie Provinces.

Yours faithfully,
H. G. Henderson, Lieut.-Col.
Gov General's Secretary.

ANNA Q. NILSSON REAPS FRESH SCREEN LAURELS

Anna Q. Nilsson known to the stage and screen for her personal charm and distinctive talents, and who will be seen in the Metro play "The Way of the Strong," to be featured at the Grand theatre to-day for a three day engagement, is one of the few stars to attain international fame both on the stage and screen.

Miss Nilsson began her stage career at an early age in Ystad, Sweden, the town and country of her birth, and it was her phenominal success there which made her long for the broader fields of dramatic work to be had in America. Instantaneous stage popularity here led her to try motion pictures where she became a star with Kalem, Art-Drama, Selznick and others. She was leading woman with George M. Cohan in his screen version of his successful Broadway play, "Seven Keys to Baldpate," and later appeared in the Rex Beach production, "Heart of the Sunset."

It was with Metro however, that Miss Nilsson was provided with roles which brought to the fore her unusual gifts, and her work as leading woman with Bert Lytell in "The Trail to Yesterday," and "In Judgment Of," was of such exceptional quality that she was made her star of "The Way of the Strong," a story which gives her a dual role of wide range and exceeding dramatic power.

NO PEACE DAY FOR IRELAND

Civic Employees of Dublin Sign Memorial to Mayor—State of War With England.

(Canadian Press.)

DUBLIN, July 16.—All grades of officials of the city corporation have signed a memorial to the Lord Mayor of Dublin, asking him not to recognize July 19, peace day, as a holiday, on the ground that a "state of war exists between the British government and the Irish people and the latter do not desire to participate in peace celebrations."

FOUR EVENTFUL YEARS OF SERVICE OVERSEAS SPENT BY MISS A. DOIG

WAS A NURSING SISTER AT SUDLA BAY, SALONICA, AND IN FRANCE AND ENGLAND.

After four years service in hospital work overseas Nursing Sister Anna Doig, North Monaghan, during a leave of two weeks, after which she will resume her work in one of the military hospitals in Toronto. Her long and varied experience, of which she declined to speak in detail included two years at Salonica particularly during the Serbian retreat in October 1915. Nursing Sister Doig was there during he spectacular Zeppelin raids. She was also at Suda Bay and at Malta during the Dardanelles campaign. Of that episode of the war she simply remarked that the bravery and the suffering of the troops in that expedition seemed beyond human endurance. Part of her work was on the extemporized hospital ship "Kildonan Castle" which transported the wounded from Suda Bay to the hospital base at Malta. Miss Doig was also in France and during the last two years at the Toronto University hospital at Basingstoke, England. She went overseas with this unit which she said prided itself upon the fact that it retained its identity throughout the war in the personnel of its staff of officers and sisters. Miss Doig is a former Peterboro girl and her friends will be delighted to learn of her safe homecoming and of her successful and responsible service during four years of the war.

THE VETERANS WILL CELEBRATE

WILL GIVE A SMOKER AND BAND CONCERT.

The G. W. V. A. at a meeting last night placed itself on record as regretting that the business men of this city could not see their way clear to celebrate the peace day proclaimed by the King (Saturday July 19) and they also highly commended the spirit of the merchants of the city who have decided to close their stores on that day.

On the evening of peace day the Veterans are holding an "At Home" in the G. W. V. A. hall for the public to celebrate peace day proclaimed by the King. They are giving a smoker and a band concert on that night and there will also be dancing Everybody is invited to attend.

GIVE ICE DAILY TO BRITISH SOLDIERS

Appalling Heat on Indian Frontier Hits Troops Hard

Peshawar, July 17.—The sweltering is being done to mitigate the sufferings of the troops. Ice plants have been fitted up at Landikotal and Dakka, and an attempt is being made to supply a pound of ice daily to each British soldier.

Special huts have been equipped in the Khyber district for the treatment of heat cases. The violent epidemic of cholera which broke out in June lasted nearly three weeks. There were 7,663 cases and 566 deaths, principally among the camp followers. Six British officers and 15 men also died, but the disease is now practically stamped out.

A special train now carries troops daily for short spells to the Murree Hills. The troops are now better housed and fed than in any previous frontier campaign. The grim steadiness of the British troops in facing the heat deserves the utmost admiration.

SUICIDE ATTEMPTS ARE DAILY AFFAIRS AT TOMBS PRISON

Victims of Drug Habits Become Desperate When Cravings Are Ungratified

New York, July 17.—Warden John Hanley of the Tombs Prison admitted that four prisoners had attempted suicide yesterday, one of them successfully. He declared that there were almost daily attempts at self-destruction among prisoners who were drug addicts. Victims of drug habits, he said, became desparate when they were unable to gratify their cravings.

About fifty of the prisoners in the Tombs are drug addicts, the warden said. The men are given small doses of the drug to which they have fallen victims, and are separated from the other inmates.

BUFFALO MAYOR UNDER GUARD IN CANADA

Bridgeburg, July 17.—Considerable interest is taken here in the discovery that George J. Buek, Mayor of Buffalo, who resides along the lake shore a few miles from here during the summer months, has his house guarded by armed Buffalo detectives. These steps have been taken by Buffalo officials faring that Mayor Buck will be the victim of similar depredation to those experienced by the Mayors of other American cities.

LEPER WAS AN EMPLOYEE OF BIG CITY RESTAURANT.

Says He Worked in Philadelphia and New York

Philadelphia, July 17.—Local health authorities said that Nicholas Foniadakis, a leper, who escaped from a Boston hospital on May 21, was found working in a restaurant in this city last Friday and was isolated in the Philadelphia hospital for contagious diseases on Saturday. Foniadakis said he came from Greece. After escaping from Boston, he said he worked in a restaurant in New York and later came to this city.

CROMWELL'S RED COATS

The origin of the scarlet uniform that was so familiar in pre-war days appears to be somewhat obscure.

The Yeomen of the Guard, who were the first to wear it in 1485, probably took the colour from the Red Dragon of Wales, though the true colours of the Tudors were green and white. The scarlet, however, appears suddenly as the uniform of the New Model Army of 1645—the army which won the battle of Naseby and finally overthrew the party of King Charles the First.

There is nothing to indicate why this hue was chosen. A contemporary manuscript says, tersely: "The men are red-coats all, the whole army." And that is all.

There are several ironical features about this famous Parliamentary Army. Its place of rendezvous was Windsor, and its senior regiment was clad in scarlet with blue facings—for two centuries past the Royal colours.

It was raised to combat Royal tyranny (at least, such was its profession), and its ranks were filled mainly by impressment, or, in plain words, by conscription, which is not generally supposed to consort with liberty. One would have thought that at the Restorption it would have been swept away, together with everything that might recall it.

In point of fact, it was disbanded with the exception of one regiment, now known as the Coldstream Guards, but its scarlet was preserved and survives up to the present day. Possibly King Charles II. thought it was wise to concede so much to sentiment, for Cromwell's red-coats were the terror of Europe, and made the Protector's intervention in foreign affairs a very weighty matter. It will be sad indeed if the scarlet uniform is doomed to pass away.

RUGBY'S FAMOUS HEADMASTER

Saturday, June 13 1795 Thomas Arnold the famous Headmaster of Rugby School, was born at East Cowes, in the Isle f Wight where his family had settled, and on June 12 1842, he died suddenly of angina pectoris, or anguish of the heart, a disease with the most painful paroxysms, as his father had died suddenly from heart spasms when this son was only six years old. It was Thomas Arnold who is represented as the headmaster in "Tom Browns School Days," by Thomas Hughes, an English lawyer and author, who lived from 1822 till 1896, and was his pupil at Rugby for nearly eight years. Arnold left a widow and nine children ,the eldest son being Matthew Arnold, the distinguished poet and critic, who lived from 1822 till 1888 and, like his father, was a master at Rugby. Educated at Winchester School, Thomas Arnold, at sixteen won a scholarship at Corpus Christi College, Oxford, and three years afterwards, taking his Bachelor of Arts degree, with a first class in Classics, he was elected a Fellow of Oriel College; and having been ordained, and married, he prepared for the universities private pupils at Laleham, in Middlesex till in 1827 he was elected headmaster at Rugby School, which he raised to its present high position teaching the boys with confidence, and impressing upon them his own sense of the value of knowledge and the sacredness of duty. He taught them to observe the light cast by ancient Greek and Latin authors upon moral and historical questions, and was the first who added to these mathematics and modern history and languages. His frequent lessons in Divinity were full of interest and reverence; but he was free from "donishness," and full of fatherly tenderness to his pupils, who afterwards, in the universities, army, elsewhere, were observed to be "thoughtful, manly-minded, and conscious of duty and obligation". It seems seasonable to recall this noble pattern, because periodicle have spoken lately of the importance and need of masters in all higher class schools influencing their pupils for good by their own moral example.

An accepted bank cheque on a chartered bank of Canada for the sum of $1,000 made payable to the order of the Minister of Railways and Canals, must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The cheque of the successful tenderer will be held as security, or part security, for the due fulfilment of the contract to be entered into.

The lowest or any tenderer not necessarily accepted.

By order,
J. W. PUGSLEY,
Department of Railways and Canals,
Ottawa, July 12, 1919.

BAB IS ANXIOUS BECAUSE NEIL IS DRINKING

CHAPTER XVIII.

I do not relish the idea of entertaining business people in my home, but, as in all else, if Neil thought it necessary that was enough for me. But I confess I was astonished one night when he remarked quite casually:

"I have asked a couple of western men up to dinner to-morrow night. Have things bang-up. I met Blanche Orton on my way up-town. She said she'd come over and help you entertain them."

"Is Mr. Orton coming?"

I asked the question as carelessly as I could. I had no intention to let Neil know that a feeling of jealousy against Blanche Orton had been aroused; or that I objected to having her invited. But I was a little surprised at his reply:

"No—he scarcely ever goes out, you know. And Blanche said he was not as well as usual. It must be jolly annoying to be married to a man who is always ailing."

So Blanche Orton was coming alone. Surely Neil might have consulted me before inviting her. Once I had heard a man call her: "A man eater;" of course, he had said it jokingly, but now the epithet recurred to me.

"I wish you had asked me first—before you invited her."

"Too late now. What's the matter with Blanche? Jealous of her and want to entertain both men yourself? You women are beyond me. She is always gay and dresses stunningly. One would think you would be delighted that I was thoughtful enough to ask her."

"I'm sorry you asked her, all the same. Why didn't you invite Lorraine Morton instead? She's single."

"Lorraine's all right. Have her too, if you like. But when it comes to entertaining people who count in a business way, there is no one like Blanche. She's a great little pusher for a man."

"But, Neil, you wouldn't ask another woman than your wife to help you in a business affair?" I asked, astonished and puzzled at this phase of affairs. "I'll ask Lorraine, but I have a hazy impression that she said something about having a date for to-morrow night."

As I feared Lorraine had an engagement. But I had learned to accept the unexpected where Neil was concerned, so I made my arrangements for the dinner for five.

Neil came home early. I was in the dining room looking after the decoration for the table when he came in. He called Tonko, the butler, and ordered what he wanted to drink cooled. I could not help a gesture of discouragement. That was another thing which had come with Neil's financial success—the constant need of stimulant.

The dinner was a jolly affair for Blanche, who looked absolutely charming, though in almost maddeningly immodest decollete. At first I was embarrassed, accustomed as I was by that time to the extreme in dress. But I knew I also looked well and putting all uncomfortable thoughts away, I exerted myself to entertain my husband's guests. I would not allow Mrs. Orton to monopolise them; or to put me in the background.

Neil had cocktails served, and Blanche Orton drank hers and then begged for another one. She drank a good deal of wine too, as did Neil. Blanche fairly scintillated, but most of her conversation was directed at Neil, her repartee flung at him, while I was left to entertain the two business men.

They were plain sort of men, one of them especially. Rather heavy and silent. One could easily see that, even though they were very rich men—Neil had told me they were millionaires—that private home dinners were not an everyday affair with them.

I finally spoke of the business. Quit. They could talk about that so interesting a fashion that I almost forgot to watch Neil and Blanche fairly scintillated, but most conversation.

But just before we rose from the table, while liquors were being served, I heard her say:

"If people had a little more sense they never would mistake my unconventionality, which I shall never give up for common, vulgar sinfulness. To be conventional myself, or be with people who are, bores me to distraction."

I realized perfectly that Blanche Orton would not allow herself to be bored, and that consequently Neil must interest her or she would not devote her time to him. But what I could not understand was his feeling that, though married, he could keep up the same friendship with her that had existed before his marriage.

CHURCH WALL CREVICE LIQUOR HIDING PLACE

WOODSTOCK, July 15.—A novel resort of the thirsty ones of this city has been discovered. It is not in some secluded valley, some deserted shack, or a lone and desolate cave. In fact, it is in the Congregation church, right in the heart of the city, and but a stone's throw from Dundas street.

The discovery was made of a loose slab in the side of the church, which, when removed, disclosed a crevice containing a couple of bottles of "hootch." The church has lately been deserted, and those who chose this hiding place for their precious liquor apparently used it for a long time, since one end of the cellar was found thickly strewn with bottles which once contained the "elixir."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Said

"After all, what a man does with his money is to invest, and there is no better way to invest it than in Life Insurance."

As an ESTATE BUILDER there is nothing to equal Life Insurance.

TAKE THE FOLLOWING ACTUAL RESULT

A young man, sixteen years of age, took out a 15-year Endowment (No. 210380) in the Sun Life of Canada, which matured on the first of April. This young man paid annually $66.30 for fifteen years, and he has now, through that investment, an immediate estate of $3,426.00 in case of death.

DO YOU KNOW THAT THIS AMOUNTS TO ALMOST 15% COMPOUND INTEREST ON EVERY DOLLAR HE PAID?

No wonder Sir Wilfrid said (and he might have added, No better place than the Sun Life of Canada), "There is no better way to invest it than in LIFE INSURANCE."

AND THE SUN LIFE OF CANADA GIVES THIS RESULT.

Quick, Painless Way To Remove Hairy Growths

(Helps to Beauty.)

Here is a simple, unfailing way to rid the skin of objectionable hairs: With some powdered delatone and water make enough paste to cover the hairy surface, apply and in about 2 minutes rub off, wash the skin and every trace of hair has vanished. This is quite harmless, but to avoid disappointment be sure to get the delatone in an original package.

COULD NOT SEE BEE-BOMBS

Washington Authorities Turned Down Suggestion That Was Made in Perfect Seriousness.

It would be hard to say which of the many impractical suggestions toward "winning the war" that occurred to individuals and were submitted to Washington was the most imaginative, but conscripting the busy bees certainly deserves honorable mention. Enormous numbers of these mellifluous or anthophious aculeate hymenopterous insects, as the dictionary calls them, were to be distributed by airplanes over the enemy trenches, presumably by dropping what might be called bee-bombs, and the confusion that would follow may easily be imagined by anybody who has ever got into trouble with a single beehive. But the military experts failed to see the utility of the scheme. Perhaps they foresaw that the enemy would promptly provide himself with netting and devise bee-armor. The aviators who distributed the bee-bombs would naturally have been called apiators. The idea was ridiculous, but let those laugh who have never thought of something that seemed sensible in the evening and absurd next morning.

Measuring Earth's Temperature.

A novel but simple method of measuring earth temperature has been successfully tried at a depth of 5,202 feet, that of the bottom of the hero-hole of St. Jean d'Heruns, the deepest in France. Two clinically similar centigrade thermometers were set off at 40 degrees, and compared with a third thermometer to show that the indications were not affected. The shortened instruments were fixed in opposite positions—one inverted and the other erect—in a simple sheath. Lowered into the hole, they were then kept one hour at the bottom to acquire the rock temperature, and as this was above 40 degrees, some of the mercury was forced from the tubes. On being withdrawn, the tubes were gradually heated in a water-bath until the mercury just filled them, which the standard thermometer showed was at 62.5 degrees in each. The surface temperature being 12.5 degrees, the earth increase was one degree for each 100 feet of depth.

Aluminum Coins.

Africa has adopted the aluminum coin. Nearly 32,000,000 coins of that metal have been struck from the British mint for circulation in Uganda and the Nigerian protectorates. Each coin bears the value either of 1 cent or of 2 mills.

They are perforated in the center like Chinese coins, in order that the natives may string them together. Bronze coins are in wide circulation on the west coast of Africa.

In the interior small shells known as cowries are used as fractional currency. It is to replace the cowries that the new coins have been struck.

St. Mark's Horses.

The four great horses that all tourists must remember on the portal of St. Mark's have been standing on earth in a Roman garden waiting to return to Venice, whence the war banished them; and their beauty seems to be enhanced rather than diminished by this nearer view. The greenery of the garden provides a background for the ancient masterpieces of Greek art.

"In spite of the thousands of scratches which show the discomforts of the horses' travels," says one observer, "in spite of the streaks of corroding copper and the remnants of the coat of gold which covered them, they are still the most beautiful horses that man has ever made—veritable horses of the sun." Also they are much-traveled horses. No one knows with certainty where they began their journeying. They may have been made by Lysippus, of Chios, and taken by the Emperor Theodosius to Byzantium: or they may have been found by the Romans at Corinth, taken to Rome, and from Rome to Byzantium. Eventually they reached Constantinople and were decorating the Hippodrome when the Venetians took that city in the very early thirteenth century and carried the famous horses back to Venice. For six centuries they remained on St. Mark's, and then Napoleon took them to Paris, where they adorned the Arc de Triomphe for nearly twenty years before they were restored to Venice. When the Germans threatened Venice, the horses were taken to Rome and placed in the cellars of the Palazzo di Venezia. Their reappearance in the open air was an impressive sign of the coming of peace.

PRESENTATION IN SMITH TOWNSHIP

ADDRESS TO RETURNED SOLDIERS—FRIENDS GATHERED.

The home of Mr and Mrs. T. A. Young of the 4th line of Smith was the scene of a very pleasant event on Monday evening when the friends and neighbors gathered in to welcome Messrs. Norman and Harry Young, home again after years of service overseas. Pte. Norman Young went over in 1915 with the 8th C.M.R. afterwards serving with the Fort Garry Horse and entering Germany with the victorious army. Sgt. Harry Young, left Peterboro' as one of the 93rd Battalions being transferred to the 19th Canadians. The company numbering over eighty people spent a happy social hour about the lawn. Rev. John Galt, without whom Smith township gathering would be incomplete, called upon Mrs. Jas. Young for a solo, which was well received, the company joining in the chorus, "You are welcome back at Home Sweet Home." The two soldier boys were then invited to come forward and an address of welcome was read by Mr. W. J. Young, a former resident of the community, and a purse of about Four hundred and eighty dollars was presented to them by Mr. T. H. Graham Spontaneously the boys and girls sang, "The Laddies Who Fought and Won", after which Mr Norman Young made a brief but effective reply thanking the friends for their good wishes. Tea was served by the ladies and The National Anthem closed a very pleasant little gathering

The Address

The address read as follows:—

Messrs. Norman and Harry Young:
Smith Township.

Dear Friends,—We are gathered here to-night at your home as an expression of good will from your friends of Central Smith neighbourhood, and we wish to express to you both, our pleasure and gratitude at your safe return to our midst.

When you left us to answer the call of your country we said farewell with mingled feelings of pride and sorrow. During your years of voluntarily service overseas we have followed your ever-changing experiences with the personal interest of tried friends. We have tried to picture you in your various surroundings and we have always felt confident that whether in trench or biket, whether in patrol or assault, whether in safety or danger, you would play the man's part and uphold the honour of our Empire and our flag. And now we rejoice at your safe return to our neighbourhood and we give heartfelt thanks unto God, that neither of you are suffering any ill effects or handicap from the wounds you so honourably bear. You have upheld in your years of service the highest traditions of the British Army and while valor and courage count for anything, Ypres, Vimy Ridge and Passchendaele, shall always be remembered to the honor of our Canadian Corps.

We ask you to accept this purse as an expression of our esteem and of our appreciation of your readiness to serve your country, of your faithful and cheerful performance of all the difficult duties placed upon you, and of your gallant conduct on the field of battle. The best wishes of your friends and neighbours, are herewith extended to you, with the hope that you may find yourselves very happily situated in your chosen occupation during the coming years.

Your friends and neighbours.

HURTING LABOR'S CAUSE

The visit of the Winnipeg strike leaders to the East is only serving to confirm the impression that the majority of Ontario people had formed of the recent general strike. The missionaries who have come to tell the story of Winnipeg's trouble have by their own wild utterances strengthened the belief that there was more than a desire to secure better working conditions and highr wages behind the movement. Such speeches as that delivered by Ald. Queen, one of the strike leaders the other day are hurting the cause of Labor and are striking the note that should be silent if Canada is to come safely through the stormy seas of the present crisis and anchor safely in the port of a square deal for everybody. This representative of the Winnipeg strike committee went so far as to tell his hearers that anything that was good for the master class was bad for the workers, and anything that was bad for the masters was good for Labor. No self-respecting trade unionist will fail to recognize the folly of such talk as this and to repudiate the man who is guilty of such an utterly false and vernicious statement. There can be no real adjustment of industrial troubles in Canada if views such as given vent to by Ald. Queen were to have any general following. Labor cannot get along without Capital any more than Capital can exist without Labor. The interests of the two are identical and while the demands of Labor for a greater share of the profits that are earned by the efforts of Labor is justifiable, there is not the slightest excuse for speeches of the type which Ald. Queen delivered in Toronto. The spirit shown by the Winnipeg strike leaders will never lead to a better understanding between the two or gain a more reasonable status for the workers.

THE AUBURN MILLS

The passing of the Auburn Woollen Mills into the control of the Canadian Woollens, Limited, a combination of the Auburn Company, the Standard Woollen Company, Toronto, and the Bonner-Worth Company, Peterborough, a deal that promises to be of great importance to Peterborough, as it means that this city will be the headquarters of the big new company, recalls the part that the Auburn Mills has played in the industrial life of Peterboro, and also of the two men closely identified with its career, the late James Kendry and the late John Carnegie. Mr. Kendry was connected with the Auburn Mills for most of his life and under his direction the concern lived and thrived throughout the long years of its existence, years that often were marked by commercial depression throughout the country, but that found the Auburn Mills operating as usual. Mr. Carnegie was for many years a director of the Auburn, and he, like Mr. Kendry, was prominent in the public life of the city. The career of these two public men seems to be so closely interwoven with the history of the Auburn Mills that the transfer of the latter into new hands, brings their names prominently into the public mind. Of the Auburn itself it is only necessary to mention that it was one of the first industries to be established in Peterboro and has been for many years one of the city's most substantial manufacturing concerns. The expansion that will undoubtedly come as a result of its incorporation with other concerns into a big amalgamation, will not cause the people of Peterboro to forget its career as the Auburn Mills nor the names of the men who were connected with it for so long a period.

MR. DEWART'S REPLY

Speaking of Mr. Rowell's attack on Mr. Hartley Dewart, The Examiner remarked the other day that the new Liberal leader could be relied upon to take care of himself and that there was no need of defending him. Mr. Dwart has lost no time in making his reply nor has he minced words in his denial of the allegations of the Unionist Minister. In fact, Mr. Dewart declares that the Rowell statements were a tissue of lies and described the President of the Privy Council as "newspaper-made politician." The new Liberal leader thinks that Mr. Rowell "must be hard-driven when he stoops to the methods he has adopted and libellously states what he knows to be untrue."

Mr. Dewart's vigorous reply should do much to establish him in the confidence of the people of the Province. He has already pledged himself to support any law that the people want in regard to temperance. The Globe does not think such a promise is enough, but the opinion of the Toronto organ differs from that of many of the electors who are inclined to the belief that Mr. Dewart has adopted a stand that is consistent with democracy. He is ready to carry out the will of the people, after that will has been expressed. There have been charges that Mr. Dewart is connected with the liquor interests. To that charge Mr. Dewart has given a flat denial. "I have never had," says the Liberal leader, "nor have I now, any understanding, expressed or implied, of any nature or kind with any interests or individual in any way connected with the liquor traffic. I have no hampering ties or obligation to any corporated or other interest that will prevent me from doing my full and plain duty in giving effect to the will of the people." Surely that statement is clear-cut and explicit enough to refute the allegations of Mr. Rowell and others who have endeavored to represent Mr. Dewart as the representative of those opposed to prohibition in the Province.

DAYLIGHT SAVING

When the President vetoed the Agricultural Appropriation bill because it repealed the daylight saving law, he took action that produced a mingling of satisfaction and relief throughout almost the whole country. The huge majority of its inhabitants believe in daylight saving, for they have found it profitable, pleasurable, and economically sound in a test that has lasted the whole of one summer and part of another. That same majority, however, was entirely unorganized, and, although it contains a multitude of voters, it does not constitute what the politicians call a "vote," and therefore Congress was not afraid to ignore its preferences and its interests.

Just what is thought of daylight saving throughout the great world of what is called "labor"—the industrial and commercial workers, that is—was well shown by the replies received by the New York World to inquiries sent by it to a great number of employing corporations of all kinds and in many parts of the country. With exceptions so few as to be negligible, the responses were to the effect that teh employees of these corporations, men and women alike, were strongly in favor of continuing the daylight saving plan and resented the indifference to their desire which Congress had manifested.

In a few instances it was stated that the workers did not care, one way or the other, what was done to the clocks, but in an overwhelming majority of the letters repeal was opposed because it meant, on the one hand, less production, and, on the other, poorer health and decreased enjoyment for the workers. Several theatrical managers expressed the belief that, on the whole, daylight saving hurt their business, not seriously, but appreciably. That is in consequence regrettable, but hardly intolerable. For some unimaginable cause from a single manufacturing establishment—the Harrisburg Pipe and Pipe Bending Company—came the declaration the daylight saving had resulted in no saving of any kind and that "we believe the majority of our employes are strongly in favor of repeal."

That Congress will pass the Agricultural Appropriation bill again with the daylight saving section still in it is a possibility, of course, but it is a possibility so remote that no apprehensions need be excited. The attempt to destroy the daylight saving law by means of a rider would not have been made if both Senate and House had not been well aware that the repeal was indefensible on its own merits, and the veto will give the excuse which both perhaps will be glad to get for not obeying a demand they knew to be obnoxious to general public sentiment.

Now that the daylight saving law has been rescued from its few but vigorously articulate and well-organized enemies, there will be a disposition everywhere to consider more whatever of reality there is in objections made to its perpetuation. There are farmers—the dairymen and the market gardeners, that is—who can plead with some justice that it works inconveniently for them, and their grievances, though small, are not to be ignored. Some mothers, too, are complaining that under the new arrangement they have difficulty in getting their little children asleep in time to give them all the rest they need. That, too, is a matter not lightly to be dismissed.

But these troubles surely can be obviated or minimized without making the whole country shut up its extra hour of sunlighted leisure from ordinary work. As for the farmers engaged in raising staple crops, they have never even begun to prove that they could not carry on their activities at any time that pleased them, regardless of the clocks. Until they do prove that, their woes, whether real or imaginary, will bring no tears to the eyes of other folk.—New York Times.

MR. ROWELL CROSSES THE FLOOR

The letter of Mr. Rowell to Mr. W. P. B. Davidson of Port Hope giving reasons why Liberals who voted for a war-time Union Government to enforce the Military Service Act should continue to support the Unionist party ignores the most important aspect of the situation—the fact that it has been decided by a majority of the Liberal-Unionist members now in Parliament to join forces permanently with Sir Robert Borden and his friends in the organization of a new political party.

The Liberals of Durham who voted for Mr. Rowell gave him no authority to destroy the historic Liberal party of Canada by agreeing to a political merger with the Conservatives. If Mr. Rowell during the campaign of December, 1917, had told the electors of Durham that a vote for him meant a vote for the creation of a new party to take the place of the Liberal and Conservative parties as formerly constituted, it is extremely doubtful whether he could have been elected. Both Liberal-Unionists and Conservative-Unionists believed that all they were asked to support was a temporary political coalition, such as that formed by Mr. Brown and Sir John Macdonald to bring about Confederation. It was clearly understood that after the war was over the men on both sides of politics who had united to support a non-partisan, or rather a bi-partisan, war Ministry, would be free to return to their former political homes and resume the consideration of the questions that have heretofore divided political parties in Canada.

All this is now set aside by a relatively small group of Parliamentarians without any mandate from their constituents. Mr. Rowell does not tell Mr. Davidson and the Durham Liberals that he has agreed to take part in the organization of a new political party in which Conservative electors and Conservative policies must be dominant. He asks the Liberals of Durham to ignore the Liberal Convention at Ottawa, because it "will not be in a position to represent or speak for the Liberals who supported Union Government," but he does not add, as he ought to have added, that he would like to obtain from the Liberal-Unionists of Durham an expression of opinion as to whether they desire to cut loose permanently from Liberalism and become followers of Sir Robert Borden.

Until the recent caucus at Ottawa Mr. Rowell was the Ontario leader of a group of men in Parliament who regarded themselves as no less representative of Canadian Liberalism than the anti-conscriptionists who followed Mr. McKenzie, the Liberal House Leader. That claim can be made no longer. The policies of the new party to which Mr. Rowell and the majority of the Liveral-Unionists have given their adhesion have not been denied in any official pronouncement, but the Conservative Press declares that the maintenance in its integrity of the policy of adequate protection must be the foundation-stone of Unionism. There has been no disclaimer from Mr. Rowell, and it is therefore reasonable to suppose that the Unionism of the future will be essentially a high tariff and Big interests party, steeped in the traditions of Conservatism.

With such a party electors of progressive views who believe that the eclipse of Liberalism in Canada is but temporary can have no part or lot. They know that the solid block of about a hundred former Conservative members who at present furnish the bulk of the Parliamentary support of the new party will insist upon the acceptance of their viewpoint as to the policies which should find a place in the platform of the Unionist party. After the next general election the West will no longer exercise a moderating influence within the party, for it is fairly certain that the West will then return to progressive Liberalism—with the United Farmers' candidates as alternatives — instead of sending Unionists to Ottawa to vote for high protection.

Looking at the situation as it is today and as it is likely to develop throughout the balance of the Parliamentary term during which it is the manifest intention of the present Ministry to remain in office, it becomes clear that by just the Liberal members who have joined the new party will have merged their identity with and become absorbed in the Conservative organization. If they seek re-election it will be on a Conservative platform and by the support of electors largely of Conservative leanings. The Globe does not believe that Mr. Rowell will carry many Liberals with him into the Unionist camp on these terms. The mass of Liberal electors who supported the Unionist Government at the last election on war issues will unquestionably refuse to regard past issues as sufficient cause for the creation of a permanent party. They will seek rather to ally themselves with forward-looking men who will consider the questions which must come before the electorate in the future on their merits and in their bearings upon the welfare and happiness of the Canadian people.

There is no logical reason for the permanent alliance of men who hold widely divergent views concerning the vital issues of the future in the fact that two years ago they held an identical view regarding an issue that has been settled, and that has now no more historical interest. Liberalism and Conservatism are principles of political action that will survive long after the men of to-day disappear from the stage. That is why the Liberals of Ontario will fall in any great numbers to follow Mr Rowell into the camp of the party that, however it may name itself, is still in all essentials the traditional Conservative party of Macdonald, Cartier, Tupper, Thompson and Borden, and that still nails the flag of privilege to the masthead.—Toronto Globe.

By HERBERT COREY

New York, July 16.—Three friends from Tennessee came to New York at the time that Sergeant Yorke held the centre of the metropolitan stage. According to their biographer one of them went right up to bed after "supper." The other two went out to see the town. They did not get back till nearly eleven o'clock. They beat upon the door and kicked on the door, and they called through the transom. At last the sleeper awoke.

"I locked the door and threw the key into the hall," said he. "Why'n't you pick it up and come in?"

The two more sophisticated friends talked severely to the sleepy member. They said it was no way to do in a great city. They said New Yorkers would laugh at him. He didn't care They said that a thief might have found the key and opened the door and stolen all his belongings.

"Ain't got nothing to steal," said the sleepy member, "on'y my new pants."

"But," said the indignant pair, "that's a dickens of a thing to do in a big city. Suppose they'd a-been a fire?"

"Huh!" said the sleepy one. "I wouldn't a-went."

Heard at the Nineteenth Hole

Down on Long Island is the National Golf Club of America. Its members are mostly millionaires and they have spared no expense. They planned to make it the most difficult links in the United States. Each hole is a copy of the most celebrated hole of the most celebrated courses.

"Grits" Adams played that course several times. After hammering it almost out of recognition he came into the clubhouse for consolation. A member who met him expected a few words of commendation, but Mr. Adams omitted none. By and by the caper member brought up the subject:

"Ahem," said he. "Er—can you suggest any way in which the course might be made more interesting?"

"Yes," said Mr. Adams. "Plough up the putting greens."

Lobster Claws and Beer

Speaking of New York restaurants—which one must now and then—Bainbridge Colby and Otto Carmichael dropped into one the other day. Or they were stricken by the heat and took refuge there, not knowing where they were going. Anyhow, they ordered two portions of lobsters and two glasses of beer. They received two lobster claws and two thin lights.

"You are dorned stingy with your service, Jimmy," said Mr. Colby to the proprietor of the restaurant. Both men knew him well. The proprietor denied this charge angrily. He said that ever since the war lobsters had been very scarce. Also, he did not have as many out of town customers nowadays. The bill came.

"I—won't pay it," said Mr. Colby, angrily. "Exhibit. Seven dollars for two lobsters and two beers. No. No."

The proprietor of the restaurant [illegible] and bade him go. The charge ought only to be five dollars, he said, for two claws and two beers. So the waiter was called and the check was sent back to be amended. Then Mr. Colby gave the waiter a hundred dollar bill.

"I'll bet you Jimmy," said Mr. Colby pleasantly to the proprietor, "that your waiter short changes me. He thinks I live here in New York."

The proprietor was hideously angry by this time. He said that a joke is undoubtedly a joke, but Mr. Colby was pressing the limit. Then the waiter laid down the change and Mr. Colby counted it in front of the boss's eyes. It was twenty-two dollars short.

Jobs Yawning for Men

This yawp about the millions and millions of unemployed is beginning to treat the undersigned to a coarse guffaw. Maybe there are unemployed in some cities, but here in New York any one who really wants work can get it before noon any day. One of the transportation companies wanted one thousand men at four dollars a day and could only get two hundred A contractor said he would hire as many men as would take the job at fifty cents an hour, and they could work eight hours a day or eighteen as it suited them. But he could not get the men he wanted. The other day I found the manager of an apartmen house running the elevator and answering the telephone and between times sweeping out the halls.

"I can't get any men," said he. "I've advertised for days and only one man has ever come around to talk to me."

"Did he take the job?"

"No," said the manager. "He said the hours were too long. Anyhow said he, he was too weak from hunger to work. He asked me if I couldn't stake him to half a dollar. 'I dunno what we'll do,' said he 'if times gets much worse.'"

Voice Of The People

PETERBORO AND PEACE

I was pleased to see the names of some Patriotic Men in your paper who are in favor of a holiday on the 19th. It did me real good to read the announcement of Mr. A. Gibson. I guess the Retailers and Manufacturers can open their stores and factories if they choose to do so but I take it from high authority the employees are not compelled to work if they do not want to. I also read [illegible] the co-operation of the employers and employees wanted on Civic Holiday. Is the 19th a sample of the employers idea of co-operation? Now Retail Merchants let it be "This store will be Closed on Saturday", instead of "This Store will be open on Saturday".

Yours,

ON THE KAWARTHA LAKES

(BY SAM HUNTER.)

How many people in the "older" districts who subconsciously think of this part of our country as new, fully recall its history or the fact that in the beautiful water stretches of the Trent Valley we have one of the oldest pioneer highways in the new world? Along it Champlain passed on his way to the north three hundred years ago. As far back as the Red Man's history can be traced it has been the route by which his great hunting bands have travelled north. Along its course there are still found evidences of old tribal battles, early encampments, relics of war, the chase and of his earliest contact with the White Man.

At McCracken's Spring, a never-failing spring—which, by the way, is said to have induced the grandfather of the late W. R. McCraskin to settle here a little less than a century ago—there was found last week a bronze medallion with a date indecipherable. The device and a partially preserved inscription, however, would indicate its origin as French and of about the year 1660. It was found under a litter of drift and leaf mould. A renewed search next day resulted in the finding of a stone pipe bowl, a brass button, and a flat-shaped drinking utensil, apparently of glass, but much earth-stained. The latter was at first pronounced by a near-sighted scientist from Hick Centre, Pa., as an "aboriginal tear bowl" of uncertain period.

"Jim," the guide, who is some hat "shy" on relic lore generally, but some authority on "tear bowls," promptly disputed its aboriginal origin. Breathing heavily on it and giving it a rub down his leg, he disclosed the inscription, "Burksirish," which he claims is not Indian at all, but Celtic, and means "laughing water"—not tears. He further ventured the opinion that "this here Champlain guy youse was speakin' about likely lost his way medal and pipe when he stretched himself out to git a long drink at the spring after an all-night's celebration at Young's Point more'n twelve years ago. Here's where he throwed the tear bowl away." Interest in the find, it is needless to say, is not lessened here by James' explanation of the matter or his misconception as to the date and character of the great explorer.

Mr. A. F. Choate is in charge of the research party, and considerable ground is being broken.

Fishing here is particularly good at present, bass fishing more particularly, and "full limit" catches are being made daily by the rod and reel fishermen.

"Jim," who has a twenty-pound 'lunge to his credit this week, claims that fishing is good, but has fallen off considerably since last May.

"I know a bird," he confided to me, "who has an ice-house packed from floor to roof with fish he hatched in one day's fishin' at the mouth of Little Coon Crick one day, in early May, but d'ye think you could pove it on him or git a slice of one of them there fish? No, sir. The wife has complained to the licker license authorities and the fish and game law folks, but there's nothin' doin'. Old Tim, she claims, has been 'it up' steady, she says, for two straight months, and it's all goo to them there stord fis. She says that Tim was up to Little Coon the night the license inspector's sleuths broke up a private still. He saw them break in the heads of four bar'ls of squir'l whisky an' emp'y it into the crick. An hour later he was pickin' up paralysed 'lunge an' bass by the punt load and storin' them in the ice-house, throwin' out the butter an' milk an' things to make more room for fish. She claims that them fish is just steeped an' satterated with licker, an' now whenever he wants a 'bracer' he cuts a hunk off a big bass or 'lunge, comes in an' biles an' eats it, an' then sits down an' waits for results. He won't work, an' he subsists on a steady fish diet. Says if the plutocrats an' idle rich kin fill their cellars with imported lickers an' wines, he'd like t' see the man that's goin' to interfere with his private store of 'pickled' fish!

"Well," concluded James, "I don't see but what mebby he has the law on his side; but say, I hate a hog."

WHEN YOU LAY YOUR PAPER ASIDE

After you've read the news, have you gotten all the valuable information out of it? Not until you have read the advertisements.

Reading the advertisements should be as much a part of your day as reading the news columns.

The advertisements in your favorite newspaper are a daily record of what your local merchants have laid in store to meet your needs and add to your comfort.

They tell you what the manufacturers of these goods, who are constantly striving to please the public, have done to add to your advantages and comforts. The news, while always interesting; may often concern you only in a general way.

The advertisements are almost certain to tell you something that may mean a great deal to your home life or your business and social welfare.

DOES ADVERTISING PAY?

Many advertisers, and particularly retail advertisers, never get the full cumulative power of advertising behind their business because they lack patience. They demand direct returns. Thy run a one-time announcement in the local paper to-day and look for sales enough—sales directly traceable to the little one-time advertisement—before next week to pay for the cost of the space. Of coirse they are disappointed. Retail advertising seldom works out that way. But they are impatient for results. They are not prepared to invest money in advertising as they would in new goods, in store fixtures, in stocks or in real estate—and wait for profits to be earned. No. The returns of to-day's advertising must ring in cash profits to-morrow, or, in the estimation of too many retail dealers, the advertising is not worth what it costs.

Hand-to-mouth advetising is not worth what it costs. It yields only hand-to-mouth returns. To show the best results as a business building power, the advertising of the retail merchant must be persistent. Its chief purpose should be to build up permanent trade; to make the people of your community turn to your store in preference to other stores; to make them think of you and of your place of business; to convince them that they cannot get better quality and price and service anywhere.

"Would you advise a sixty-inch advertisement in the newspaper once a week or six ads. covering two inches of space each week?" was one of the questions asked.

"I would advise six ads., one each day, or, better still, three seven-inch ads. each week" replied the advertiser.

"Anything that is desirable is advertisable," he said, and pointed out that the desirability of an article depends much on the consistency with which it is advertised.

"One of the best ways to advertise is to cultivate the customers who have returned and they will count you in your advertising." His last message was: "Advertise and get out and prosper."

SULTAN HAS SCREEN OF HUMAN SKIN

There are many priceless relics in the menage of the Sultan of Turkey, most of which symbolize brutality and vice. But the romance of the famous screen in the throne room of the Sultan's palace is worth repeating. It is made of human skin, perfectly tanned and elaborately tooled and embossed, and it has been in the Royal quarters for more than two centuries. This remarkable screen is not an evidence of cruelty or barbaristy on the part of Turkey's ruler two hundred years ago, but is a memorial to twelve faithful servants of a former Sultan. At one time during the Sultan's reign, two hundred years ago, a wing of the palace caught fire and during the conflagration a much-beloved member of the Sultan's family was rescued by twelve servants. The twelve servants perished, some of them dying later of their wounds and burns, so His Majesty had their skins removed by an expert and had them preserved in this touching, though remarkable, manner. The screen is now looked upon as part of the rulers hiheritance, and it is said that every Sultan cherishes it as a miracul.

AIRMAN TRIED FOR TREACHERY

Secret Ink in Sweetheart's Handkerchiefs.

Probably the first airman to be court-martialled on a charge of treachery will be Corporal Paul Teulat. His case is a strange one, and especially interesting as showing the anxiety of the Germans to know the spots in Paris where their Big Bertha shells fell.

In May last year Teulat was obliged to land behind the German lines and was sent to one of the prisoners' camps formed by them for recruiting spies and traitors. The Huns first threatened to shoot the young airman, and then offered to release him if he would supply information concerning the results of the shelling of Paris. They said handkerchiefs would be sent to him which he was to soak in water in order to obtain secret ink with which to write his reports. The latter were to be forwarded through a French prisoner interned in Switzerland.

In the autumn of last year the attention of the French Intelligence Department was attracted by a letter from this prisoner to a telephone girl in the Seine Department, saying he was sending her a parcel of scent and handkerchiefs. What seemed curious was that she was recommended to "handle the handkerchiefs carefully."

The parcel was traced to Corporal Teulat at Bourget, who explained that the girl was his fiancee and "innocent." He had given her address to the Germans for the purpose of forwarding instructions, and his explanations enabled the authorities to trace the origin of a number of reports in invisible ink passing through the Swiss post.

HISTORY ONLY "BUNK," IS HENRY FORD'S VIEW

Tells Court That He Has No Personal Use For Music Or Arts

Mount Clemens, Mich, July 17.—Henry Ford made many frank admissions in the course of his testimony Monday, in his $1,000,000 libel suit against the Chicago Daily Tribune. Under examination Mr. Ford admitted his ignorance of history and said that more than ever he considered it "bunk" growing out of tradition, nor had he any personal use for music or other forms of art.

He reaffirmed his belief that professional soldiers are murderers, nor would h exempt Gen. Pershing or Grant from the category. He said that his present view was for the fullest preparedness unless there is a League of Nations, and that if the war just concluded in Europe does not result in such a league, he favors another great war without delay in order to clean up the situation so thereafter that period would be had.

It developed that Theodore De Lavigne, a publicity agent for Mr. Ford wrote practically all of Mr. Ford's pacifist literature and that much of it was circulated broadcast without Mr. Ford's having read it.

"I accept full responsibility for it, however," Mr. Ford testified repeatedly.

Mr. Ford was questioned by Attorney Elliot G. Stevenson for the defendant.

The mysterious "flag of humanity" which counsel for the defendants have been demanding ever since the case began, made its appearance.

"It is the first time I ever saw it," remarked Mr. Ford.

"Do you like it better than the Stars and Stripes?" asked Mr. Stevenson.

"It's a different kind of flag," answered the witness.

The flag was about seven by fourteen feet, with the earth in white on a blue field. Mr. Stevenson was attempting to show it to the jury when Mr. Ford took hold of one end and said: "I'll help you."

The emblem designed to typify world brotherhood is said to have grown out of a remark by Mr. Ford three or four years ago, when he said that all national flags should be succeeded by a flag of humanity under which all men of all nations might stand.

Up to to-day counsel for Mr. Ford denied the existence of such a flag, but said a search for it was being prosecuted.

WILSON GROOMING HIS SON-IN-LAW

Political speculation in the United States is busy with the question of whether President Wilson will be a candidate for the third term. Some of his friends are beginning to hint that he will, but nothing definite on the subject has yet come from himself.

Despite this silence the chances are altogether that he will consider two terms enough. Why, then, does he decline to say so? Probably because he has a son-in-law, Mr. William McAdoo, who has aspirations to be his successor.

No member of the Democratic party can very well announce himself as in the race for the nomination until there is a certainty that President Wilson will retire. Mr. McAdoo, however, might easily have a private understanding on this point and be making his preparations.

The presidential influence will be used freely for the son-in-law in seeing that the proper sort of delegates are sent to the national convention of the Democratic party. Then, when the announcement is finally made that the president intends to retire Mr. McAdoo might be found to have such a lead that no rival could overtake him.

In this, perchance, is the explanation of the situation? A good many American public men seem to see it in this light, and some of them are not pleased, but what can they do about it?

New Canadian Pacific Director

Captain the Hon. W. J. Shaughnessy

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Canadian Pacific Railway held on June 16th, Captain the Hon. William J. Shaughnessy was elected a director of the company to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of the Hon. James Dunsmuir, of Victoria, B.C.

Captain Shaughnessy is the son of the Right Hon. Lord Shaughnessy, who was for nineteen years the president of the Canadian Pacific Railway and is now the Chairman of the Board. Educated at Laval University, Montreal, and Cambridge, England, Capt. Shaughnessy is a prominent Montreal lawyer. During the war he saw three years' service overseas, leaving Canada as Captain and Adjutant of the 199th Irish Rangers, recruited in Montreal, and was in charge of the arrangements for the battalion's notable tour of Ireland.

On the breaking up of the Irish Rangers, he was sent to France as aide-de-camp to Brigadier-General Sloane, the Canadian representative at British General Headquarters. After serving with considerable distinction in this capacity for some time, Captain Shaughnessy was transferred to the headquarters of the Canadian Corps, acting as aide-de-camp to Lieutenant-General Sir Arthur Currie, the corps commander.

Making Trips Across Atlantic

SINCE that day, August 3, 1492, on which the great Christopher, with his three little ships, the Nina, the Pinta, and the Santa Maria, ventured forth from Palos into the "Sea of Darkness" on the voyage which was to end in the discovery of The New World, navigators have been striving to shorten the time of getting across. It took the admiral himself considerably more than two months to make the passage, and, great seaman that he was, he shortened it all he could. Some hundred and thirty years later, the Mayflower did not greatly improve on this time, but as the years went by, and the lanes became better known, and the demand for speed increased, the shipbuilder built his ships more and more for speed, until, in the days of the third George, the transports could make their way across, with a fair wind, inside of a month. So matters stood at the time of that great revolution in the way of the sea, the introduction of steam.

It was not a complete revolution, of course, for not only did the sailing ship valiantly hold her own, even in the matter of speed, for the first few years, but such famous clippers as the Dreadnought and the Red Jacket rivaled, in their day, the fastest steamer afloat. Built for speed, with an almost unbelievable spread of canvas, they could and did make the voyage between New York and Liverpool in little over thirteen days. Indeed, in the early days, the steamer never ventured to sea in its own strength alone. Steam engines it had, and the best that could be devised, but it was always a full-rigged ship as well. Thus the Savannah, which is generally recorded as the first steamship to cross the Atlantic, used steam only eighteen days out of the twenty-five occupied in the voyage. That was in 1819, and it was not until fourteen years later that a steamship, the Royal William, crossed the Atlantic entirely under her own steam. She sailed from Quebec, and reached London in seventeen days. Curiously enough, although this is a well-established fact, and a tablet recording this crossing is to be found in the Parliamentary Library at Ottawa, the place of honor as the first vessel to cross the Atlantic under her own steam is frequently given to the Sirius. To be sure, the Sirius had a much better press at the time than the Royal William. Even in those days the inspired paragraph was not utterly unknown. And so in the London Times eighty-one years ago there appeared, one day, a kind of advance notice telling of how "the experiment of steam voyage from England to America" had commenced; and how, a few days before, the St. George Steam Packet Co.'s powerful steamship Sirius, Lieut. Roberts, R.N., commander, had sailed off East Lane stairs en route for Cork and New York. "The Sirius," the paragraph continued, "is a vessel of 700 tons, with engines of 320 horse-power; and has been fitted up in a most splendid manner. It is expected that she will complete the voyage in fifteen days, and so confident are her owners of this that they have already announced her sailing sail from New York for the return voyage on the 1st of May. She carries out from London twenty-two first-class passengers, but this number will be considerably augmented at Cork. She does not take out any goods, being intended for a passenger ship only."

As a matter of fact, the good ship actually sailed [illegible] with a complement [illegible] passengers. All the others were rendered so doubtful as to the expediency of prosecuting the adventure further, by their experiences during the run down the Channel, that they forfeited their passage money and decided to trust to the winds. The Sirius, however, duly arrived in the Hudson, although not without adventure. In spite of the fact that she carried 450 tons of coal, a great quantity in those days, being loaded down almost to the water's edge, she ran so short of fuel before she sighted Sandy Hook that she had to burn every spare yard and spar, and even rails, of which she carried a considerable quantity. But she reached New York, under her own steam, and set out on her return voyage, as per schedule, on May 1. The attempts and achievements of these early pioneers were, of course, the one great subject of conversation and debate on both sides of the Atlantic. And so history, to-day, is but repeating itself, only, to-day, days have become hours. Indeed, the passage of the Atlantic, during the 400 years or so that men have been making it, has been steadily changing, as far as the method of reckoning is concerned, from months to weeks, from weeks to days, and now to hours.

Flowers in Arctic Regions.

Flowers grow profusely in many parts of the Arctic regions. The most frequently met with is the cotton plant. The miners of the north of the American continent have a saying that wherever cotton blooms, ice is not far below.

One may walk for miles, between the months of June and August, through fields of cotton plants in flower, the white, silky tops swaying in the Arctic breeze. At present little use is made of it, from an industrial point of view, except where the down is gathered for filling pillows.

Throughout the cotton fields flowers bloom in luxuriance, as is only to be expected in a country where the sun shines continuously during the summer months. Among others, the flower-hunter may gather purple lupines, bluebells, monk's-hood, primroses, asters, lilies of the valley, and even a kind of Arctic geranium, pink or white in color.—Tit-Bits.

Has Biblical Sanction.

The American Humane Education society thinks it has made a point by showing that "Spare the rod and spoil the child" cannot be found in the Bible, but was written by Samuel Butler in 1663. Butler probably got the alliterative "spare and spoil" from Ralph Venning, who used it in 1649, but the idea goes back to Proverbs 13:24:—"He that spareth his rod hateth his son; but he that loveth him chasteneth him betimes." We are with the Humane society (and the chastening) in questioning the genuineness of unselfish love in the average "chastening," but cannot approve of its quibbling as to the quotation, so far as substantial assertion goes.

But most people would be surprised to learn that the exact words were not scriptural, just as they would be to learn that there is no direct statement about the lion and the lamb lying down together. Many still think "God tempers the wind to the shorn lamb" is from the Bible, although Sterne quoted it, without credit, from Henry Mackenzie. Wesley's vague quotation of an ancient Hebrew's "Cleanliness is next to godliness" sounds like Bible. Numerous passages from hymns are also erroneously ascribed to scripture.—New York Times.

STRANGE VISITORS TO INDIANS

When Airmen "Dropped In" to Their Village.

Army aviators stationed at France field, near Cristobal, in the Panama canal zone, are required to do much of their flying over water and along the coast. Recently two pilots made a flight to the Gulf of St. Blas, which is situated on the Atlantic coast about one hundred miles west of France field. The mainland and small islands in the gulf are inhabited by Indians, who are very unfriendly.

Due to the overheating of a motor one of the pilots was compelled to descend, and landed on one of the most populous of the islands. His companion in the second airplane followed him. Consternation reigned among the natives when the two airplanes "taxied" up to the largest village and came to a halt. What followed is described in the bulletin of the air service which contains an official report of the trip:

"It is doubtful who was the most fearful on this occasion, for when the bespectacled pilots alighted from their machines the entire population of the island was lined up, armed to the teeth. The chief of the village very judiciously took his place at the head of this aggregation and with a machete in his hand greeted the visitors with a scowl.

"One of the pilots was a new arrival in Panama and unfamiliar with stories about the unfriendliness of the Indians. As soon as he stepped on the beach he rushed up and greeted the chief in a very effusive manner, and fortunately his friendly smile was properly interpreted. After this the pilots were permitted to go through the village, and [illegible] were induced to smoke cigarettes which the aviators produced.

LABOUR CIRCULATING A PETITION FOR A 44 HOUR WEEK IN ONTARIO

TRADES COUNCIL PREPARING FOR A RECORD DEMONSTRATION ON LABOUR DAY—WILL REFRESH ALD. GARSIDE ON MUNICIPAL PLANKS.

PEACE HOLIDAY DISCUSSED

Blank forms of a petition requesting Premier Hearst to enact legislation providing for a 44-hour week in Ontario, were distributed among the members of the Trades and Labour Council last night to be circulated in all the unions for the purpose of getting as many signatures as possible. This movement is province wide and follows up the resolutions that have been passed by practically all the labour organizations during recent months.

The council endorsed a resolution from Prince Rupert to the Dominion Government proposing that with each man from labour's ranks, who is held for trial or deportation in connection with the Winnipeg troubles, be ranged one of the profiteers and that Sir Joseph Flavelle head the list. The resolution stated that the profiteers have oppressed the people and have been responsible in whole or in part for the unrest that is disturbing the great mass of humanity.

Replying to the council's protest against the deportation of any of the Winnipeg prisoners without trial, Hon. Arthur Meighen replied that the question of their deportation was left to Hon. Mr. Calder's department.

All In Same Fight.

One member who criticized the ambiguity of this information remarked that all the Winnipeg men had been fighting the same battle, and it made no difference whether they were British born or of alien birth. To deport them without a trial he asserted was no British justice.

Oppose Chatauqua Plan.

The Chatauqua system of staging a week's entertainment in Peterboro and taking away $1,200 without paying any tax to the city in opposing to local amusement houses who are contributing year in and year out to the city's revenue, was condemned by the members. It was suggested that next year some steps be taken to withhold the privilege of using Central park or of opening an engagement anywhere in Peterboro unless some revenue is forthcoming to the civic treasury.

Preparing For Labour Day.

Reporting the activities of the Labour Day celebration committee, President Bolwell reviewed the programme that had been already outlined. Meetings are held every Friday night, and latterly in the Fire Hall because of the inability of several delegates from the fire department to attend.

The plans promise the biggest Labour demonstration ever witnessed, with baseball games and sports, and a big parade, probably with floats representing the various unions, from Central Park to Riverside.

The machinists announced that they have decided to purchase a banner for their group, the labourers are preparing to give a good account of themselves and the other unions are showing an interest that is a practical guarantee of the Labour Day events.

Summons Ald. Garside.

Stating that the 8-hour day and work by day labour were two of the main planks in labour's platform, Mr. T. Tooms said that there was some dissatisfaction in labour circles with Ald. Garside's failure to support both these principles in the City Council. Ald. Garside, according to the press reports didn't vote for the resolution to build the Hunter street bridge by day labour, Mr. Tooms alleged, and added that his vote would have given the motion a majority.

President Bolwell said that Ald. Gainey had told him that Ald. Garside was a little hard of hearing and that when his attention had been called to this motion that he had voted for it on the ayes and nays.

Ald. Morrison observed that all the aldermen made mistakes, and that the labour aldermen had been guilty of omissions and commissions. He objected to Ald. Garside being singled out.

Mr. Tooms replied that there had previously been the eight-hour day incident. To straighten out the question and to refresh the labour platform in the memories of the aldermen, it was decided to invite Ald. Garside to attend the next meeting.

Buying At Home.

A delegate sarcastically referred to the Board of Trade's slogan, urging the people to buy at home.

"That's what they tell the people, but when the manufacturers won't give their men a fair wage they cart all their work to the United States. We know what they are doing and we've as many friends as they have he said.

A word of commendation was spoken for the few merchants who stood out for the celebration of peace on Saturday, July 19th. One delegate mentioned the newspaper report of the Board of Trade's proposal to hold the celebration on August 11th.

"Who's running this city anyway," he asked. Is it the Board of Trade or the people. Have we to take our instructions from the Board of Trade?"

The Board of Trade came in for more than the usual straffing last night. One of the delegates who has repeatedly asserted that he can find no good for labour in the Board, referred to the address of the Winnipeg labour men in Toronto this week, in which it was stated that the Board of Trade in Winnipeg had been the force that defeated the big strike.

President Bolwell declared that he would maintain his faith in the Peterboro Board of Trade until it found cause to alter it. Mr. Ryerson Ritchie had recently asked him to nominate some labour men to assist in the proposed peace celebration, and in the interview had discussed many questions in which the Labour Council was interested. Some of these Mr. Bolwell briefly sketched, and it was suggested by another delegate that Mr. Ritchie be requested to meet the council for an informal discussion, but the motion seemed to have been forgotten afterwards.

Another delegate remarked that the opinion formed of the Board of Trade was due to the conduct and ideas of a small group, and while conceding that many of the members were sympathetic in the last analysis they would oppose labour to a man upon any of the fundamental advantages labour was striving to botain.

Mr. Hugh Stevenson, of Toronto, who organized the Peterboro Typographical Union seventeen years ago, said that the Toronto board had proved its usefulness by negotiating settlements of strikes that would cost labour many thousands of dollars.

THERE WAS NOTHING MORE IN LIFE FOR HIM HE THOUGHT

But He Changed His Mind When Hopama Came Into His Life—See This Story in "A Soul Without Windows."

Scott Mallory was paralyzed from the waist down, this distressing condition being the result of injuries sustained in an accident.

His terrible condition had turned Scott from a likable, sunny young man into a morose, vicious, utterly disagreeable person who spent his entire time in a darkened room, cursing the servants and refusing to see his mother or to take any interest in life.

Scott was "a soul without windows." He was in the most disheartened, discouraged, hopeless condition that a human being could be in when Hopama, bright and sunny, floated into his life in the garb of the Shaker colony in which she had been brought up.

Hopama aroused Scott's interest. She piqued him. She made him for get himself. Finally she brought him joy. And then, quite suddenly, Hopama went out of Scott's life. She became a great violinist and it was at a concert that she was finally found after Scott had spent money and energy and time in having her searched for.

Just why was it that Hopama left Scott? You'll see why and you'll understand Hopama's fascinating character when you see "A Soul Without Windows," the new World Picture, at the Grand Theatre to-day, Friday and Saturday.

Miss Ethel Calyton is starred in this production in the role of Hopama. The play is the best thing Miss Clayton has ever done. The production is simply fascinating. You'll be wild about it. See it.

THROWING OUT THE LIFELINE

"Dramatic Move" Contemplated to Hold Present Ministry—Task of Premier in Reforming Cabinet is Contemplated

Ottawa, July 17.—Ontario, the Prairie Provinces and Quebec are contemplating the task of Premier Borden in forming the first permanent Unionist Cabinet, according to reports in well-informed circles. The problem in Quebec is finding and electing Unionist Ministers. The problem in Ontario and the West is to stay the get-together movement on the part of both sections of the Liberal party, which set in on the termination of war, and the necessity for tackling the economic issues of peace.

On the prairies it is believed in Unionist circles that political organization by the Grain-Growers will prevent the formation of any united Liberal front, but it is said that a dramatic move is contemplated to "save the situation" in Ontario. Pressures is to be brought to bear on Provincial Premier Hearst to establish "Unionism" in Ontario by taking Mr. William Proudfoot and probably two other Liberal Unionists into his Cabinet. By this action it is believed that the Liberal forces of the Province may be kept divided and the success of the Unionists assured.

INVESTIGATING THE STRIKE SITUATION

The Tie-Up is Complete Along the New York Harbour Front.

(Special to The Examiner.)

NEW YORK, July 17. — Andrew Furuseth, President of the International Seamen's Union, was here today to investigate the strike situation, preparatory to reporting on conditions to the seamen of the Great Lakes and Pacific coast.

Although one or two steamship owners were reported to have granted the demands of the seamen, the tie-up apparently was as complete as at any time since the strike was called last week.

Original Definition of Alcoholic Liquor Will Stand.

(Special to The Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, July 17.— With all the evidence from both sides in, little hope was held out to-day that the Senate would modify the strict provisions of the House Prohibition Bill.

We do not expect to make many important changes in the House Bill," Senator Sterling, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Sub-committee, declared, after announcing all hearings closed.

"The definition of alcoholic liquors fixed at a maximum of one half of one per cent. will stand so far as we are concerned."

DETAILS OF THE MONTREAL MURDER WHICH PETERBORO MAN IS IMPLICATED

CONFESSED, AFTER ARREST, THAT HE HAD KILLED BELLA PICKEN IN DRUNKEN FRENZY IN ROOMING HOUSE ON ST. LAWRENCE BOULEVARD.

MONTREAL, July 17.—Beating to death Bella Picken, nee Roy, of Ottawa, in a rooming house at 800 St. Lawrence Boulevard, early yesterday morning, William Fallon, a returned soldier, of Peterborough, Ont., who was living with the woman as her husband, calmly left the house and went to a nearby barber shop to get shaved.

The murderer was arrested within an hour of the discovery of the body by the landlady, who notified the police. A hurry call was sent out to all stations by Chief of Detectives Lepage at 10 o'clock, and so rapidly was the wanted man's description circulated that he was arrested fifty minutes later by Traffic Policeman Bourgeois as he was crossing the corner of Main and St. Catherine streets.

When brought to Chief Lepage's office, Fallon confessed to killing the woman in a drunken frenzy, and is now being held on a charge of murder, pending the coroner's inquest. The man claimed he had no clear recollection of the crime beyond the fact of his beating the woman with his fists, but the marks on the victim's head and the presence of liquor bottles in the room bore testimony to the fact that the latter had been used with terrible effect in the assault.

The assault was committed at half-past two in the morning, according to Fallon's story to the police. He left the house directly afterwards, and returned a few hours later to see if the woman was dead. Finding that she was he again left, this time to enjoy the refreshing luxury of a shave and a hair cut. He was sauntering pleasantly uptown when the grip of the law was laid upon him.

The couple had been living together for the past four months, and sixteen days ago came to Montreal from Ottawa, where the woman's husband, Percy Picken, is living. They took a room in St. Antoine street, but on account of a disturbance they were making, were put out by the landlord. They collected their baggage and went to the house at 800 St. Lawrence street at one o'clock in the morning. An hour and a half later the woman lay dying in her night clothes with her head battered to a pulp, while the murderer walked the streets at large. But with the fatal fascination which the scene of a crime has for some people he returned to the room and this delay in making his get away proved his undoing.

After his departure the landlady of the house, Mrs. St. Denis, went to the room just before 10 o'clock, thinking the pair had departed, and was horrified to find the body of the woman lying on the floor with her head terribly crushed. She gave the alarm and three detectives were sent to the scene of the tragedy. They got a description of the man, who was in civilian clothes, from the landlady, and it was at once circulated to all the police stations, with the result that the wanted man was "spotted" and submitted to arrest without any trouble.

The prisoner was sober but shaken when he was led before Chief Lepage this morning by Detectives Thibault, Walsh and Therien, who had been assigned to the case. He made no attempt to conceal his crime, and made his confession after he had been duly warned by Chief Lepage of the seriousness of his statements.

Fallon is a young man of 27 who has been twice overseas. He has had no occupation since he returned home to Canada and Peterborough last fall. The murdered woman was 26 years old, and before her marriage to Picken, was known as Bella Roy. Her home is at Ottawa.

GENERAL ODLUM IN PETERBORO

DISTINGUISHED VISITOR HAS LITTLE GOOD TO SAY FOR RUSSIAN CONTINGENT

A distinguished visitor of the city today was Brigadier General Victor W. Odlum C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., with par, who commanded the Eleventh Bridage of the Fourth Division of Canadians up to the end of the war. He was visiting his uncle Mr. O. W. Powell, 588 George street, on his way to his home in Vancouver, B. C.

General Odlum went overseas as Major and second in command of the 72th (British Columbia) Battalion and on the death of the Colonel, Lieut.-Col. Hart M'Harg at the second battle of Ypres, Major Odlum was placed in command and later promoted to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel. A year and a half later he was promoted to the rank of Brigadier General on the formation of the Furth Canadian Division under Major General Sir David Watson, K. C. B. He was placed in command of the Eleventh Bridage compoted of the 44th, 102nd, 75th and 87th Battalions. The first three battalions named are Ontario units, the 75th being a Toronto unit among which were a number of Peterboro boys. The 87th Battalin was formed in Montreal and was known as the Canadian Grenadier Gurds.

Hard Service.

General Odlum went through all the battles in which the Canadian Corps participated and his brigade was just outside the gates of Mons when the armistice was signed. His command sailed home as a unit on June 1 on board the Mauretania. General Odlum remained behind until June 25th.

General Odlum is a newspaper man being at the time of going overseas the editor and proprietor of the Vancouver World. He rose from cub reporter to ownership of that paper. His commanding officer Sir David Watson of the Fourth Division is also a newspaper man being proprietor of the Quebec Chronicle.

The General holds three very strong views the dependability of the returned soldier as a Canadian citizen, the duty of the Federal Government towards aviation and the place that Lieutenant General Sir Arthur Currie K.C.B. Commander of the Canadian Corps holds in the hearts of Canadians the Empire and the Allies at large as a soldier of ability and foresight.

"The attitude of the returned soldier is absolutely a safe one," replied the General in answer to a question Only a small minority of them are making trouble and you will find that most of those have never seen active service. As citizens I believe that they are more dependable than when they were "over there" and there is no safer element in the country today than 80 per cent. of those that saw service in France and Flanders.

Anti-Bolshevist

He has also pronounced views on Bolshevism and asked whether he ever came in contact with the Russian contingent in France, stated that he had but as he could not say anything good about them he did no want to say anything bad. "They are mentally unfit to be good soldiers," said the General speaking of the Russians. They have lived in communities for centuries which they never move out of and they have married and inter-married until there present situation of chaos and ruin exists.

"Canada has more good airmen than any country in the world and if the Federal Government's present apathy continues, these splendid men will forget their training and some private corporation will control aviation in this country. Aviation here is going to be controlled by landing grounds and if the Federal Government doesn't do something now to acquire these properties they will have the same trouble as they are now having over the nationalization of the railways. Although President Edward Beatty of the C.P.R. is my cousin I don't want to see the railway acquire these landing grounds and they are perfectly willing to do it now seeing, as they do, the great possibilities of the aeroplane. In proportion to population Canada has the largest number and best fliers in the whole world," reiterated the General. "The aeroplane of the future is going to be one of the greatest instruments of civilization instead of that of war."

Speaking of the Canadian commander he said that he was of the opinion that General Currie is the biggest man that the Canadian Corps has produced.

He also had a good word for the Canadian overseas Y.M.C.A. and stated that the "Y" did as much in a practical way as anything over there.

General Odlum is a veteran in every sense of the term and carries on his left arm three wound stripes. While with the 75th Battalion he participated the trench raid which subsequently became a feature of the war and which was imitated by the Allies and even the German themselves.

The General is also visiting here in Ontario and elsewhere the mothers of the boys that served under him in France and were killed. He visited His Honour Judge Huycke and Crown Attorney Hatton whose sons served under him in France.

Who, as the leader of song, proved an important factor in the success of the Union Evangelistic Campaign. Mr. Mulligan's singing has often been enjoyed by Peterborough audiences.

Rumour has it that it is the intention of the Great War Veterans to place a candidate in the provincial field. Mr. S. Whatley, secretary of the local branch of the Great War Veteran's Association, when seen today, denied hat it was the intention of the association to enter the provincial field.

MEN RECOVERING FROM INJURIES

Charles W. Pogue, 269 William street, and L. W. Christopher, 319 Margaret avenue, who were injured in a runaway accident on Monday evening last are resting as easy as can be expected, considering the serious nature of their injuries. The accident occurred at Charlotte street and Boswell Avenue. The two men had rented a horse from Robinson's livery, and the animal in some manner got beyond control. It dashed down Charlotte street at a furious rate. One of the front wheels of the waggon gave way and both men were dashed to the ground.

Mr. Christopher is suffering from injuries to his back and face and Mr. Pogue had five wound, three of which required stitching.

Any one suffering from bowel complaints such as diarrhoea, dysentery, colic, cramps and pains in the stomach, summer complaint, etc., will find that Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry will give quicker and more permanent relief than any other remedy on the market to-day.

This old tried and proven medicine has been on the market for the past 70 years. You don't experiment when you buy it. Surely the test of time proves this.

Mrs. Daniel Hartwick, Mountain Grove, Ont., writes:—"I used Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry and have found that it is a good remedy. When my little girl was 2 1-2 years old she had a very bad attack of bowel complaint. Nothing prescribed by the doctor seemed to do her any good. She got worse, until we thought we would loose her. I got a bottle of 'Dr. Fowler's', and she soon found relief. Every one who has children should not be without it in their home.

LABOUR MAN SCORES EXHIBITION BOARD

The Exhibition Board was charged by a member of the Trades and Labour Council last night, with employing men at 35c. an hour for some of the work that has been carried on recently. The censure included a reference to retired farmers who had been seen at work on the grounds. Another delegate said he had been told that the proceeds from the events at the Exhibition grounds went into the pockets of the directors. And another comment was that the "attractions were no d—— good, not worth fifteen cents," and so on. All in all it was a veritable broadside against the Fair Board.

"It is an honor to meet you," said the plant chief.

"Honor be damned. I'm only like the rest of you," replied the Auto magnate.

SENATOR GIDEON ROBERTSON DISCUSSES THE PRESENT INDUSTRIAL SITUATION

EXTREME NUMBER OF STRIKES AND WALK-OUTS HINDRED INDUSTRIAL PROGRESS.

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, July 17.—"Hundreds of thousands of dollars would have been spent in Canada for reconstruction purposes, but for the extreme number of strikes and walk-outs, as well as the general labour unrest," said the Hon. Gideon Robertson, Minister of Labour, in an interview immediately upon his arrival in Toronto.

Senator Robertson had a number of conferences arranged with various local bodies, representing labour unions, strikers and employers. The first meeting of the day was with the striking freight teamsters in the office of E. N. Compton, Dominion Government Fair Wage Officer.

"Can you do anything to make a settlement on this particular dispute, in view of the men's connection with a public utility?"

"That I cannot say just yet."

When the Minister was asked whether he could force a settlement in any of the strikes now on here, he replied that he could not do so, as the only means at his disposal was to request both parties to meet him and then endeavour to bring the respective disputants into a joint conference.

COLLECTIVE BARGAINING.

"Do you approve of the form of collective bargaining which is sought by the Metal Trades Council?"

"I could not answer that."

"Do you think if the Government had brought down the Industrial Commission's report and put its findings into practice much of the present unrest would have been averted, and that a great number of strikes where the men sought better working conditions, would never have occurred?"

"Well, the conference which will be held on 11th September, composed of some 150 representatives of employers and workers, is a splendid move in the right direction. I am certain that by means of such conferences the Government will be far better advised on the general industrial situation, which will be of inestimable value in framing new legislation."

"But should the findings of that report have been enforced immediately?"

"There were a number of serious reasons why this should not be hastened along too rapidly," replied the Minister.

30,000 CANUCKS OVERSEAS

That Number Still to be Returned—Likely to Come Within Month

Ottawa, July 17.—Cable advices of July 12, received at the Militia Department from England, put the number of men still to be returned to Canada at approximately 30,000. As the movement of troops depends on shipping facilities, it is difficult to state definitely when the last of the C.E.F. will reach Canada, but another month should see things pretty well cleaned up.

LAKE STREET BATHING PLACE WILL BE RAKED

Ald. McIntyre stated to-day that the Lake street bathing place would receive immediate attention. He intended to consider some method by which the wading bottom could be cleared of refuse. Mr. Killaly, of the Trent Canal, had promised to divert several scow loads of sand and gravel to the foot of Lake street. The movement of the boom of logs has altered the advantages of the beach, several aldermen have remarked, and necessitated improvements now directly at the foot of Lake street.

HUN BOLSHEVIK RECEIVES FIVE YEAR SENTENCE

(Canadian Press.)

MUNICH, July 17.—Enrich Toller, Communist leader, has been sentenced to confinement for five years in a fortress. The most important charge against Toller was that he took an important part in directing operations of the Red Guards against the government forces, but the Court found there were extenuating circumstances connected with the case and Toller escaped with capital punishment.

IN CASE OF FIRE.

Don't get excited. Keep cool and attack the seat of the fire at once. Always have a bucket of water containing bi-carbonate of soda in saturated solution) and a chemical fire extinguisher within easy reach.

The tubes of dry powder sold as fire extinguishers are practically useless. Don't buy them. They won't give you protection.

There are several liquid chemical fire extinguishers on the market that contain carbon tetrachloride as the extinguishing fluid. They are reliable and easily handled.

Care should be exercised in buying fire extinguishers to see that the containers are made of copper; as steel and iron will corrode and render the extinguisher useless inside of a year or two.

The standard types of fire extinguishers bear the labels of the Underwriters' Laboratories, which insure their efficiency, construction and material.

A fire may easily be quenched at its incipiency by the vigorous use of a broom kept thoroughly wet; or by being smothered by the application of wet blankets, rugs, sacks, etc.

In escaping from a fire put a wet handkerchief in your mouth, creep or crawl along the room with your face close to the ground. Children should be taught to press out a spark instantly if it catches in their clothing and also that running into the air will cause it to blaze immediately.

THERE IS DANGER IN TENDER GUMS

To preserve healthy teeth the ordinary tooth-paste is futile. You must first care for the gums, on which tooth health depends.

How many people think of this? Yet four out of five people over forty suffer from gum-decay, or Pyorrhea (Riggs' Disease).

At first the gums become tender, though actual gum-shrinkage is imperceptible. But in time receding gums will surely loosen your teeth, and then only a dentist can save them. The tender, bleeding gums of Pyorrhea also act as so many doorways for disease germs to enter the system—infecting joints or tonsils—or causing other ailments.

Forhan's (For the Gums) prevents Pyorrhea, if used in time and used consistently. This means that it prevents gum-shrinkage, gum-tenderness, gum-bleeding. So, automatically, Forhan's prevents tooth-loosening.

Brush your teeth with it. It scientifically cleans the teeth—keeps them white and clean.

If gum shrinkage has already set in, start using Forhan's and consult a dentist immediately for treatment.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

His Little Lad

By AGNES G. BROGAN

The old man sat in his impressive and gloomy library, the newspaper across his knee. Upon its front page was printed a soldier's photograph, on the old man's eyes gazed past this unseeing, or perhaps he was in fancy seeing the face more vividly.

The resemblance of the pictured face to his own, was remarkable; as the eyes behind the spectacles might have looked before life and its realities had made them stern.

How long was it since the boy had left him in his lonely old age?

He had wandered through all this stress of war, wondered secretly, if his son had been one of those to take up his country's colors. But he might have known. Was not patriotism in the blood? He, himself, still moved through this desolate old mansion leaning upon the crutch that was his ever present reminder of fighting days long past. And Ned had been one of the first to enlist, so the paper said, and with rapidity had won his honors. The smile beneath the soldier cap brim was unclouded; the father noted this with jealous pang. Then the vaudeville singer had realized, leaving no need like that of the aching old heart.

Ned had been his all, his own little lad. His beautiful mother had not lingered long enough to clasp her child to her breast, but the father had compensated. Oh! there was no doubt of that! Nothing had been left undone which might add to the boy's comfort and happiness. Fumblingly the wrinkled fingers moved toward a long unopened drawer of the massive mahogany desk; it was here that he had locked the lad's picture forever from his sight. Forever, but today he would open the drawer once more. He wished to compare with the soldier's photograph, that of Neddie, when he had taken his first leave of home.

There was something very like, he remembered, in the youth's brave and hopeful expression. He found the picture and tremblingly adjusted his spectacles as he bent above it. The lad had been proud as he waved good-by, starting out upon his college career. They had agreed together, that at the termination Ned would take up the business interests which his father had been obliged to lay aside. In Ned, would his own ambition and fulfilment. Money did not much matter, he had acquired plenty of that, but Ned should still carry on the old name, and in the old power. And then, like a thunderclap it had come, the announcement of the boy's hasty marriage.

"I had to leave college so that I could take care of Elsie." Ned had written. "You see she's a vaudeville singer, and the traveling around is hard for a girl." A traveling vaudeville actress his son's wife.

The father's head had been bowed long between his hands, as he thought the matter out. With his own strict standards, in his disappointment at his son's lack of confidence, there could be but one decree—the boy must keep to himself the wife he had taken, there could be for her no welcome beneath his father's roof.

The older man had been long in composing the letter of dismissal, and when it was sent its way, he changed gradually into the morose and unapproachable creature, which he had become.

As a step sounded on the polished floor behind him, he pushed as though guilty, the photograph back into the drawer.

"Little chap at the door wants to see you sir," a servant announced, and waited questioningly. But the guest had entered unbidden, and the old man turning in his chair, stared at a very little boy standing framed in the doorway.

"I followed him," the child said smiling, and pointed a finger at the servant. Then as the servant withdrew the lad ventured cheerfully into the room. "How do you do?" he asked. "You'll be awfully surprised when you learn who I am, and I had the dickens of a time getting over to see you. My mother is out hunting us a tiny flat to live in, and tiniest flats cost so much she's afraid she won't find one at all.

"My father is over in France fighting the Huns," the boy drew himself up proudly, "and this is the city he used to live in before he married my mother. She thought she could find work here, but not like she used to do, though I think that would be better. Mother used to sing lullabys on the stage, what the colored mammys sing to their babies you know, and they say no one could do it as well as my mother. But father—he told me about you about the big stone house near the park where you live, and so I beat it out today and came to see you.

"Father, he says you were the greatest soldier in the world and you'd fight for your country while you had a leg to stand on. And so will he. Father wants to be just like you; and now—" the boy's eyes glistened, "who do you 'spose I am?" He laughed gleefully.

"Well, how do you do, grandfather!" he said.

And suddenly the sternness left the old man's eyes, suddenly his arms were outstretched. "Back again," he murmured brokenly, "my little lad."

After a time as the gray head was still pressed close to the brown one the old man smiled in great content.

"We will send for mother," he said, "and here in this big house we three will wait until father comes home from war."

Council Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Village Council was held on Wednesday evening last. Members present were Reeve Squires and Councillors Montgomery, Elliott, and McKelvie.

The minutes of last meeting were read and adopted.

Accounts were read as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| W. Hudson, work on streets | $3.00 |
| W. J. Puffer, equalising school rates | 3.00 |
| W. Taylor, salary | 9.00 |
| W. Taylor, work | 1.50 |
| W. P. Plant, sewer grates | 10.90 |

A communication from the Hydro-Electric Commission was read, saying that the power line was to be constructed this year from Healey Falls to Peterborough, and that if the municipality wished to enter the system that the Council pass a resolution requesting the Commission to prepare estimates of the cost of power and the valuation of the distributing system.

Moved by Coun. McKelvie, seconded by Coun. Montgomery, that the Council request the Hydro-Electric Power Commission to send an engineer to make estimates of the cost of power and the valuation of the distributing system.—Carried.

Re Alma street bridge.—The Reeve informed the Council that there was apparently some misunderstanding as to the assumption of this bridge with the sidewalk, the members of the County Council being of the opinion that the bridge was assumed but not the sidewalk. He therefore agreed with the County Council in order to facilitate the work this season, that the village would assume the cost of the sidewalk.

On further consideration, however, he advised the Council to build the sidewalk separately and let the county build the bridge.

Moved by Coun. Elliott, seconded by Coun. Montgomery, that the Reeve be instructed to advise the County Council that the Village Council would build the sidewalk separate from the bridge on Alma street, as at present, the County to construct the main bridge according to plans.—Carried.

On motion of Councillors McKelvie and Montgomery. Street Commissioner Burkell was instructed to repair the sidewalks on Spring and Belmont streets. Also the bridge at the mill, and other walks where necessary.

CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is strictly a remedy for Infants and Children. Foods are specially prepared for babies. A baby's medicine is even more essential for Baby. Remedies primarily prepared for grown-ups are not interchangeable. It was the need of a remedy for the common ailments of Infants and Children that brought Castoria before the public after years of research, and no claim has been made for it that its use for over 30 years has not proven.

What is CASTORIA?

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep. # THIN, NERVOUS PEOPLE NEED BITRO-PHOSPHATE

What It Is and How It Increases Weight, Strength and Nerve Force in Many Instances

SHOULD BE PRESCRIBED BY EVERY DOCTOR AND USED IN EVERY HOSPITAL

Says Editor of "Physicians' Who's Who"

Take plain bitro-phosphate is the advice of those physicians to thin, delicate, nervous people who lack vim, energy and nerve force, and there seems to be ample proof of the efficacy of this preparation. Moreover, if we judge from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, neck and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are often due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive and is sold by McDermid & Jury in Peterborough and most all druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements, bitro-phosphate should produce a welcome transformation in the appearance; the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

Clinical tests made in St. Catherine's Hospital, N. Y. C., showed that two patients gained in weight 23 and 27 pounds, respectively, through the administration of organic phosphate; both patients claim they have not felt as strong and well for the past twelve years.

Increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, should soon disappear, dull eyes ought to brighten and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.

Physicians and hospitals everywhere are now recognizing its merits by its use in ever increasing quantities. Frederick Kolle, M.D., editor of New York Physicians' "Who's Who," says: "Bitro-Phosphate should be prescribed by every doctor and used in every hospital to increase strength and nerve force and to enrich the blood."

Joseph D. Harrigan, Former Visiting Specialist to North Eastern Dispensatory, says: "Let those who are weak, thin nervous, anaemic, or run-down, take a natural, unadulterated substance such as bitro-phosphate and you will soon see some astonishing results in the increase of nerve energy, strength of body and mind and power of endurance."

Bitro-Phosphate is made entirely of the organic phosphate compound referred to in the National Standard Dispensatory as being an excellent tonic and nervine and a preparation which has recently acquired considerable reputation in the treatment of neurasthenia. The standard of excellence, strength and purity of its substance is beyond question, for every Bitro-Phosphate tablet is manufactured in strict accordance with the U. S. Pharmacopoeia test requirements. Bitro-Phosphate is therefore not a patent medicine and should not be confused with any of the secret nostrums, so-called tonics or widely advertised "cure-alls."

CAUTION: — Although Bitro-Phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, owing to its tendency to increase weight it should not be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh.

CATTLE RANCHING IN THE KAWARTHA LAKE TERRITORY

POSSIBILITIES OF LIVE STOCH RANCHING ON BUSH LANDS OF ONTARIO ARE REVEALED BY THE OPERATIONS OF THE EEL RIVER RANCH IN COUNTY OF PETERBOROUGH.

Notwithstanding the earnestness of well-meaning busybodies who try to prove by copious words, that increased production must inevitably mean decreased prices to the consumer, the latter, pretty helpless at present between the upper and nether millstones, is beginning in sheer weariness to refute the logic of his kindly advisers. It begins to dawn upon the man who has to feed and clothe a family from a meagre salary—he is not a union man—that the oft-repeated utterances of banking barons and railway-director-experts, oracular as they seem when prosily delivered at annual meetings are not so full of wisdom as might be. He begins to understand this ordinary-salaried buyer of butter and payer of bills, how it is that "cheapened" production may be more beneficial to him and to the producer than mere "increased" production, which often overleaps itself and brings disaster to both parties. What boots it if peaches be rotting, ankle-deep in Niagara orchards, the while they retail at prohibitive prices on Toronto Wharf?—as one has seen them do. Two and two will make four, all right, but only when two and two are brought together.

This week at this hour, thousands of cattle in Alberta face starvation and their owners hopeless debts and failure, because of the scarcity of fodder. At the same moment there lie under the sunny skies of Ontario hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of acres of deep luxurious grass, sufficiently palatable and rich to bring cattle almost into a "finished condition. Knee-deep these endless acres are, with groves of pine and poplar to provide shelter from summer sun or winter wind, with streams of purest water that murmur over the outcropping rock for mile upon mile, and with vast urban markets lying at their very edge. Where are these grassy pampas? All over Laurentian and silurian Ontario, as useful, and unused, as on the day when they were traversed by the tribes of redmen. In the Bruce Peninsula, where "farming," as such, cannot be; in parts of Grey, in Peterboro and Victoria counties, and on Manitoulin and neighboring islands.

Why "It Can't Be Done."

Some experts say, as experts will, that "it can't be done." They will tell you why. The cattle couldn't find enough to eat on these forested natural ranges: they wouldn't eat that grass anyway; they would devour the young pines; wolves would kill them; the autumn and early winter would be too cold, and they would freeze to death; the cattle wouldn't mix (socially, so to speak) with the deer running among the trees—and so on, ad absurdum. But ordinary people are getting a bit tired of so-called experts, and there are one or two men in the Province who have tried the scheme and are ready to prove its utter feasability.

1400-Acre Ranch A

Having heard from a friend of his that last year, while managing a "ranch" in this Province, Mr. Strickland had sold in Toronto market, cattle to the value of over $14,000, I decided to pay him a visit. After a delightful steamer trip amoung the islands of Stoney Lake, in Peterboro rounty, I found him on a new ranch, which he purchased less than a year ago. This ranch, which faces directly upon Stoney Lake, lies near the river locally known as Eel Creek. It has a shore line of over 3 miles and an area of 1,400 acres, is heavily wooded and well watered, and highly typical of all the vast hinterland of Ontario at present lying useless, or tied up in deeds and leases of no value.

"We bought this 1,400-acre ranch last autumn," Mr. Strickland said, "so we are not as yet in full swing. I spent the winter putting up some wire fences and cutting a few paths through the bush, and this spring we put out about 100 head of cattle, all of which we bought locally, from farmers who were not able to feed them."

What Purposes it Will Serve

"They are simply stockers, or feeders, then?" I asked.

"Nothing else. As I see, that is the object of these big natural ranches. We will go to farmers who are on much more valuable land—on land every foot of which can be plowed and put in crop—and who cannot afford pasturage for their stock. We will take these young animals coming a year old, and put them on our lands. There they will run for the summer and early fall months, growing and filling out on the abundant grass, at very slight cost, compared to that of the farm pasture, and before winter we can turn them over to farmers who will put them into barns and without loss of time begin 'finishing' them by the use of concentrates, alfalfa and ensilage."

May Be Kept Over Winter

"You will not keep any on the ranch over winter, then?"

"Yes, very probably we shall. We did not last year, because we were just getting started. From now on, however, we shall sell only such numbers as are required to meet the demand of farmers who want stockers for finishing; the rest we shall keep on the ranch for the winter. They will run at large just as they do in the summer, and will get abundant shelter, in the event of a storm, in the heavy forest that covers a big part of the area. Cattle are naturally outdoor animals. They thrive far better in the open than in barns or underground basements, and Nature protects them from severe cold in the same manner as she does the moose or the deer. On the other ranch, we had cattle running loose all through the extremly severe winter of 1917, without the loss of a single animal from cold or exposure."

Deer Run With the Cattle

On the morning of my visit a bunch of cattle had come in of their own accord to the salt-trough which is situated near Mr. Strickland's cottage at the front of the ranch. Some of these animals had come across hundreds of acres, guided unerringly by instinct to the roof-covered trough of salt. "They come in bunches; yesterday I counted fifty-three around the troughs," Mr. Strickland said. "To-day you see others, and to-morrow, perhaps, the rest of the herd will come. The cattle have utter freedom and are not molested in any way by men or dogs. The result is that I can go right in among them when I see them at the salt. The deer don't follow them right up to the house, however."

"Why, are there deer on the ranch?" I asked.

"Yes, a good many. Deer, you know, will mingle readily with cattle. I have seen moosecnight in with the herd, and I know from experience that moose and deer take kindly to the company of young cattle. I was paddling up Eel Creek yesterday with a visitor, and he got a splendid snapshot of a deer that stood on the bank as we approached. In the severe winter of 1917, the deer would gather on the sides of the sheltered valley and stand watching us throw hay to the cattle. They were not a bit afraid, and the severity of the winter seemed to make them more appreciative of the company of our cattle."

Do Not Injure Trees

As has been stated, the Strickland ranch is heavily forested, there being over 50,000 standing pine of two to six feet in diameter, and a great deal of spruce, poplar and softer woods. Where pine abounds, good grass generally is found, while the very young poplar shoots are palatable. In this connection I asked Mr. Strickland to comment upon the oft-heard remark that the roving cattle would injure the young pine. The reply was just what I had expected:

"That is the most arrant nonsense I ever heard. The animals will touch absolutely nothing but what they want to eat, and they have not yet cultivated a taste for pine needles."

On the Eel Creek ranch the heavy growth of grass on the lowlands is cut and stacked in the summer, and the hay must be fed as required during the winter. Mr. Strickland finds, that, during the early summer months the cattle will forsake the grassy bottoms for the bush, where they seem to enjoy various woodland plants and the tender shoots of the young poplar. Salt, of course, is essential, and must be provided by man. When ready for disposal, the herds are driven on foot to Lakefield, and within little more than twelve hours' time are on Toronto markets.

"We hope that, in time, we may have sheep and hogs, in addition to our cattle," Mr. Strickland told me. "Parts of the ranch offer positively ideal conditions for both, and they should prove very profitable sidelines. In some parts, there is a good deal of bracken upon which hogs thrive exceedingly well. The care of sheep demands more attention than the herding of cattle, and the extent of our sheep-ranching may depend to a certain extent upon the availability of suitable labor. In addition, it is possible we shall keep a considerable flock of turkeys, for which summer conditions here would be ideal."

Why Waste Our Heritage?

"I can't understand why this sort of ranching is not encouraged, instead of discouraged by red tape and departmental cold-shouldering," Mr. Strickland went on. "Here are millions of acres just like this ranch, on which might be raised stockers for the farms of the whole Province. The natural conditions are ideal, and the meat is badly needed, yet cold water is thrown on every attempt of individuals to make use of the land. Here are millions of standing pines, all of them with fifteen to twenty-five years' start in life, and all apt to be swept away in a summer bush fire. If they were enclosed in ranches they would be safe, as it would be to the rancher's interests to prevent fire. Why not save and use these trees, instead of setting out a few thousand seedling on odd sand hills? Why not combine reforestation and fire-ranging and mineral working with cattle ranching when nature has prepared the way, and all we have to do is avail ourselves of our heritage?"—Globe.

CANNON BALL SCOTT, IN OLD TIME FORM, HOLDS BELLEVILLE TO ONE HIT

AND LINDSAY TOOK A FALL OUT OF THE LEAGUE LEADERS BY 6 TO 1 MATERIALLT IMPROVING THE PETES CHANCES FOR THE CHAMPIONSHIP—SCOTT FANNED FIFTEEN MEN, INCLUDING THREE PINCH-HITTERS—BASEBALL CELEBRITIES FROM PETERBORO WERE THERE. WHILE AN AVIATOR SAW THE GAME FOR NOTHING.

With Cannon-ball Scott in his best Hillcrest form, the Lindsay [illegible] Birds easily defeated the Belleville crew in the Central Ontario League fixture at Lindsay last night, the Greys breezing home with a 6 to 1 majority. The Lindsay win is most popular in Peterborough, as it materially improves the Petes' chances in the pennant race and practically ties them with Belleville, with the championship hinging on the battle between Belleville and Peterborough at Riverside Park a week from Saturday. Belleville is still in front because of having played one more game than the Petes, but the latter can even that up by beating Port Hope in the Lake Shore town on Saturday—a feat that would tie the Railroaders and Petes for first place and leave the championship decision up to the big game here on July 26th.

Belleville never had a chance to win last night's game, for Scott was "right," and was out on the mound with a full assortment of everything. He mixed a wide breaking curve with a fast ball that hopped nicely, and most of the League leaders would have done as well up there without a bat. One solitary single, a grounder tapped by Ross past second base in the sixth innings was the only hit nicked off Scott's delivery, and it was thrown away, for Ross attempted to stretch it into a double and was an easy out at second, Scott hit Goyer in the fifth and these two were the only Belleville men that the Lindsay twirler put on the sacks. Two others got on through errors and another on a fielder's choice, and that was all. Meanwhile Scott was establishing a league record by striking out fifteen men, fanning eight of the nine Belleville regulars at least once, as well as three pinch hitters who did nothing except take three swings and get their names into the box score: Scott whiffed two in the first, three in the second, one in the third, one in the fourth, two in the fifth, one each in the sixth and seventh and a pair in the eighth and ninth. As he threw out three others on grounders and besides cracked out a pair of beautiful hits that figured in the run-getting, it will be seen that the ex-Hillcrest heaver came near to being the whole works, and deserves the whole-hearted gratitude of the Peterborough fans. The run scored by Belleville was a gift, on a combination of three errors in the ninth.

Freddie Goyer, the twirling expert who heaves from the port side with considerable eclat, and who only allowed the Petes two measly hits in Port Hope a few days ago, twirled a good game for Belleville. That is his exhibition would have been good if it had not been contrasted with the superfine gunnery of Scott. He allowed Lindsay only eight hits, but three of these were for extra bases, and they were bunched as well, which, coupled with a few costly misplays, helped Lindsay to bring home the bacon.

A big bunch of Peterborough fans motored to Lindsay for the game, and they were rewarded not only by a snappy exhibition, but by seeing Belleville lose, which they considered alone worth the trip. Among the baseball celebrities from Peterborough who saw the battle were Arthur Johnston, honorary president of the Central League, Ward Patterson, second vice-president of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association, and Manager Solomon, Max Swanston, Howard Kirn, "Kiddie" Mulhern and Roy Cherrett, of the Peterborough Central League team.

Alex. Kay, of Peterborough, was umpire-in-chief, and kept the game moving in good style, while Dickie Butler of Lindsay, called the decisions on the bases.

There was a big crowd on hand, the visitors including Mr. George Walker, the popular secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Baseball Association, who was very much impressed with the quality of ball played. The Ontario secretary will be in Peterborough for the game with Belleville, as will practically all the officials of the Central League.

There were no outstanding fielding features. Lindsay played good ball in the field, having only one slip-up until the ninth, when they presented Belleville with a run by pulling off three misplays.

An aviator added a metropolitan aspect to the game by zooming over the ball grounds in a Curtis plane and doing a few stunts at low altitude. He came down so low one time that Eddie Scott, whose thinking apparatus is housed over six feet above the ground, had to duck.

Lindsay started the scoring in the third, Scott, the first man up, blazing the way with a smoking single over second. When Stark popped to Gerow and Logan struck out, it looked as if the hit was going to be thrown away, but Herbie Workman came through in the pinch with a triple between left and centre, scoring Scott. Morden threw badly to the plate and Workman came all the way home, but was sent back to third on the ground rule. Hill bounced one to Meagher, who heaved over Gerow's head and Workman counted, Hill going to second. Coombs rolled one to Goyer for the third out.

The Greys made sure of the game in the sixth when they sent three runs across. Coombs opened with a double to left and went to third on C. Carew's bunt, which was fielded to third too late to get Coombs. Carew stole second. Williams hoisted to Goyer. Art Carew beat out a roller to Gerow, Coombs scoring. Goyer caught Art Carew off first, but Gerow threw high to Smith, the runner reaching second, while C. Carew came home. Art Carew made a clean steal of third while Goyer held the ball, and after Scott had been thrown out at first, Carew counted when Ross dropped Stark's fly to left centre. Stark stole second and went to third on Logan's single. Logan purloined the middle sack, but Workman ended the fun by fanning.

Lindsay chased home another run in the eighth. Art Carew was safe on Gerow's miss and Scott cracked one on a line over short, the ball shooting between the left and centre fielders. Carew easily scored and Scott reached second. Fast running would have given him at least a triple on the drive. The next three were easy outs.

Belleville got their only counter in the ninth and it was a cheap one. Meagher got a life when Williamson dropped his fly. Weir hit to Williamson, who pegged Meagher out at second, and Workman nearly doubled Weir at first. Weir started to steal and Logan threw badly to second. Hill made a good throw to third to head him off, but Stark lost the ball in the sun and let the peg get away from him, Weir scoring. Scott fanned the next two batters to wind up the game.

For Chronic Constipation

By buying this product from us you can get the Highest in Quality that can be procured at an ESPECIALLY LOW PRICE.

There are many thin oils on the market that are not suitable for internal use; other oils have irritating qualities which render them also unsuitable. The one we are selling is guaranteed thick and entirely pure.

It is recognized that a good grade of Mineral Oil is one of the best remedies for CHRONIC CONSTIPATION that is being used. It acts mechanically and does not irritate the intestinal tract, nor does the dose have to be continually increased as is the case with ordinary purgatives.

It is much better and cheaper than Castor Oil as a laxative for Children, since Castor Oil has two effects, the first of which is purgative and the second or after effect, which is Constipating.

Mushman, the fact that it was produced under the personal supervision of a great genius of whom you never heard before, and the information that the photography, which is no better and no worse than common was done by another total stranger there will positively be nearly 200 feet of pictures given!"—Kansas City Star

Epidemic Record of 1917.

Disease scourges took a great toll in the orient during 1917. Cholera prevailed in southern Asia from Asiatic Turkey to the Philippines, striking down 95,000 in the Indian region; there were 8,870 cases in the Philippines and many deaths in Burmah. Bubonic plague belted the tropical world from Peru to Hawaii and New Caledonia. In British India the largest mortality took place; there were 800,000 cases, with 800,000 deaths. The disease area extended as far north as Egypt and Senegal. Yellow fever appeared in Africa, Mexico and South America. The deaths were not above several hundred.

THE HUNTER STREET CAMPAIGN

The big Union Evangeliatic Campaign which has been in progress in Peterboro for just a month, concluded last evening with one of the best meetings of the series. In fact, the four last meetings were the four best meetings for their respective nights of the campaign. The campaign has been a distinct success. Scores of conversions have been recorded. Last night it was a striking scene when the converts present gathered in front of the platform and gave testimonies growing out of their brief Christian experience. The converts included children from 14 years of age, with possibly a few a little younger, to those well up in years, the great majority of those who have taken a stand during the campaign having been adults.

Sometimes the criticism is made against campaigns of this kind that conversions recorded during the excitement of a campaign are seldom lasting. On a couple of nights during the campaign Evangelist Kennedy thoroughly exposed this charge by the simple expedient of asking the Christians present who had been converted in an evangelistic meeting to stand. In all parts of the tent people stood up until is was evident that probably half or more of the Christians in attendance had been converted through the efforts of evangelists. As many of these people had been Christians for years there was not much left that could be said against such methods. Those who stood included people prominent in the public life of Peterboro'

The campaign in Peterboro has been a remarkable one in a number of respects. In spite of the fact that there were many discouraging influences to contend with, success has attended the effort from the outset Evangelist Kennedy stated last evening that although he hed been in evangelistic work for 20 years and had taken part in some 200 campaigns in different parts of the United States and Canada, he had never been connected with a campaign that has been conducted so smoothly as the one in Peterboro. From start to finish there had been complete harmony among the members of the committee in charge, who had worked together earnestly and sympathetically for the success of the campaign. This created a splendid feeling which had been evident from the opening night of the campaign and continued throughout There had been sympathy also on the part of the public which was very apparent, there having been practically no criticism or fault finding from any quarter with any part of the campaign.

Unusual Features.

A novel feature of the campaign was the fact that no collections were taken up on week nights during the first four weeks of the campaign. It was thought that the success of the meetings might be inerfered with by the constant taking of offerings. The committee decided therefore that they would rely on the Sunday night collections and a private canvass among the Christian people of the city to meet the $800 or more of direct expense that was involved in the campaign. This did not include anything for Mr. Kennedy. The response on the Sunday evenings and of the people who were approached in the matter has been so generous that the committee is meeting all expense promptly and in full. Evangelist Kennedy's understanding was that he should receive a free will offering last Sunday evening and whatever the public might care to give. Offerings have been taken up for this purpose and the results have shown how greatly appreciated Mr. Kennedy's services have been, although he has not received more than the committee has felt he was justly entitled to. Thanks was expressed last evening to the Christian people who have contributed towards the expenses of the campaign.

Discouraging Features.

Among the discouraging features for a while were hot weather on the opening days of the campaign, the fact that the children in the schools have been busy on examinations and therefore it was not practicable to take means of interesting them, the church choirs have been pretty well disorganized as usual at this time of the year, making it difficult to obtain their full cooperation and last week there was the presence in the city throughout the week of the Chatauqua meetings. In spite of all these factors, the meetings on the whole havebeen well attended, especially on Sunday nights when the tent was always crowded. It was realized also that the success of the campaign cannot be judged by the scores of conversions which were recorded, as many Christian people in the city have received great help and seed has been sown that will bring in results later. For instance one woman who refused to take a stand for Christ during the meetings accepted Christ the following night at a meeting of the Salvation Army. Splendid assistance has been given by a number of the choirs of the city. When some of the choirs could not arrange to have their members attend they supplied special musical features such as solos, duets and quartettes which proved of great assistance. Mr. Kennedy paid special tribute last evening to the invaluable assistance that has been rendered by Mr. G. W. Mulligan not only in the making of the preliminary arrangements for the campaign, but as leader of the service of song night after night. Often men who conducted this work no more ably than Mr. Mulligan has done received as high as $50 a week for their services. Mr. Mulligan undertook the work in this case without asking for any financial return whatever. The services also of Mr. Waldron at the piano have been of great value. Many of those who attended the meetings commented highly on Mr. Waldron's sympathetic accompanient of the different hymns and songs.

Loyal support has been given the campaign by the leading ministers of the city some of whom have scarcely missed a meeting from the start. Messrs. Postle, Thomas, Malott and Cruikshanks have been most faithful in their support. Assistance has also been given by Rev. Masters, Webb, Grenfell, Whittam, Bodell, Colt, and others.

Mr. Kennedy last evening attributed the success of the campaign very largely to the splendid reports the city papers have given of the meetings night after night. He stated that he had never been connected with a campaign when such complete and accurate reports of the meetings had been published as has been the case in Peterboro. Mention of th co-operation the papers were giving was made several times while the meetings were in progress. By means of the reports in the daily papers, thousands of people have been reached who were not in attendance at the meetings. In addition to these reports a large number of pamphlets have been distributed to the converts as well as to all who asked for them. Probably $40 or $50 worth of literature has been distributed.

Meetings for Converts

The committee in charge of the campaign is planning to arrange for a series of special meetings to be conducted in the interests of the converts in order to give them instruction in the first steps in the Christian life. The converts present last night voted practically unanimously in favour of the holding of such meetings. Mr. Kennedy will be in the city for a few weeks, and has kindly consented to address any such meetings that may be arranged. All the converts are being encouraged to identify themselves with the churches in the city of their preference. Some of those who have been converted have been from points outside the city, including Toronto.

The chairman of the local committee expressed last night from the platform the warm appreciation of the committee of Mr. Kennedy's services as the evangelist. From start to finish Mr. Kennedy's handling of his subjects and of the meetings, it was stated, had given the most complete satisfaction, and the fact that conversions were recorded every night from the night the first appeal was made until the closing meeting, with only one exception when a special meeting for Christians was held, showed that God's spirit had been present throughout and that God had been honouring Mr. Kennedy's efforts. Special mention was made of Mr. Kennedy's fidelity to the word of God. Mr. Kennedy has spoken on an average of about an hour a night for 31 nights, a somewhat remarkable record. A feature of his preaching has been the fact that he never uses a note and his wonderful memory of the Scriptures—frequently quoting lengthy passages from all parts of the Scriptures to an extent that has been the cause of much comment. As is well known, Mr. Kennedy was born and brought up in Peterborough, and his friends are naturally much gratified with the success that has attended this campaign.

The Final Message.

The subject of Mr. Kennedy's concluding address last evening was "Good Cheer." It was a message intended principally for the new converts, but it had its application to every Christian and to sinners as well. He based his remarks on Romans, 8:28, "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God." Mr. Kennedy called attention to the fact that the verse explicitly states that Christians know this to be true. It is not a matter of guess work God is planning out the lives of those who love Him and is able to make even apparent set-backs work ou to His glory. Mr. Kennedy said that environment does not make a person a Christian .Christians must have something more powerful in their life than the circumstances of their environment. They need Christ, who is able to change the environment according to His own purposes. God allowed Paul to be cast into prison. While there he wrote several of the Epistles, which have been a blessing to Christians ever since. In the same way God allowed Milton to be cast into prison, where he wrote his great book, "Paradise Lost," which has been such a blessing to many.

"It takes God a long time," said Mr. Kennedy, "to make a fine character.. Christians often are tempted to give up when if they only knew it, the clouds which overhang them, are full of blessings ready to break upon their heads. God does not always answer prayer in the way people desire but He is sure to answer the prayer of faith. Paul asked that the thorn in his flesh be removed. Instead of removing it God gave him such an abundant supply of grace that Paul was able to glory in his tribulations. Christ asked if possible the cup should be taken from him. God said it was not possible, but sent an angel to strengthen him. God has told us that no temptatons shall assail us that we will not be able to bear, but with every temptation He will provide a way of escape therefrom.

Mr. Kennedy gave a most interesting resume of the life of Joseph showing how that statge after stage Joseph must have thought that everything was going wrong. He allowed Joseph to be cast into the pit. Later, to be sold into Egypt, later to be falsely accused by his employer's wife, then again to be cast into prison, only in the end to make him the next to Pharaoh in power and a means of blessing to all the brethren. What Christians need is faith in the love of God. This gives them strength to believe that a divine purpose is behind all the events of their life.

The message was a powerful one and inspiring to all who heard it. It made a fitting concluding message for the month's campaign.

Employers Mix, Bake and Deliver Bread in St. Kits

St.Catharines, July 17.—Master bakers acted as journeymen again yesterday as a result of the strike of bakers and drivers, which started Saturday night. Mixing, baking and delivering were all undertaken by the employers in an effort to keep the citizens supplied with bread. A supply was delivered to the stores to-day, but complete house-to-house deliveries were not attempted. There have been no conferences between the employers and strikers since Saturday night.

British Women Can't Marry Dead Husband's Brother

London, July 17.—As English law now stands, a man may marry his dead wife's sister, but a woman cannot wed her dead husband's brother. The point was made clear by the presiding Judge at the Northampton Assizes the other day in the cases of two women who went through the marriage service with brothers of their dead husbands.

Both were held for trial.

HAD A HUGE GUN READY

WHAT THE HUNS MISSED BY SIGNING THE ARMISTICE.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, July 18.—While giving evidence before the Committee of the Chamber of Deputies investigating the Briey question, M. L. Bourgeois, chief engineer of the Navy Department, said that the time Paris was being bombarded by German long range guns, he had designed a cannon with a range of 100 miles, which could be put in position in one hour. M. Bourgeois stated that previous to that time he had urged upon Albert Thomas, then Under Secretary of State for War and Munitions, the importance of bombarding the Briey Iron Works, and had been asked to design a long rang cannon. His plans, however, were sent from one committee to another and the order to manufacture it was not given until Febraury, 1918. The gun was ready for action at the time the armistice was signed, he said.

FAIR BOARD DENIES RUMOUR UTTERED BY LABOUR DELEGATE

RECEIPTS FROM THE FAIR AND HOLIDAY ATTRACTIONS ARE EXPENDED ON THE GROUNDS.

Regarding the statements made at the meeting of the Trades and Labour Council, in which it was said that the proceeds from events went into the pockets of the directors, has brought forth a vigorous denial from the Board of Directors. The facts are that the proceeds of every event carried on under the auspices of the Peterborough Central Exhibition have gone directly to the funds of the society and have been spent in improving the property, which the Board felt was necessary in order to make a success of the Fair. The books of the Exhibition Board are audited by elected and Government auditors, and any one in the city can get all the details of every transaction whenever he wants it. The directors of the Fair have contributed much of their time, and the cash contributions from the members of the Board and the institutions they represent, have been more to the Building fund than from any other individual source.

The Peterborough Fair is beginning to be known again this district, and such hasty statements about where the money goes, while they come from irresponsible parties, finds it harder to make a success of many things in Peterborough.

It looks sometimes as if when any particular project has a chance of being enthusiastically supported that both the men behind it and the project itself are the subject of attacks from persons who should be doing their share from a public spirited standpoint to make it successful.

A denial of the statement seemed to be hardly necessary to those who know the facts, but in order that they might not be repeated by any one, unless he is prepared to back up his statement, the Board gives the above information.

RUSSIA KEYNOTE OF PUTURE PEACE

CHANGE LOOKED FOR IN THE RUSSIAN SITUATION WITHIN TWO WEEKS.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, July 18.— Russia at the present moment is the keynote of the future peace of the world and the upbuilding of that country must be the first duty of the League of Nations," said Winston Churchill in an address at the British Russian Club dinner last night. If the whole of Russia and its resources fall into the hands of Lenine and Trotzky, the whole power of the Bolsheviki forces will be thrown against those little States which have been promised the protection of the League of Nations. If the Bolshevik forces prevail in Russia, these little States, nay Russia itself, will fall into the hands of Germany," he continued. Mr. Churchill defended the action of the Allies in sending troops to Russia, and said if the five governments had been able to act in concert, "things would not be as they are." He declared that more than 800,000 Bolsheviki were being held in check by the Allies and "if the British government contributed in any way toward that result. I for one rejoice," Mr. Churchill predicted an entire change in the situation within a fortnight, but did not explain what it might be.

COUNT HOHENZOLLERN IS GETTING NERVOUS

(Canadian Press.)

BERLIN, July 18.— The German "Deutsche Zeitung," which stands close to former royal circles, takes a serious view of the illness of former Emperor William, calling it "deep melancholy." It is said he is so depressed that he physically views his condition as critical. Count Hohenzollern is said to rarely leave his apartments and seldom sees his friends.

Papers say he spends many hours in prayer and that when he does talk he wants to converse on religious subjects. The former Emperor is said to show a "degree of nervousness."

WANTS CREDITS FROM AMERICA

"THE ONLY WAY GERMANY CAN BE HELPED AT THIS TIME."

By Carl D. Groat.
(United Press.)

BERLIN, July 18.—Germany wants loans of credits from America. Director Wasserman of the Deutsch bank, made this clear to-day in an interview in which he pointed out that raw materials and food were essential if Germany was to meet the obligations of the Entente and become a stable member of world society.

German bankers would not make overtures to Americans, Wasserman said, as they did not know whom to approach, but would wait for American financiers to renew relations.

"There is only one way Germany can be helped at this time," he said. "If she can get copper and other raw materials on credit then she can begin the task of building u her country and repaying her debts. We would want credit for as long a time as would be required to produce manufactured goods. With the proceeds from half or five-eighths of the raw materials thus manufactured, I believe we could repay our credits."

Herr Wasserman emphasized the advisability of the Entente and America taking steps by which the value of the German mark could be stabilized for a year or two.

Wasserman, who is one of Germany's leading financiers, is also a close follower of political and social affairs.

SEVERAL STARS AT THE GRAND

GOOD BILL FOR THE LAST TWO DAYS OF THE WEEK.

Anna Q. Nilsson brings the snow and ice of the Yukon with her in her latest screen success "The Way of the Strong", which appeared at the Grand last night and will be shown tonight and tomorrow. Miss Nilsson appears in two roles in the photoplay first as the wife of a Yukon prospector and later, the half-sister of a betrayed woman. In her first role she is seen as a brunette and in the second as a blonde. Joe King who plays opposite Miss Nilsson is exceptionally clever in his interpretation of the part and Harry Northrupp and little Irene Yeager take important parts, the latter as a boy.

Another headliner at the Grand this week is "A Soul Without Windows," with beautiful Ethel Clayton as star. It is a strong convincing drama full of unusual incidents, full of splendid characterizations and presenting the star in the most charming and pleasing of roles. It is quite the best that Miss Clayton has done.

The augmented orchestra under the personal direction of Mr. G. Howarth will also be in attendance at every performance. It gave a splendid example of its scope and ability last evening.

DEATH PENALTY STILL IN GERMANY

National Assembly Helps Legitimate Children.

(Canadian Press.)

WEIMAR, July 18.— The National Assembly rejected the motion introduced by the Independents to abolish capital punishment. The vote was 184 to 139. Assembly has adopted a bill placing maternity under the care of the State. A proposal by the Independents that the mother of an illegitimate child should officially be designed as "Frau" was carried by a vote of 188 to 188. It was also decided by the Assembly that the same educational and social opportunities should be provided by legislation for illegitimate as legitimate children. Likewise it was decided that large families were entitled to State assistance.

BELIEVE HOLLAND WILL HAND OVER EX-KAISER TO ALLIES AT THE HAGUE

FORMER PRESIDENT OF HUNGARIAN REPUBLIC ARRIVES IN ITALY AND WILL VISIT AMERICA.

FOREIGN NEWS

(Canadian Press.)

BERLIN, July 18.—Count Michael Karoly, the former President of the Hungarian Republic, has arrived in Italy after several attempts to leave Hungary, and will go to America, before the Allied Supreme Council "Kreuz Zeitung."

Several weeks ago Count Karoly escaped to Austria, but was made a prisoner by the Austrians and returned to Budapest. The Count then sought and procured the assistance of the Italian military authorities, who sent him in charge of a guard to Italy by way of Innsbruck.

The Vienna despatch concludes: "He will, however, have to leave Italy immediately."

Bela Kun, Communist Foreign Minister, permitted Count Karoly to secure his available cash and securities.

The principal topic of discussion before the Alleid Supreme Council yesterday, the journal says, was the Allied intervention in Hungary, "where military action seems the only means to end a situation dangerous for Roumania and Poland."

HAND OVER WILLIAM.

PARIS, July 18. — Pope Benedict has addressed to the Bishop of Germany a letter expressing joy over the removal of th blockade. The letter recommends that an attitude of Christian charity be taken toward the question of reparation for war damages.

His Holiness expressed confidence that civilised nations, and especially Catholics, will give aid to the population beyond the state of extreme need. He recommended, in conclusion, that all thoughts of hatred against their former enemies be eliminated from the midst of German Catholics.

PARIS, July 18. — The "Nordeutsche Allgemeine Ltg. Zeitung" of Berlin, the mouthpiece of th Government under the Imperial regime, declares it has information that Holland will consent to the extradition of the former Emperor William, according to a Berlin despatch to the Paris newspapers.

The formal handing over of the former Emperor to the Allies, it adds, will take place at The Hague.

BELA KUN HAS BEEN OVERTHROWN

(United Press.)

PARIS, July 18.— Despatches received from Vienna by the Peace Conference, report that Bela Kun, War Minister, and virtual dictator of the Hungarian Soviet government, has been overthrown.

General Boehm, former commander of the Red Army, and Herr Lander, are said to have assumed control of the government. The Bolsheviki, it was said, are in danger of attack by a White Army, composed largely of peasants.

WOODROW IS STILL ON JOB

FOUR REPUBLICAN SENATORS SUMMONED TO THE WHITE HOUSE.

(Special to The Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, July 18.—President Wilson to-day continued his attack on the opposition to the League of Nations by calling to the White House four Republican Senators, who are known to be open-minded on the scheme.

They were Kellogg, Minnesota; Kenyon, Iowa; Capper, Kansas; and McNary, Oregon.

Kellogg has favoured a League of Nations in principle for some time. Kenyon's attitude is considered doubtful. Capper is known to favour the formation of a League, but would like certain amendments in the present covenant. McNary is believed to be desirous of having some kind of a League organized.

A VOTE ON THE "ONE BIG UNION"

THREAT OF DOMINION TRADES CONGRESS CREATES MERRIMENT.

(Special to The Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, Man., July 18.—Sixty-two out of seventy-five unions affiliated with the Labour Council have taken a vote on the One Big Union plan, and in every case the majority required by its charter to amend it favoured the new plan.

The majority necessary varied from a clear majority in some unions to 75 per cent. of the membership in others.

The alleged threat by the Dominion Trade Congress to cancel the charter of the Winnipeg Trades and Labour Council appeared to cause nothing but merriment among local labour men.

"We are now one big union organisation, and our charter is no good to us anyway. We don't want it. If they don't cancel it, we will repudiate it," R. B. Russell and Ernest Robinson, members of the strike committee in the recent general strike said in effect.

They anticipated that should any unions fail to fall in line with the One Big Union scheme, such bodies would break away from the present organisation and form a little Trades and Labour Council of their own.

In actual fact, the body of union delegates heretofore known as the Winnipeg Trades and Labour Council, now is the body named in the One Big Union constitution as the Central Labour Council. The One Big Union Central Labour Council is made up in virtually the same way as is the Trades and Labour Council of craft union.

PETES PLAY IN PORT HOPE TO-MORROW

The Peterboro Central League team will practice tonight at Riverside Park in final preparation for the game in Port Hope. The following players will compprise the Peterboro line-up: Swanston, Kirn, Mulhern, Long, Hagerman, Cherett, Holyman, Cavanah, Rose, Adams, Clancy, Heenan. The team will motor to Port Hope, leaving the Water street bowling alleys at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. All players are asked to be out tonight for the final practice. If the Petes win tomorrow's battle, the championship of the league will depend upon the game with Belleville here a week from Saturday.

POLICE ANNOUNCE STORES MAY KEEP OPEN TONIGHT

The police department announces that by reason of the Government's proclamation announcing Saturday as a Peace holiday, merchants are permitted to keep their stores open tonight.

HOLIDAY TO-MORROW

MERCANTILE AND INDUSTRIAL INTERESTS OF THE CITY DECIDE TO CLOSE UP AND GIVE CITIZENS A CHANCE TO CELEBRATE PEACE.

Peterboro is to observe the holiday tomorrow in accordance with the proclamation of the King. This was finally decided late this afternoon following a meeting of the merchants. The only exception will be the butchers who will close at noon owing to the hot weather and the necessity of supplying the public with a fresh supply of meat. Early this morning it was announced that all the factories of the city would close. This was followed by the jewellers and many other tradesmen. Mr. Dickson Hall of Richard Hall and Son, early in the week signified a desire to close but later remained open in accordance with the decision of the Retail Merchants Association of the City. To-day, Mr. Hall felt it his duty to yield to public sentiment and this afternoon it was decided to call a meeting of some of the larger merchants with the above result.

"It is a scandal to remain open, contrary to the wishes of the King and the people," said Mr. Hall. Other merchants echoed this sentiment and the decision to close was carried unanimously.

The Examiner like all other papers throughout Ontario will observe the occasion and will not issue to-morrow.

BIRD'S EYE VIEW OF PETERBORO WAS A BIG ATTRACTION

LIEUT. COOLEY CARRIED TWENTY-FIVE PASSENGERS YESTERDAY —BUSY THIS MORNING.

Mr. Arthur Cooley, formerly a flight lieutenant in the R.A.F., told the Examiner this afternoon that he was uncertain whether he would remain in Peterborough or not to-morrow. He has an engagement at Hanover for the holiday, but may secure a substitute for the holiday celebration there. Mr. Cooley came to Peterborough with some expectation of giving an exhibition of flying, but when this fell through, he remained to give some of the adventurous groundlings a birds-eye view of their home city from his Curtiss "Buffalo." He carried twenty-five or more passengers yesterday, and this morning was also busy, but this afternoon he was uncertain whether to set out for Hanover or not. If he succeeds in arranging his affairs to enable him to stay here over the holiday his presence will be of course signalled from the air.

Among those who took the air yesterday were Miss Rose Williams, Miss Madge Graham, Messrs. W. B. Davis, Gordon Hill, Morley Powell, R. R. Biscard, W. J. Cox, A. Kingdon, M. Brooks, E. J. Hawes, W. J. Hickey, Wilmott Mather, K. G. Poole, F. Patterson. There was also Mr. Reg. Turner and party, Mr. J. J. Turner and children, Mr. Graham, a nursing sister and others. Among this morning's flyers were Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Barnes.

Mr. Cooley stated that noe one of the passengers showed any signs of fear. To him they said, without exception, that they enjoyed the soaring and were surprised at the absence of any sensation of excitement as the machine taxied into the air and climbed hundreds of feet above the city. The banking and descents were also interesting but unalarming. The great attraction was the sensation of flying aloft and of obtaining a view of Peterborough that only the birds and birdmen can obtain.

INJUNCTION MAY LAPSE TO-DAY, MAYOR READY TO SIGN BRIDGE AGREEMENT

RUSSELL-TOWNSEND COMPANY HAVE SIGNED IT AND HAVE EQUIPMENT AWAITING SHIPMENT — MAYOR SAYS SOME ALDERMEN APPEAR TO BE HESITATING.

MR. BAGLEY HAS A SHOT LEFT

Once more it is the Council's move in the Hunter street bridge game. Mr. J. G. Guise-Bagley informed the Examiner that his clients had not produced up to noon the $10,000 required to carry Judge Huycke's interim injunction to Osgoode Hall, and it was evidently their intention to let the action lapse. In the meantime the Russell-Townsend company have signed the contractual agreement and have returned it to the Council. They have also several car loads of construction equipment and material ready for shipment to Peterboro as soon as the Mayor and City Clerk sign the agreement for the city.

When asked what steps he proposed to take, Mayor Duncan said he was prepared to sign the agreement. A majority of the Council had instructed him to do so and he intended to carry out their desires. He particularly wished to avoid any move that would lead the public to believe that he was opposed to putting into effect the wishes of the majority.

However, he stated, three, Aldermen who had voted for the bylaw, Aldermen Gainey, Crowe and Garside had been talking to him about calling a special meeting of the Council and the Mayor gathered from their expressions that these Aldermen were reconsidering their support to the Russell-Townsend tender. Mayor Duncan said he would call a meeting of Council if requested but he would not sign the agreement, delaying his action until late in the day in order that the members of the Council would have ample time to reach a conclusion one way or the other.

From Labour quarters it has been reported that all the Labour men are expected to push along the bridge contract, but it is possible that sinister figure of the Sheriff that stalked behind Mr. R. R. Hall's letter may have had a depresing effect upon the entire Council. It was pointed out that the ayes and nays were not called when the bridge bylaw was passed and that there is therefore no record of the Council's division.

Again, Mr. Bagley stated that his action before Judge Huycke sought not only an injunction to prevent the signing of the agreement but also asks for the quashing of the bylaw. Hence, although the injunction may expire today, he said the writ to quash continues, and the Council would have to look for themselves on that count. The whole situation is overcast with doubt today, and the only certainty is the signed agreement form the company now in the possession of City Clerk Armstrong.

LEFT A WILL OF SIX WORDS

(Canadian Press.)

NEW YORK, July 18.—A will of six words, scribbled hastily on the margin of a daily market report four minutes before the testator died, was filed in the Surrogate Court to-day.

The writer was Alexander William Waters, general agent of the American Fruit Exchange, with the words:

"All I have belongs to Zulman."

He left his $200,000 estate to Zulman Howell, his housekeeper.

Mr. Waters had just reached his office on 3rd July, when he realised that death was near. He reached for the nearest piece of paper—a market report—scribbled the six words, and obtained the signatures of two business associates as witnesses before he died.

FIND NEW RULES VERY ACCEPTABLE

AVIATORS AGREE WITH THE NEW CODE OF LAWS FOR FLYING.

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, July 18.—The recently published Canadian Government code of laws for flying in the Dominion has evoked a strong surge of pleasure in ex-flying men. It is their almost unanimous opinion that the step was a wise and timely one and that the laws do not try to restrict too far.

Canada's two most famous airmen, Col. W. A. Bishop, V.C., D.S.O., etc., and Col. W. G. Barker, V.C., D.S.O., etc., discussed the rules when they appeared and agree that they seemed very acceptable.

"I haven't had the opportunity to study them thoroughly," Col. Bishop said to-day, "but they look very acceptable to me. Some laws of the kind are certainly needed. I imagine they have been drawn up by the Provisional Air Board at Ottawa, of which Lt.-Col. Biggar, D.S.O., is the head."

Col. Bishop said that Col. Barker who left for Ottawa last night, agreed with him about the rules.

ANCIENT ACTORS WELL PAID

Researches Show That Oldtime Entertainers Were by No Means Inadequately Rewarded.

Enormous salaries of actors today are looked upon as a modern innovation, growing with the development of the American millionaire and the imagination of the American press agent. Such is not the case, says Robert Mantell, who in his studies in the preparation of his classic repertoire has come across many bits of curious information, observes the Buffalo Express. The Roman actor Roscius, whose name has become synonymous with all that is marvelous in a player, earned a salary which, according to Mr. Mantell, puts that warm friend of Cicero quite in a class with Charlie Chaplin. Roscius drew about $160 daily in the money of his time, which had a purchasing power equivalent to nearly $1,600 in United States money, even without the aid of the war and the patriotism of the restaurant men. That brings his annual salary to the half-million mark. Another actor, the tragedian Aesopus, not to be confounded with the writer of fables, and who also was a friend of Cicero, received so great a salary that he left a vast fortune to his son. When Emperor Vespasian repaired the theater of Marcellus he gave the tragedian Apollinaris (whom a Winter garden comedian might dub "the father of waters") $20,000 to appear there, but the length of his services is not stated. To each of two harpists in the company, Terpinus and Diodorus, he gave $10,000, and no player received less than $2,000. In addition, he made the actors numerous special presents of money, always gold.

Coming down to more recent times and more modest amounts, but still comparable with salaries of today, David Garrick drew at the height of his popularity $250 a night. Macready in 1838, when he staged for the first time "Richelieu," was paid $125 a night, and Miss Ellen Tree, about the same period, drew the same salary.

The Judicial Temperament.

"When my wife and I disagree she's always right," said an upstate justice; "at any rate," he added, ruminating, "she gets the decision."—New York Telegraph.

A King's Pun.

One of the most famous—as well as one of the worst—puns of history was perpetrated by King James I of England, when Sir Walter Raleigh, whom for political reasons he disliked, was presented to him. Said the king, fixing Raleigh with his cold enough eye, "Rawly! Rawly! true enough, for I think of thee very Rawly, man!"

UNIQUE DISTINCTION

Proficiency Gold Medal, One Herbert Couch Wins the General Year Ahead of Time.

In the results of the annual examinations of the Ottawa Collegiate Institute, just published, the name of Herber N. Couch, son of Rev. Isaac Couch, M.A., B.D., pastor of the Quebec Methodist church, appears as the winner, of the "General Proficiency Gold Medal."

Herbert has attended this seat of learnnig for the past five years. He was successful during each of the first four years in carrying off the general proficiency medal in his class. One year ago he entered the higher work for scholarship matriculation, a further course of two years, and embracing some twenty examination papers, in company with others who had already spent one year in the upper form. He has now obtained the highest award in the gift of the Collegiate, one year before the completion of his term. And in a similar manner won the medal in Mathematics, and also in French and German; and stood first in English.

He will return to the Collegiate for another year before presenting himself for full honours or what is known as scholarship matriculation at Toronto University.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

A SMART SPORT'S COSTUME

Blouse 2822, Skirt 2818

Here is a very pleasing combination of novelty silk, for the skirt, and duvetyn, for the blouse. This is pretty for plain and embroidered linen, or shanting combined. Also for serge and satin. The blouse is fashioned after Pattern 2822, which is cut in 7 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches, bust measure, and requires 3 yards of 36 inch material. The skirt is developed from Pattern 2818. It is cut in 7 sizes: 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32 and 34 inches waist measure. Size 24 requires 3 1-8 yards of 36 inch material. Skirt measures about 1 2-3 yards at the lower edge.

This illustration calls for TWO separate patterns which will be mailed to any address on receipt of 15 cents FOR EACH pattern in silver or stamps.

Address—Examiner Pattern Service, Examiner Office, Peterborough.

New Lines in Summer Gowns

FORMAL COSTUMES FOR AFTERNOON AND EVENING WEAR, WHICH NOW INTRODUCE SOME ELABORATE DEVICES—BY MME. FRANCES, FAMOUS CREATOR OF FASHIONS, NEW YORK CITY.

Formal gowns for afternoon and evening wear strike a note of splendor in great contrast to the simple lines and fabrics that prevail for morning occasions. In the morning one must look demurely young, while in the evening, Voila! gorgeous sophistication is featured in colorful splendor in gowns of paillettes, chiffon and charmeuse.

The restaurant dinner gown is a thing apart from the more daringly bizarre evening robe designed for private dinners and dances at casinos and country clubs, or for the formal party given in the ballrooms of the wonderful summer homes which distinguish our fashionable resorts.

The years of quiet dressing induced by the war have departed. The chrysalis-like uniform has burst into a glorious butterfly of color which must spread her wings of vivid emerald, sapphire, blue, orchid and turquoise in the radiant silver of summer nights.

Colorful Gowns.

These colorful gowns are really lovely. Many models are of chiffon, wrought with silver brockade, while others are wonderfully draped in fold on fold of chiffon, which is held by jewelled straps or bands of brocade that would have made the barbaric beauties of ancient Egypt, Rome and Judea green with envy!

Cleopatra might have worn one—of emerald green chiffon embroidered with silver and super-embroidery with jet that glistens like the scale of a serpent and yet there is almost a Greek-like simplicity in the drapery of this lovely model.

The bodice of this gown is made in a deep "V" back and front. It is sleeveless and its trimming lies only in the splendor of its fabric. A long skirt of the material is attached to the girdle which is black jet sequins. From the shoulders at the back falls a deep panel of the brocaded chiffon. This panel is drawn around the figure toward the centre front, where it is suspended from the cincture of jet by a silver ribbon. This unusual drapery continues in wonderful folds, wrapped about the figure in bias lines which wend their way to the tip of a long narrow train.

Jet Beads.

A chain of jet beads ending in a heavy tassel falls from the left side of the girdle. Above the top of the girdle of jet shows a tiny bow of silver ribbon, like a continuation of the silver strap that supports the skirt drapery.

With this gown is worn a pearl necklace with an emerald clasp. A towering aigrette of green is worn in the hair of the radiant lady who may wear this costume.

A word must also be said of her slippers, which are emerald satin striped with silver. The silver and satin are woven together. This fabric is difficult to obtain, but it may be successfully imitated by tiny straps of silver ribbon mounted on green satin, before the slippers are cut. The slippers are indeed one of the most important notes of the costume.

For the Restaurant Dinner.

A restaurant dinner gown of my design is a wonderful shade of pale amethyst charmeuse. The cape-like wrap which falls with grace from the shoulders may be removed to display the bodice of orchid crepe chiffon. The coloring of this model is no less lovely than its graceful lines. A blouse of crepe chiffon ras a rounded neck attached to a round yoke. The sleeves are long and very graceful.

The neck and sleeve lines of this costume make it a delightful possibility for former luncheon wear. The skirt of this model is draped in the bias front line which gives the much-coveted narrowness around the ankles, while the fulness murges into the hip line perfectly. The girdle of this gown is a third shade of purple. It is red violet, with amethystine tones in its depths. A wonderfully lovely pattern of gold brockade is wrought on this red violet background, and makes of the girdle and sash a very decorative feature of this costume.

The cape is lined with brocade and the deep armhole shows this lovely bit of color. A line of cloth of gold follows the mysterious swirl of this cape, which in reality is very simply draped from a single piece of the material.

A broad mushroom hat of deeper purple straw is wreathed in shaded purple flowers. This costume is very stunning and would make an effective gown for the matron of honour at an orchid or hydrangea wedding.

The Charm f Turquoise.

Another evening gown of gorgeous coloring is a model of turquoise blue chiffon. This glorious shade of blue seems only the background for wonderful bits of color in the brocade bands that hold the drapery of the skirt, which is swathed about the figure in lines of loveliness that give a pannier effect below the girdle and on the left side. This brocade crosses the figure in bias lines that merge with the swirl of the skirt drapery. A line of green follows the drapery of chiffon. The girdle is green chiffon faced with brocade. A line of red violet charmeuse and another of blue turns over on this girdle, which ends in a long sash, weighted with an ornament of turquoise and rhinestones.

The bodice of this gown is draped slightly surplice, and shows a near sleeve of silver lace, which is so short as scarcely to be called a sleeve. It is a shoulder drapery really, which is edged with a line of blue. On the other shoulder is posed a bouquet of shaded flowers that repeat the tones of the costume.

On the turquoise satin slippers worn with this gown appear antique buckles of silver, set with paste jewels—emeralds and rhinestones.

Ivory White Charmeuse.

In conthast to the barbaric splendor of these gowns is a dress of ivory white charmeuse, developed with jeune fille simplicity in its every line.

Copper lace wrought with silver and gold is featured on this gown in a "Bertha" which displays the loveliness of the lace in unbroken line. This copper lace falls from neck to girdle in a wonderful sweep of metallic color. I may remark "en passant" that this copper lace is especially "successful" when worn by a woman with auburn hair. The deep ruffle of copper lace supplies the only sleeve necessary for this gown.

Water-Lily Trimming.

The skirt of ivory charmeuse is gathered rather full at the girdle line and tucked into a bustle effect at the side back, where the drapery is held by a water-lily, whose cool, white petals, are lovely nestling in the ivory softness of the charmeuse. The edge of this skirt is bound with a narrow fold of charmeuse. There is no hem.

Beneath this skirt af charmeuse appears a ruffle of the copper lace, which falls gracefully around the ankles. This lace ruffle is attached to a petticoat of ivory chiffon.

This gown is worn with white satin slippers and sheer white stockings.

The girdle of this costume is one of its striking features. Made of broad ivory ribbon heavily brocaded with metallic threads of silver and gold, it encircles the figure and fastens flatly at the side back, where one long end of the ribbon falls to the floor in a long graceful train.

DOES ADVERTISING PAY?

Many advertisers, and particularly retail advertisers, never get the full cumulative power of advertising behind their business because they lack patience. They demand direct returns. They run a one-time announcement in the local paper to-day and look for sales enough—sales directly traceable to the little one-time advertisement—before next week to pay for the cost of the space. Of course they are disappointed. Retail advertising seldom works out that way. But they are impatient for results. They are not prepared to invest money in advertising as they would in new goods, in store fixtures, in stocks or in real estate—and wait for profits to be earned. No. The returns of to-day's advertising must ring in cash profits to-morrow, or, in the estimation of too many retail dealers, the advertising is not worth what it costs.

Hand-to-mouth advetising is not worth what it costs. It yields only hand-to-mouth returns. To show the best results as a business building power, the advertising of the retail merchant must be persistent. Its chief purpose should be to build up permanent trade; to make the people of your community turn to your store in preference to other stores; to make them think of you and of your place of business; to convince them that they cannot get better quality and price and service anywhere.

"Would you advise a sixty-inch advertisement in the newspaper once a week or six ads. covering ten inches of space each week?" was one of the questions asked.

"I would advise six ads., one each day, or, better still, three twenty-inch ads. each week," replied the advertiser.

"Anything that is desirable is advertisable," he said, and pointed out that the desirability of an article depends much on the consistency with which it is advertised.

"One of the best ways to advertise is to cultivate the customers you have acquired and they will assist you in your advertising."

His final message was: "Advertise and get out and prosper."

THE SOCIETY BUTTERFLY HAS GONE SAYS FAMOUS ADMIRAL'S WIFE

Lady Beatty, British Admiral's Wife, Tells of War's Changes.

Lady Beatty, our famous admiral's wife, when someone placed her among those ladies who, before the war, devoted their time to the gay social round denied that she was a society woman, says the Gentlewoman of London.

And, indeed, she is not. An American by birth, brought up in that hive of industry, Chicago, indefinably impressed with the stamp of the strong, capable woman of affairs, she has little sympathy with the whirl of dinners and dances which comprised life for many English women of the upper classes before August 1914.

Talking to me on this subject recently she said:

"It was such an utterly different world from the world of today. No wonder that many society butterflies almost felt the solid ground knocked from under their feet when the call to arms sounded through the country that summer four and a half years ago. They were like children who had always been kept in a nursery, protected and guarded from any contact with the world. Perhaps they looked out of their high windows and saw other children, less fortunate, playing in the street or working for a livelihood. But they were as so many dreams to the sheltered ones—or like scenes at a theatre, witnessed, but not in any sense lived in. Vaguely they knew of a working, struggling world outside their own, but the thought hardly interested them, and did not really penetrate.

"And then — the war! It was a chill wind, and blew forth the little inmates into the unfriendly streets. For the first time they brushed shoulders with life as it is lived by millions, and touched the cold hand of reality.

"In some ways it was a terrifying position for these favorites of society But I shall always be proud of my sex when I remember the way in which they responded to the need of the moment. Today I suppose there is not a society butterfly of the ugly sort left, throughout the length and breadth of England, for one can never apply that name again to a woman who has worked for four years, with heart and soul, nursing the wounded, making munitions in the big factories, or driving a car here, there and everywhere on war's business."

BUILDERS' STRIKE IN WINDY CITY

Chicago Threatened With Strike of 100,00 Men.

(Canadian Press)

CHICAGO, Ill., July 18.—More than one hundred thousand men employed in Chicago building operations will be idle to-night unless strikes for higher wages involving about 80,000 of their number, are called off. An ultimatum to the strikers [illegible] decides that they return to work to-day was issued by the Building Construction Employers' Association.

MYSTERY INVOLVED IN CAPTAIN'S LOSS

Shipping Board Detectives at N.Y. Investigate Disappearance of Skipper

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—Shipping Board detectives are on the steamship Lake Germania investigating the mysterious disappearance of the Captain. They boarded the vessel at Reedy Island last night and will reach quarantine to-day. The ship master vanished while the vessel was en route from Cuba to this city. The first information concerning the fact was received in a wireless from the Lake Germania on Sunday.

No details were given. It is feared the Captain may have been a victim of violence.

United States Attorney Kane ordered two detectives to board the U. S. cutter and intercept the ship. The Lake Germania carries a crew of 38 men. On her last trip to this port she was commanded by Capt. Mauerhoff.

Officials of the Shipping Board are not certain he left Cuba in command on the return trip.

CELEBRATING PEACE

Although thre is naturally some difference of opinion as to the desirability of celebrating peace to-morrow, the day named in the King's proclamation, the failure of the civic authorities to take any leadership in the matter has made it practically impossible to hold anything like an adequate demonstration to-morrow, no matter whether people take a holiday or not. Under the circumstances, there dos not seem anything to do but to fall generally in line with the celebration that is to be held in Peterboro Civic Holiday. This should be made a memorable event, planned and carried out on a scale befitting the nature of the occasion. It can be made so by the co-operation and support of the varrious bodies in the city and of the citizens generally. The assistance of everyone should be enlisted and an effort made to give proper expression to the city's gratitude and joy at the end of the long war. Difference of opinion might well be dropped and an united effort made to make the celbration worth while.

THE NEW DOMINION LOAN

According to reports from Ottawa the new Dominion loan to be floated in the autumn will not be exempt from tax. The announcement will be hailed with satisfaction for the opinion is general that it was a mistake in the case of the Victory Loan to exempt the bonds from taxation, inasmuch as the greater part of the loans naturally gravitated into the hands of the wealthy who were able to escape income tax as a result. Sir Thomas White favored the exemption plan because he maintained that the response to the loan would not have been nearly so complete without this feature. But the patriotism of the people could have been trusted to rally to the support of the country in the critical stage through which Canada was passing at that time and it is not believed that there would have been any appreciable falling off in the applications for the various loans even without the exemption feature. It is the intention now to offer a considerably higher rate of interest for the new loan to take the place of the exmption clause; a rate that is expected to prove attractive to the people generally.

THE FLYING REGULATIONS

The exploits of the skillful aviator who paid a visit to Peterboro yesterday and entertained the citizens by an expert demonstration of the art of flying, calls attention to the new regulations issued by the Privy Council on the recommendation of the Air Board. One of the most important of these regulations is that which forbids flying over towns and cities at a height which would make it impossible for the aviator to land outside the city limits in the event of engine trouble. The wisdom of such a law is apparent to even one who watched the flights of the aeroplane over Petrboro yesterday. A forced landing in a city or town might prove disastrous not only to the occupants of the machine, but to others as well. A plane dropping into a crowded street might easily cause a terrible accident and the Air Board has been well advised in making a regulation that will protect the people of a town or city.

At the same time the Board should exercise some supervision over the employment of airplanes in taking passengers at so much a trip. Aviators who engage in that occupation should be licensed in order that ther shall be some protection for the public.

THE GAME OF POLITICS

Politics, Dominion and Provincial, has becqme all at once a rough game, the moves in which are not readily understood. The Unionist party having resolved to carry on on the pretence that it is needed in power during reconstruction and that the people are not now to be trusted to replace it, it was generally assumed that the Liberal-Unionists in the House would be for the most part absorbed into the Conservative party. So we assumed and so the Globe seemed to assume, when it bade good bye to Mr. Rowell. But the Toronto Star takes a line indicating that the Liberal Unionists will preserve their identity and we learn from an astonishing letter of Mr. Rowell to a Durham constituent that the Liberal Unionists are to preserve not only their identity but also their issue of conscription, which is to be raised in the approaching Provincial elections on behalf of Mr. Hearst. Mr. Dewart is characterized as the rising hope of the liquor interest, and the Liberal Unionists are counselled to vote for Mr. Hearst to hold the prohibition legislation. The letter will be generally interpreted as intended to help Mr. Hearst. It may possibly have the opposite effect. It will tend at all events, to drive Mr. Hearst into a position which, for political reasons, no doubt, he has been very careful to avoid, that of defending the Ontario Temperance Act, not as a war measure, but as a measure of moral reform.

New perplexities arise as to the Cabinet reconstruction, which Mr. Borden now undertakes. Mr. Crerar and Mr. White resign from the Government and it is said that Messrs. Burrel, Foster, Doherty, Cochrane, Kemp and possibly Carvell will follow. Who are to take their places and from what political groups are they to be drawn? Are the old political parties to be formed? No one knows, perhaps not the Prime Minister himself, what the outcome will be, so much depends on personal forces, which cannot be appraised.

It does not seem likely that a cabinet of all the personal factions involving compromise and desperate corruption, will be approved in the bye-elections or in the general elections, which will tak place before 1921. If the politicians are able to compromise their differences, the people are not. It is said that powerful financial interests in Montreal and Toronto strive to add to the Government a French wing, but it is not likely to be a wing which will carry an election in Quebec. Mr. Hendere is said to be willing to take Mr. Crerar's place, but the deliberations of the Canadian Council of Agriculture show that the United Farmers will hoe their own row. Roderick McKenzie, the vice-president, estimates a farmer representation in the next Parliamnt of eighty, which will be uncompromising for tariff reform. It may be safely assumed that the protectionists will not accept a Government for which the farmers will vote. —The Farmers' Sun.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR WEEK

By Rev. T. S. Linscott, D.D.

THE LORD'S SUPPER, Matt. 26: 26-30; Cor. 11: 20-34.

GOLDEN TEXT: For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye proclaim the Lord's death toll He come. 1 Cor. 11:26.

1. Verse 26. What purpose did Jesus have when the passover feast was drawing to a close in giving them extra bread and wine in commemoration of his coming death and suffering?

2. What reason is there for the belief that Jesus meant this ceremony to be repeated perpetually?

3. Did Jesus' blessing of the bread and the wine change its nature, and if not, what effect did the blessing have?

4. In what sense did the bread represent Christ's body?

5. Verses 27, 28. What did Jesus mean by the words which he used as he handed them the cup with the wine, "this is my blood of the new testament?"

6. For whom did Jesus shed His blood?

7. In what sense was the shedding of Christ's blood a satisfaction to God for thesins of the world?

8. Was God pleased or displeased with the Jews, and why, for "shedding Christs's blood?"

9. Verse 29. Why would you say or not that there will be eating and drinking in heaven?

10. What did Jesus mean by the words, "when I drink new with you in my Father's kingdom?"

11. Verse 30. Is there any human experience when the singing of a hymn may not be helpful?

12. 1 Cor 11:20-34. Verses 20-22. What abuse has sprung up in the church that Paul is here condemning?

13. Verses 23-26. How had Paul received his information concerning the sacrament of the Lord's supper?

14. What benefit did Christ intend to confer upon His church, for all time, by instituting the sacrament of the Lord's supper?

15. Verses 27-29. What must we be to be fitted to partake of the Lord's supper?

16. What kind of persons are those who partake of the Lord's supper unworthily?

17. Why is it such a heinous sin for those to partake of the Lord's Supper who are content to live in known sin?

18. Verses 27-29 Why would you say, or not, that a penitent sinner should partake of the Lord's supper? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by the members of the club.)

19. Verses 20-34 What is the nature of the injury received by those who partake of the Lord's supper unworthily?

20. How often should the sacrament of the Lord's supper be repeated?

Lesson for Sunday July 27, 1919. Christian Fellowship. Acts 2: 42, 46, 47; Phil. 4: 10-20.

EQUIPPED THE U. S. NAVY

A presentatin of a silver inkstand was made to Major-General Biddle, at the Savoy Hotel, was the guest at the American Luncheon Club, in London, Major-General Biddle, in replying, said that out of the two million soldiers who went from America to France over one million passed through England, sometimes at the rate of 200,000 a month. It was wonderful how Britain, although supplying her own forces, was able to supply them with so much—everything from white mice and guienea pigs to complete ambulance trans and big guns. Goods to the value of over a billion dollars were ordered here before peace came. Fore example, a five hundred mile telegraphic line and a cable were laid connecting the base in England with headquarters in France at a cost of three and a half million dollars. The Quartermaser's Department bought over 104 millions of dollars worth of goods. The Orders Department gave orders amounting to 250 million dollars, including 400 million rounds of rifle ammunition. There are less than 1,000 United States soldiers left in London now.—Ex.

GNR. MOSSMAN WAS ACQUITTED

KINGSTON, Ont., July 18.— Ex-Gunner Mossman, of Belleville, was acquitted by court-martial on a charge of assaulting an officer in Belgium.

The case against Mossman was allowed to drift until the accused went into Germa nterritory, then back to England in March, 1919, and from England to Canada. On the 20th of March last, Mossman was discharged and returned to his home in Belleville, going back to his usual civilian occupation. On the 4th of May last, Mossman was arrested by the Military Police and brought to Kingston, being detained under arrest at the huts after the usual summary of evidence was taken.

NEIL'S CARELESS REMARK TO BLANCHE ORTON ANNOYS BARBARA

CHAPTER XIX

What had caused Blanche Orton to make that remark? Had there been something said about her and Neil and was she repeating it to him? Or, perhaps, he was retailing something to her. Neil always talked more when he had been drinking. That wa sthe way I always knew when he had been indulging himself. He never showed it in any other way.

I had listened intently for Neil's reply to that speech of Blanche Orton's as we rose from the table. He had leaned toward her and said just two words:

"You rogue."

Somewav those two words hurt me more than if he had said more. It showed an intimacy of which I had not dreamed. I knew of Neil's manner with women, how he carelessly said flattering things, meaning them for the moment, then forgetting the woman and what he had said in another instant. But this was different, this intimacy with Blanche Orton. I sensed danger to my happiness, yet I could not let Neil see how I felt. He was so willful, so headstrong, that an objection on my part to his intimacy with her might drive him further, instead of halting it.

Not that I thought for a moment that Neil was seriously engaged or had in any way compromised himself with Blanche Orton; I trusted him too perfectly. But I also knew his disposition. I knew he was in a dangerous position. But she would have to make a fight for him if that was her idea—to take him from me. I should not let go easily.

"You rogue!" The words, the manner of their saying, came back again and again, as I continued to talk of oil wells, etc., with our guests, while Neil and Blanche turned over the music to find something they used to sing together.

"It was like this, Neil" I heard her say, then she hummed the tune. "don't you remember? You should," tauntingly, "you made desperate love to me that night."

Mr. Frederick, the man with whom I was talking evidently, also heard for he at once flushed and looked uncomfortable, while he talked more loudly as if he were trying to prevent me from hearing anything more. But they had found the song, and were soon singing. I had to confess that their voices blended wonderfully well, and when they had finished I told them so.

"You are very generous," Mr. Frederick said to me when they commended another duet.

I had begun to quite like this bluff westerner, even though he lacked many of the graces possessed by men of society. He had interested me wonderfully in his descriptions of big oil wells he owned in the west, and also in Mexico. He had some pictures of them in his pocket and seemed pleased that I was interested. His little remark that I was generous made me like him all the more, while it, in a way, embarrassed me. It showed he was not observant, and that of he were a bit uncouth, that he appreciated the poise which enabled me to appear unconscious of my husband's flirtation with Blanche Orton.

After a little further singing, Neil sat down and talked a few moments with both the oil men, while Blanche Orton and I pretended to be interested in each other. But I found myself answering her at random, while I listened keenly to what Neil and his guests were saying.

"I haven't a doubt I can put it through if you will not interfere," Neil remarked.

"I think you would be doing a very unwise and risky thing to try to manage it along the lines you suggested," Mr. Frederick said. "In the first place it is not the sort of an affair that we can afford to have anyone who is shady mixed up in. In the second place if you do as you suggest and anything goes wrong, it will do us as well as you a great deal of harm. No, straight methods are the best. There may not be so much money at first, but in the end it always pays to be open and above board."

There was some more talk, then our guests left after Neil made an appointment to see them in the morning. We talked very little when alone. It was late. But I lay awake far into the night, once more with that foreboding sensation in connection with Neil's business affairs.

To-morrow — Barbara Decides She Will Not be Jealous of Blanche

Wash The Kidneys!

After Bad Colds or Influenza Look to Kidneys and Bladder!

Owing to bad colds, over-eating or intemperance, or to the after effects of influenza—uric acid and toxins (poisons) are stored up in the body and cause headache, backache, rheumatic pains and stiff joints.

It is most essential that treatment be directed towards prompt casting out of the poisons from the body which cause these pains and aches. This means that the excretory organs—(the bowels, skin and kidneys)—should be excited to their best efforts. Every one should clean house—internally—and thus protect one's self from many germ diseases, by taking castor oil or a pleasant laxative such as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, which are made of May-apple, aloes and jalap. Take these every other day. This will excite efficient bowel action. If you suffer from backache, irritation of the bladder and the kidneys, shown by the frequent calls to get out of bed at night, considerable sediment in the water, brick-dust deposit, perhaps headache in the morning, you should obtain at the drug store "Anuric" (anti-uric acid), first put up by Dr. Pierce.

To build up the strength and improve the blood, take an iron tonic such as "Ironic," manufactured by Dr. Pierce, to be had in tablets at drug stores, or some good herbal tonic such as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, made from wild roots and barks without alcohol, and put up in tablets or liquid.

The Safety First Critic.

"Brown is a very careful critic, isn't he?"

"In what way?"

"He always manages to take the sting out of his unfavorable comment."

"For instance?"

"His bride made him a shortcake the other day, and when she asked him how he liked it he replied, 'It isn't as good as your mother used to make.'"

Birds and Lightning.

Birds are sometimes struck by lightning. Darwin records the case of a wild duck that he saw struck by a bolt while flying. It was killed instantly and fell to the ground. But birds seem to know instinctively that lightning is to be feared. That perhaps is why they seek shelter in thunderstorms. The sudden disappearance of the birds is, indeed, in the country one of the surest signs of an approaching tempest.

Italics.

Italics are letters formed after the Roman model, but sloping toward the right, used to emphasize words or sentences. They were first used about 1500 A. D. by Manutius, a Venetian printer, who dedicated them to the Italian states; hence the name.

Where Pigs Climb Trees.

Presumably the walrus and the carpenter never did settle the discussion as to whether pigs had wings, and here are persons who seriously think it was a foolish theme for an argument.

And yet is it any stranger than the undisputed fact that in Morocco pigs climb trees in search of nuts—not only pigs, but goats too? The puzzle is not in the pigs and the goats, however. They are of the common variety that we see in the back lots in our own communities. It is the tree that is strange. It is called the argan nut tree and grows near Agadir. Usually it shoots out from a steep hillside. The trunk is broad and flat and almost horizontal, and so are the main branches, forming ample and solid foothold for any animal which may be tempted by the olive shaped nuts growing within easy reach of the main branches.

Start Tomorrow and Keep It Up Every Morning

Get in the habit of drinking a glass of hot water before breakfast.

We're not here long, so let's make our stay agreeable. Let us live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, and look well, what a glorious condition to attain, and yet, how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of inside-bathing before breakfast.

Health and Happiness

Women of today seem to listen to every call of duty except the supreme one that tells them to guard their health. Home duties, church duties, war activities, and the hundred-and-one calls for charitable enterprises soon lead women to overdo. Nervousness, headaches, backaches and female troubles are the inevitable result.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I was very weak, always tired, my back ached, and I felt sickly most of the time. I went to a doctor and he said I had nervous indigestion, which, added to my weak condition, kept me worrying most of the time—and he said if I could not stop that, I could not get well. I heard so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound my husband wanted me to try it. I took it for a week and felt a little better. I kept it up for three months, and I feel fine and can eat anything now without distress or nervousness. Health and happiness? Yes, I have both now."—Mrs. J. Wozniak, 2043 North Taylor Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

The majority of women nowadays overdo, there are so many demands upon their time and strength; the result is invariably a weakened, run-down nervous condition with headaches, backache, irritability and depression—and soon more serious ailments develop. Avoid them by taking in time

DEFY FATHER TIME

Passing Years Need Not Bring Uselessness.

California Writer Arises in Wrath to Deny That Seventy-Two Should Be Considered a "Ripe Old Age."

A newspaper item, a few days ago, stated that a certain man named Sea-and-Sie died "at the ripe old age of seventy-two."

Commenting on this the Los Angeles Times says that seventy-two is not a ripe old age and adds:

A ripe old age is an age when the person who has attained it is ready for old Father Time to come along and pluck him from the tree of life. If you will take a bird's-eye view of the activities of the world at the present hour, or even if you will look about you in your own community, you will see that men and women of seventy-two are among the foremost hustlers everywhere.

Active heads of great nations, big business men in the biggest businesses, leaders and go-getters of all descriptions in every direction you look have passed the seventy-two mark and are still going strong.

Why, a man should be about at his best at the age of seventy-two. And it is at that age that woman should really begin to enjoy life in high-heeled shoes, short skirts and a hat with roses all over it.

Cato did not begin the study of Greek until he was eighty years of age, and it was at the same age that Plutarch began the study of Latin. Hobbes, the English philosopher, published his best book when he was eighty-seven, and Chevreul, forever immortal in scientific research, was busy as a bee at his work in his one hundred and second year.

One of the most active lawyers of the Los Angeles county bar is past his ninetieth year, and we know of another Los Angeles man who has just been appointed cashier of a new bank at the age of seventy-four.

In short, the cold fact is that seventy-two is very far indeed from being "a ripe old age."

On the other hand, of course, a man can let himself be old at most any age. There are lots of men who are old at thirty, but it is a state of mind with them and not a physical condition, even though they may not be in good health.

As to women, we very well know that it was the fashion for them to be old and fear ruffled caps at forty. But that isn't the case now, by any means. Think of Lillian Russell, Sara Bernhardt and Schumann-Heink, merely to mention some of the more prominent women of our time.

We would go so far as to say that age is a question of what way we look at it. That "a man is as old as he feels and a woman as old as she looks," is, indeed, a very good saying. A man is a fool not to feel all right, and a woman may be trusted never to "look" old if she is the woman she ought to be.

It is a great idea for a man when he is anywhere between fifty and seventy to mentally start all over again as though he had set out, like a boy, upon the great adventure of life.

Instead of spending his time then in vain regrets, let him resolve to attain all that he has missed. Let him, above all things else, renew his enthusiasm. Let him go to the circus again and buy peanuts for the elephant; let him go, stark, into an old swimming hole; whenever he hears a band let him follow it till he has lost the way home.

It shall be just as we think about it. We are to remember that we shall live only once on this earth, and that we will be a long time dead.

His Achievements.

"I have been in business here at the old stand for thirty-four years," admitted the proprietor of the Right Place Store in Petunia. "During that time 27,050, in round numbers, fresh young drummers have tried to talk me into buying rare bargains that I didn't want, and 18,525 well-meaning funkheads have left the door open when it ought to have been shut. I have listened with a crocodile smile to something like 46,763 old stories and no more than two dozen new ones. I have furnished settin' places for all the prominent and influential loafers of the community, and have had two tons of prunes, cheese and ginger-snaps stt up by 'em. I am thirty-four years older than I was when I began, and very little wiser or richer. I have trusted almost everybody who has asked me to, and some of them cheated me and others didn't. So, speaking biologically, I s'pose I don't think any worse of my feller citizens than they do of me."

Mount Ararat Now a Republic.

The announcement of the formation of "the Independent Republic of Ararat" will brush away the fallacy which regards Ararat as just a mountain instead of a country, albeit the very mountain on which the ark rested when the waters of the Deluge began to abate. Genesis is explicit enough to have prevented the mistake, it might be thought; it says quite distinctly: "The ark rested upon the mountains of Ararat." In its day, Ararat was a great power, holding sway far to the east and to the west. But to western Europe Ararat has long been known as the place where the dove first plucked the olive branch and returned with her message of hope to the Ark.

Country's Corn Production.

When the Indians taught the white settlers of this country how to raise corn, no flight of the imagination could have foreseen the crop of 1918, covering nearly 178,000 square miles or nearly as much land as there is in Germany.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

A NEW PROFESSION FOR WOMEN

It is interesting to look back over the history of the entrance of woman into the business affairs and her progress to her present position which is such that her immediate elimination would result in almost complete paralysis in all our institutions of modern civilization.

In no field is this more important than in that of medicine and its allied sciences.

Not many years ago the hospitals of Europe were little better than pigpens, where patients lay in filth and on heaps of straw. The so-called nurses consisted of washwomen and scrubwomen and outcasts of the slums of the cities. Now nursing has become one of the highest types of scientific professions and attractive to the best educated and most refined type of young women.

At the present time there is being created for women a new and vast field for their activities within the work of the medical profession, known as that of the "Medical Technician."

The successful doctor is a busy man and has a multitude of minor duties which he must either do himself when he is almost physically exhausted or leave them undone. In his office work there are a number of things which must be done many times durong the day and which on account of their simplicity but frequent repitition can easily be taught to a clever high school girl.

These include such things as the taknig of temperatures, weighing patients, determination of the heat values of food eaten, the examination of body fluids—such as blood, urine, stomach contents, the staining of pus, sputum for the examination of bacteroa and Tubercular bacili. The doctor of the present day has a very different task before him to that of his predecessor a generation ago, who made his diagnosis by a few questions feeling of the pulse and looking at the tongue.

Vast Increase.

Now the vast increase on the part of the public in its knowledge of medical science compells the medical man to prove and check up his opinion by the resort to all the tests that science can furnish and thus a well equipped laboratory becomes essential to a present day medical man. In that laboratory the trained female laboratory technician is the presiding genius and occupies the same important position as the women in the manufacturing and business world.

The work of the new association for hospital standardization compells surgeons and hospitals to keep careful records of the history of every case, these are filed under their proper diagnoses and it is one of the duties of the "medical technician" to abstract these, in order to determine statistics in regard to the frequency of certain types of symptohs and the benefit of certain lines of treatment.

Thus this new profession for women becomes attractive to those with refinement and good education and offers a great scope for advancement many of these women finally reaching salaries of $2,000 to $5,000 per annum.

In response to the proclamation by His Majesty the King, Oak Hall Store will be closed for business on Saturday, July 19th Open To-Night until 10 p. m.

RICHARD HALL & SON ANNUAL OUTING

THE EMPLOYEES ENJOY THEMSELVES AT WALLACE'S POINT—SPORTS AND AMUSEMENTS.

Nature has made Peterborough and its environments an ideal district for summer vacations and holidays. And the thing most important to its residents is the facilities within easy reach of their homes. The thermometer may climb fairly high during midsummer, but the numerous cool spots near the water are within easy access, delightful for their enervating and breezy atmosphere.

Wallace Point, about seven miles down the river, was the pretty spot chosen this year for the annual outing of the employees of the Richard Hall & Son's departmental store on Wednesday last. At 5 o'clock, when the business of the day was over, the key was turned in the door, and the employees all invited to join in an automobile trip to the Point.

On arrival there, the gathering sat down to a generous supper, with T. H. Moeper as caterer. The bill of fare was a hearty one, topped off with fragrant tea, coffee, ice-cream, and other liquids of a refreshing character.

Mr. S. Dickson Hall and Mr. R. Ross made obliging and attentive table waiters, and in a felicitous manner allowed none of their party to feel any hint of the high cost living.

After supper, games and sports were indulged in, including a baseball match, a football match, and races, which assisted in keeping up the fun until the hour of departure.

THE COMMITTEES WERE SELECTED

Arrangements for the Peace Festival on Civic Holiday.

The Peace Festival Executive Committee, met last night in the Board of Trade rooms and outlined the committees. At a continued meeting this afternoon at 5 o'clock it will complete the selection of the committees and announce the personnel. The principal committees will be one to look after the school parade, the military parade and the floats. The committee on floats will assist and supervise the preparation and acceptance of the several floats. There will be a committee on the evening carnival. A committee on privileges and permits will probably be appointed to regulate private enterprises for the benefit of the public. Other committes will be added as needed.

When the last hypocrite dies his satanic majesty will not have a faithful servant on earth.

SIX BROTHERS HOLD CELEBRATION

(Special to The Examiner.)

KINGSTON, July 18.—H. A. Moore and H. E. Moore, of Toronto, met their four brothers at Alexandria Bay, N.Y., and celebrated the 36th birthday of their youngest brother, A. W. Moore, of Woodstock, Ont.

They had a fish dinner, and at night a birthday spread at the Crossman Hotel, with a birthday cake lighted with candles.

This was the first time that the six had been together since 1903, when their parents celebrated their goldn wedding at Hamilton, Ont.

BERRY PICKERS INVADE COUNTRY

MORE PICKERS THAN BERRIES IN SOME CASES.

Burleigh Falls always was a favourite spot for huckleberry pickers but this year there were more pickers than huckleberries. Some of those in the know got on the ground early and picked several pails each but last Sunday scores of cars of people left for the big patch and came away with half a pailful each for an afternoon's work. The crop is about done this year as the hot weather ripened the berries early. They sold on the market at 28 to 30c a box but there did not seem to be a very vigorous sale at that price.

Raspberries are reported to be plentiful this yead and pickers are spreading like a barrage over the outskirts of the city and several cars left for the vicinity of Cavan. Raspberries sold on the local market as high as 32c a box but Millbrook is disposing of the best varieties at 18c a box—all that you can carry away.

LETTER SEEMS TO EXONERATE KAISER

Written to Chancellor by Wilhelm Says Ready to Conclude Peace With Serbians, in Their Reply to Ultimatum.

(Canadian Press.)

BERLIN, July 18.—A letter written by former Emperor William on July 28, in 1914, to Dr. Von Bethmann-Hollweg, then Imperial German Chancellor, is published here. The letter says that after having read the Serbian reply to the Austrian ultimatum, it was the opinion of the Emperor that all of Austria's wishes had been met and that all ground for war was removed. It adds, however, that as the Serbians "are Orientals and untrustworthy," that the Austrians should occupy Belgrade until the Serbian promises are fulfilled. "On this basis," says the Emperor, "I would be ready to arrange peace in Austria."

HAD RELATIVES IN PETERBORO

George Thrope Met Tragic Death Yesterday.

Yesterday morning, while painting a steeple in Cobourg, George Thrope fell and sustained injuries from which he died a couple of hours later. The deceased, who was single, was a brother of Mr. Ken Thrope, of this city, and a cousin of Mrs. G. H. Duncan, 459 Hunter street.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS

We cannot impress too strongly upon the Canadian People that there is no Tablet just like Dr. Norvall's, there is no Tabelt just as good as Dr. Norvall's. There may be Tablets that look like Norvall's. They may even taste like Norvall's, but do not be deceived—they will not have the same gentle laxative and tonic effect as Norvall's. In a word, to relieve Constipation, Dyspepsia, Biliousness and Sick Headache, Dr. Norvall's Tablets have no equal and are in a class by themselves.

SUITINGS

JULY is the "OUTING" month, so we have decided to give all short lengths and odd patterns of Woolen Suitings a chance to have a good lively outing for the benefit of our patrons.

These goods are solid Tweeds and Worsteds in real smart patterns, and are long enough for two or three-piece suits. They have all been collected together for display ready for handy choosing and ticketed at sacrifice prices while they last.

Come in and inspect the patterns and qualities--leave us your measure--and we will have them tailor made to your measure in first-class merchant tailor styles.

We Employ Absolutely Only Union Labour

The Woolen Markets are stiffening up their prices for fall, wages for workmen are going higher and in view of this the advance in clothing is sure to come. This is a lucky chance to order one or two suits "right off the bat" and "salt them down" for future use. Take my word for it you'll save all the way from $8.00 to $12.00.

SULPHUR FELL IN YUKON RAIN STORM

Sidewalks in Dawson Are Streaked With Sulphur Flowing a Half-Hour Downpour.

DAWSON, Y.T., July 17.—A sulphur-laden shower of rain, a rare phenomenon, fell over Dawson and its vicinity the other evening. A thirty-minute downpour left pools and the sidewalks streaked with a yellow substance which chemists here declare is sulphur, and which they think was carried in the upper atmospheric currents from some distant volcanic eruption.

A similar precipitation has been reported from Eagle, a hundred miles north of Dawson, and also in British Columbia.

About one hundred and fifty excursionists viewed the wonders of the nightless day on 21st June at this "end of the world." The visitors went to Fort Yukon to witness the sun's complete marathon of the Arctic circle.

TERRIBLE HISTORY OF A BLUE DIAMOND

Murder, suicide, madness, and other misfortunes, have pursued the owners of the famous Hope blue diamond. The evil influence of the diamond (which weighs 44 1-2 carets) is said to date from the time when Europeans stole it from a temple at Burma. Its victims have been many and various, and so evil is its reputation that on the occasion of its last sale but one it sold for only £16,000, or £9,000 less than its accepted value. The great stone, which flashes with the combined beauty of a sapphire and a diamond, was brought from the East in 1668 by Tavernier, the great traveller. He sold it to pay his debts, and returning to the East, died of fever. Mme. de Montespan dated the decline of her favour in the eyes of Louis the XIV., who bought the stone, from the day when she persuaded Louis to let her wear it. Fouquet, a financier of the time, borrowed the diamond to make himself fine for a great fete. Soon after he lost the royal favour and was imprisoned. No one needs to be told of the misforunes which befell Marie Antoinette. She selected the Blue Diamond from the Crown jewels for her own wear and died on the guillotine. The Princess de Lamballe also borrowed the jewel. She was done to death by a mob. William Fals, of Amsterdam, who cut it, was ruined, and Francis Beaulieu, who secured the gem in the French Revolution, died of starvation. For many years the jewel disappeared altogether, and then it came into possession of Mr. Thomas Hope, the wealthy banker, whose daughter was the mother of Lord Francis Pelham Clinton Hope. Lord Francis Hope, the next owner, had an unhappy matrimonial adventure, marrying Miss May Yohe, the American actress, and afterwards divorcing her. In 1901 the blue diamond was sold. M. Jacques Colot, who bought it, after selling it to the Prince Kanitovski, a Russian, lost his reason, and died by his own hand. It was lent by Prince Kanitovski to Lorena Ladue, a beautiful actress at the Folies Bergere, and he shot her from a box the first night she wore it. Two days later the Prince was stabbed. The next owner, a Greek, was thrown over a precipice and killed with his wife and two children. It got to Constantinople, and the favourite of the ex-Sultan Abdul Hamid, Salma Zubayba, was wearing the blue diamond on her heart when the Young Turks broke into the palace, and she was shot dead by her master. Mr. Habib, the next owner, an Armenian, was drowned at Singapore. The diamond came to the hands of Messrs. Cartier, the New York jewellers, who sold it to Mr. Edward McLean for £88,000. When Mrs. McLean heard of the tragic history of the diamond she persuaded her husband to refuse to complete the bargain. Messrs. Cartier thereupon sued Mr. McLean, and the latter ultimately took delivery of the stone for £86,000, in January, 1912, and presented it to his wife. A few months afterwards Mr. McLean's mother died after an attack of pneumonia, and now his son, the idolized heir to millions, is dead, too.

CLEMENCEAU IS A CLEVER DUELLIST

M. Clemenceau, the French Premier, is able to take very good care of himself when it comes to a duel with pistols.

This interesting fact is revealed in Mr. Hyndman's admirable book on the great statesman ("Clemenceau" Grant Richards).

It was after the uprising of the Communists of Paris of 1871, and the young Clemenceau, who had been Mayor of Montmartre, had just been acquitted of the charge of not having done enough to save the lives of two Generals. Scarcely, however, was his life relieved from jeopardy under the law than he was compelled to risk it, or so he thought, on the duelling ground.

Here, says Mr. Hyndman, Clemenceau was quite at home. But he used his skill with the pistol very moderately, being content to wound his adversary, Commandant Poussages, in the leg.

None the less, the result was that he was committed to prison for a fortnight as a lesson to him not to act in accordance with the French code of honour in the future.

About the only way to convince a girl that her favourite young man is not an angel is to let her marry him.

PACKERS BEAT DE LAVAL FOR THE FOURTH TIME

MATTHEWS-BLACKWELL CREW TIGHTEN GRIP ON LEADERSHIP BY WINNING EXCITING GAME FROM SEPARATORS—CAMPBELL'S TIMELY WALLOP WITH THE BASES FULL PUT DE LAVAL BACK INTO THE GAME AFTER THEY WERE SIX RUNS DOWN AND THEY MADE THE FINISH A CLOSE ONE.

The Matthews-Blackwell team made their hold on the top rung of the City League ladder more secure last night by beating De Laval in an exciting battle by 8 runs to 7. The Packers have only to win their next game, with the War Veterans on Tuesday night next, to annex the League title.

They had a tight squeeze last night in spite of a runaway start that left them 6 to 0 ahead at the end of the sixth. Up to that time the Separators had only got one hit off Frost, but for the balance of the game the De Laval clubs swung merrily. A mighty wallop by Campbell in the sixth, with the bases full, was responsible for four runs and put De Laval right back in the game. They outscored the winners 7 to 2 for the balance of the engagement and had the tieing run on second when the last man was retired, making an exciting finish of what looked like a win under wraps for the Packers.

Adams' hit to short and steal of second, Butcher's infield out, a passed ball, Lowe's single to short on which Barrie made a bad throw to first, and Bergoine's wild chuck to third, gave the Packers two in the first.

They came right back in the second with another brace. Shaughnessy was hit to start with and was forced at second on Holyman's drive to Barrie. Holyman stole second and then singles by Frost and Adams accounted for two more counters.

De Laval had their first chance in the fourth when Rose cracked a beautiful triple to left centre, a bullet-like drive that shot between Shaughnessy and Adams. It was wasted, however, as Barrie grounded out.

The Packers increased their lead to six in the fifth, getting two runs on a pass to Butcher, Dugan's bad throw to the box, a walk to Corrin and Swanston's single over second.

De Laval had their big innings in the sixth. Dugan led off with a single to centre and Bergoine pulled one to right field. Fitzgerald forced Bergoine at second, but Rose walked, filling the bases. Barrie lined to Shaughnessy, the runners being held, but Campbell tripled to left centre, scoring Dugan, Fitzgerald and Rose, and registering himself when Holyman threw over Butcher's head. Prest got a life on Butcher's fumble, but Lipsett wound up the innings by striking out.

The Packers got two back in their half of the sixth, and as developments showed, they were needed. Prest started the trouble by passing Shaughnessy, and Holyman's single over second and a wild throw by Bergoine sent in two counters.

De Laval closed the gap in the eighth. With two out Campbell doubled to centre. Prest singled to second, sending Campbell to third, and on a double steal Campbell scored, Lipsett singled to left and once more a double steal went through, Prest counting. Legon popped to Corrin to end the innings.

In the ninth De Laval tried hard to sew up the game but fell one run short. Dugan went to second on Butcher's low throw, to start with, and to third on Bergoine's infield out. Fitzgerald's fly to Cunningham scored Dugan. Rose was hit and stole second, but Barrie wound up the game with a tap to Frost. The score:

HAVELOCK FIRE BRIGADE ORGANIZED

TWO NEW CHEMICAL TANKS GIVEN A WORKOUT.

Havelock's two chemical fire engines which were tested out last week, were found satisfactory by the Council, and have been accepted and stored for instant readiness in the Fire Hall at the Town Hall.

At a meeting in the Hall on Friday last, a brigade was organized, with W. H. Rose as Fire Chief, Messrs. Frank Watson, Alex. Plunkett, D. A. Forde, and F. Voyer, Sr., as Deputies; and the following as firemen: C. Roberts, W. Bullied, A. C. Denike, Ed. Fennell, Jas. Laing, Robt. Anderson, John Moore, H. Francis, J. J. Carter, W. Hitchins, J. Simons, F. C. Owens, H. Peters, Jas. Wight, W. H. Haughton, Alex. Mathison, B. Copp, W. J. McBurney, S. S. Joyce, R. Crawford, R. Wright, T. P. Lancaster, R. Phillips, L. Breen, L. Hagerman, C. W. Coon, John Howe, F. Hooper, Geo. Pacey, Jas. Barlow, Jas. Conboy, and B. Curtis.

A meeting of the members of the Brigade will be held in the Town Hall at seven o'clock to-night, when the duties of the members will be formulated and afterward a practice run will take place to the park, where the engines will be discharged and reloaded.

HALF HOLIDAY EXCURSION TRIPS

THURSDAY AFTERNOON TRIPS ARE VERY POPULAR.

The Otonabee river and Rice Lake were favorite routes for excursionists Thursday afternoon. The half-holiday enables many to enjoy themselves on these near waters, because of their convenience to the city and the boating facilities afforded. When the mercury is playing round in the upper eighties, a few hours relaxation down the river is a refreshing change and a cheap and inexpensive outing.

The steamer "Stoney Lake" left the George Street wharf with about two hundred excursionists for Gore's Landing, under the auspices of the Excelsior Club of George Street Methodist Church. Many families took in the trip, provided with well-filled lunch baskets, etc., The party enjoyed a pleasant day's sail to Rice Lake and after enjoying supper at the landing returned home about 9 o'clock.

The steamer "Geneva" also left the wharf at 1.30 with a comfortable boat load of excursionists, bound for Bewdley. Few of those on board had ever been to Bewdley by steamer, and the sail through the river and lake was much appreciated. The passengers were comprised chiefly of family groupes, who brought along well filled hampers of provisions, and enjoyed the sail on the cool waters with zest and mirth. Bewdley was reached shortly after 5 o'clock. Much interest was taken in viewing the village, which is no unlike Gore's Landing in its situation and its environments. The return trip was made by 10 o'clock, having been nearly nine hours on the waters at a trifling cost of sixty cents. Captain Harris should repeat this trip oftener.

REGATTA AT GORE'S LANDING

The Rice Lake residents and visitors have arranged for a regatta to take place on the stretch of water in front of Gore's Landing on Saturady evening, commencing at 7 o'clock, for which six events will be competed for. These events will consist of canoe races, swimming race, gunwale race, canoe boxing, etc., for each of which events first and second prizes will be awarded. A good time and exciting races are looked forward to.

It is announced from Antwerp that the Red Star line has promised its staff not to engage henceforth exclusively Belgian crews, commanded by Belgian officers, and that its vessels shall not sail again under foreign flags.

RETURNED SOLDIERS' PICNIC

The picnic for returned soldiers, ther wives and families, which is to be held at Nicholls Oval on Saturday, the 19th inst., promises to be one of the biggest events of the season.

The outing will be held under the auspices of the local Salvation Army Corps, and is open to all returned men and their relations.

It is felt that some recogaition should be shown to those who have helped in so great a measure to bring about the great day of Peace which we shall be celebrating on Saturday, and so an invitation is extended to all men who enlisted to come and join in the big programme of sports and general good time. If the soldier cannot come, then the wife and family will be made entirely welcome. The gathering will be undenominational.

A splendid list of sports and speecies has been prepared, and prizes to the extent of about $150 will be given away. Below appears a programme of the sports, etc.

Meals will be provided free to all returned men and their families only, also some ice cream. All other visitors are requested to bring baskets.

All Salvationists are requested to make an effort to be present and help to entertain the visitors. Colonel Bettridge of Montreal, will be present, and will act as chairman of the gathering.

If you want a real good time, come and join us at the Oval at 1.30 p.m. on Saturday, July 19th. If the day is wet, the social will be held at the Temple on Simcoe street.

All S. A. Bandsmen please be sure and bring your instruments.

15 PER CENT. INCREASED ACREAGE IN WETS

First Bulletin of Northwest Grain Dealers' Association Shows this Gain Over Last Year.

The Northwest Grain Dealers' Association has issued its first bulletin this season, giving an estimate of the acreage under crop in the three prairie provinces as compared with last year. The estimate follows:

| | Acres—1918 | Acres—1919 |
|---|---|---|
| Wheat | 15,526,000 | 16,085,000 |
| Oats | 9,133,000 | 9,626,000 |
| Barley | 1,955,000 | 1,955,000 |
| Flax | 1,000,000 | 1,000,000 |
| Rye | 200,000 | 216,000 |

The increases for the various grains are: Wheat 3.6 per cent; Oats 5.4 per cent; Rye 8 per cent.

The bulletin also states that the association has had great difficulty in getting reports from correspondents, owing to the strike, and a great number had not been received at all; but judging from those received, considerable areas in Saskatchewan and Alberta are needing rain badly, while other districts, especially Manitoba, have had plenty of rain and crop prospects are splendid.

Burning Up Canada.

Striking evidence of the great need for concerted action in the fire prevention movement in Canada is found in a comparison of its per capita loss with that of other countries.

Records show that the average per capita loss in thirteen European countries for the three years, 1913-1915, was $0.71, as against $2.96 in Canada.

More striking still is a comparison of the per capita fire waste in Canada and the United Kingdom during the war period, August, 1914, to December, 1917. The figures are:—

Canada ..... $3.53
United Kingdom ..... 0.40

There are a number of reasons why Canada appears to such great disadvantage in the foregoing comparison, which might be summarised:

1. Her climate with its extremes of heat and cold.

2. Faulty construction usual to young countries.

3. Lack of enforcement, and, indeed, utter disregard, of the building bylaws.

In the opinion of the writer, formidable as are these disadvantages as a whole, they would rapidly assume much less serious proportions if the various Governments of Canada could see their way clear to introduce fire preventive legislation similar to that in European countries. In the latter, occupants, in event of fire, are required to prove that they were in no way responsible for the loss; otherwise, they are condemned to pay the damage that their carelessness has caused others.

The figures already quoted seem to demonstrate that the fire preventive legislation adopted in Europe has proven of immense value.

Canada should follow suit without further loss of time.—T. H. Hall.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

In Haying Time

By EVELYN MERCER

(Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union.)

"Imagination, my dear Mrs. Grey, pure and unadulterated imagination!"

"But Barton has certainly been dull, gloomy, nervous and irritable ever since he came back from the outing trip. He has no appetite. I hear him groaning in his sleep nights. He won't mingle with the young people, as usual, and he will wander about the garden sighing and woebegone. There must be something the matter with him."

"Well, I have looked him over and cannot find the slightest trace of disease," asserted Doctor March. "It may be the reaction from his long tramp. However, send him down to the office and I will give him some medicine that will brace him up."

Mrs. Grey was truly anxious for her son. Six months out of college, the youngest of three sons, his two brothers married and settled in life. His father was the wealthiest man in town, their home model, almost luxurious. Barton had free swing, so far as money was concerned, and his folks had asked him to spend a year at home before choosing a profession.

To the office of Doctor Marsh he went, as directed by his mother, that afternoon. He fidgetted around restlessly while the doctor was attending to another patient. He looked bored and ambitionless as the doctor, whom he had known since childhood, sat down opposite to him.

"Now, young man," he spoke, "out with it! What is the trouble? In debt? The ghost of some college lark? I'm going to give you some medicine as a matter of form, but it isn't medicine you need."

"No, it would be a waste," declared Barton. "Doctor, you're a good solid friend, and I am going to make a confession, and ask you to help me out."

"Good for you!" applauded the doctor.

"I came across a girl, a young lady, on my outing trip, whom I am going to win as my wife, or die of a broken heart."

"Rubbish, Barton! But let us have the details."

Shelter from the BURNING SUN

Introduced 40 years ago —still the best:

MENNEN'S TALCUM POWDERS

"There are none. I saw her twice, at a distance. I have never spoken to her, but, sure as love at first sight is a reality, she is the only girl I shall ever love."

"Who is she?"

"The niece of a farmer named Dickson, a hundred miles away from here. She is spending the summer on the farm, working like all of them. Dainty, graceful, beautiful, she is a being to idolize. Her people are sturdy, bred-in-the-wool farmers who would scout the idea of encouraging her acquaintance with an idler with only money behind him. What I want you to do is to tell my folks that I need a couple of months of hard, practical work on a farm. I'll do the rest."

Helpful friend that he was, with quite a tinge of romanticism in his nature, Dr. Marsh entered into the plan with Barton. And the latter lost no time in carrying out his plans. He left home wearing a common, plain suit of clothes. Two days later he was installed at the Hardy farm just adjoining that of John Dickson, as a common laborer, earning per month about as much as he had spent recklessly per day in past extravagance.

He had white hands, and there was an air of dignity and manliness about him, and the first time Imogen Walworth met him face to face she liked him. She was the busiest mortal possible. There was not a part of farm labor in which she did not engage, seemed to love the exercise, and was smiling or singing most of the time. Doubtless, reasoned Barton, she must be some poor connection of Farmer Dickson. But what did that matter? Had he not enough of sordid means for both?

It was when the two farms united their working forces in haying time that Barton at last told his love to Imogen. It was on top of a load of the new-mown provender that Imogen told him that she loved him, too. It was during a moonlight stroll just after that when Barton thought it best to make a confession of his real identity and prospects. And he would up with—

"And I am so delighted with farming that I am going back home to tell the folks they can settle us down for life on a lovely old 160-acre place we own."

"I ought to banish you, I suppose, for deceiving me," scolded Imogen, mildly, "but you have become so sensible and practical that I will forgive you. It takes all the romance out of it, for I have a fortune of my own, and simply came down to uncle and aunt to learn to be of some use in the world."

It was a new, buoyant, rejuvenated Barton who appeared at the old homestead a month after that. It was a genuine welcome that his father and mother awarded Imogen Walworth when he brought over his affianced bride a week later.

"I said it was all imagination," Doctor Marsh told Mrs. Grey, with a chuckle. "I was wrong—it was Imogination!"

ANCIENT COINS.

Money Was In Circulation In Asia and Europe in 700 B.C.

Coined money was in circulation in Asia and Europe as early as 700 B.C. But the ancients did not put dates on their coins, and so it is not always easy to fix the exact period of their issue.

They were, of course, not struck with dies, but merely cast in molds, so that they had not the smooth symmetry of modern coins. Nevertheless, some of them possessed a very high artistic merit.

Even nowadays people bury money. In ancient times, when a man's possessions were far less safe, the practice was much more common. Largely owing to it is the fact that such great numbers of early coins (mostly discovered by accident) exist to-day in collections.

There is, indeed, hardly an ancient coinage of which specimens are not extant. Many of them have been derived from the hidden hoards of sacerdotal establishments.

The earliest known bronze coins of the Romans date back to 335 B.C. They issued silver coins less than a century later. But doubtless the gold and silver money of other countries was largely used by the ancient Romans, introduced among them through the aggressive commerce of Greek and Asiatic states.

There was no lack of the precious metals in those days. Dr. T. L. Comparette, numismatist of the Philadelphia Mint, says that in ancient times the supply of gold and silver was as great in proportion to the population using money coined of those metals as it is to-day.

A Glimpse of Lisbon.

Lisbon leaves the definite impression of a gay, bright capital, if not of a truly beautiful city. Beautiful it certainly is by nature, seated on its lofty hills overlooking the Tagus and interspersed everywhere with semitropic gardens and largos, but its newer houses are too rectangular, too lacking in imagination, to make anything but rather monotonous streets. Even the Praca do Commercio, though laid out upon a truly magnificent scale, fails to arouse enthusiasm.

This is the city's aspect to the casual visitor who devotes but a day or two to its sights. But to one who is willing to give it a week or more it holds many attractions.

The seeker for the picturesque will delight in the water front in the morning hours and in the fisher folk—the men in black bag cops and knee breeches; the women, barefoot, setting out with basket on head to trot the city streets. These fishwives are the most picturesque of the Lisbon types, and most of them are really beautiful, the fine ovals of their faces, their smooth complexions and lustrous, almond shaped eyes recalling the Mauresques and clearly bespeaking their oriental origin.

Katie.

"Katie" is the soldiers' stuttering song. When little Mary first heard it that anyone except her little playmate Ruth stuttered. But when she heard it again and again she began to understand its nature. One day after hearing it she went to her older sister. "Margaret," she began, "don't you bet Ruth could sing 'Katie' better than anybody you knew?"

NOT ASPIRIN WITHOUT THE "BAYER CROSS"

Any Tablet Offered as Aspirin and Not Stamped with the "Bayer Cross" is Not Aspirin at All!

"Bayer" Now Made in Canada—No German Interest—All Rights Purchased from U. S. Government

There is not a penny of German money invested in "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" nor will a German citizen profit by its sale or ever be allowed to acquire interest.

The original, world-famous "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" is now made in Canada and can be had at your druggist's in handy packages.

Unless you see the "Bayer Cross" on package and on tablets you are not getting Aspirin at all.

During the war, acid imitations were sold as Aspirin in pill boxes and various other containers. But there is no substitute for genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" which have been proved safe by millions for Pain, Headache, Toothache, Earache, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Colds, Grippe, Joint Pains, Neuritis.

Proper and safe directions are in every "Bayer Package."

Don't accept Aspirin in a pill box. Buy a "Bayer Package"!

Boxes of 12 tablets—Bottles of 24—Bottles of 100—Also Capsules.

Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada) of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid. While it is well known that Aspirin means Bayer manufacture, to assist the public against imitations, the Tablets of Bayer Company will be stamped with their general trade mark, the "Bayer Cross."

The Chinese Labor Corps.

Of all the changes made in individuals by the war there are probably none more striking than those the people of China are now noting in the returning Chinese who served in the war zone under the standard of the Chinese Labor Corps. Something like 100,000 Chinese worked for the allied nations at all kinds of labor connected with the progress of the war in France and Belgium, earning all told the estimated sum of £6,000,000, practically all of which returns to their native country. Taken from various parts of China, they were put under military discipline, taught efficiency according to western standards, and subjected to conditions of life in an altogether different human environment, that has, so to speak, "made new Chinamen of them." The question that the best thought of China is now considering is what shall be done with them, and plans are being discussed to keep these former members of the Chinese Labor Corps together and use their improved capabilities on Government work. Even if they scatter, however, these 100,000 western trained workers will surely be an influence for good in the life of the nation.

"One Man In His Time."

Brimful of strange adventures was the life of James W. Rusecroft, 49, of King Edward's Horse, as it was described, when he was charged at Lancaster, England, with breaking into a shop at Morecambe and stealing jewellery valued at £779. He said that he had:—

Served in the South African War.

Been a gold miner and prospector in Klondike and Alaska.

Traded as a copra merchant in the South Sea Islands.

Been a beachcomber in British Guiana.

Worked on the Panama Canal.

Fought under President Castro in Mexico.

Was in the Boxer riots in China.

In Jamaica at the time of the great earthquake in 1907.

Worked on the Trans-Siberian Railway.

Assisted to quell the Sinn Fein rising in Ireland.

Fought in France and was severely wounded.

Following the shop-breaking which was done while he was on sick leave, he sent valuable presents to his sister, gave rings to nurses at Colchester Hospital and other people in the town.

When arrested he had still £200 worth in his possession, and he helped the police to recover an additional £190 worth.

Sentence of twelve months' hard labor was passed upon him.

Only Four.

Some time ago, it will be remembered, the news came from Berne that two special trains were speeding southwestward from Vienna conveying "all the archdukes remaining in Austria, their suites and their baggage," en route for Switzerland. Now Switzerland is noted for her hospitality toward "the king in exile," but on this occasion, it appears, her hospitable heart failed her at the last moment. The Journal de Geneve, at any rate, announces that only four archdukes have been permitted by the Federal Government to come to Switzerland. All, moreover, have been required to give an undertaking "to abstain from politics and propaganda." The fact of the matter is that the exile business is becoming too large to remain any longer unregulated.

Raisuli.

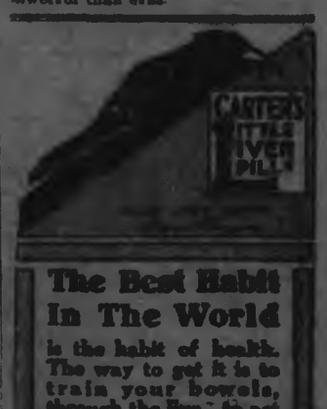
Few men have succeeded in maintaining themselves so long in the limelight as the Moroccan brigand chieftain, Raisuli. From the day of his first great adventure, some sixteen years ago, when he kidnapped the correspondent of the London Times, and held him up for ransom, down to the present time he has kept the world speculating as to what he would do next. In the early days of his career, Raisuli's great specialty was undoubtedly kidnapping. Following closely upon the capture of the Times' correspondent, came the historic descent on Ion Perdicaris and Cromwell Varley, American and British subjects, respectively, which led to the arrival in Tangier Bay of six American warships with a demand, in the end successful, for "release and restoration" within a specified time. Four years later, it was the turn of Gen. Sir Harry Maclean, commander of the Sultan's bodyguard, to fall into the hands of the brigand and to regain his liberty only after a substantial ransom had been paid. Since then, Raisuli has reformed and broken loose again many times. Just now, Spain, after paying him a "good salary" to keep quiet for several years, is faced with a grand revolt of the tribesmen led by their redoubtable chieftain. "Old feuds," says the latest word from Tangier, "have been forgotten, and the mountain tribes are once more united under Raisuli, now more powerful than ever."



The Best Habit In The World

is the habit of health. The way to get it is to train your bowels, through the liver, to act naturally, at a fixed time, every day.

Take one pill regularly (more only if necessary) until you succeed. Then you can stop taking them, without trouble or annoyance.

This has been the good-health rule for 50 years.

NEW BRITISH PARTY FORMED

Winston Churchill Outlines Scheme at Private Dinner, and Spoke on Behalf of Premier.

LONDON, July 18.—A political sensation of first importance was caused late Monday night, says the Daily Mail, by the attempted inauguration of a new political party destined, if its adherents are successful, to supercede the existing coalition Unionist groups, and replace them by a permanent combination party of moderate men of both. The new movement was born at a private dinner at the Criterion restaurant, at which Winston Churchill speaking apparently as the agent of Lloyd George, emphasized the necessity o fa new permanent coalition party to preserve all that the Empire has won in the war from the attacks of ex-wha the presence of the chief coalition Liberal whip, Capt. Guest, and the Unionist whip, second in command, Sir George Younger, both of whom associated themselves entirely with what Churchill said, as also did the Lord Chancellor.

To Lead New Party

The impression gained by all those present at the dinner is that Lloyd George has cast himself for the role of leader of the new party.

It appears that Colonel Churchill speaking as a disciple of Lloyd George, spoke for an hour, reviewing old political differences and emphasizing the necessity for continued combination of the Moderates among the Unionists and Liberals in order to preserve what had been won in the war. Colonel Churchill insisted that co-operation was necessary in order to fight Bolshevism.

The supporting speakers included the chief Coalition, Liberal and Unionist whips.

The Lord Chancellor referred sympathetically to the future of the Labor party, but some speculation exists as to the new party's attitude of alliance or opposition towards the saner elements. The diners gained the impression that Lloyd George would lead the new Centre party.

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia To Overcome Trouble. Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk), is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies Are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Hair that loses its colour and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even colour, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small stand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite to impart colour and a youthful appearance to the hair. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

HAMILTON VETERANS TO BOYCOTT SHOPKEEPERS

HAMILTON, July 18.—The returned soldiers belonging to all organizations here are very much in earnest about the Peace Day celebration. They announced to-day that any shopkeeper who kept open on Saturday would be marked by the soldiers, and, though not officially blacklisted, would suffer as though on a blacklist. The soldiers are making no exceptions, unless it be in the case of restaurants, hotels, and drug stores. Some of the men in the east end talked of raiding any places of business that refused to close their doors, but their leaders have counselled against any show of violence, and have advised them to merely refuse to do business with such persons. The soldiers argue that it is not much to ask for shopkeepers that they close on the day when the Empire is celebrating the peace that was won at the cost of so much bloodshed and sacrifice, and think this mark of respect is due all who put on a uniform.

VETERAN HAD A NASTY ACCIDENT

Mr. Thomas Miller, of Toronto, a veteran of the war who came through all the heavy fighting on the Western Front with out a scratch, had a narrow escape from being instantly killed near Stirling while making a trip by water from McCracken's Landing to Toronto.

Mr. Miller was fixing the engine, when an explosion took place, and both he and his father received slight wounds. Mr. Miller had his lip badly cut and both upper and lower jaws injured.

Mr. Miller, Sr., returned home by train after having his wounds dressed in Stirling.

The motor boat was left at Stirling for repairs.

Mr. Miller has relatives in Warsaw.

To Keep Skin Fresh and Fine These Heated Days

It would be much better for the skin if little cream, powder or rouge were used during the heated term. Mixed with prespiration, dust and grime, these things are anything but beautifying. Ordinary mercolized wax will do more for the complexion, and without giving an oily, streaked, spotted or pasty appearance. It is the ideal application for the season, as it not only keeps the pores clean, but daily removes particles of scarf skin which have been soiled by dirt or weather. By constantly keeping the complexion clear, white, satiny, it does more toward perpetuating a youthful countenance than any of the arts or artifices commonly employed. One ounce of mercolized wax, obtainable at any drug store, will completely renovate the worst complexion. It is applied at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning. There's nothing better for tanned, freckled or reddened skin.

SPENT A SMALL FORTUNE, HE SAYS

CHAPPELL SUFFERED FIFTEEN YEARS BEFORE FINDING RELIEF—PRAISES TANLAC.

Remarkable, indeed, was the statement made by W. D. Chappell, a well-known painter and paperhanger, living at 311 South Franklin Street, St. Paul, Minnesota, while in the St. Paul Drug Company's store recently. Mr. Chappell declared that three bottles of Tanlac have done him more real good than other treatment and medicines that cost him a small fortune, which he has paid out during the past fifteen years trying to get rid of a bad case of stomach trouble and kidney complaint.

"For fifteen years," said Mr. Chappell, "I have suffered from stomach trouble and painful, disordered kidneys. My appetite was gone and the gas from what little I did eat would bloat me up terribly, causing intense pains in my left side and about my heart. My kidneys disturbed me so at night that I never averaged more than about three hours' sleep and the pains in my back were so bad that it was agony for me to bend over and straighten up. I was also badly constipated and felt tired out all the time. I have spent a small fortune trying to get rid of these troubles, but only got worse. This spring I got in such a bad shape I was forced to quit work entirely.

"A man I know personally, one whose word I could not doubt, recommended Tanlac to me, and while I have taken only three bottles so far, the medicine has done me more real good than everything else I have taken combined, and I am still taking it and improving right along. My stomach feels almost like a new one and my kidneys are in much better shape. I am sleeping better at night than I have in years and I get up in the mornings feeling like work. My appetite is so good that I just want to eat all the time, and since the gas has stopped forming on my stomach I am not troubled any more with pains in my side or about my heart. Tanlac commenced to build me up before I had finished the first bottle, and I have been steadily improving ever since. I had about given up hope of ever finding a medicine that would help me; so you may know how thankful I am that Tanlac came my way, and I am glad to pass the good word along."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., in Fowlers Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

Voice Of The People

Sir:— "Fair Play" voiced my sentiments exactly.

Its scandalous for stores to open on Saturday, when our King, God bless Him, has ordered a peace celebration.

My word, if our boys had not gone over at the request of King and country but had let the "Huns" come here instead, how then would the stores have fared?

All honour to Mr. Gibson and the other few who are willing to obey. My Bible says "Fear God, honour the King." I cannot think how English folks anyway are going to stand for this non-compliance with His Majesty's wishes.

COMPULSORY WORK LATEST FOR HUNS

BERLIN, July 18.— Allied representatives have told the German delegation at Versailles, it is reported here in Government circles, that Germany must be prepared to introduce measures for compulsory work, if necessary.

This, it was said, was intended as a means of bringing about prompt execution of the reparation work in Northern France, utilizing troops and a half million civilian labourers.

Officers here said the Allied conferences on this subject were conducted in a friendly spirit. These officials agreed that Germany has a problem in her labour troubles.

JOHN WILLIAMS HAS FINE IRISH COBBLERS

Mr. John Williams of North Monaghan, showed the Examiner today a fine sample of Irish Cobbler potatoes. Mr. William specializes in this crop and a great patch which he is now beginning to harvest has attracted the interest of many citizens interested in good gardening. The cobbler samples were large firm potatoes, the result of careful selection of seed and industrious cultivation.

WARSAW NEWS

WARSAW, July 18.— Mr and Mrs. Stark and family, who have been visiting at the Baptist parsonage, left for home last Wednesday.

Rev. and Mrs. Clare and family left for their new home in Colborne on Wednesday.

Rev. Knox, the new Methodist minister, arrived in the village on Thursday and preached on Sunday at Bethel, Zion and Warsaw, to good congregations and seems to have made a good impression.

Mr. and Mrs. William Dewart, Indian River, spent Sunday in the village.

Miss Margaret Purchase, of Toronto, is visiting at the Manse.

Mr. Cecil Wasson spent Sunday in the village.

Mrs. Donald MacIntosh is back in the village again.

Miss Bessie Turriffe is visiting her mother and her uncle at the Manse.

CRESSMAN WELFARE CLUB OUTING WAS A BIG SUCCESS

A very enjoyable day was spent at Chemong Park on Thursday afternoon. The employees left the Cressman Store by motor cars, loaned by the firm and employees, at a o'clock. The afternoon was spent in bathing, boating, and fishing. Mr. McBride, of the third floor, with the help of Uncle Steve, a visitor from Toronto, succeeded in landing a 15-pound 'lunge.

The supper was neatly arragged in the Pavilion by the ladies of the club, and needless to mention, was enjoyed by all, after which an enjoyable programme was given by members of the club, assisted by two invited guests. One already mentioned, Uncle Steve, held the crowd spellbound by relating several of his thrilling experiences down South, and rendered a solo, entitled "The Tenderfoot's Luck." The other guest, a travelling salesman, Mr. Massey, impersonated Harry Lauder in his specialty, "A Wee Deoch an' Dor's."

After the programme, the club members motored home, all feeling that a very enjoyable day had been spent.

GEN. PERSHING GETS FREEDOM OF LONDON

LONDON, July 18.— With quaint traditional ceremony the Lord Mayor of London tendered General Pershing the honorary freedom of the city to-day, and presented him with a sword of honour.

FIRE AT THE McDONALD MILL

Sparks coming up from the furnace through the chute which holds the conveyers or the refuse to the furnace from the shingle hopper, set fire to the sawdust and bits of shingles in the hopper at three o'clock this afternoon at the McDonald Lumber Company Estate.

The engineer noticed the blaze, and the fire brigade was called, and after considerable difficulty the blaze was extinguished by means of a garden hose. The damage is small and the whole machine will be rebuilt this year.

After a short honeymoon to Toronto, Mrs. Gerell returned to her home 805 George street, for a few months after which she will join her husband in Newport News, where they will in the future reside.

OBITUARY

JOSEPH E. ROBERTS.
A well known and respected resident of Chandos died at his home, on July 7th, 1919, after an illness of four years duration, aged 74 years.
The deceased came from Leeds, England, about forty years ago and has lived at Chandos all that time with the exception of the first three years which he spent near Young's Point. He leaves to mourn his loss besides his wife, one son, Harry, and one daughter, Mrs. Everett.
Mr. Roberts was for over thirty years churchwarden and treasurer of St. Stephen's (Anglican) church.
He was buried in the churchyard of St. George's Church, Apsley, on July 9th, the Rev. C. A. G. Spence conducting the funeral service.

MR. JAMES TIGHE
The death occurred this afternoon of Mr. James Tighe, 289 Concession street, one of the best known residents of the city. He was a life-long Conservative in politics and a consisent member of Mark street Methodist Church.
Funeral announcement will be made later.

MR. WILLIAM JOHN DRADER.
The death took place last night at his residence, 543 Water Street, of Mr. William J. Drader. Mr. Drader was born in Lindsay, but moved to Lacombe, Alberta, and has been a resident of this city for the last two years.
He is survived by a wife and two children, Miss Gertrude Drader, of Lacombe, Alberta, and Mr. William B. Drader, of Vernon, B.C. The deceased is a brother of Mrs. George Jobbitt of this city.
The funeral will take place from his late residence, 543 Water Street, to-morrow afternoon. Service at one o'clock, by Rev. Amos Thomas, to Little Lake Cemetery.

SOVIET OFFERS MURDER BRIBE

Several British Subjects Are Executed by Bolshevists

HELSINGFORS, July 18.—A refugee direct from Petrograd declares that several British subjects were shot at the Fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul, the great Island Prison of Petrograd at Kronstadt, after the fighting at Krasnaya and Gorka opposite Kronstadt. They were forced to dig their own graves and were shot naked.
The informant declares that women take part in the executions. The British Embassy has been wrecked.
The Bolsheviats are concentrating reserves on the Gatchina front, 30 miles southwest of Petrograd, where they have suffered heavy losses in fighting with the north Russians and Finnish volunteers.
They offer $250,000 for anyone who will assassinate General Mannerheim the Finnish Regent, with the object of paralysing Finnish resistance.

ANOTHER WARSAW SOLDIER HOME

WARSAW, July 18.—Gunner Wm. Aitkens returned home on Saturday evening. He is another Warsaw boy who has seen hard service, and has suffered from shell-shock.
He won the Military Medal. A German machine gun was working great havoc among the men. Gunner Aitkens and four others were sent across No Man's Land to silence it. They were very badly peppered, and three ran back. Young Aitkens and another stuck to it and completed the job.

WILL SPEND DAY IN BED

PRESIDENT WILSON STRICKEN WITH A SLIGHT ILLNESS--EATING TOO MUCH WATER MELON.

DOCTOR'S REPORT

(United Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 21.— President Wilson is suffering from an attack of dysentary and has been ordered to remain in bed to-day, Dr. Carey T. Grayson, the President's physician, announced.

Grayson said the attack is not serious and that he hoped the President would be able to continue his work to-morrow.

President Wilson, returning early to-day from a cruise down the Potomac in the Presidential yacht, Mayflower, cancelled engagements with four Republican Senators and three others.

OTONABEE CLAIMS ANOTHER VICTIM

JAMES RICE TOOK CRAMPS WHILE IN SWIMMING.

Mr. James Rice, 26 years of age, residing in Otonabee Township, was drowned in the Otonabee River yesterday afternoon near Stewart Hall, nine miles from the city. Three of them were in a boat—a younger brother Richard, and James Harper, also of Otonabee.

Rice was seized with cramps shortly after entering the water for a swim and sank before the eyes of his two comrades before any assistance could be given.

The body was recovered by Thos. Johnston, Stewart Hall, at 12.45, and taken to Lane and Eano's Undertaking parlours.

He leaves one brother Richard, and one sister, Elizabeth, of Concession 4, Otonabee, besides his uncle, Mr. David Rice of this city.

Funeral will take place to-morrow morning at 8.30 o'clock, from the residence of his uncle, Mr. David Rice, 330 Concession street, to the Sacred Heart Church and St. Peter's cemetery.

UNLAWFUL TO STORE LIQUOR

WASHINGTON, July 21. — An effort to have a provision in the bill making it unlawful for a person to possess liquors in his own dwelling, was expected to be the storm centre of the debate to-day in the House, when consideration of the prohibition enforcement legislation was resumed. Members who announced that they would attempt to have the bill amended with this point in view declared that the measure was framed to permit hoarding by wealthy persons, thousands of whom are said to have stored in their homes enough wines and whiskey to last them a lifetime.

BOLSHEVIK ARREST LEGATION MEMBERS

(Canadian Press.)

STOCKHOLM, July 21.—Bolshevik government at Petrograd refused to release five members of Swedish Legation at Petrograd, recently arrested, it was announced here to-day. An official of Swedish Foreign Office said it was his belief that representatives of other nations at Petrograd probably would be arrested.

SUGGESTS THAT BORDEN RESIGN

(Canadian Press.)

BRANTFORD, July 21. —Trades and Labour Council of this city has passed a resolution suggesting that Premier Borden should resign as a result of evidence before the Cost of Living Commission of his holding stock in Winnipeg packing concern, which is alleged to have made over fifty per cent. profits.

THE WEATHER

Two more days with 90 degrees or over must be credited to July. Saturday's highest point was 92 degrees, while the temperature on Sunday went a trifle past the 90 degree mark. July up to the present has produced six hot days as compared with nine in June.—W.P.

WILL AIM TO SECURE A REVISION OF THE TERMS SAYS COUNT BERNSTORFF

FORMER AMBASSADOR TO AMERICA ADDRESSES DEMOCRATIC PARTY IN BERLIN.

WORLD POLICY

(Canadian Press.)

BERLIN, July 21. — Count Von Bernstorff, speaking at a democratic party meeting to-day said that Germany must never forget that a world policy such as was engineered before the war, has become impossible. Peace, he added, has been signed under protest, but having been signed, honor demanded as a basis of future policy "that we fulfill the peace terms according to the best of our ability, and with a conscience that does not hinder what we freely admit to the entire world, that the goal of our policy will be to secure a revision of the terms."

"Whoever lives in Germany knows that we neither want nor can we conduct a war of revenge," Count Von Bernstorff said. Count Von Bernstorff asserted that while the League of Nations was regarded in Germany as a holy alliance aimed at Germany, and that without Germany and Austria and Russia it would be a mere fisco, it will assume its real function when Germany enters it, of combining all the peoples' energies.

YORKSHIRE MINES ARE FLOODED OUT

Pumpmen Are on Strike in the Coal Fields.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, July 21.— Three mines in the Yorkshire district are flooded and twelve others are likely to be filled with water in a day or two, Premier Lloyd George announced to-day in the House of Commons, as a result of the pumpmen's strike. Some of the mines, he said, would be ruined. The government is sending men from the fleet to aid in pumping out the mines.

MINERS REFUSED TO RESUME WORK

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, July 21.— As a protest against the increase of six shillings in price of coal which came into effect to-day following the refusal of the Miners' Federation to accept the compromises on wage and other questions, thousands of miners in the Mansfield district of Nottinghamshire refused to go down into the pit this morning. The men in other districts are expected to do likewise, despite the recommendation by Federations in all districts that work be continued until the government settled the question of piece rates growing out of increase in coal price.

Some two hundred thousand miners likewise are out in Yorkshire for an increase in wages.

ONTARIO CHARTERED ACCOUNTANTS MEET

ANNUAL GENERAL SESSION HERE WAS LARGELY ATTENDED

The thirty-sixth annual general meeting of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of Ontario was held in Peterborough Board of Trade Rooms on Saturday, and was largely attended, representatives from many parts of the Province being present.

The work of the past year was reviewed by the president, Wilfred R. Morris, of Peterborough, whose address was full of interest and showed the progress of the Institute.

Election of Officers.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows:

President, R. J. Dilworth; first vice-president, M. H. Robinson; second vice-president, Rutherford Williamson; secretary-treasurer, Arnold Morphy; council—Arthur K. Bunnell, Brantford; R. Easton Burns, Kingston; Geoffrey T. Clarkson, Toronto; Robert J. Dilworth, Toronto; J. Wyndham Eddis, Toronto; George Edwards, Toronto; Edmond Gunn, Toronto; Francis G. Jewell, London; Arnold Morphy, Toronto; Wilfred R. Morris, Peterborough; Arthur C. Neff, Toronto; Bryan Pontifex, Toronto; Malcolm H. Robinson, Toronto; T. Watson Sime, Toronto; Rutherford Williamson, Toronto. Representatives on Council of the Dominion Association of Chartered Accountants R. J. Dilworth, A. C. Neff, Bryan Pontifex; auditors, G. F. Glatt, F. C. Martin; registrar, William J. Vallean, Toronto.

The German Chancellor says that the peace terms will turn his country into an enormous jail. If that is true, literal and exact justice will be done for the first time in human history.—Cleveland Press.

THE BAKERS ACCEPT FORTY-FOUR HOUR WEEK WAGE SCHEDULE AND TIME AND A HALF

SPIRIT OF HARMONY AND COMPROMISE SHOWN AT MEETING--THREE HOURS' OVERTIME AT REGULAR WAGE.

CONFECTIONERS NEXT

Harmony prevailed as the conference of the bakers and their employees in the Labour Hall on Saturday night, at which recent negotiations for shorter hours, higher wages, and generally improved living conditions culminated in an agreement.

The wage scale was fixed as follows: Foremen, $30 a week; ovenmen and doughmen, $28; bench and table men, $25, and helpers, $22 a week. Jobbers, that is, extra help required from time to time, are to be paid 75c an hour, this demand apparently seeking to eliminate transient or temporary workers.

Compromise on Time.

The men had asked for an eight-hour day, but the manufacturers proposed a week of 44 hours, to which the men agreed. One man will work five nights of eight hours, with ten hours on Friday night. The Union time applies to all operatives.

The employers also suggested that there should be extra pay for the first five hours' overtime. After discussing this, the men agreed to go half-way, and a compromise of three hours of overtime at the flat rate was accepted. Thus, whenever there is overtime, there will be no extra time for the first three hours, but after that the rate will be time and a half.

The agreement was signed by James Dutton of Wm. Stock & Sons, T. Gilgour & Son, J. J. Corbitt of the Peterborough Bread Company, John Grady, and J. J. Menzies.

The Confectioners Next.

The employees of the confectionery shops have decided upon a nine-hour day in order that the change from the old order may cause the employers any inconvenience. The confectioners involved are Messrs. Hooper, Potvin, Coleman and Boorman. Mr. Coleman has reported, signed the agreement to-day, and the other employers are expected to assent the same.

It is expected that the men will walk out to-morrow from any of the confectionery shops that refuse the terms, which the men believe, have been made as fair as possible.

Apart from the hours, they ask the same wage schedule as the bread bakers.

The men were greatly pleased by the sentiments expressed by the bread manufacturers on Saturday night. The spirit of harmony and goodwill that prevailed was regarded by them as a happy augury for the future relations in the local bakeshops.

TRIAL OPENED AT NOON TO-DAY

TWELVE STRIKE LEADERS ON TRIAL IN WINNIPEG.

(Special to The Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, Man., July 21.— Before Magistrate Sir Hugh John Macdonald, the preliminary hearing of the twelve strike leaders arrested during the recent sympathetic strike, began at noon to-day. An array of counsel unequalled in many years at court proceedings in Winnipeg, was present. Labour had four lawyers present to watch their interests, and Alfred J. Andrews, K.C., was assisted by a half dozen fellow attorneys. Stacks of documents were brought into the court room, seized in recent raids on the Labour Temple and in the private homes of labour leaders.

Ald. Heaps and Comrade Bray, the soldier leader, returned Sunday night from Montreal, and others were present in court also. Two are city aldermen, two are recently expelled Methodist clergymen, one is a member of the Manitoba Legislature, and others are well known for their active participation in the strike.

Since the arrest of these men, the Labour Councils of Winnipeg and Vancouver have endorsed the One Big Union action, the latter having gone on sympathy strike. The vote in Winnipeg was 83 for and 45 against, out of three hundred unions in the Council. The hearings are to be bitterly contested.

SEVERAL MEN SECURE POSITIONS

SIXTY APPLICATIONS FOR EMPLOYMENT.

Through the Employment Agency, five men, three moulders and a carpenter, were placed out of the city during the past week.

In all 60 applications for situations were received; 45 vacancies were reported and 43 men were placed locally. Outside of the 60 applications a number of application forms for work with the Canadian Des Moines Steel Construction Company, which is sending men to Bologne to work on steel construction for the American Navy, were filled in and sent to headquarters.

Bela Kun is Deposed in Hungary — Roman History Repeated.

(Canadian Press.)

VIENNA, July 21.—Bela Kun, Soviet Minister of War and Foreign Affaires, has been deposed by a triumvigrate composed of TiTbor, Smiamvely and Vago, according to Vienna newspapers. Vago is the military commander of Budapest.

MAYOR WILL SIGN WHEN CHEQUE COMES

The last barrier separating the Russell-Townsend Company from the Hunter street bridge contract is the $10,000 cheque which accompanied the tender, but which was returned at the company's request when the council seemed some weeks ago about to award the contract to the Canadian Engineering and Construction Company.

Mr. Russell assured the city that his company would gladly forward a new cheque in the event of the acceptance of their tender, but this detail appears to have been overlooked.

Mayor Duncan stated to-day that he would not sign the agreement until the $10,000 cheque is in the hands of the City Clerk.

Labour Aldermen state that they have no intentions of asking for a special meeting of the council for the purpose of revoking their votes in favor of the Russell-Townsend Company's tender. Hence only the technical detail of the contract deposit remains to be straightened out.

WINSTON SPENCER CHURCHILL MAKES A BID FOR THE BRITISH PREMIERSHIP

PRESENT WAR MINISTER HAS NUMEROUS FOLLOWING—TUESDAY'S SPEECH FORESHADOWS A NEW PARTY—A POLITICAL CRISIS.

LLOYD GEORGE'S POSITION

(United Press.)

LONDON, July 21.—In some political quarters here an ulterior significance is discerned in Mr. Churchill's startling emergence into the light by his speech last Tuesday, foreshadowing the formation of a new centre party, the "Moderates." For some time, it is said, Mr. Churchill's special personal partisans—and they are to be found among members of both the Unionist and the Liberal wings of the present government—have been cherishing ambitions of his advancement to the Premiership in the near future.

These who believe hat they detected signs some two months ago in a subterranean movement with this object in mind, see in the question confirmation of their views. It was a speech outlining, in general terms, the policy of a new party—a speech such as would be expected only from the man who aspired to be that party's leader. If it was made without the concurrence of Premier Lloyd George it may be taken as a bid on the part of the speaker to supplant him. But if (as seems more probable) it was made with such concurrence, then it is just on the cards that it may indicate an intention on the Premier's part to resign his office at no distant date. Mr. Lloyd George's task ever since the beginning of the war, has been herculean, particularly in the last two years. He may conceivably be content with his Premiership's achievement in winning the war and in establishing peace.

DESTROYING THEIR CROPS

FARMERS REFUSE TO PROVISION TOWNS CONTROLLED BY THE BOLSHEVISTS.

HOSTILE TO SOVIETS

(United Press.)

VIENNA, July 21.—A government more tyrannical than that of Bela Kun existe in Budapest to-day. Similarly, one of the people's commission, seized control following Bela Kun's attempt to shift responsibility for his acts to a coalition government.

The White Leaders of Hungary are organizing their army for co-operation with the Allies in the offensive which it is expected the latter will launch against the Soviets. Numerous ex-officers, wearing their war decorations, are arriving in Vienna en route to Szogedin (ninety-six miles southeast of Budapest, and headquarters of the country revolutionists.)

Hungarian secret agents are buying up copper money in Vienna, intending to melt it for the manufacture of munitions.

Opposition is being organized among the workmen of Budapest against the Soviets. This hostility is expected to reach a climax this week. Hungarian labour leaders declare openly that the Bolsheviki are the most dangerous enemies of the trade unions.

Refusal of farmers to provision small towns controlled by the Bolsheviki is extending, with the result that many of them are burning their crops rather than deliver them to the Soviets.

EARLY POTATO CROP A FAILURE DUE TO THE EXTREME HEAT

FOLIAGE WAS HEAVY AND PROMISING BUT LACK OF RAIN IN JUNE PROVED FATAL.

With a few outstanding exceptions the early potato crop is a failure according to the reports of Mr. S. [illegible] of Lansdowne, under the association, who recently visited Peterboro. Corroboration of this opinion is found in the statements of Mr. Frank Reeves a Government representative who has been visiting the market gardeners in this district.

Further proof of the failure of the early crop is shown in last week's prices quoted at Leamington. New potatoes were offered to the trade at $5.00 per 10 lb bag, and dry cooking onions also at $5.00 per 75 lb bag. Locally, the gardeners admit that although their crops have produced beautiful foliage, the tubers did not mature. The extremely warm weather during June cut short their development, with the result that the crop is a great disappointment.

As already reported, Mr. John Williams in North Monaghan, has an excellent crop, but his land is well watered and required only cultivation to bring the moisture to the roots near surface. Other gardeners report only two and three potatoes to a hill, and most of them undersize.

Mr. Sanderson examined the crops throughout Eastern Ontario within the last few weeks, and between Ottawa and Peterboro he saw nothing as good as the local crops.

"And we've got next to nothing remarked one gardener ruefully, "so you can form an opinion of the general conditions".

Of the late potatoes it is believed that they will be quite satisfactory. Given sufficient rains until early in August the crop be at least normal judging from present appearances.

FIREMEN HAD A QUIET WEEK-END

Couple of Grass Fires and a Chimney Fire.

Saturday morning the fire brigade was called to the vicinity of the C.G.E., where a live wire was lying on the ground. The firemen cut the wire to remove any danger and Hydro-Electric Company afterwards put it in place.

Saturday evening the brigade was called to the premises of Mr. Charlie Asto, an Italian, where a spark from a neighbouring chimney set fire to the kitchen roof. The damage was small.

The firemen wielded their rubber coats to extinguish a grass fire which had gained home headway on a vacant lot just north of Inverlea Park Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The property is owned by the Dickson Estate.

They were called to another grass fire yesterday evening at 7 o'clock at a vacant lot near the Hydro-Electric power house at the Auburn No damage.

COMMISSIONER APPOINTED.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, July 21.—Sir Eric Geddess, Minister without portfolio, was appointed to-day Commissioner to attempt to settle the miners' strike and is on his way to Yorkshire. Premier Lloyd George announced in the Commons.

THE PEACE TERMS HANDED TO THE AUSTRIANS TO-DAY BY CONFERENCE SECRETARY

PRINCIPAL CLAUSES IN THE TREATY --MUST SURRENDER ALL OF MERCHANT FLEET.

WAR DAMAGES

(United Press.)

PARIS, July 21. — The Austrians were in possession of the complete terms of their peace settlement today. The remainder of the document—the first section of which was handed to them June 2—was given to their representatives at St. Germain yesterday by Paul Dutasta, secretary of the peace conference with an utter lack of ceremony. They have fifteen days in which to file additional observations.

The principal terms of the treaty are:

Austria must accept responsibility for loss and damages to the allies through a war of aggression.

She must surrender all of her merchant fleet and a fifth of her river fleet within three months.

She must make reparation within thirty years for damages to allied civilians and their property.

She must abolish conscription and reduce her army to 30,000.

She must accept her share of the former dual monarchy's pre war debt, which is divided among the nations which formerly constituted the empire.

She must reduce all her armaments and surrender all surplus.

She must renounce the Bucharest and Brest-Litovsk treaties.

She must turn over all her cables to the allies.

The definite amount of indemnities will be determined by a special section of the Allied Reparations committee, upon which there will be American representation.

"Reasonable Sum."

Austria will be required to pay "a reasonable sum" within the period extending from the present to May 1, 1921. Before May 11 of that year the commission will apprise Austria of the full sum of her liabilities and the schedule for payment. In raising the money for reparations Austria will be made before May 1, 1921. The bonds will bear 2½ per cent. interest between 1921 and 1926 and five per cent. thereafter. The third will bear five per cent. interest.

Austria also will deliver within three months after ratification of the treaty a fixed number of domestic animals to Italy, Serbia and Roumania. All art treasures will be restored to the cities in invaded territories from which they were removed during the war.

Expenses of the army of occupation must be paid from November 11, 1919, until it is withdrawn.

FAVOUR PURCHASE OF STREET RAILWAY

THE CITY HAS CHANCE TO BUY THE LINE AT A GOOD PRICE.

The Railway Committee on Friday evening recommended to the City Council that they get in touch with the Hydro-Electric Commission regarding the purchase of the Peterborough Street Railway System and the gas plant, by the city. The meeting was held at the home of Chairman Ald. Edgar, Bolivar street, and the members had a regular tea party after business was disposed of, with Mine Host, Ald. Edgar, doing the honors. Present were Ald. Morrison, Ald. Crowe, Ald. McIntyre, Ald. Turner and Ald. Edgar. The Mayor was not able to be present being absent in Cobourg.

Ald. Edgar outlined to the committee the proposal of Sir Adam Beck to the local delegation last Wednesday, and the main point was that the street railway could be purchased from the Hydro-Electric Commission at a cost which would put the line immediately upon a paying basis without increasing the fares. At present the line pays nothing into the sinking fund.

Ten Year Bonds.

When the property was taken over by the Hydro from the Seymour Power Company the valuation was [illegible] but this may or may not be the purchasing price. The Hydro are asking the Ontario Government to write off enough money from the capital account so that with only the 5c fare they would be able to pay the employees 40c an hour instead of 30c as they are now receiving. The Commission would then hand over the line to the city on a paying basis, and the city would be able to put money in the sinking fund without any extra cost to the taxpayers. The debentures will be held by Ontario Government until March, 1926, being ten year bonds at 4 per cent., purchased in 1916, and then sold to pay the Seymour Power interests. In addition the Hydro will make the additions to the system that the city has asked for, as they believe that they can do it cheaper than the city, but it will cost the city $56,000 more than the purchasing price of the road, but this sum is far below the cost that the city could make the same extensions for. They would also place two more one-man cars on the track for the city. The purchasing price would be fixed so that there would be a margin of profit for the city without increasing the burden of the taxpayers.

All present were in favor of the plan of Sir Adam. They decided to ask the City Council to ask the Hydro Commission for fuller particulars. Refreshments were then served, with Ald. Edgar pouring tea.

A DANCE AT SOUTH BEACH

The summer residents at South Beach celebrated peace day with a big dance held in the hotel. An orchestra from Toronto was in attendance and a large number of people from the city were present.

Some of those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Oswald Brookes, Mr. and Mrs. Heintzman and daughter Connie of Toronto, Mr. Elton Meredith, Mr. George Dunsford, Mr. Harold Huff, Mr. Neol Rishor, Mr. Harold Morrow, Miss Jean Eastwood, Mr. Halladay Crane, Miss Esme Aylmer, Miss Evelyn Asling, Miss Helen Stapleton, Miss Edith Delaire, the Misses Brookes, Miss Jean Kemp, Mr. Vincent O'Brien, Miss McCormick, of Toronto, and Mr. Gordon Yeaman.

ARE SOME CANADIAN MANUFACTURERS EXACTING UNJUSTIFIED PRICES FOR CLOTHING?

MANY TORONTO WOMEN DO SHOPPING IN UNITED STATES-CANADIAN PRICES PROHIBITIVE, THEY SAY.

(Toronto Telegram)

"I want to buy my clothes in Canada, and so do my friends, but the prices are prohibitive." So says a well-known Toronto woman who has just returned from a short trip across the line.

For $9.99 the Toronto shopper obtained, across the line, an exceedingly well-made cream cloth skirt, and not one of similar quality, she says, can be had here for $20.

Underwear, too, is much cheaper over there. There is not as much trimming on the garments, says our informant, as one finds in the Toronto shops. The things are simpler, and the quality of the materials employed is excellent.

Shopping in a local store, the same lady and an American friend came upon some blouses "reduced" to $3.95. The same blouses sold ordinarily at $2 in the American town from which the visitor came.

"My niece," said the Toronto woman, "ordered an eighty-five dollar dress from a local establishment, and when it came it was so badly made that she sent it back. Now she says she is going to do all her shopping in New York. As well as having a pleasant trip she will be able to purchase better clothes for less money.

"I myself," continued the lady, who was relating her experiences, "find that I can have an enjoyable trip and better clothes for a similar outlay than had I remained at home and done my shopping here."

Perhaps when you have shopped down town later you have found in your parcels a small circular issued by the Canadian Reconstruction Association, and urging you to build up the home market.

On one side is the quotation: "Every dollar's worth we buy abroad means that a dollar's worth of work has been diverted from a Canadian workman."

On the other side there is this:

"In 1918 Canadian imports totalled $606,954,000. If half of this money had been spent on Canadian products, it would have given employment to an additional 100,000 workmen, with an increased payroll of nearly $100,000,000."

Assuredly Canadian women will willingly buy Canadian products in preference to the imported article—if the quality is up to the standard they demand and the prices to their minds are fair.

But are the manufacturers doing their part? Are they, by the class of goods they turn out encouraging the women of Canada to purchase home-manufactured articles?

From all sides, for instance, one hears of badly made gloves and ill-fitting stockings.

Surely Canadian manufacturers with the practical cutting off of European markets during the war years, have had ample opportunity to measure the standards demanded by Canadian women.

Now for the retailer's side of the story.

"High Tariff." So, in brief, a representative of a well known local store summed up his explanation of the great difference between the Canadian and American prices of feminine apparel.

"A few Canadian manufacturers, sheltered by the high tariff, are getting the profits," he declared, "and it is the middleman who pays every time."

The cost of living in Canada, he pointed out, is on the whole higher than in the United States.

Some things are cheap here, however, diamonds for example (though these can hardly be considered a necessity to our existence). Linens are also cheaper than they are south of the border.

Linens, incidentally, our informant warned, are getting scarcer all the time. Labor conditions in Britain are very unsettled at the present time; so that it will be two years before the linen market becomes normal he anticipated.

Workers in the British linen factories have been granted an 8-hour day, and this has materially decreased production. As everywhere else, wages have also gone up.

"We are selling linens just now for less than we could purchase them for at the present time," said the firm representative referred to. "Of course we bought them some time ago."

"At present there is a duty of 42½ per cent. on women's clothing coming into Canada from the United States," the Telegram was told on enquiry of another firm. "There is the regular duty of 35 per cent. and a surtax of 7½ per cent. imposed during the war, and which has not yet been raised.

"But while the Americans beat us on cottons, they have to come here to buy cheap woollens."

"A man's suit, made from British woollen goods, which would cost $75 in Toronto," he went on to explain, "would cost $100 or $125 if imported from the United States.

An American who recently purchased an overcoat at $95 from our informant's firm, said that the same overcoat would cost him $135 in New York.

"Some of the finest garments in the world are made in Montreal," declared the firm representative referred to, when asked regarding the quality of the garments being turned out in Canada. The high cost of labor and materials brings up the price, however, he declared.

"We are selling white gabardine skirts at $30, $37.50 and $42.50," the Telegram was told by another firm. "Some of our customers who have been over in the United States, say they could purchase the same skirts over there for $17 and $18.

"We had a customer the other day who bought a silk skirt at $30, which she said she could get in the United States for $18.50. But we have the heavy duty to pay, and that makes the difference. Some of our customers complain about the difference in the prices, but we just can't help it."

HISTORIC PENS.

It is a matter for speculation as to whether the pens that are used for signing the Treaty of Versailles will be preserved.

In the French Foreign Office there is a small collection of historic pens preserved in a show case. These range from the pen with which Bismarck and Jules Favre signed the armistice at Versailles on January 28th, 1871, to that with which Muley Hafid signed the treaty of March 30th, 1912, giving the French a protectorate over Morocco.

The collection also includes the pen used by President McKinley and M. Cambon when they arranged the preliminaries of peace between Spain and the United States, and the one with which Gambetta wrote announcing the resignation of "le Grand Ministere."

The last relic was presented by M. Hanotaux when he reigned at the Quai d'Orsay. The Empress Eugenie still treasures the quill plucked from an eagle belonging to the Jardin des Plantes, which was presented to her after being used to sign the Treaty of Paris.

FOR SUMMER WEAR

How would it do to have a one-piece dress made sleeveless and cut low in neck, made of lustre or sateen to save the wash? Or a grey tweed even? A sleeved guimpe made of something light in texture and color might be a happy combination. Also, cream lustre is excellent for summer wear. Just spread your cream skirt on the table and sponge soiled spots, and it won't need washing nearly as often as some goods that require starch. Then there is nothing to fade when it is worn in the sun. Always pick out the scarlet thread from the selvedge of cream lustre when making it up. Remember to iron with a moderately hot iron as lustre is apt to scorch.

The Scouts.

The Boy Scouts organizations was founded in England in 1910 and introduced in Canada the same year. The object is to develop patriotism, discipline, courage and self-control in boys, as well as to put the Golden Rule into daily practice. The unit of the organization is the "patrol" of from six to eight boys; a "troop" comprises two or more "patrols" and the scoutmaster is the officer in charge of a troop.

NOW COMES THE FLYABOUT

Airplanes Seem to Bid Fair to Take the Place Now Held by the Chummy Roadster.

There was a time, and not so terribly many years ago, when the young man who invested his hard-earned cash in what was known as a best-girl buggy got some mention in the home paper. His purchase was chronicled with the added advice of, "Look out, girls!" With red running gears, rubber tires, a tassel on the horse's bridle, and a whip that cost at least $1.25, this young man was so well equipped that he was a force to reckon with when love-making was going on.

He has passed, and in his stead has come the long, low, rakish motorcar. It burns gasoline and leaves an unpleasant odor in its wake, but it represents speed and exclusiveness. It is the chummy roadster. Too soon, it seems, it also will pass away. In a New York newspaper is the advertisement of an aircraft concern. "What about the boy who overseas has been roaming the sky, day after day, flying free in the glorious ether?" it wants to know. When he comes home, the advertisement says, he will not be satisfied with a motorboat or an automobile. "So why not meet the inevitable," it asks, "and buy him an airplane now?" Now that the stress of war-time production is over, this particular concern is offering flying boats, seaplanes and chummy flyabouts for commercial or pleasure purposes. "An appropriate gift for your son or daughter," is the concluding sentence.

Transformation.

"Has life in the military camp done your husband any good?"

"He's a different man, my dear. He sweeps the floor, washes the dishes and peels the potatoes without a word."—Browning's Magazine.

TWO BILLION DOLLARS SMUGGLED OUT OF GERMANY BY AEROPLANE

WHOLE AMOUNT TOTED OUT SINCE ARMISTICE WAS SIGNED—INVEST IN NEUTRAL COUNTRIES—OBJECT IS TO AVOID HEAVY TAXATION.

AVIATORS' PROFITS

Smuggling money and valuables out of Germany has been one of the most popular diversions of the idle rich since the armistice and the succeeding revolution. An estimate of the grand total thus carted out of the country must needs be unofficial business bordering upon guesswork. But financiers to whom I have talked and the smugglers themselves are agreed that negotiable wealth ranging between 6,000,000,000 and 8,000,000,000 marks, $1,500,000,000 and $2,000,000,000 has been toted across the German borders into neutral countries in the course of the last six months.

The methods used in removing fortunes from the clutches of the entente or fro mthe seizure by the Bolsheviki are numerous and peculiar. The German law that no one is allowed to take more than 50 marks ($12.50) out of the country has been of little use but has served to enrich countless German customs officials serving on the German borders. I know of one man who taking with him a suitcase containing 5,000,000 marks ($1,250,000) paid 500,000 marks ($125,000) of his fortune to two luggage inspectors at Bentheim on approaching the Holland border. This method of bribing officials stationed at the border outposts to search all leaving Germany is, of course, the most prevalent. A banker I know managed to sneak 3,000,000 marks ($750,000) into Holland by hiring a coal boat and giving the captain of the boat 10 per cent. of his fortune and concealing the suitcase containing the rest of the money under a pile of coal on deck. The banker himself accompanied his millions into Holland, working on the boat as a coal heaver. For several months this scheme of hiding money in a pile of coal on a coal boat was widely resorted to. Millions were carted into Holland in that manner.

Millions have also been sent into the neutral countries by airplanes. One aviator I met in a gasoline house boasted to me that he had made 1,500,000 marks ($375,000) in three months smuggling fortunes through the air.

"I asked only 5 per cent. of the total taken on each trip," he explained. "Most of the flyers were hoggish, and asked 10 per cent. The government, last month offered the flyers 10 per cent. of any money they would turn over to it that had been entrusted to them by rich smugglers. In nearly all cases the flyers put the matter up to the smugglers and received tips of 15 per cent. not to turn the fortunes over to the government. It was just my luck not to be carrying any money that week."

Until a week ago frantic efforts were made by wealthy Germans to get their money into Belgium. With the signing of the armistice Germany promised to redeem all German marks in Belgium at par. Minister Erzberger, who conducted the armistice negotiations forgot in a moment of curious mental aberration to fix the sum of German money his government could redeem. Inasmuch as a German mark to-day is worth from 6 to 9 cents instead of 25 cents in America coin smuggling marks into Belgium was for a time one of the largest financial enterprises in Germany. Once in Belgium a German financier could collect 1 franc (20 cts.) for a mark whereas if he smuggled it into Holland he would only receive the equivalent of half a franc or less.

Became Suspicious.

When the German government realized the enormous sums it was being asked to redeem in Belgium it grew suspicious and issued an order that only 1,000 marks ($250) notes with a red stamp on them would be taken at par. These are notes issued before the armistice. Since this order went into effect smuggling into Belgium has fallen off considerably and is confined to the 1,000 mark notes with the red stamp.

Smuggling of valuables out of Germany lends itself to many rather picturesque ruses. Chief among them is getting diamonds and other valuable stones out of the country. One man I know converted two Russian crown diamonds of thirty-four carats each into cuff links. He then dressed himself up as a tasteless, swaggering actor and rode out of Germany on a train into Copenhagen. Women frequently make three or four trips a month, wearing as many rings, necklaces, earrings and watches as they can without exciting suspicion. They deposit these valuables safely in neutral countries and return for more.

In addition to the numberless rich smuggling their wealth out of the country there are also countless people who are "investing" their marks in non-taxable possessions so as to avoid paying the enormous war and indempity taxes. I have been told of one man who bought a stamp collection for 800,000 marks ($200,000) and of another who bought a rare collection of books for an equal sum. The latter investor, my information tells me, is a creature barely able to read who made his money as a war profiteer.

"He has this wonderful collection of precious books and manuscripts, which he regards with the utmost contempt," said the man who told me about him. "He calls them a lot of rotton papers and decayed books, which he would not have in his house if he had his way about it."

A notable instance of "official smuggling" was that of Dr. James Sinmon's famous art collection. In that case the government permitted the collection to leave Germany for Holland. I am told that a Vermeer (Jan Vermeer 1632-1675) valued at 600,000 marks ($15,000) was sold in Holland together with several other masterpieces in this collection. Another ruse by which rich Germans remove their wealth from the country is that of buying real estate in Schlewig or Silesia or the occupied parts of the Rhineland. I learn from a real estate broker that sinc the armistice many canny investors, realizing that Silesia, Schleswig, and parts of the Rhineland might be taken from Germany and thus exempted from German taxes have rushed to buy real estate in these parts.

The business of smuggling wealth out of Germany still continues on quite a notable scale. The government owing to the general demoralization of the nation is powerless to prevent it.

MRS. MORGAN HAS GAINED 22 POUNDS

WAS TOLD THAT OPERATION WAS ONLY HOPE—TANLAC RESTORED HEALTH.

"Anyone who had noticed the dreadful condition I was in can readily see the wonderful change that Tanlac has made in me," said Mrs. E. M. Morgan, residing at 1817 Norton Street, Kansas City, Missouri, in telling of the remarkable benefits she has derived from the medicine recently.

"I have actually gained twenty-two pounds in weight on five bottles of Tanlac," she continued, "and have improved so much that my neighbors often speak of it. My health had been all broken up for more than a year and I was so nervous that the least noise would upset me. My appetite left me and what little I did eat would sour on my stomach causing gas and intense pain. I would bloat terribly and during these times my heart would palpitate frightfully, almost cutting off my breath, and I was so weak and dizzy that I could not walk a block without stopping to rest. I was badly constipated, had raging headaches, and was losing weight and strength all the time. I would roll and toss most all night, unable to sleep, and would get up in the mornings even more tired than on going to bed. I was constantly under treatment and all the time taking some kind of medicine, but nothing helped me, ond I finally got right down in bed.

"At the time I got Tanlac I had been confined to my bed for a month. I had been told that an operation would be necessary and was almost in despair, as I always had a horror of the operating table and the knife. Up to this time I had not thought seriously about Tanlac being good for me, although I had often read about the wonderful results others claimed to get from it. But being so anxious to avoid an operation I decided first to try Tanlac and sent for two bottles. Well, before I had finished my second bottle my appetite was better, the gas stopped forming on my stomach and I did not suffer from shortness of breath and palpitation any more. Now to put it all in a few words, my nerves are normal, and I have no more headaches, dizzy spells or trouble of any kind. Tanlac has not only relieved me of my physical suffering, but it has eased my mind, too, as I fully believe it has saved me from an operation. I can truthfully say Tanlac has made me feel like a new person, and I can't praise it enough."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by the W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock, by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield, by the Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.; in Fowler's Corners, by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert, by A. J. Scott; in Westwood, by G. Pringle & Son.

CHOCOLATE WHIP TARTS

Have ready the baked tart shells and prepare the filling as follows: Put one cup of milk, and and a half squares of grater unsweetened chocolate and a pinch of salt into the upper part of the double boiler, and when the chocolate is dissolved, stir in two level tablespoons of corn starch mixed to a paste with cold water. Stir until smooth and cook twelve minutes.

LET a woman ease your suffering. I want you to write, and let me tell you of my simple method of home treatment, which you can have FREE AND POSTPAID, and put you in touch with women in Canada who will gladly tell what my method has done for them.

If you are troubled with weak, tired feelings, headaches, backache, bearing down sensations, blues, bladder weakness, constipation, catarrhal conditions, pain in the sides, regularly or irregularly, dizziness, sense of falling or displacements of internal organs, nervousness, desire to cry, melancholy, hot flashes, dark circles under eyes, a loss of interest in life, some special ailment, or have fear of future ills, write me to-day.

A MESSAGE TO WOMEN!!!

A THRIVING INDUSTRY.

Pulp and Paper Bring Wealth to Canada.

In the manufacture of pulp and paper Canada has supplied a splendid example of what may be done through a scientifically conceived policy of directing legislation so as to develop natural resources. Here is an industry, the value of whose product last year was about $115,000,000, which was quickened into life through the mere enacting of legislation forbidding the export of pulp wood cut on crown lands. The effect of this, of course, was to compel the grinding of the wood into pulp, or its manufacture into paper here at home.

This legislation was put through about ten years ago and the results are to be seen in the fact that, whereas the exports of pulp and paper in 1911 were $6,494,731, for the fiscal year ending March 31 last they were $68,435,946. On the other hand, while in 1911 Canada exported to the United States $5,240,592 worth of pulpwood, by 1918 the value of these exports had been increased by only one-third, whereas the value of wood pulp and paper exports had been increased over twelve times.

To-day about $100,000,000 are invested in the pulp and paper industry of this country. The annual payment in wages and salaries to employes is now put at $20,000,000. These employes number 25,000 in mills and yards, and it is said that an equal number of other workmen are employed to get out the necessary wood.

Rapid as has been the growth of this industry during the last ten years, it still continues to extend for the very good reason that Canada has the pulpwood from which paper is made. The United States needs the paper, and its need is daily growing greater. In 1913 Canada exported to that country printing paper to the value of $5,692,126. For the fiscal year just closed the value of the product thus exported will be about $40,000,000. While the Canadian pulp and paper industry has gone ahead rapidly since 1910, the American industry has not expanded very much. It cannot expand because the American pulpwood areas are being rapidly depleted. The United States imports from Canada 36 per cent. of all the newsprint it uses. The Canadian forests also supply 15 per cent. of all the pulpwood used in the republic.

One of the best features of this industry is that it benefits so many of the provinces. In all but four, the prairies provinces and Prince Edward Island, are pulp or paper mills to be found. The latest available returns on the capital investment show that $84,609,584 are invested in Quebec, $72,006,970 in Ontario and $22,584,652 in British Columbia. In the last mentioned province the investment jumped from $8,344,416 in 1915 to $22,584,652 in 1917. There are now 101 mills producing pulp and paper, 45 in Quebec, 37 in Ontario, 7 in Nova Scotia, 6 in New Brunswick and 6 in British Columbia.

The Americans have a large investment in the Canadian industry, and one that is growing rapidly. American interests are believed to hold under lease pulpwood lands containing 82,000,000 cords of material, the value of which is placed at $250,000,000.

There is reason to think that very soon the pulp wood and paper industry will be represented in the prairie provinces, there being a strong movement under way to induce Winnipeg to put $1,000,000 into a pulp and paper mill. As Manitoba has the pulpwood, and also an abundance of cheap water power, it is quite probable that the pulp and paper industry may soon get a foothold there.

Of all Canada's important manufacturing industries, pulp and paper has probably received less direct assistance than any other. A little common sense legislation gave it its real opportunity. Enterprise and energy have done the rest.

The Hudson Bay Route.

F. E. Bowden, chief engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, has had experience of Hudson Bay and believes in the feasibility of the route. He said recently it was possible that the whole of November might be added to the navigation season by establishing aids to navigation. Wireless stations and aircraft would greatly assist vessels in keeping clear of the ice-floes. Liners, however, were almost precluded from using the route having regard to ice, and from the point of view of the facilities at Port Nelson he would only recommend that vessels of 7,500 tons carrying capacity should be placed on the route. Larger vessels could not be accommodated in the harbor.

He was unable to say definitely whether the rate on grain across the Atlantic would be lowered by the Hudson Bay route, as their estimates were too problematical, and also it would be utterly impossible to get 100 or 150 vessels on the route until the Government had thoroughly developed its possibilities.

Criterion of Civilization.

It is impossible to contemplate without interest the struggle made by different nations, as they emerge from barbarism, to supply themselves with some visible symbol of thought—that agency by which the mind of the individual may be put in communication with the minds of a whole community. The want of such a symbol is itself the greatest impediment to the progress of civilization. For what is it but to imprison the thought . . . within the bosom of its author, or of the small circle who come in contact with him, instead of sending it abroad to give light to thousands and to generations yet unborn! Not only is such a symbol an essential element of civilization, but it may be assumed as the very criterion of civilization, for the intellectual advancement of a people will keep pace pretty nearly with its faculties for intellectual communication.—William Prescott in "The Conquest of Peru."

Undersea Photos.

Prof. W. H. Longley, of Geuray college, Baltimore, has completed a set of thirty-two under-water photographs of the brilliantly colored tropical fish which inhabit the waters of Hawaii. Taken with a specially designed camera, Prof. Longley hopes to develop the plates to reproduce the natural colors. He believes they are the first photographs of the kind taken. The plates have been packed in air-tight cases for shipment to Baltimore, where they will be developed.

More Sheep.

East and West have at least one desire in common at the present moment and that is for more sheep. Thus the Japanese Government have recently taken up the matter with vigor, and regulations issued in Tokio provide that farmers or others, in groups of not less than five in separate communities, who buy sheep to raise for their wool, may receive Government assistance, and the importation of sheep is also to be encouraged with bounties. The Japanese Government is also managing a model farm and supplying sheep to individual farmers. Like other countries, Japan has been taught by war conditions the wisdom of having at home a sufficient supply of raw materials, and if the present campaign succeeds, the average small farmer will soon be able to capture a quotation from a famous poet and sing:

The snowy lambs are springing
In clover green and soft.

as he watches his little Government-assisted flock.

The Arctic Night.

Viewed solely as a matter of optics, the Arctic night is as dark as any night. Explorers in high latitudes say, however, that there are many alleviations of the obscurity. The stars flash keenly, the moon comes along in a regular succession of phases, the snow surface relieves the gloom under conditions of the utmost absence of light, and the aurora borealis is the finest kind of illuminant. Explorers all agree that their men pass the winter night without much difficulty if only there are means of amusement.

Magnanimous.

"That boy Josh of mine has a mighty forgiving nature," remarked Farmer Corntassel.

"How does he show it?"

"Comes back home a sure-enough hero and treats me jes' as kind an' considerate as if I had never once put an airs an' ordered him to the woodshed for discipline."

APPOINTING AN ENUMERATOR

The explanation of why the executive of the Liberal-Conservative Association of West Peterborough failed to recommend a returned soldier for the position of chief enumerator in the Riding for the Prohibition referendum hardly succeeds in explaining. It is said that Mr. Strickland's application failed to reach the executive in time to be considered. But the members must surely have known, if they read the papers, that Mr. Strickland was the choice of the Great War Veterans' Association for this position; and furthermore, the local party organ, in its issue on the day of the meeting, editorially called upon the executive to recommend Mr. Strickland's appointment.

The charge against the heads of the Liberal-Conservative Association is not a personal matter at all. There would have been no complaint about the selection of Mr. Elliot had not the people generally felt that all positions of this nature should as far as possible be given to returned soldiers. And if the executive is cleared of the charge as far as Mr. Strickland goes, as is now claimed, there was, it is understood, an application from another returned officer capable of filling the position, which was ignored when the matter was taken up by the local party leaders.

Now that Mr. Strickland has been appointed, it is important, if the returned men are to have their just dues, that he be given a free hand in the selection of his enumerators. There are many veterans capable of doing this work who should be given an opportunity.

SATURDAY'S REGATTA.

The success of Saturday's regatta on the course off Rye's boathouse is gratifying not only to the energetic and capable committee which had the affair in charge, but to the citizens as a whole, who will welcome the interest taken in the event as a sign of a revival in aquatic sports in this city. It is a singular thing that Peterborough, blessed with a beautiful river affording every opportunity for water sports, has signally failed to take advantage of the heritage given her by nature.

Here is the home of the Peterborough canoe, known by that name the world over, there has been surprisingly little interest in paddling contests. A good many of the young men have learned enough about the art of handling a canoe to idle an hour or two on the water on a summer evening, but very few are expert canoeists, and scarcely any of them could be described as qualified paddlers, from a racing standpoint. The city which makes the best canoes in the world, and which has in the Otonabee one of the most delightful rivers on which to use the craft, should produce whole squads of expert paddlers and should have a strong representation when the Ontario championships are decided. Instead of this being true, it is years since a Peterborough man has entered the annual competition.

Mr. Harold Rye, who was one of the prime movers in connection with Saturday's event, and the other members of the committee, should view the success of the regatta as an incentive not only to make the event an annual one, but to discuss the advisability of forming a canoe club with a view to placing Peterborough in the same position as regards her canoeists as she is in regard to her canoes. The scores of young men who camp along the banks of the Otonabee would no doubt be glad to enrol themselves in such an organization, and there are many others who would be willing to join. There is no reason why Peterborough could not develop not only expert single paddlers, but a winning four and a war canoe crew that would not be afraid to face the starter's gun with the representatives of any other club in Canada. We make the canoes here; we made them first, and they make them no better anywhere. We have the river to use them, and we have the men. All that is needed is an organization to get the three together.

The regatta committee would do well to consider the feasibility of the scheme, and if they do, from their impromptu Peace Day programme may spring a movement that will keep Peterborough before the country not only as the home of famous canoes, but also as the home of men who can handle them.

LEADERSHIP NEEDED.

The deplorable deficiency in Peterborough of leadership in community matters was never more clearly illustrated than by the general confusion over the matter of celebrating Peace Day on Saturday. The manner in which the day was observed and the mix-up as to whether or not it would be a holiday show conclusively that in matters of this kind we drift aimlessly along with no hand at the helm. A majority of the Retail Merchants' Association, because Peterborough had already had held one holiday to celebrate the signing of Peace, decided that their places of business would remain open on Saturday. Public opinion was, however, against this course, and at the last moment the merchants decided to fall in line with the factories and close on Peace Day.

As a holiday the day left little to be desired. The weather was good, and so hundreds got out in the open-air somewhere or other, and enjoyed themselves according to their individual inclinations. So, all things considered, as a holiday Saturday was a success. But in so far as the celebration of the end of the great war was concerned, Peterborough utterly failed to respond to the occasion.

Outside of the parade, hastily arranged by the men who helped to bring peace, the War Veterans, there was nothing that indicated that anyone appreciated the significance of the occasion. The day should have at least been marked by the flying of the Union Jack by everyone who had the glorious old flag, but even on George Street there was not the display of ensigns that there should have been on this historic occasion, when throughout the far-flung British Empire the coming of Peace was being enthusiastically celebrated.

THE DEMOCRATIC WAY.

One result of the Union administration is the awakening of the Canadian people to the dangers that lurk in autocratic government. From all sides, even from Orange platforms, complaint is made of the wane of Parliament and of the decay of responsible government. For months we have warned Sir Robert Borden that he was driving democracy to regard direct action as the only alternative to the tyranny of the autocrats at Ottawa. We have seen the effects of Borden misgovernment on the workers of Winnipeg and in the general unrest throughout the Dominion. That the war has produced unrest in other countries is beside the question, for in other countries Democracy is still the footstool of a privileged governing class. We had a right to expect that, in this democratic country, the people would have been spared the humiliation of government by Order-in-Council and the insufferable wrong of being ruled in the interests of profiteers. Nor is there any sign that the reign of tyranny is at an end. Only last week the rooms of two Liberal ladies of Montreal were entered in the dead of night by male detectives, and their private papers carried off. Whose home is safe?

The danger of this kind of government lies in the precedent it establishes. It is government methods of this terrorist character which breeds Bolshevism. There would be no Bolshevism in Russia to-day had there been no Tsarism with its icy dungeons in Siberia. The day, we trust, will never come when the democracy of Canada, despairing of justice at the hands of its rulers, and without redress through constitutional channels, will seize the reins of government and establish its authority by the same methods with which the present Government has maintained its iniquitous rule over a people it does not trust. With the world on the verge of industrial anarchy and bankruptcy it is time for sober minds in Canada, irrespective of party, to consider how the menace of Bordenism can be averted and our people won from the perils of unrest by the establishment of stable, responsible government.

One of the great lessons learned by the workers of Winnipeg is the superiority of the ballot to the strike. The eyes of the workers may be turned altogether from the extreme of direct action, provided they see some hope, at present denied them, of obtaining a real share in the government of their own country. Under the conditions at present governing registration and election the workers are virtually excluded from the right of sending men from their own ranks to represent them in Parliament. One of the great fallacies of the age is the assertion that the People rule. Lincoln's famous saying indicated the goal to be attained, but a mere recital of that historic phrase, "Government of the people by the people and for the people," does not bring us nearer a realization of the ideal it proclaims. The people may have the vote, but this does not enable them to govern. Full power and authority in the State belongs to those who can control the vote. But this is not government according to the will of the majority. How may the majority obtain real power in the State? In the ancient States of Greece and among the early Celts, Democracy in its truest form existed in the popular assemblies at which the laws were framed and decreed. Every free man of proper age had the right to speak and vote at these assemblies. It was the principle of the referendum in its simplest form. We cannot, in these days of large populations, go back to this primitive, tribal form of government, but we ought to be able to recover, by other methods, the fundamental principle of democratic government by which ancient Greece and Rome and the early Celtic tribes preserved to the individual a direct voice in the government of the community. So far as Labour and Agriculture are concerned these have no adequate voice in the government of Canada, because of the failure to provide a system of government in which it is possible for all sections of the community to be represented. This defect was never more manifest than during the war just brought to a close. The unwieldy character of modern democracy leaves it a prey to designing men. Its besetting sin is its unwieldy bulk. What is the remedy? How may the People be restored to power and constitutional channels of political action? For that is the problem before the country and which our statesmen should endeavour to solve when they take counsel with Labour and Capital at the Industrial Conference.

Democracy must find its way back to the liberties of which it has been despoiled. Proportional representation, a simplification of the machinery of registration and election, a return to parliamentary government and the readjustment of the relations between the Executive and Parliament, and the adoption of the referendum in cases where the electors have had no previous opportunity of expressing an opinion on the legislation proposed.

It was said by Hobbes that "Freedom is political power divided into small pieces." Proportional representation would tend to weaken the power of the machine in public life. It would be a step back to the fuller freedom and power of the individual citizen in more primitive times when the electorate met to legislate. It will give Labour that voice in the government of the nation to which it is entitled, and diminish the danger which threatens our country, of resort to direct action as the only alternative to the present intolerable system of government. Parliament must emerge from the chaos of Borden misrule as the guardian of the liberties of the people and as a strong bulwark against the arbitrary power of the Executive. Only in this way may our country avert the evils that threaten. —The Statesman.

THE PICNIC WAS A BIG SUCCESS

OVER EIGHT HUNDRED PERSONS TOOK IN THE EVENT.

Nicholls Oval never saw such a gathering before as that which was present at the Salvation Army picnic to returned soldiers and their families on Peace Day. It is estimated there were 800 people present, the majority of them being returned soldiers and their dependents. Adjutant Buntin's guests began to arrive at 1.30 p.m. and the picnic broke up at dusk.

The Salvation Army band was present thirty strong, and a continuous band concert was given.

The sports programme included a game of baseball and one of football, which were heartily enjoyed by all. One of the most amusing events on the programme was the three legged race, which was preceded by a sack race. The ladies' list of races included a fat woman's race, skipping race, peanut race and a needle race. There was also a long list of races for the children between the ages of 12 and 16.

The luncheon was provided by the Salvation Army for the returned soldiers and their dependents, and the proceedings was thoroughly enjoyed by all. Before the picnic broke up Mrs. Buntin on behalf of the returned soldiers presented many congratulating Adjutant Buntin on his limiting the speeches to five minutes.

PETERBORO'S PEACE CELEBRATION.

Dear Sir, — Despite the fact that the Retailers and the Civic Authorities put the holiday in a mix-up, by waiting until the last minute before deciding to close, a very enjoyable time was spent on the river by a large crowd watching the aquatic sports. It was a welcome change to most people from the horse racing, etc., we have had of late, and I reckon the aquatic sports should be made an annual event.

Of course there were some merchants who decided to close, and also made the announcement early in the week, but with the others it was a case of being at loggerheads with each other—and then the same people talk of co-operation and better service, etc.! To have kept the stores open meant disloyalty pure and simple, even if the Canadian government had not declared it a Dominion holiday.

Another thing: I don't know if it is just negligence or if half the people are ashamed of the flag they live under, but some stores on George street did not have a single flag. On the whole of Hunter street there was but one flag.

But for all this Mr. Rye and his co-workers provided a good afternoon's sport without even the aid of the civic authorities.

As regards Civic Holiday I think a good idea would be to put an advt. in the papers as to what is going to take place and give the people lots of time to arrange things (especially for the procession). I would like to see bicycles and floats and all kinds of vehicles in the parade, and put in different classes and prizes offered.

Hoping to see same announcement in the near future, yours,

MINETY-THIRD.

BICYCLE PARADE BROUGHT OUT MANY LOCAL RIDERS

MISS REYNOLDS WON FIRST PRIZE FOR BEST FLOAT.

The Peterboro Bicycle Dealers Association's first annual fancy bicycle parade, was a real success, being patronized by young and old from little master George Schooley entered on a decorated tricycle to adult riders.

This is an evidence of the growing popularity of the bicycle and the aid it is to help enjoy the many sports and pleasures that are provided at the boat house, the fishing spot, a cool ride in the evening, home to meals, and the several other places that a bicycle is useful.

This is the most economical means of transportation. The riders arrived at the boat house in good order, all eager to cash in their tickets for the refreshments provided.

The following riders of decorated bicycles were in line.

Master George Schooley, Master Kenneth Ivey, Miss Eva Roadhouse, Miss E. White, Miss Frances Clancy, Messrs. Robert Storey, Bert Bugg, Joe Jordan, Vernon Rose, Jack Brown, Herbert Stanley, Rowley Penrose, Cecil Watson, Tim Parker, Jas. Ivey, John Edgar, Wm. Gopey, Findlay Meeks, George Kelly, James Barton, Fred Bell, Jack Ball, Russell Biggs, Archie Menzies, Noel Monks, Lewis Parks, Jerry Loeshur, Miss Reynolds, Allan Baines, Bert Green, William Butters, O. White.

Marshall of parade, Mr. Frank White.

Asst. Marshals — T. Parker, T. Ashby, H. T. Millard, C. R. Banks and O. White.

The following were the prize winners:

Best Bicycle Float — 1st Miss Reynolds, box chocolates, Lewis Parker, bicycle tire; Jerry Loesher, bicycle tire.

2nd — William Butters, 2 bicycle tubes; Frank O. White, not entered.

Cents' best decorated bicycle—1st Findlay Meeks, gas lamp; 2nd George Kelly, bicycle tire, 3rd Cecil Watson, electric lamp, 4th, Noel Monks, inner tube.

Ladies best decorated bicycle — Miss E. White, tennis racquet, valued at $3.50; Miss Eva Roadhouse, tennis racquet, $2.50.

Juvenile girls, under 14 years — 1st Miss Francis Clancy, Siren.

Comic, gents — 1st, Bert Bugg, pair pedals.

Juvenile boys — Special mention, Master George Schooley; 1st Kenneth Ivey, Prize $1; 2nd, Robert Storey, Prize 75c.

Judges — Mr. F. R. J. MacPherson, Peterboro; Mr. James C. Gray, Toronto.

Much credit should be given the dealers for their efforts in arranging the contest.

Old time bicycle racers and riders (of whom Peterboro boasts not a few) remarked that it revived memories of runs and hoped that the next turn out would be treated in numbers.

DEMONSTRATION IN ENGLISH CITY

Luton, England, has a Riot—Burn the City Hall—Mayor Refuses the use of a Public Park.

LUTON, ENG., July 21. — Military forces have restored order here after rioting on Saturday night which culminated in the burning of the town hall. The trouble began when demobilized soldiers protested during the local peace parade, against the mayor's refusal to grant the use of the public park for a meeting in which pensions grievances were to be discussed. The demonstrators then burned the town hall and wrecked several shops. The military were called out and order restored.

Luton is the seat of the straw-plaiting industry in England and is about 30 miles northwest of London. Its population is about 40,000.

BARBARA DECIDES SHE WILL NOT BE JEALOUS OF BLANCHE.

CHAPTER XX

When Neil came home the next afternoon I asked him some questions about the business upon which he was engaged with the two men who were our guests the night before. At breakfast he had been absolutely unapproachable.

"What do you want to know? You wouldn't understand if I tried to tell you." The same answer he invariably gave men. But I had the reply for him this time.

"Mr. Frederick didn't seem to think me so 'dumb.' He talked of the oil wells to me and told me a great deal about them because he saw I was interested. If I can understand him I think I could you, dear, when I care so much more because he saw I

"Oh, I want to sell some shares in prospective wells. That is all."

"Are they good wells?"

"We don't know—yet. It takes money to find out."

"And that was what Mr. Frederick meant when he talked about being 'open and above board,' wasn't it? Not to take money without the people knowing just what it was to be used for?"

"I though Frederick was game! he's a regular old woman. But he doesn't have all the say, not by a long shot. I'll put the thing through in spite of him. Now for pity's sake don't ask any more questions! Do give a man a little peace in his own home." And, as he so often did now when annoyed, he opened the cellarette and took a drink.

I said no more. It would only make him drink more. Besides he was too clever, too, crafty to give me the true reasons for anything he did if he thought I would disapprove.

I spoke of Blanche Orton, and remarked I thought she looked very stunning the night before. I would say nothing derogatory even of her clothes.

Clearly, Neil was not anxious to talk of her, and in reply he only said:

"Blanche is always stunning."

"Is she happy with her husband?"

"I don't think them suited to one another."

"If he's such an invalid she may have a chance to try it a second time." I hoped to draw Neil out.

"I hope she'll get someone who is worthy of her if she does."

When one is in love, as I was with Neil, intuition seizes quickly upon the slightest thing. His use of the word "worthy" had seemed strange as applied to Blanche Orton.

"Isn't Mr. Orton a good man?"

"He's a stupid ass."

"Why—neil Forbes! what a way to talk of him. I meant isn't he good morally, and isn't he square in business?"

"Yes—I mean he is both. But a clever woman like Blanche Orton wants more than goodness in a man. She wants to be entertained, amused, interested. It is a crime for her to live with that man."

"How long have you known her, Neil?"

"I met her right after she married Orton—about four years ago."

I asked no more questions, but I couldn't help wondering if, had she been free when he met her, he would hav married her? It was foolish to make myself miserable over such a thing, and determinedly I put it from me. He had not married Blanche, and he had married me. It would not be because I did not try to hold him by every means in my power as she or any other woman, took him away from me.

Blanche Orton had boasted that she always got what she wanted, always had her own way in life, in the big as well as in the little things. But surely there was a limit to her desires. She was a flirt—that everyone knew; but probably that was all it amounted to, just a flirtation with Neil and others because she was bored by an invalid husband. I would not be jealous.

It is surprising how much one can accomplish even in such things if they love, and if they do not give up to useless repining and unhealthy emotion. So at this time it was only by spells that my jealousy asserted itself. But that other misgiving—that uneasiness concerning Neil himself, grew upon me in spite of all my endeavors to banish it.

WESTERN AUSTRALIA.

Prosperous Days Ahead of a Great Dominion.

Now that the war is over and h men who went overseas in such larg numbers are returning, Wester Australia, with characteristic energy is taking stock of her position, an making preparations for the grea trade revival and development whic she looks for in the near future Western Australia certainly bore he share in the great struggle. Mor than one in seven of the total popu lation volunteered to fight; while more than one in ten were accepte and went overseas. Western Aus tralia, moreover, contributed large sums of money over and above har share of the federal burden, and, in deed, at no point allowed anything to interfere with the attainment of the great object of the hour, namely, the winning of the war.

All this was not done, however, without much apparent economic loss. Lack of miners reduced the output of the gold mines; lack of lumbermen, the output of the great jarrah and karri forests; whilst simi lar shortages reduced the wheat belt, retarded fruit-growing, and dislocated the pearl industry. No industry, however, has been really damaged in any way. In a young country like Western Australia, with its vast, primitive productive work, it is not difficult to "mark time." The lumbermen went to the camps, and the mills were closed; the pearlers "beached their luggers on the shores of Roebuck Bay" and "joined up"; the pastoralist, the wheat grower, and the fruit grower contrived it this way and contrived it that way, joining herd to herd and flock to flock, letting the land to fallow, foregoing the usual additions to the orchards, but all managing to leave their work so that they could at any time take it up again very nearly where they left it.

In doing this they may certainly depend on the utmost aid from the authorities. Western Australia has always shown herself singularly free and farsighted in the matter of state aid. The authorities have consistently refused to be bound or frightened by the doctrines of any political creed. The Socialist might claim, and justly claim, that the Government's policy, in a certain connection, was purely socialistic, but he would, in all probability, look in vain for any general application of the ideas of socialism. Each policy was tried and judged on its merits, and adopted or rejected accordingly. And so, to-day, the state is throwing itself whole-heartedly into the matter of reconstruction and devoting itself to the general policy of development interrupted by the war. The great need of Western Australia is, of course, to-day as it was before the war, population and capital. In the days before the war, the Government was spending large sums of money annually to encourage immigration from England and to throw open the great opportunities of the country to those who desired to try their fortunes in a new land. "For anyone who is willing to work there is an opening, and a good opening, in Western Australia," remarked Mr. Scadden, the then Premier of the state, some years ago, and the remark is, apparently, more than ever true to-day.

Gas to Destroy Larvae.

Beating swords into ploughshares and spears into pruning hooks is a fine poetical simile that continues to survive the ages. It hasn't the practical value that it possessed in Isaiah's day when swords and spears were the principal weapons of offence. Swords have become largely decorative, and the use of the war-spear is confined very largely to the mid-African fighting man.

An after-the-war conversion that seems really worth while is reported from Paris, where a distinguished member of the Pasteur Institute has told the French Academy of Sciences that poison gas—last word in war's atrocities — can be applied for the destruction of caterpillars and all injurious larvae. He declares that he has found it especially serviceable in the treatment of affected trees.

If science can turn the life-destroying energies of these gases into useful channels of the character reported, the sooner the method of application is made known the better. If by sweeping exhalation the potato bug and the tomato worm and the tree-infesting moth and all their kindred can be destroyed, what an amazing blessing the holocaust would be.

It has been reported that vast quantities of these noxious gases are in storage, stranded by the signing of the armistice, their safe and economic disposal being a serious problem. But if, as the French scientist asserts, the gases can be used for the destruction of injurious larvae the problem may be solved and a priceless benefit conferred.

Can Opener Makes Good Needle.

Many cans used for packing meat and other food products are operated by means of a small handle or key, which has an eye for receiving a strip of tin and winding it up. These keys are always furnished with the can and usually thrown away as the can is opened. Should a large needle for sewing blankets or burlap be required, a splendid one may be made by straightening out one of these keys and filing the end down to a point.

These Have Made It a Greater Maxwell

300,000 who drive Maxwells of this very model will tell you that reliability plus, ability to endure, ability to stand the gaff of any going, is built into the Maxwell.

Reduced to a single word its story is—reliability.

But now this great car becomes even greater by five important improvements:

1. Hot Spot and Ram's-horn, which make the car run smoother, steadier, and with less wear, and give greater mileage.
2. Improved electrical unit, which cuts down battery wear.
3. New type radiator, which makes the car more pleasing to the eye.
4. New upholstery and seat springs, which produce a better riding quality.
5. A new top fabric, making the top more durable (tops so often are the first things to go in a car).

An important sum of money has been expended to make it a greater Maxwell. Yet the price is only $1395, f.o.b. Windsor.

Thus if you were hunting for nothing more than a bargain in a car you would not go further; but consider how superior a car you're getting when you buy a Maxwell.

GUM DECAY CAUSES TOOTH DECAY

Healthy teeth need healthy gums to hug them. Else they will become in Pyorrhea. Tiny openings will come in the gums to act as the gateways of disease germs, which infect the joints or tonsils, or cause other ailments.

Forhan's prevents Pyorrhea, if used in time and used consistently. No mere toothpaste does. Are your gums tender, gums? Are they bleeding gums? If so, you are certain to have Pyorrhea (Riggs' Disease). Four out of five people who are over forty have it.

To you we earnestly recommend Forhan's. It preserves the gums which hold the teeth secure.

Brush your teeth with it. Forhan's cleans the teeth scientifically—keeps them white and clean.

THE Y.W.C.A. CAMP NEWS

"How are things going up at your camp? Are you having a good time?"

"Well, I should say we are. Our family consists of from ten to fourteen members and we all like a jolly time. We have a little work to do, but not enough to feel it, as everyone helps and many hands make light work.

"There is a huckleberry patch a short distance away which supplies us with plenty of fresh fruit. We have quite a variety of tasty blueberry dishes. The recipes for these may be had on application to any of the camp cooks. One of the specials is Miss Parker's rock pie.

"Our efforts at berry-picking have been more successful than at fishing. But why should we catch fish, when kind friends help us out with donations?

"To use an Irish expression, we find that we are very busy in our spare time. Many of us swim twice a day. We have a fairly good place for swimming. We swim from the boat-house to the "Rock of Refuge," where we rest, and then start back again. We have walked to Kawartha Park a few times to swim at the beach there.

"The shore dinners at Perry's Creek have been very much enjoyed, also the bonfires on our island. On cool evenings we enjoy the cosy warmth of a fire in the grate, while we pop corn and toast marshmallows.

"All we lack for entertainment is a musical instrument, but even here necessity is the mother of invention. We have a kazoo band who play their instruments very skilfully until they become out of breath, then there are some untimely pauses.

"As for boats we are well supplied. A skiff and a punt belong to the camp and some of the girls bring boats with them. We all are especially fond of the punt, it is so light, graceful, and easily managed. Every girl likes it so well that she wants her picture taken in it.

"We are having such a good time that we should like to see more girls come up and spend their vacation here. We came to stay a week, but stayed two and regret we did not plan to stay longer."

MURDER CHARGE AGAINST FALLON ON VERDICT OF THE CORONER'S JURY

RETURNED SOLDIER FROM PETERBORO HELD FOR CAUSING THE DEATH OF BELLA PICKEN.—ROW OVER MONEY IN ST. LAWRENCE BOULEVARD HOUSE.

Montreal, July 12.—As the result of a verdict rendered by a jury in the Coroner's Court, sitting under Coroner McMahon, William Fallon, of Peterboro, a returned soldier, must now face the courts on a charge of murdering Bella Roy, or Mrs. Bella Picken, whose badly battered body was discovered in a boarding-house on St. Lawrence street. The jurymen deliberated but a few minutes, and the verdict holding Fallon responsible was arrived at without dissent.

The story of the crime as unfolded by the various witnesses was a sordid one. Fallon and Bella Picken, with whom he had been living as his wife, had been ejected from a house on St. Antoine street on account of their continued quarrels, and in company with Maudie Roy, the woman's sister, and a man named Percy Ryan, who were also at the house, went to get other quarters. After being first refused they were admitted, and almost immediately Fallon, and the woman began to quarrel. He had struck her several times because she would not give him money, and later on in the evening, the landlady heard the sound of heavy blows issuing from the room occupied by the two. Fallon then left the house, and the woman was discovered lying in a badly bruised condition on the floor. The next morning she was dead.

Dr. Bruce McTaggart, autopist of the morgue, told the jurymen that death had been caused by blows on the head. He had examined the body and found several bruises and contusions about the head and on the legs. The injury might have been caused by blows with the fist on the head, as the skull in the part where the bruises were located was very thin.

Mrs. St. Denis, the landlady of the house, said that the woman had stayed at the house on several occasions before. On Tuesday, she had come, accompanied by William Fallon, Percy Ryan and Maudie Roy, her sister, asking for accommodation. Some of the party seemed to be under the influence of liquor, and she refused them a room at first, but Fallon pulled out a $10 bill and asked "for the love of God" to let them go in. Then she relented and promised to give up her own room to accommodate them. Fallon and the woman had entered the house and sat down in the dining-room. The woman at once took out her money and began counting it. The witness thought that she had $76 with her.

A quarrel soon arose over the money. "It all arose because he wanted to take her money away from her," said Mrs. St. Denis. "He said: 'Give me your money.' She said: 'No, I want all my money.' Then she took it from her stocking and put it in her pocket-book, swearing all the time."

"Then Billy, (Fallon) got up like a brute and hit her three times while she was in the chair. Her head fell over to one side, and I got up, saying: 'I will go for the police.' I put on my wraps and then I heard Fallon say: 'I have got your money.'"

Continuing Mrs. St. Denis said that she had gone over to the woman and that she had told her that she was "alright." Soon afterward, however, she became hysterical and began overthrowing things in the room.

Fell Downstairs

Afterwards, she got up and tried to go down the stairs. When about half way down, she fell and slipped to the bottom. She had called for Fallon and he had carried her upstairs again, still struggling.

Questioned by Coroner McMahon, witness said that the woman had not hit her head in her fall down the stairway.

Fallon had carried her back to her room, and there they began once more to quarrel. They were making considerable disturbance, so the landlady went up once more to tell them to keep quiet. They promised to stop the noise, and Mrs. St. Denis once more went downstairs, where she talked with Mrs. Gallin, a roomer in the house.

"All at once I heard screams coming from upstairs, and then a voice cried out, 'Murder! Murder!' I heard the scream twice, and then I ran upstairs. Inside Fallon's room the woman was lying on the floor with her feet near the bed and her head near the door.

"Then I said to him (Falon), 'I am going to get the police at once.' He looked around and said, 'I am going out because I do not want to hit her again."

The witness was next questioned by Coroner McMahon as to the arrangements of the furniture in the room. She did not think it possible that the woman had struck her head on the side of the bed as she fell.

Continuing Mrs. St. Denis said that after she had gone into the room, the woman said: "He has beaten me again."

Dead in Morning

Soon after, Fallon left the house and she had locked the outside door to prevent his return. She had gone back to the room, and then she saw that the woman's face was badly inflamed on the left side. She said that she was too drunk to get back on the bed. She called up the sister Maudie and Ryan, but the Picken woman said that she did not want to see Ryan. So the witness called on another roomer, Wilfred Babin, who had helped put the woman back on the bed. Then she had left her.

The next morning Maudie Roy informed her that her sister was dead. Fallon had not come back to the house until the next day when he was brought by the police.

Mrs. Gallin, another boarder in the house, corroborated the evidence of Mrs. St. Denis.

Constable Savard told of being called to the house and of finding the body about 9.30 o'clock in the morning. Constable Lucien Bourgois said that he was on duty at the corner of St. Lawrence and St. Catherine streets, when a man who his name was Moore, rushed up and told him to arrest a man who was walking down the street.

Moore told his that he thought the man was wanted for "killing his sweetheart at No. 300." The constable had followed Moore and took both him and Fallon to No. 300.

Sergeant Nap Laporte, told of being called to the house and of seeing the body. He had put Fallon on his guard, and the latter told him that he had been drunk the night before and he had quarrelled with the woman.

Wm. Moore, also a boarder of No. 300, said that morning he had met Fallon at the door, evidently intending to go in.

"It's a nice thing you did last night," I said, continued Moore.

Fallon had asked him what he should do, whether to go in, or to run away. Moore had answered that he should please himself.

Then Fallon had gone off. Afterwards when the police were called, Moore thought that he had perhaps acted wisely and had started after the man. At the corner of St. Lawrence and St. Catherine streets, he had rejoined Fallon, and then asked the trafficman to arrest him.

Maude Roy also gave evidence, and then the jury gave their verdict.

COMFORTER STRING STRANGLES THE BABY.

BELLEVILLE, July 18.—Kenneth Wilson Royle, three-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Royle, College Hill, met death by strangulation in a very peculiar manner on the lawn of his parents' home.

Mrs. Royle had placed the child on a lawn swing so that it might be in th fresh air. The baby rolled over and the string on the comforter caught around its neck and in a slat of the swing.

The result was that the child was strangled to death. Life was extinct when the mother found the child. The Coroner considered an inquest unnecessary.

FEED SITUATION IS MUCH WORSE THAN LAST YEAR

QUICK ACTION MUST BE TAKEN TO SAVE WESTERN LIVE STOCK.

RAINS FOR SASKATCHEWAN

Edmonton.—Since last writing have made an extended run over the country south of the main line of the C. P. R. in Alberta and find that with the exception of the irrigated belts at Lethbridge, Bassano and Ronalane and a few widely scattered areas visited by local showers, the grain crops are practically a total loss. The estimate acreage in wheat alone in this territory was over 2,000,000 acres and in 1915 from a much smaller acreage the territory shipped 38,000,000 bushels of grain. Farmers and bankers alike state without hesitation, "The crop is gone, but we would not mind so much if we could get some feed for our cattle."

Up to June 15 this territory had an exceedingly fine promise of crop, the only ground for anxiety being that there was no surplus moisture in the soil. From June 15 to 21 there was a period of hot weather and no rain, and in those seven days the fair promise was turned to practically a total loss. When I motored over the district on the 5th and 6th, the same hot wind was blowing; 17 years of crop inspection held no memory of any such scorching wind as was experienced that day. The wonder is, not that so much of the crop is burned up, but that a green blade was left. During Saturday there were two furious dust storms.

North of the main line of the C.P. R., up to Red Deer, conditions, while not so serious as south, are very bad indeed, and the north-eastern end of the province is also dried out. For twenty-five miles around Edmonton conditions are good and men coming from the ePace River country report prospects of a crop good and that there is some native hay, though nothing like the supply of last year.

Saskatchewan Rains

Within the week Saskatchewan has had heavy general rains, and this will materially help some of their crops and will also provide a good deal of feed, but of course has come too late for hay, either native or cultivated.

Manitoba has continued to report favorable weather conditions and the outlook for an abundant crop. The damp heat occasioned anxiety as to black rust, but for the last few days it has been cool with fair winds and cool nights, and conditions at the moment, could hardly be more favorable.

Alberta's Feed Problem

To return to the question of feed in Alberta and parts of Saskatchewan, the situation is worse than last year because there are no reserve straw stacks, and in northern Saskatchewan none of the lush growth of native hay of last year.

I tis figured that Alberta will have 45,000 tons of alfalfa and timothy from irrigated lands, but as there are 400,000 sheep and nearly as many cattle south of the main line of the C. P. R., to say nothing of those in the north, this amount will not go very far.

The Stock Grower's Association of Pincher Creek has contracted for a number of trainloads of Ontario hay to be delivered over a certain period. The price is not known. This comes oddly from a district which, in 1917, shipped some 300 cars of timothy alone.

Representatives of the railroads and of the Provincial Government have been in consultation here for the past three days and communicating with the Dominion Government with a view to securing somewhat the same terms for moving hay as were provided last year, namely, the Government and the railroads paying the freight. The Alberta Government has an army of men scouring the country and locating every possible ton of hay. In the meantime many men are getting panicky, and there is a tendency to liquidate stock at anything which can be got. Many of the cattle are thin, and if they come on the market now will have to be sold at canner prices. Many thousands of sheep have been taken up into the forest reserves, but that only provides summer and not winter pasture.

There are many anxious enquiries as to what the Dominion Government are doing as to markets overseas, in France and Belgium, but to these queries there is no reply. One indignant ranches said to-day, "Oh, yes, Hiram Walker can get a boat to ship twelve thousand tons of whisky, but we are told that there is not a foot of space for our cattle."

This rancher had an order from France for ten thousand head of stock cattle last spring and has never been able to secure space or any reasonable rate than $100 per head freight.—By Cora Hinds, in Financial Post.

DOES ADVERTISING PAY?

Many advertisers, and particularly retail advertisers, never get the full cumulative power of advertising behind their business because they lack patience. They demand direct returns. Thy run a one-time announcement in the local paper to-day and look for sales enough—sales directly traceable to the little one-time advertisement—before next week to pay for the cost of the space. Of course they are disappointed. Retail advertising seldom works out that way. But they are impatient for results. They are not prepared to invest money in advertising as they would in new goods, in store fixtures, in stocks or in real estate—and wait for profits to be earned. No. The returns of to-day's advertising must ring in cash profits to-morrow, or, in the estimation of too many retail dealers, the advertising is not worth what it costs.

Hand-to-mouth advetising is not worth what it costs. It yields only hand-to-mouth returns. To show the best results as a business building power, the advertising of the retail merchant must be persistent. Its chief purpose should be to build up permanent trade; to make the people of your community turn to your store in preference to other stores; to make them think of you and of your place of business; to convince them that they cannot get better quality and price and service anywhere.

"Would you advise a sixty-inch advertisement in the newspaper once a week or six ads. covering ten inches of space each week?" was one of the questions asked.

"I would advise six ads., one each day, or, better still, three twenty-inch ads. each week," replied the advertiser.

"Anything that is desirable is advertisable," he said, and pointed out that the desirability of an article depends much on the consistency with which it is advertised.

"One of the best ways to advertise is to cultivate the customers you have acquired and they will assist you in your advertising."

His final message was: "Advertise and get out and prosper."

SMALLPOX IN ASPHODEL

Four cases of smallpox in the township of Asphodel are causing worry to the health officials of Belmont and Havelock. The patients were in Havelock and around this vicinity after the disease had broken out on their persons, it is feared that the disease may spread. Some doubt was expressed at first as to whether it was really smallpox, but Dr. Bell of the Provincial Board of Health Department, Toronto, was brought down here on Friday last, and upon examination of the cases, pronounced it genuine smallpox.

$750 STOLEN FROM SAFE OF HOTEL AT NIAGARA

Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., July 18.—The police of Niagara-on-the-Lake are still in the dark as to the perpetrator of the $750 robbery at the Queen's Royal Hotel the other night. The money supposedly disappeared from the safe, but how it was accomplished is a complete mystery to both the police and hotel people. The money was a good part of the receipts of the lawn bowling week.

For Better Electrical Service

To insure our Patrons that their work will be carried out in the highest degree of efficiency, we commend our methods for their close consideration:—

1. To do only work that we can be proud of, and that we can back with our reputation.

2. To use only the very best of materials and the very best workmen.

3. To charge only a fair price, which will include our cost of material and labour, and a reasonable profit.

4. To refrain from all fanciful and costly systems that tend to increase the overhead expense.

5. To give good Electric Service, not only for to-day, but year in and year out, we must do all these things.

QUIPS AND QUERRIES RE WOMEN'S PART AND PROFITEERS' WIVES

GALT WOMAN SPEAKS HER MIND REGARDING THE LAST ELECTION PRACTICES AND PRESENT POLITICAL TENDENCIES.

When Madam Profiteer rides to the woman's unity meeting in her limousine, purchased out of the 81 per cent. profits gathered in by Monsieur Profiteer in his financial transactions, are the particular problems of the average woman likely to receive much consideration, and is she likely to be speedily relieved of her burdens from the high cost of living through influence exerted from this direction?

Winnipeg Women Have Conscience

We are glad to see that some Winnipeg women are possessed of sufficient sense and conscience to realize that patriotism demands that if the women of Canada bind themselves to purchase only Canadian goods, it is equally essential that they should see to it that Canadian manufacturers should demand only fair prices and that the quality of the goods be equal to those that might be imported.

Stop Grouching!

A man in Waterloo, of German name has a remedy for all the ills that beset this Canada of ours at the present time.

"Stop grouching," says he, "and everything will turn out all right after a while"—nice philosophy, that!

No doubt this man's unmistakable German origin accounts largely for his unquestioning confidence that the All-Highest at Ottawa, and his graft Barons know what is best for everybody. And that it is the part of common folk to submit quietly and without protest to anything that may come upon them, the only unpardonable offence being to criticize the Government and its methods. A truly German doctrine that.

And possibly the knowledge that a sympathetic Government is apt, whatever happens, to reward its faithful supporters, has something to do with his calm assurance that "things will turn out all right."

Woman Unite Party

Who are the leaders and promoters of the Women's Unity Party? Who is to draft the woman's platform? If this movement is to be largely controlled and its policy dictated by the same women who ranged the country at the last election, visiting the slums, parading themselves on public platforms preaching "patriotism" and practicing party politics of the shadiest sort, countenancing corruption, lending themselves to shameless schemes to suppress the vote of half the women of the country, hobnobbing with political jugglers, and in every way becoming active participants in an election, the foulness of which was unheard of outside of Mexico or Germany itself—I say, if these are to be to the fore in this movement, it is time for women of high personal and political ideals to take a stand.

Could We Join Them?

What woman of purity and principle could clasp their soiled fingers, and join hands with these propagandists in a new movement?

The fact that some women were dupes rather than conscious parties to corrupt practices makes little difference. Such women are not reliable or desirable associates for those who purpose to keep their part in the political life of their country on a high plane of national purity, to whom their participation in such matters is the expression of their religious ideals as applied to the science of Government, rather than a struggle for power and prestige.

VETERANS' GRAVES WERE DECORATED

CANON J. C. DAVIDSON GAVE A SHORT ADDRESS--LIST OF GRAVES.

Twenty-six graves of the veterans of the Great War who are laid to rest in the Little Lake Cemetery were decorated yesterday afternoon, when the Great War Veterans held their annual Decoration Day. About one hundred of the members of the Association assembled at the headquarters at 2.30 o'clock, and headed by the G. W. V. A. Band, marched to the cemetery, where service was conducted by Comrade J. C. Davidson, who, in a short address, spoke of the magnificent record made by the men who gave their lives for their country, and of the debt the world owes to all who fought in the cause of liberty. He also referred feelingly to the men who are sleeping in France and Belgium.

After a prayer and the pronunciation of the benediction by Comrade Davidson, and singing "Nearer, My God, to Thee," "Abide With Me," and the National Anthem, the veterans proceeded to decorate the graves, subsequently assembling and marching to the headquarters.

Graves Decorated.

The graves decorated were:—H. G. Van Norman, H. Bolton, A. Northcotte, C. Jackson, Fred Haylock, Harry Nicholls, H. Pearson, J. H. Watson, H. Yorke, George C. Brooke, Robert Mahood, Merton Adams, J. Blake, W. H. Iswin, H. Boyd, R. P. Cooke, Sidney Martin, Gilbert Martin, Preston Grange, John McLeod, H. D. Metherall, Sidney McIntyre, H. S. Childs, Arthur Ackerman, C. Stoker, and S. Staunton.

DANFORTH, July 21. — Mr. Ed. Cooke, the well known contractor in this district, has an automobile, but he is not quite accustomed to the fact yet. On Saturday Mr. Cooke was the undertaker in charge of the kaiser's funeral, and also took other leading roles in the peace celebrations. This got on his mind, for when he got home to supper he left his car outside Withrow Park. "Where is your car?" asked his wife.

"Gee, whiz, I forgot it!"

GENERAL ODLUM VISITS FAMILIES

TRAVELLED OVER SIXTY MILES TO VISIT ONE TOWN.

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, July 21.—While some are hurrying back into the mazes of civil life from their orderly military existence, there is one who will not do so until he has completed some errands of mercy that to him seem as imperative as reconstruction. That one is Brigadier-General Victor Odlum, C. B., C.M.G., D.S.O., etc., that big-hearted, yet strong man who commanded the 11th Brigade of the 4th Canadian Infantry Division through the war.

Early the other day his erect, trim figure was discerned hurrying through the crowds towards a downtown railway ticket office. "There are a few families I wish to visit," he told one of his junior officers. "Families of men who were killed in the brigade." The General would say little more on the subject, but to-day he left for a town over 60 miles to the east of Toronto, and he casually mentioned five others that he will visit that lie equally as far west of Toronto. In these towns are families that mourn silently for the gallant men who fought and died in General Odlum's famous "Iron Brigade." And now their General returns to travel about and quietly tell these proud families of what the brave beloved accomplished by their sacrifice.

TRADES COUNCIL CHARTER HAS BEEN CANCELLED

TRADES CONGRESS WILL CARRY THE "WAR INTO AFRICA."

(Special to The Examiner.

Winnipeg, Man., July 21. — On instructions from the Trades Congress of Canada, through its executive office, R. A. Riggs, the Western Organiser for the congress, to-day notified the Trades and Labor Council that its charter was withdrawn and cancelled. Rigg received instructions to "carry the war into Africa," and to take the most vigorous steps possible against the one big union, which in the opinion of the Trades Congress executive is intent upon destroying established trades unionism in Canada. He will immediately ask all the local trade unions organized under the Trades Congress charter, to call general meetings and elect officers to the new Trades and Labour Council for Winnipeg. When this council is formed, and officers elected a new charter will be issued to it by the Dominion Trades Congress.

(Special to The Examiner.

PARIS, July 21. — Advices from various European countries, especially the allied nations, indicated to-day that the international strike planned by the proletariat as a protest against intervention in Russia and Hungary, has lost its element of danger and in many places would be a failure.

Apparently the strike leaders either had lost their control or had heeded the government warning.

A Home Recipe For Removing Wrinkles

Who will blame the modern woman for trying to look as young and attractive as she reasonably can? Why should she be placed at a disadvantage in numerous ways by wearing wrinkles, if she can avoid these hateful marks of advancing age? Few women, however, know what to do to effectually rid themselves of wrinkles or sagginess. Most of the advertised preparations are unsatisfactory and very expensive. But a very simple and harmless home remedy, which any woman can make, will work wonders where all the patent preparations fail.

Buy an ounce of powdered saxolite at any drug store. Dissolve the whole ounce in a half-pint of witch hazel and use as a wash lotion. The results are practically instantaneous. Marked improvement is noticed immediately after the very first trial. Wrinkles and sagging are corrected and the face feels so refreshed and smug-like.

"If" is a little word that spoils some big plans.

Never close a fireless cooker tightly when it is got in use. Also keep it in a cool place.

A soiled cuff attracts the eye

YOUR cuff is the most exposed portion of your shirt. It soils the quickest. And everyone knows how PROMINENT a soiled cuff is. It seems a magnet that draws all eyes.

A soiled cuff irritates a particular man. He keeps pushing or pulling up his shirt sleeve to hide it. It causes him to change his shirt when the body of it is still fresh and clean.

The Double Wear Cuff is a boon to the particular dresser. When the cuff gets soiled just turn it. It folds easily and lies perfectly flat whether turned in or turned out. And just think of the comfortable feeling it gives you to know that you can turn your cuff, if you should happen to get it soiled unexpectedly when down town, and it's inconvenient to go home and change your shirt.

"THE PEST," MABEL NORMAND'S COMEDY MASTERPIECE, HERE

FUNNIER THAN "MICKEY" IS PREMIER SCREEN COMEDIENNE'S NEWEST GOLDWYN PRODUCTION, COMING TO GRAND THEATRE.

Funnier Than "Mickey" Is Premier Screen Comedienne's Newest Goldwyn Production—Coming to Grand Theatre.

Irrepressible Mabel Normand has broken out again! Proof of the outbreak is found in "The Pest," and evidence of the sprightly comedienne's high spirits will be enjoyed when the new Goldwyn Picture comes to the Grand Theatre to-day, Tuesday, and Wednesday.

And there is something more — a wistfulness and a pathetic appeal never before found in her madcap heroines. Funnier than "Sis Hopkins," the new play strikes the high lights of rollicking fun and at the same time brings a catch in the throat now and then when least expected.

As the fun-loving farmhouse drudge, Mabel Normand is at her best—perpetrator of a hundred practical pokes, always in a dreadful, but perfectly logical scrape, and the centre of a charming romance. Easily she surpasses herself as "Puckers," the lovable pest.

Replete with novelty as is the entire production, there is something which will come as a complete surprise even from Mabel Normand. In one episode she is seen as the tender of a ferry. It crosses a narrow river and it is the task of Puckers to steer the craft to safety. It goes without saying that a great deal of uproarious entertainment comes from the accidents that befall the hoyden's patrons. This device alone would make "The Pest" a sure-fire laugh provoker.

ALL SAINTS' SUNDAY SCHOOL HELD AN ENJOYABLE EXCURSION

LIST OF PRIZEWINNERS IN THE VARIOUS EVENTS--BUSH CAUGHT FIRE.

On Friday last All Saints' Sunday School held their annual excursion to South Beach per steamer Stoney Lake, where a most enjoyable time was spent by all present. The weather man smiled his best for the occasion, which was all that was required to assure a good time for all. On arriving at South Beach the usual sports were run off by the scholars.

Previous to these events, however, the grass in close proximity to the bush caught fire, and for a time bid fair to become serious. However, through the work of the Vimy Troop of Boy Scouts the fire was extinguished. As soon as the fire was observed, Scoutmaster Tyrer assembled the Troop, who were bathing in the lake at the time. The boys, under his direction, soon got busy, and with boughs of green for trees beat the fire out. Much credit is due the Troop.

CANNING BUTTER BEANS.

To a quart of prepared beans, which must be tender, but not too young, add a pint of either hot or cold water and one heaping tablespoon of salt. When boiling point is reached, allow to boil for exactly five minutes. If they are boiled longer they will become soft in the sealers. Seal while hot, having the beans covered with brine. When they are to be used, drain off the water and place in pan with sufficient cold water to cool them. When they are tender pour off the water and serve to suit taste.

Beans done this way, if completely covered with water in the sealers, will retain their natural colour, and have no strong taste.

THE HUNTER STREET CAMPAIGN

At a meeting of the members of the committee that had charge of the Union Evangelistic Campaign which concluded in the city last week which was held yesterday in the Y.M.C.A., arrangements were made for the holding of a series of weekly meetings commencing next Friday night in the Y.M.C.A. for the benefit of the converts that were secured during the campaign. At the closing meeting of the series the converts who were present signified their desire that meetings of this kind might be arranged. The purpose of the meetings is to give the converts help in the first steps of the Christian life. Their names are being turned over to the ministers of the various churches with which they have expressed a desire to become identified.

Evangelist Kennedy will be in the city and vicinity during the next few weeks. He has consented to address the first few meetings of this series which will probably last for only a few weeks, as it is intended that they shall be only temporary in character. An invitation is extended to all the converts at the meetings, the personal workers, as well as to any who did not find Christ during the campaign, but would like to do so, to attend these meetings. Mr. Kennedy states that he will be glad to meet with any who desire to meet him personally. His address is 603 Water Street. Phone 741W.

An Appreciation.

Evidence of the splendid impression that was made on the city by the month's series of meetings held recently in the city by Evangelist Kennedy was furnished yesterday when complimentary references were made to it in some of the city pulpits, and a strong resolution of appreciation was passed by the Layman's Committee that had charge of the campaign. Rev. Mr. Thomas, at the evening service in George Street Methodist Church, stated that he was sure the members of the congregation appreciated the service that had been rendered to the city by Evangelist Kennedy during the meetings. Mention was made also of the number of people connected with the George Street congregation who had taken a definite stand for Christ during the meetings. Magistrate D. W. Dumble, at the morning service, spoke of the benefits that had been received through the printing of the newspaper reports of the meetings. In St. Paul's Presbyterian Church Rev. Mr. Pague made mention of the benefit that had been derived from the meetings through the Gospel message having been preached clearly and forcibly night after night. He said that he had attended all but about three meetings and had not only been benefited himself, but other members of the congregation had been also, some of them having found their Saviour in a new way during the meetings.

Strong Commendation.

At a meeting of the Laymen's Committee that had charge of the campaign, held yesterday afternoon in the Y.M.C.A., the following resolution was adopted unanimously:

"Evangelist H. D. Kennedy has just concluded a month of evangelistic services in the city of Peterborough, speaking every night to deeply interested audiences. From the first night that Mr. Kennedy made an appeal for converts, results have attended his ministry, conversions being recorded every night but one, when the address of the evening was directed to Christians. The committee of laymen from the various evangelistic churches of the city, who arranged and have conducted the campaign, have been very much pleased with Mr. Kennedy's addresses, his fidelity to the Word of God, his searching presentation of Bible truths, his freedom from the sensational, and his tactful handling of his audiences, nothing having been done at any of the meetings to lead anyone present to feel embarrassed or uncomfortable, while everything has been done to make it easy for the unconvertrd to take a stand and make a confession of faith. At the outset the feeling was expressed by a few that owing to the fact that Mr. Kennedr was born and brought up in Peterborough it might not be possible for him to make as great a success of a campaign in his own home town as he could among strangers. The members of the committee, however, who knew Mr. Kennedy, did not allow this suggestion to influence them, and feel greatly pleased with the results of the campaign. Scores have been converted during the meetings and many Christians have received a new vision of Christ and His sufficiency. We take pleasure in recommending Mr. Kennedy as an evangelist, and pray that his work in the future may be blessed as it has been in the past. He blessed as it has been here.—(Signed) H. B. Cowan, Chairman, J. M. Greene, Secretary, Layman's Union Evangelistic Campaign Committee."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

"Behind the Clouds"

By STELLA WOLEJKO

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"I saw Mr. Arnold in the car this morning," said Ethel Hill to her sister, Ruth.

"Is that so? Did he look at you?" questioned the sister.

"Why, yes! he looked across the aisle in the car and seemed to smile, and if my eyesight is not deceiving me, he actually smiled to me," said Ethel.

This Mr. Arnold was a perfect stranger to the girls, who had been new arrivals in the little town of Auburn. The girls had seen him occasionally on the cars and took special notice of him because he resembled a gentleman of their acquaintance.

"I wish I knew some way of making his acquaintance," said Ethel. "I'm sure he must be a respectable gentleman and worth knowing."

"So do I," responded Ruth. "Time might clear the matter."

Time passed for the Hills. They had been living in Auburn for a year now, still meeting the strange Mr. Arnold, and still lacking a much desired introduction. They made friends very readily with the girls in the neighborhood, but never chanced upon anyone who was acquainted with Mr. Arnold.

Finally there came a day when Ethel and Ruth were invited to a community picnic to be held in the woods surrounding their town. They anticipated a great deal of pleasure and the meeting of many people of their town.

Dressed in their freshly starched summer linens, with lunch baskets in hand, the two girls marched along to the woods where some of the other girls were to await them.

They were enjoying themselves immensely at the picnic, making new acquaintances, when a new face appeared. It was that of a pretty, blooming young woman with sparkling dark eyes and glossy black hair.

"There comes Mrs. Atherton," echoed the girls. "She's jolly good company. Now our fun will start."

Ethel and Ruth were delighted with the new acquaintance. They found that she was a very close neighbor to them, living on the next street, which was very pleasing to them.

"Mr. Atherton will be here immediately," announced Mrs. Atherton. "He was detained in fixing the car up for his brother, but told me to go along so as not to keep you waiting."

Just as she finished her statement, the eyes of Ruth Hill turned to the entrance of the woods, where she spied the figure of their Mr. Arnold approaching.

"Look," she uttered as she gave her sister Ethel a push, "see who's coming!"

"Why, there's Dick, now," said Mrs. Atherton, turning towards the same direction as the Hill girls were looking.

With downcast eyes Ethel and Ruth acknowledged the introduction to Mr. Atherton, thinking what a disappointment it was that he couldn't be Mr. Arnold in their imagination any more.

They did their best to keep up their spirit the rest of the day, but failed slightly and went home before the rest.

Next day Ethel was not waiting with the same expectation to see if their Mr. Arnold would come to take the same car with her. Nevertheless, he advanced up the street. Ethel thought she would do her best to be pleasant, for even though he was somebody's husband, he was a gentleman just the same.

She thought it proper for a girl to speak to a gentleman first; therefore, when he neared her, she said:

"Good morning, Mr. Atherton; how did the picnic end? We didn't stay till the end, as we were anxious to get home early."

"Good morning," he answered. "I'm sorry that I missed the picnic. My brother was present with his wife, but I was called away on business."

Ethel uttered an exclamation of surprise.

"I beg your pardon, sir," she said. "I thought that you were Mr. Atherton whom I had met at the picnic with his wife."

"So I am Mr. Atherton, but I happen to be brother to the Mr. Atherton whose wife you met," he replied. "Now that you've spoken to me, won't you please continue recognising me. I've always longed to know you."

Ethel was undecided whether it was proper to speak to him hereafter or not, but being very much excited over the mistake, she announced to him that she was Miss Hill, and told him how she had always connected him with a gentleman she knew, which made him smile.

"Well, isn't this lucky? Now the ride into the city every day won't tire me as it used to," he assured her.

"Ruth! What do you think?" cried Ethel as she rushed into the house that night. "Why! I've met the very Mr. Arnold we wanted to meet, and he's the brother of the Mr. Atherton we met at the picnic, only this one is not married. He's just like his brother in looks and actions. Now I thought the Mr. Atherton at the picnic acted kind of unnatural and a little different. I thought it was the surprise of seeing me there that accounted for it."

Two years elapsed. Some one going by and seeing the church in Auburn open inquired what was going on inside. His curiosity was satisfied when he was informed that it was the wedding day of Ethel Hill to Ray Atherton, the most popular people in town.

PIGS AS MACHINE GUNNERS

Shrewd Trick Played by Germans When They Fled Before the Conquering American Troops.

The crafty Germans resorted to all sorts of tricks to check the advance of the Yankees in the fighting just before the armistice was signed, according to a letter from Sergt. Sidney S. Fay, formerly of Detroit, Mich., now attached to a headquarters company in a classification camp in France, to a friend in the Michigan city.

Fay writes that pigs were numerous during the advance and that the Germans used them to help in putting Yankees out of action. When the Huns were forced to retreat they would tie a pig by the leg to the trigger of a machine gun. When the Yanks would charge, the pig, becoming frightened, would squeal and tug to free itself. Every tug the pig made a shot was fired at the waves of oncoming American troops, and, of course, some of them were hit.

This was only one of the ruses adopted by the Germans, says Fay, and the Yankees had to use the utmost caution in going over the ground evacuated by the Germans.

Packers' By-Products.

The by-products obtained in the packing house industry may be divided into two classes—the edible and the inedible. The inedible constitute the external covering (hair, horns, hoofs and hides), some of the offal and the bones. From these are prepared a great variety of substances, some of which have developed into enormous industries in themselves, such as leather, soap, glue and fertilizer. The last mentioned represents the ultimate utilization of packing house waste. For example, in the manufacture of buttons, combs, knife handles and spatulas from the horns and hoofs of cattle and sheep and the hoofs of hogs the waste resulting from the preparation of these articles was at one time thrown away, but it has been found that by treating such material with sulphuric acid, the nitrogen which it contains becomes available as a fertilizer.

Parade of White Caps.

Quite unique to Cardiff, Wales, is the daily breakfast parade of the "white caps." The United States sailors and marines stationed in Cardiff are paraded every morning in batches at the Castle street corner of Westgate street, and thence march to different restaurants and hotels for breakfast. The operation is repeated for the mid-day meal and for tea. But the earlier parade is the more noticeable, because the otherwise deserted streets are given an unwonted appearance of liveliness.—London Mail.

OSTEOPATH CURED SKEYHILL'S BLINDNESS

AMERICAN SOLDIER HAD NEVER HEARD OF THE TREATMENT BEFORE.

A vast audience that crowded Carnegie Hall, New York City, Wednesday evening, June 11, was profoundly impressed by an address given by Signaller Tom Skeyhill, under the auspices of the Osteopathic Society of New York, in gratitude and acknowledgment that osteopathy cured his blindness. Francis J. Taylor, of the New York War Camp Community Service, led the audience in song, and Mme. More Norelle, the Australian soprano, sang a few selections. The speaker of the evening was introduced by James D. Herron, the American poet.

Skeyhill said in part:

"When I came to America I was practically devoid of all hope of ever seeing again. While in San Francisco I felt myself growing weak and shortly after I went to Washington I completely collapsed. Somebody there recommended me to an osteopath. I never heard of their treatment before and knew nothing about it, but tried it out. I went to Dr. Riley Moore.

"After being in the hospital three days I opened my eyes and everything before me was immaculately white. I thought I was dreaming and so pinched myself. Feeling the sting, I knew I was awake. The white walls that surrounded my bed were then the most beautiful objects on this earth I had ever witnessed. And this earth I had ever visioned.

"I knew that many people have claimed to have been the means of my cure and so I want to make the point here that my cure is the result of osteopathic treatment. There are many poor fellows in the same way that I was and it is for me to lament that they, due to the military legislation, are unable to take advantage of this treatment."

THE "CANNY" HOUSEWIFE

When you buy butter, lard, or anything commonly put into wooden containers, see that the purchase is weighed with paper under it only. Wooden dishes weight from one to three ounces, and should not be paid for at creamery butter prices.

Do your marketing or shopping in ample time so that you can make your selections wisely and not be forced into buying high-priced articles lacking nourishment because there is not time to prepare the ones which require slow cooking.

Insist that all trimming of meat for which you pay are sent home to you. These can be used in the soup kettle, or tried out in fat, or used as food for the family dog.

If you are buying a piece of meat such as a leg of mutton part of which projects beyond the pan of the spring scale, the butcher should not hold on with his hand to the projecting part, as pressure adds weight.

PETES BEATEN BY THE ONTARIOS IN SEE-SAW BATTLE BY 7 TO 6

MANAGER SOLOMON'S OUTFIT HAVE TO BEAT BELLEVILLE HERE ON SATURDAY TO TIE UP THE LEAGUE —PORT HOPE'S HARD HITTING AND "DOPEY" BALL BY THE PETES GAVE ONTARIOS THE VICTORY.

AN EXCITING BALL GAME

The Petes threw away the extra help Lindsay gave them to cinch the Central League championship by dropping Saturday's game in Port Hope, and are once more back in second place and faced with the necessity of beating Belleville here on Saturday to tie up the League.

The Petes were beaten 7 to 6 on Saturday in one of the most exciting games of the season, a see-saw affair in which the teams alternated in the lead. The Ontarios lived up to their reputation of being the hardest-hitting team in the league, by cracking fifteen hits off the offerings of Kirn and Mulhern, driving Kirn out of the box in the fifth innings, and hammering Mulhern's delivery just as vigorously for the balance of the game. But the Petes would have won in spite of this warm reception their twirlers received had they not played "dopey" ball in all departments of the game. Baxter, the Port Hope twirler, was no mystery, but the Petes threw away a bunch of scoring opportunities by hitting into double plays. When a sacrifice hit or waiting out the pitcher would have earned them runs. Port Hope pulled off no fewer than three double plays in the first three innings, when scores for the Petes seemed certain. The plays were smartly executed, but had the Petes been playing baseball there should have been no opportunities for these double killings. On top of that there was some slow work in the Peterborough outfield that helped the Ontarios considerably on their way to victory.

Peterborough had a royal chance of tieing up the game in the ninth when, with one out and men on second and third, Cherrett hammered one to the Port Hope shortstop. The latter threw to the plate, but Hagerman easily beat the throw, while Cherrett was safe at first. Unfortunately, Mulhern, who had been on second, tore around third base, and when Chalk got the ball, Mulhern was nailed between third and home and finally tagged out. This play killed the Petes' chance, for if the Petes' pitched had remained on third, he would have scored the tieing run on Adams' fly to left.

There were some brilliant fielding features, of which the three double plays pulled off by the Ontarios were not the least. In addition to these Adams made a fine catch of a short fly to centre, Moise went over behind third and gathered in a fly in fine style, and Bob Chalk, the Port Hope catcher, tore off a great catch of a foul fly.

A big crowd, including many fans from Peterborough, saw the game. They had their money's worth in excitement anyway, for the result was in doubt until Briden caught Adams' fly for the third out. Incidentally, it was the only drive he caught during the afternoon, three of them trickling through his fingers.

First Innings.

Peterborough.—Cherrett singled to right, but was forced at second on Adams' tap to F. Chalk. Adams stole second. Clancy cracked a line drive into Baxter's hands and Adams was doubled off second.

Port Hope. — Holyman grabbed Rowden's fly. Kirn threw out Hills. Briden singled to centre. Moise grounded to Kirn.

Second Innings.

Peterborough.—Swanston singled to centre. Long hit safely over second. Kirn bounced one to F. Chalk, who fumbled, but recovered in time to force Swanston at third. Hagerman lined to Hills and Long was doubled off second.

Port Hope.— R. Chalk popped to Kirn. Baxter singled past Holyman, but was out at second, Holyman to Cherrett on F. Chalk's tap to the third baseman. Clancy nailed Sleeman's fly.

Third Innings.

Peterborough. — Holyman singled over third. Heenan hit into a fast double play, Rowden to Moise to Hills. Cherrett drew a pass and stole second, but Chalk made a fine catch of Adams' foul for the third out.

Port Hope.—Friar flied to Clancy. Adams made a beautiful running catch of Rowden's short fly to centre. Swanston threw out Hills on his tap in front of the plate.

Fourth Innings.

Peterborough.—Clancy struck out. Swanston fouled to R. Chalk. Long hit what looked like a sure single to right, but Friar threw him out at first.

Port Hope. — Briden hoisted to Cherrett. Moise singled over second. Clancy dropped R. Chalk's liner to left, a hard hit ball, Moise going to third and Chalk to second. Baxter hit to Kirn, who held the runners and threw the batter out at first. F. Chalk popped to Hagerman.

Fifth Innings.

Peterborough.— Kirn was thrown out by Moise, a nice play by the shortstop. Hagerman doubled to left. Holyman skied to Briden, who dropped the ball, Hagerman going to third and Holyman to second. Heenan grounded to Baxter and Hagerman was out at the plate. Heenan stole second. Cherrett singled to centre, scoring Holyman and Heenan. Cherrett stole second, but Adams grounded to Rowden. Two runs.

Port Hope.— Sleeman singled to right, Friar hit safely past third. Rowden beat out a bunt, filling the bases. Hills singled past third, scoring Sleeman and Friar. Briden laid down a perfect bunt, scoring Rowden and was safe himself. He immediately stole second. Moise's sacrifice fly to Adams sent Hills home. Mulhern relieved Kirn in the box, the latter taking Heenan's place in right field. R. Chalk hit to Cherrett, who threw him out at first, and Baxter hoisted one to Long. Four runs.

Sixth Innings.

Peterborough.—Clancy scratched a hit to third, stole second and went on to third when Moise let Chalk's throw get away. Swanston singled over second to score Clancy. Long hit to the fence in right centre for three bases, scoring Swanston. Kirn fanned, but Hagerman's sacrifice fly to Sleeman in centre, scored Long. Holyman singled to right, but was out stealing. Three runs.

Port Hope.—F. Chalk singled over second. Sleeman walked. Friar struck out. Rowden singled to left, filling the bases. Hills grounded out to Long, Chalk scoring. Baxter was hit, again filling the sacks, but Moise grounded to Mulhern. One run.

Seventh Innings.

Peterborough.— Mulhern grounded to Rowden. Cherrett was called out on strikes. Adams was safe on Briden's miss and went to third when Chalk threw high to second to stop him stealing. Clancy grounded to Moise.

Port Hope.—R. Chalk went to second when Adams failed to get his short fly to right centre and then threw badly to the infield. Baxter hoisted to Swanston. F. Chalk singled over second and R. Chalk was out at the plate on Adams' good throw. Sleeman popped to Long.

Eighth Innings.

Peterborough.— Swanston hoisted to Moise. Long lifted one to Hills. Moise made a pretty catch of Kirn's fly back of third.

Port Hope.—Friar singled to right. He started to steal second and came all the way home on Swanston's wild heave to the middle sack. Rowden struck out. Hills doubled to left and scored on Briden's double to the same field. Briden was caught off second, Mulhern to Hagerman, and Moise flied to Clancy. Two runs.

Ninth Innings.

Peterborough.— Hagerman walked and stole second. Holyman flied out to Sleeman. Briden dropped Mulhern's fly, Hagerman going to third. Mulhern stole second. Cherrett hit a grounder to Moise, whose throw to the plate was too late to stop Hagerman from scoring, but Mulhern, who had rounded third was caught between that station and the plate and tagged out. Briden made a nice catch of Adams fly to left and the game was over.

SOME BIG CHANGES IN LEAGUE BATTING LIST

JACKSON, HOWEVER, IS STILL LEADING THE PROCESSION—BIG GAINS MADE DURING THE WEEK BY ADAMS, CHERRET, HEAD AND KIRN—THE TEAM AVERAGES UP TO DATE.

Since last City League averages were published, there have been quite a few changes in the list, but Walter Jackson, who has been out of the game for nearly two weeks, is still leading the regulars with .400, although Mulhern of the Orientals, is hitting .600 for three games. The biggest gains throughout last week were registered by Adams of the Matthews-Blackwell team, and Head, Cherrett and Kirn of the Orientals, who all climbed considerably.

The only change in the team averages is that Matthews-Blackwell have passed De Laval in hitting, and are now second to the Orientals in that department of the game. The Orientals are leading in fielding as well as hitting. The figures—

THE PEACE DAY REGATTA WAS WELL ATTENDED

RACES WERE CLOSE IN MANY CASES —THE LIST OF PRIZEWINNERS.

Peterborough's first regatta was an entire success and the large crowd which witnessed the different races, crowded the banks on both sides of the river, appropriating skiffs, canoes, docks and everything in sight from Rye's boat house down to the end of the course. The 57th Band was in attendance both afternoon and evening, and a large number of people remained on the shore till dusk listening to the band and observing the "stunts" of Mr. Arthur Cooley's 'plane, which flew low on some of its trips with passengers. Most of the races were decidedly close, and some of the events had as many as ten entries.

The judges were Mr. F. H. Dobbin, Mr. Ryder and Mr. C. R. Simon.

The prizes will be given out tonight at Rye's boat house:

The Results.

1. Canoe, single paddle, one paddler. Three entries—1st W. L. Ferguson, 2nd M. McMartin.

2. Double canoe. Two paddlers. Eleven entries—1st D. Loomis and J. Carlisle; 2nd E. Lee and A. Robinson.

3. Single canoe. One paddler, double blade. Four entries—1st J. Carlisle; 2nd Edward Moore.

4. Double canoe, two paddlers. Overboard race. Three entries—1st, A. Robinson and E. Lee; 2nd J. Carlisle and —, Elliott.

5. Crab race. Four entries—1st H. Morris; 2nd, D. Lee.

DEMPSEY SAYS HE'S NO SLACKER

Was Placed in Class 4 Because of Bad Ears.

CINCINNATI, O. — Jack Dempsey is growing mighty tired of hearing the falsehood about him being a slacker, why he did not take part in the great war, Jack said as today when he advised a gathering of newspapermen to nail the lie in the papers, and that he would nail the liar who repeats the falsehood.

"I tried to enlist in the navy, but was rejected because my left ear drum had been broken in a fight," said Dempsey. It was the first time he had shown any indignation since his go with Willard, July 4. His black eyes throwing out sparks while a flush burned under his bronze cheeks, the new fistic king continued: "My right ear also is defective. I was placed in class 4 by the draft board on this account, and since the country was in need of shipyard workers, I took up that end of it. Later I was placed in class 2-D, but while I was ready to answer the call, the Government did not requisition my services.

"In the meantime I got into thirty or forty fights on this side, fighting all over the country, raising money for the Red Cross, and the fights in which I took part netted that organization more than $200,000.

"Two of my brothers were in the service, and I was the only support of our family, which included an invalid brother. The other day, a fellow asked me why I did not get into the service, and I stooped him by asking him why he did not.

"I also fought at many army camps for the benefit of the soldiers and Willard received the first and I the second license for this patriotic work by the Army and Navy league.

"Barring the doughboy I can't figure where anyone who was in my circumstances at the time gave so freely of his services as I did and yet there is talk that I was a slacker."

Matrimony is a great institute; it makes a man forget his other troubles.

WHY PASTOR BLUSHED

American Minister on Women's "Absence of Clothing"

There is a lively controversy between New York "Smart Society" and Dr. Stratton, pastor of one of New York's fashionable churches, on the subject of evening dress. Dr. Stratton having declared that although "C fronts" and "V backs" were bad enough in the past, the modern Society woman, with her absence of clothing, made him positively blush, the smart set retaliated by suggesting that Dr. Stratton's social position was such that he was not accustomed to seeing ladies on evening dress. Dr. Stratton's reply to this is that if social standing is judged by the size of one's money bags and one's pork-packing ancestors rather than by a connection with the "Black Duglasses" of Scotland, then he is not of the elite.

MINERAL OIL

For Chronic Constipation

By buying this product from us you can get the Highest in Quality that can be procured at an ESPECIALLY LOW PRICE.

There are many thin oils on the market that are not suitable for internal use; other oils have irritating qualities which render them also unsuitable. The one we are selling is guaranteed thick and entirely pure.

It is recognised, that a good grade of Mineral Oil is one of the best remedies for CHRONIC CONSTIPATION that is being used. It acts mechanically and does not irritate the intestinal tract, nor does the dose have to be continually increased as is the case with ordinary purgatives.

It is much better and cheaper than Castor Oil as a laxative for Children, since Castor Oil has two effects, the first of which is purgative and the second or after effect, which is Constipating.

NELSON'S REMINDER.

Henry Burr sings "That Wonderful Mother of Mine,"
With such loving tenderness shown in every line,
That the magic word "mother" recalls the old home,
And entwines round the heart the mother love shown.
Burr also sings with pathos "I shall meet you,"
Which revives memories which were sacred to two,
The soul harks back to loving days long past,
And reminds us that Nelson's Okeh records last.

SHUNTING ENGINES COMPLAINED OF

Citizens have again complained of that old nuisance of freight and shunting engines making unnecessary noise at night "when every decent citizen should be abed," said an old timer of Ware street this morning. Letters were read at the meeting of the Railway Committee on Friday night complaining of the disturbances caused by Grand Trunk freight trains coming into the city and from shunting operations near Ware, Lock and Romaine streets. The chairman was deputed to meet Mr. A. MacNab, the local G. T. R. agent at ten o'clock this morning.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Rev. and Mrs. A. J. Vining announce the engagement of their daughter, Jean Gourlay, to Dr. George Raymore Scott (formerly with the C.A.M.C.), only son of Dr. and Mrs. W. D. Scott, of Peterborough. The marriage will take place in London, England, the middle of August.

Mrs. Fred Griffin and family left last week to take up residence in Chatham.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Fallon, Mr. and Mrs. T. Skinner and Mrs H. Kingdon motored to Toronto and Hamilton for the week-end.

Master Donald Gillespie of Peterboro, is spending his holidays at the home of Mr. Wesley Badgely.—Tweed News.

WEDDING BELLS

VICTOR—GREY.

Miss Alice Rose Grey, of London, England, was quietly married to Mr. John Victor, of this city, at the Park Street Baptist Church parsonage on Friday, 18th July, at 2.30, by Rev. Dougald Brown.

Mrs. E. Colback attended the bride, and Mr. James Victor supported the bridegroom.

The happy couple left for Toronto and points West, and on their return will reside in the city.

OBITUARY

THOMAS J. McDONNELL.

The death occurred in Norwood on Friday, July 18, aged 30 years and five months, of Mr. Thomas J. McDonnell. He leaves to mourn his loss, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles McDonnell, and three sisters, Sister Helena, St. Andrew's, West Ontario, Miss Mary M., of Norwood, and Mrs. J. J. McCabe, Burnham street, city.

The funeral took place from the residence of his parents, Norwood, today at 10 a.m. to St. Paul's church, thence to Norwood Roman Catholic cemetery.

MRS. G. RAYNOR.

After an illness of several months' duration, Mrs. G. Raynor, 171 Prince street, died yesterday at her residence, 171 Prince street. She leaves of the immediate family besides her husband, four daughters, Mrs. O'Neil, Monaghan, Mrs. E. Castle, city, Miss Olive and Miss Blanche at home, also six sons, Wilson of Cobalt, Edward at home, Charles and Howard of Regina, Warren of Monaghan and Harold at home.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family residence to the Little Lake cemetery.

MRS. JAMES B. GRIEVE.

The death took place to-day at noon of Mrs. James B. Grieve, of Coboconk, widow of the late James B. Grieve, at the advanced age of 83 years. She was on a visit to her daughter, Mrs. James Craig, 290 Hunter street, when the call came. Mrs. Dr. Craig of this city is a granddaughter. Two daughters residing in Coboconk also survive.

The funeral will take place Wednesday afternoon from the residence of her daughter, 290 Hunter street, leaving by the G. T. R. train for Coboconk.

LIGHTS WANTED IN CENTRAL PARK

The Trades and Labour Council wrote to the Railways Committee and referred to the absence of lights in Central Park. Referred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

Mr. R. Scott, divisional superintendent of the C.P.R. asked the city to have a lease drawn up covering the property for the turn-table at the foot of Water street. Ald. Turner moved, seconded by Ald. McIntyre that an agreement be drawn by the City Solicitor.

THIRSTY ONES IN POLICE COURT

Squirrel Whiskey Cost $14.10 — Cells Uncomfortable.

Bibulous holidays are not quite a thing of the past in spite of prohibition and three thirsty ones appeared before His Worship this morning and drew down on their heads the wrath of a $14.10 fine each. They were all local young men and two of them were found on the market square just recovering from Saturday's excitement. They told the police that they brought the wet goods from Port Hope.

The other knight of the bottle was found with four sheets to the wind on peace day, but it was no peace day for him, and he said that he did not find the cells exactly comfortable. The squirrel whiskey trickled down his parched throat at a cost of $14.10.

THE EXCURSION TO LINDSAY

The steamer "Stoney Lake" went out from the George street wharf at 7.30 this morning with about one hundred excursionists on board, for the water and rail trip to Lindsay and return. The early morning rain prevented a good many from going who had prepared to enjoy this trip. Another similar trip to Lindsay is being arranged for next week.

FLAGS MADE A GOOD DISPLAY

GRAFTON COMPANY LTD., HAS A COMPLETE SET.

Seldom has a holiday brought to Peterborough as many comments regarding the absence of flag displays as the Peace Day holiday on Saturday. Several letters commenting upon the few flags displayed have been received by the Examiner, but lack of space due largely to the accumulation of news over the holiday and week-end makes it impossible to publish them. One store in the city came in for a good deal of eulogy and that was the Grafton Company Ltd., of which Mr. W. E. Conway is manager. The company has displayed on the front of its large building a complete set of flags of the allies. There were fifteen large flags in all, and they represented all nations that took part in the war on the side of the allies. The flags are large and well mounted. They made a magnificent display. "That is the finest collection of flags I have seen," remarked a visitor to the city from Montreal. Enquiry at the store elicited the fact that the flags were supplied by J. J. Turner and Sons of this city.

RETURNED SOLDIER MAKING CANOES

Canoe building on his own account is the peace-time occupation decided upon by one of Peterborough's returned soldiers, Mr. Geo. Hutchinson, 160 Wescott street, formerly of the 9th C.M.R. Mr. Hutchinson has apparently made a successful beginning, as one of his canoes was first in six events at the regatta on Saturday. He is building the craft on a model of his own, and the canoe has been pronounced a success by those who have seen or used one of Mr. Hutchinson's make.

GOOD GAME IN THE CITY LEAGUE

The City League game to-morrow night will bring together the Orientals and De Lavals. The Orientals, to have the slightest chance in the League race have to beat the De Laval, so that the game should be a lively battle. On Thursday night Matthews-Blackwell and the War Veterans will clash.

BIG SHOW HAS BEEN DELAYED

BAD LOT AND A LONG HAUL WILL DELAY OPENING UNTIL TO-MORROW.

Polack Brothers Big Shows will not be ready for a performance to-night, but to-morrow evening will see them well settled. The big show played in Montreal last night and packed up late, and the long haul, together with numerous delays, have held back the show to such an extent that it will be a day behind the schedule. Electricians and carpenters are already at work at the Exhibition Grounds preparing for the arrival of the tented city and everything is in shape for the biggest performance seen in the city since the armistice was signed.

It is the only one of its kind ever presented by a carnival company, and is a wonderful water, electric and pyrotechnical display, a massively constructed structure of cement and iron, and is operated by electricity and hydraulic power. It requires an extreme force of water to bring out the mystifying effects. The performers appear in the very midst of a rolling, tumbling tumultuous water cascade upon a hydraulic operated stage, producing the most beautiful and realistic electrical effect imaginable. The performance is finished with a display of fireworks which is exploded from within the fountain while the water is following in full force.

The days of the famous Buffalo Bill Shows are recalled by the appearance of Col. Leaders (Buffalo Jack) and Princess Wenona, world's champion lady crack shot. Cowboys reproduce the sports of early frontier days by displaying fancy rope spinning, trick

MISS IRENE MUNRO RETURNS HOME FROM OVERSEAS

VISITED SOME OF THE DEVASTATED AREAS BEFORE LEAVING.

Through the confidence only a nurse gains from her patients, Nursing Sister Irene Munro, daughter of Mr. R. J. Munro, learned during her stay in Germany that the Germans are absolutely unconscious of their defeat, and Miss Munro has herself heard the wounded Germans remark that in five years they will reassemble their army and defeat the world. "To my mind," she said, "they will not believe they are defeated, but rather only temporarily repulsed."

Miss Munro went overseas with the American army in 1918, and after a short stay in England, was sent to Paris, thence to Mespes, the American Hospital Headquarters. At the signing of the armistice she was sent into Germany to Trier (Treves), where she continued her nursing, working with the Germans to a great extent. "They were," she said, "at first inclined to be antagonistic to us, but as the time went on and they were restrained from any real acts of hostility by the fact that the place was fairly overrun with military police and American soldiers, they became more friendly.

American Preference.

There is no doubt, she said, that the American prisoners and soldiers got the preference every time in Germany and in conversation with the French and British prisoners I found that while they were abominably treated, the Americans got a fair show, though I will admit for the most part their wounds were in a terrible condition when they arrived in our lines.

"We Won the War."

The talk of "We won the war," accredited to the Americans, Miss Munro continued, is found only amongst the S.O.S. men. The men who were up the lines never have anything like that to say, and they freely hand the majority of the credit to the Canadians and Australians, especially the former. There were 8,200 passengers on the boat, 'Cap Finnistere,' a German vessel taken over by the Americans from the Germans at the outset of the war and on which Miss Munro made the return trip. One hundred and fifty were French brides of the American soldiers. She was not overenthusiastic over the beauty of the brides, but said she concluded they would be fair citizens. The passengers also included 800 nurses and 800 war workers, all of whom were as glad to get home as Miss Munro herself.

She was particularly struck by the marvellously quick manner in which Belgium is being restored to order, and said that the work seems to be progressing there more than in any other of the devastated areas. During her absence overseas she made a tour of France, Germany to within 15 miles of Berlin, Italy and Switzerland. On these trips she gathered many interesting and valuable souvenirs, some of which were given to her by German officers.

BANANA SCARCITY IS DUE TO STRIKE OF ATLANTIC SEAMEN

A scarcity of bananas is impending as a result of the Seamen's strike in the Atlantic ports of the United States. Peterboro's supply of the people's fruit is running to bare stalks, Toronto has nothing to offer, there have been no local receipts for a week or more and the future is extremely doubtful.

Recent reports of the strike state that many of the strikers have signed up with farmers, evidently preferring work on shore. There are no cargoes of fruit leaving the southern ports for the north, and it will be a week after the strike is settled, whenever that may be, before cars of bananas reach this city. There may be a few stores with light remnant stocks, but this supply can't last long and unless the strike terminates early Peterboro and in fact all the northern district will have to forego their banana aphis until the seamen's demands have been satisfied.

OFFICIAL ENQUIRY

SEVENTEEN EMPLOYEES OF RUBBER COMPANY HAVE BEEN DETAINED.

ELEVEN KILLED

(Canadian Press.)

CHICAGO, July 22. — An official inquiry was started to-day by the United States Attorney to place the responsibility for the explosion and collapse of the dirigible which crashed through the roof of the Illinois Trust and Savings Bank yesterday afternoon, killing eleven persons and injuring twenty-six others.

Counsel for the Chicago Corporation, as a result of the accident, have to-day commenced to frame ordinances to govern and control air flying over the city.

Seventeen employees of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, of Akron, Ohio, owners of the airship, have been detained pending a decision as to whether charges of criminal carelessness should be filed against them.

Among those detained were Jack Boetner, the pilot of the dirigible, who escaped by jumping with a parachute, and W. C. Young, in charge of the Goodyear Aeronautic Department of the Goodyear Company.

Of the eleven dead, nine were employees of the bank, and two being passengers in the airship.

Five persons were in the airship at the time of the accident, and three escaped.

When the balloon crashed through the skylight of the bank at five o'clock more than two hundred employees, mostly girls, were at work.

Story of Accident

CHICAGO, July 22.—Ten persons were killed outright and approximately twenty-seven injured late yesterday afternoon when a dirigible balloon, used in making exhibition flights in the neighborhood of an amusement park on the South Side, caught fire while flying above the "loop", Chicago business district, and plunged down 500 feet or more like a blazing skyrocket clean through the glass roof of the Illinois Trust & Savings Bank at the corner of La Salle street and Jackson boulevard.

Most of the dead were employees of the bank, trapped and burned to death in a withering rain of fire caused by the explosion of the balloon's gasoline tanks as they hit the

Thousands See Disaster

The "blimp," owned by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of Akron, Ohio, had been flying above the Loop for several hours when the accident occurred. Thousands witnessed the disaster. When approximately 500 feet above the bank, a spurt of flame was seen to shoot from the top of the gas bag near the centre of the aircraft.

The crowds gathered on the streets

BIG VOTING CONTEST AT THE GRAND

A representative of the Illinois Advertising Syndicate is in the city arranging for a novel voting contest to take place on August 15th under the management of the Grand Opera House.

For this event, prizes to the value of $1140.00 will be given away in a competitive contest in which the lady securing the largest number of votes by that time will be awarded a 1919 Chevrolet touring car, fully equipped with electric lights and starter, and all the latest improvements, and bought from the Manning Garage, local agents. The one securing the second largest number will receive a $100 diamond ring on display in the window of Warne Bros. The third largest number will receive a $50 diamond ring.

Any resident of Peterboro or vicinity not connected with the Grand Opera House can enter the contest. Nomination blanks are given with all admissoins and any others who wish to secure one can call at the theatre, and they will be given free. In addition to the nomination of 100 votes a coupon good for five votes will be given for each admission to the Grand Opera House.

ALLIED ADVANCE ON BUDAPEST

Victor of Balkan Campaign Has Mixed Army For Advance Upon Hungarian Capital.

(Canadian Press.)

VIENNA, July 22.—General Franchet Desperey, commander of the Allied forces in the near east, announces that he is preparing to advance upon Budapest, the Hungarian capital, with one hundred and fifty thousand troops. The army is made up of French Colonials, Roumanians, Jugo-Slavs, Italians and Hungarians.

ACCEPTED THE TREATY

ALL NIGHT SESSION OF THE BRITISH HOUSE OF COMMONS.

A LIGHTHOUSE

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, July 22. — At what was virtually an all night session, the House of Commons completed its consideration of both the German peace treaty and the Anglo-French convention.

The bill carrying approval of the German treaty was considered in committee of the whole. It created an exciting and lengthy debate, in which Premier Lloyd George took an active part. The bill was then placed before the House and passed its third reading, after a motion by John Devlin to reject it as a protest against the Premier's attitude towards Ireland had been defeated by 163 to 4.

Then at 3 a.m., the Anglo-French pact was taken up and the bill approving it was unanimously passed after a short but sharp debate, in which the argument that the treaty was not consistent with the league of nations, failed to find any substantial echo. The German treaty passed through all its stages without any amendments.

In concluding his speech on the treaty, Premier Lloyd George, while making no claim of perfection for it, expressed confidence that any defects would be remedied by the league of nations.

Despite its imperfections, Premier Lloyd George declared that the treaty would stand as a "lighthouse in the deep and a warning to nations, and rulers of nations, against the perils which the German empire shattered itself against."

POLACK'S BIG SHOWS WILL OPEN THIS EVENING

were originally scheduled open their exposition last evening, were delayed in Montreal on account of the circus lot being in bad condition. It required ten and twelve head of horses to draw the big circus waggons off the field, and it was not until noon on Monday that the big "Yellow Special" was loaded and on its way here. However, everything will be in readiness for the initial performance this evening, as the show train arrived in this city at daybreak this morning and the work of unloading the heavy waggons began upon arrival.

The Polack Shows are more than a mere carnival, they have combined Circus, Wild West and Hippodrome features with the usual carnival attractions. Featured by the great La Rose Electric Fountain, the world's greatest fire water and electric display, each and every attraction is worthy of patronage. There is Princess Wenona's Wild West Show with her cowboys and Indians, the big circus side show with its freaks and curosities gathered from all parts of the earth, the Garden of Allah with its Princesses and entertaining features of the Far East, the Congress of Fat People with its happy family of fat folks and the San Francisco Coast with its dwellers. All are interesting and are bound to please the public.

Then the little folks will be delighted with the big Merry-Go-Round, the Ferris Wheel and the Whip, while Coney Island's latest riding device "Over the Falls" will take the children as well as the older folks by storm.

It is indeed an impossibility to describe all the features of this big mammoth Midway, and some can only be appreciated by a visit to the grounds. The shows will exhibit in this city all week under the auspices of the Peterboro Agriculture Exhibition Board at the Exhibition Grounds

WINDSOR CAR STRIKE FINISHED

Sign Agreement With the Company.

(Canadian Press.)

WINDSOR, July 22.—Street cars are again running once more. Motorman Thorn, whose suspension for violating the company's rules, caused the strike yesterday, has been reinstated and the employees have signed a statement to abide by the spirit of the agreement and not be so hasty in the future, in striking for real or fancied grievances until they have been taken up by the authorities.

HIGHER PRICES FOR LADIES' WEAR

IT IS A CASE OF THE LIDS OFF AND THE SKY IS THE LIMIT—LADIES WILL HAVE TO PAY THE PIPER THIS FALL.

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, July 22.—More capricious than ever are Fashion's fancies, likewise her prices. It is a case of the lids off and the sky is the limit, and if the ladies wish to be included in the smart set this fall, they will have to pay the piper, as all the new styles will be anywhere from 25 to 75 per cent. in advance over last year's prices.

Among the accessories, such as neckwear, gloves, and hosiery, there has been an advance of from 25 to 50 per cent. in all lines. Kid gloves are practically out of sight, and according to one of the big store managers, when the present stock is sold out they will replace it with fabric gloves.

Silk gloves to match the costume will be a strong item this year owing to the prohibitive price of kid.

In the hosiery, many smart new touches are seen in the lace and drop stitch effects. Stockings which formerly sold at $2.00 a pair have gone up to $3.00. Even these are not as good a quality as those which were sold in pre-war days. The demand for raw silk exceeds the production, and practically the only market which is open to America at the present time is Japan. Raw silk, which sold last year at $7.70 a pound, is now retailing between $10.00 and $12.00, and is at a premium even at that price.

In the opinion of those in charge of the hosiery department, it will be some time before hosiery reaches normal prices again; and an increase in prices is also looked for in the cashmere lines.

FLYER LEFT FOR TORONTO YESTERDAY

TOOK UP A SIXTY-FIVE YEAR OLD PASSENGER ON SATURDAY EVENING.

Mr. Arthur Cooley, who has been in the city during the past few days giving aerial exhibitions, left the city yesterday morning for Toronto. He had with him Mr. Reg Turner, who made the trip in the interests of J. J. Turner & Sons. The flyers left Peterboro at 9:25 yesterday morning and arrived in Toronto an hour and twenty-five minutes later. They encountered heavy rains on the way.

On Peace Day Mr. Cooley delighted large crowds with his work in the air. He took a number of passengers up during the day and in the evening put on an exhibition for the benefit of the large crowd that had gathered. This is the first time that Peterboro citizens have had such a good opportunity of seeing an aeroplane at close quarters. Included in the Saturday evening list of passengers was Mrs. A. Staphnill, who in spite of her sixty-five years made the trip in comfort and safety. Mrs. Staphnill, who resides at the home of Mr. Webber [illegible] street, was given a ride of the aviatrix. A representative of the Examiner was one of the passengers during the day.

VIOLA DANA HAS CLEVER ROLE IN "SOME BRIDE"

Brilliant Metro Comedy-Drama to be Shown at the Grand Theatre

"Some Bride," the latest Metro comedy-drama in which Viola Dana appears, will be the feature at the Grand theatre on Thursday for a 3 day engagement.

The play tells of a young bride who, though she loves her husband, cannot refrain from flirting with other men. His jealousy and her determination to have a good time leads them to the breaking point and he is on the verge of getting a divorce when her woman's wit comes to her rescue and, by a strategic move, she regains both his love and confidence.

The play is the latest word in in smart comedy and the role in which Viola Dana is seen gives her full scope for her unusual and clever talents.

Others of the notable cast are Irving Cummings, Ruth Sinclair, Billy Mason and Florence Carpenter. Henry Otto directed the production which was made under the personal supervision of Maxwell Karger, Director General.

TRENTON WILL BUILD HOUSES

The Government arbitrator, J. T. White of Toronto, was in Trenton conducting an arbitration to fix the value of some seventy lots expropriated by the Trenton Housing Commission. The commission has obtained $200,000 from Government for the purpose of building modern homes for the citizens of Trenton, who desire to take advantage of the Government's liberal policy of enabling people to become owners of up-to-date homes at moderate prices and on easy payments. The lots expropriated are high and dry and located on one of the beauty spot on the west hill, having a view of the Bay and being near the Trenton Park.

Mayor Ireland who owned the property being expropriated by the commission offered to sell for $12,000 but owing to his official connection with the Housing Commission, it was considered better to acquire the land by Government expropriation.

The Government arbitrator, after hearing the evidence of several valuators of real estate, reserved his decision which will be given at an early date.

CONFECTIONERY SHOPS ACCEDE UNION SCALE

BAKERS' UNION HAPPY IN THE ACCEPTANCE OF THEIR DEMANDS BY EMPLOYERS.

Proprietors of the local confectionery shops acceded last night to the demans of their bakers, and to-day the Bakers' Union is happy in the knowledge that Union conditions prevail and also in the expectation of the improvements these conditions are expected to bring to the men.

The minimum wage scale in the confectionery shops is $30 a week for foremen and $28 a week for cake bakers. The regular week is 44 working hours, with time and a half for overttime. The new nine-hour day also applies to apprentices. Mr. Coleman accepted the scale yesterday at noon and the other shop owners followed suit last night.

PRIVATE LIQUOR STOCKS REGULATED

Defined in Act.

(Special to The Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, July 22. — The final vote on the National Prohibition Act, providing for the enforcement of both constitutional and wartime prohibition, was expected to be taken in the House to-day.

Intoxicating liquor is clearly defined, as any beverage which contains one half of one per cent. or more of alcohol and this definition stood up during the two weeks discussion despite many efforts to have light wines, and beer.

Private stocks in homes were safeguarded with the provision that this liquor may be used only by the owner, his family or bona fide guests.

CANUCK AIR TRAFFIC RULES

No Trick Flying Allowed, or Flying Low Near Cities—Fine of $1,000.

(Special to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, Ont., July 22.—In view of the Chicago airship disaster it may be recalled that Canada was among the first to recognize the necessity for regulation of air traffic. On July 16, the Canadian Air Board, with the approval of the Privy Council, forbade absolutely any trick flying, exhibiting flying or flying at low altitudes over urban areas. A fine of $1,000 was also imposed. In the meantime the Board was started to work framing up a permanent code for regulation and making safe the traffic in the airplanes.

REFUSED PRESIDENT WILSON'S REQUEST

By L. C. Martin.

(United Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 22. — The Senate Foreign Relations committee to-day was expected to decide whether it will approve the appointment by President Wilson of a provisional member of the Allied Reparations committee.

Republican members of the committee took counsel over night. The committee had before it Senator William's resolution granting the President's request, and the Knox and Harding substitutes, refusing the Chinese peace delegates' wish to appear before the committee to protest against the Shantung clause. Korean and Irish National delegates also wish an opportunity to get their views before the committee, it was learned.

NEGROES IN RACE RIOTS

BITTER WARFARE BETWEEN BLACKS AND WHITES IN NATIONAL CAPITAL.

THE CASUALTIES

(United Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 22. — With the police and military practically powerless, the elements early to-day forced a temporary cessation of the race riots which have racked the national capital for three successive nights. After four persons had been killed, two seriously wounded and 30 others so badly injured they were taken to the hospitals, a terrific thunderstorm burst over the city, sending the rioting whites and negroes scurrying to their homes.

Additional troops will be rushed to Washington to-day in an effort to curb the disorders, virtually placing the city under martial law.

The negroes, better armed than the whites, apparently had the best of several encounters. Even after a number of sanguinary clashes automobiles packed with yelling blacks, dashed about the streets in the residential section defying the white population. Then the rain fell and drove all the combatants from the streets.

The dead reported this morning were Detective Sergt. Harry Wilson, Kenneth Crass, Randall Nealand, Thomas Armstrong. The two latter are colored.

Detective Sergt. B. W. Thompson and Pte. Albert Luck of the marines, were believed to be in a dying condition. Of the other casualties five were policemen.

MARTIAL LAW.

(Canadian Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 22. — Proclamation of martial law may be necessary to end the race rioting here, which resulted last night in the killing of five persons and the injury of at least fifty others.

Several days of disorder, following in the wake of attacks on white homes, robberies and assaults by the race battles during the night hours negroes, culminated in a series of with which the police were unable to cope, despite the aid of the military Provost Guards.

Several of the injured were reported fatally hurt this morning, and at least [illegible] rioters were under arrest.

The dead included Detective Sergt. Harry Wilson, shot through the heart by a negro girl when he entered the house from which she was firing indiscriminately into the street.

SEPARATE BLACKS.

(Canadian Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 22.—A bill for the separation of races on street cars in the District of Columbia was introduced to-day by Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, who said he was prompted to offer the measure because of race riots.

When some 175 cases of men arrested during the rioting were tried to-day in the Police Courts, maximum sentences of one year's imprisonment, and fines of five hundred dollars, were imposed on all found carrying concealed weapons, while those charged only with disorderly conduct escaped with thirty-five dollar fines.

In most instances jury cases were remanded.

SALISBURY'S NATIONALITY

Star of "That Devil 'Bateese'" at the Grand Thursday, Friday and Saturday, is "Multiple" Type.

Monroe Salisbury, star of "That Devil 'Bateese,'" and many other distinct photodrama successes, says that nearly half of his "fan" letters ask the same question:

"What nationality are you?"

In this regard Salisbury has them guessing. His characterizations are so vivid that his appearance in pictures like "The Savage" stamp him as an Indian. But in his latest success, "That Devil, 'Bateese,'" he stars as a French-Canadian and with such realism that French-Canadian fans are hailing him as a long lost nephew.

The name, Monroe Salisbury, as it appears in 26-inch letters on billboards throughout the country, is unmistakably English in its origin, although the owner thereof can pass for anything but a Fiji Islander, and he has never even tried that.

WOODROW IS NOW RECOVERING

Will Be Able to Resume His Conferences.

JACKSON PARK HAS BEEN TURNED INTO A FRESH AIR CAMP FOR THE CHILDREN

TWENTY-TWO CHILDREN WERE TAKEN TO THE PARK THIS MORNING—WORK OF HEALTH ASSOCIATION.

NURSE IN CHARGE

Twenty-two children ranging in age from 4 to 12 years of age, emaciated and in extremely evident need of fresh air and proper nourishment, were transported this morning to the Fresh Air Camp, which was opened to-day in Jackson Park by the Health Association. The little kiddies woh know little outing outside of what they can obtain in the street and in back yards, were called for by Miss Dixon in a bus at nine o'clock and taken to the camp.

For the accommodation of the children two big tents have been pitched near the gate of the park, one to serve as a temporary kitchen until the portable kitchen which has been ordered by the Association from the Pedlar People at Oshawa, and another more spacious one for playing in should it rain. In the cook tent a capable cook is in charge and this morning immediately set to her work of preparing a nourishing meal for the little ones who were brought to her each equally hungry after their drive and preliminary play under the pine trees.

Nurse in Charge.

The nurse in charge, Miss Dixon, has with the cooperaiton of the association, arranged for the most scrupulously sanitary conditions at the camp and each of the little ones is provided with a tooth brush, basin and towel of its own, and each child is supervised into the proper use of the articles provided.

Daily Routine.

On arrival at the camp each child is thoroughly washed and fed, after which each is allowed to find some kind of play, and with the boundless opportunities the park offers for children's enjoyment, they find little trouble in keeping themselves amused. At 12 o'clock a good substantial lunch is served consisting of soup, etc., after the children are washed, and from the time they finish they are at liberty to amuse themselves until the final wash-up and the evening meal, at the conclusion of which the little ones are taken in the busses home to their parents.

It is really an eye-opener to the person who visits the camp to find out how badly some of the children living right in the town need the outing. Some of them, whose ages are given at 10 and 12 years, are undersized and unbelievably white. Even at the close of the first day at the camp these little ones had commenced to take a more lively interest in life and showed promises of the colour which will not come in the back kitchen and on the roads.

The members of the Health Association have spared no effort in their splendid project and are to be congratulated upon resuming the camp which was suspended necessarily during the war. Each day members of the association motor out and assist in the work of keeping the children amused and to generally help out.

The Donations.

Already donations amounting to $15 have bee nsent towards the Fresh Air Fund, these coming from Mr. A. Brown, $10; Miss M. Mills, New York, $5. Further donations will be gratefully received by the Association and anyone wishing to give such may leave it at the Examiner office.

BERRYPICKER WAS KILLED BY STORM

MISS ANNA HOULIHAN'S BODY FOUND THIS MORNING NEAR HOME IN EMILY TOWNSHIP.

Overtaken by a violent thunderstorm while picking berries near her home in Emily township, yesterday afternoon, Anna Houlihan, aged 25 years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Houlihan, was found dead where she had sought shelter beneath a big tree. At its foot her body was found in a sitting position at an early hour this morning by neighbors who had searched the woods all night. Her pail, partly filled with berries, was by her side. Death was apparently instantaneous, and everything indicated that it was caused by lightning.

Miss Houlihan left home yesterday afternoon to pick berries on the woods on Mr. William Piggott's farm. Between four and six o'clock a severe electrical storm thundered and flashed over the township. Later when Miss Houlihan did not return, her parents became alarmed. The community was quickly appraised of her absence and with a foreboding of a tragedy groups of farmers set out in the evening and continued their search until a few hours after daybreak this morning. She was half a mile from home when she evidently decided that it was better to wait beneath the tree until the storm passed than to brave the open road to her home.

Miss Houlihan was a very popular young lady in the parish of Downeyville and her death has saddened the entire community.

She had been living at home with her parents, who with four sisters and three brothers are the immediate mourners. The sisters include Mrs. Dennis Scully of Emily, and the brothers are Joseph, at home, Michael of Emily, and Edward of Porcupine.

The funeral will be held on Thursday morning from the family residence about two miles from Downeyville, to St. Luke's church, and thence to St. Luke's cemetery at Downeyville.

ENW VARIETY OF ROSE IN TORONTO

Mme. Bouvier Has Crimson Rose on Stalk Six Feet in Height.

TORONTO, Ont., July 2[illegible].—One of the rarest sights, which has won the admiration of hundreds of rose growers is that of a huge crimson rose on a stem over six feet in height, which is growing in the garden of of Mme. Bouvier, 27 Parkwood Road. To-day, Mme. Bouvier said

"Ever since I have taken up rose growing as a hubby it has been my one hope that some day I could produce a rose of this kind. I have no idea what variety it is, I have never seen one like it before. It is the only bloom on the entire bush. I am hoping that I shall be able to learn from some of the professional rose growers the name of the bush as I would like to cultivate more of them, as it is a more profit than an American Beauty. It is the intention of Mme. Bouvier, as soon as the rose opens more fully, to send it to the Church of the Holy Rosary in her floral contribution in honour of the men who have died in graces and these who are returning

Literature in Canada

LITERATURE and journalism have always been closely associated in Canada. As a young country there has not yet developed a background and atmosphere suitable for writing as a profession, such as exists in most European nations. Although there is naturally a pride over the performance of not a few Canadian authors, certain circumstances have inevitably retarded development. The nebulous status of the country in the world of nations has prevented the growth of a strong national spirit, such a spirit as finds expression in the written word. To this must be added the handicap of the proximity of the United States and Great Britain flooding the Canadian market with their best books in the common language of the Canadian people.

This circumstance, while undoubtedly an advantage to the Canadian reading public in raising the standard and widening the selection of their books, is a real factor in preventing the development of a powerful Canadian literature. One mitigating circumstance is the wider market available to Canadian writers in return, which unfortunately too often induces residence in another country.

These general considerations occur in connection with any review of Canadian literature for the past seventy-five years. Apart from such early writers as Thomas Chandler Haliburton, the original humorist of this continent, who lived and worked in Nova Scotia, and the explorers whose imperishable narratives tell the first story of the Canadian wilderness, the main portion of Canadian literature has been written during the past half century.

It is generally conceded that the largest achievement of Canadians in literature has been in poetry. They are, after all, a great outdoor-loving people, and this has found expression in the nature poetry of scores of Canadian writers. Several have won international standing, and critics of other countries have not been slow to acknowledge their merit. What has been roughly grouped as the "Ottawa School" of Canadian poets has especially stamped itself on the Canadian and British minds. This group included Bliss Carman, Chas. G. D. Roberts, Archibald Lampman, Duncan Campbell Scott and Wilfred Campbell. All were born about the same time, and in the '60's and '70's of the last century joined in the chorus of song which seemed to re-echo throughout the whole nation. Lampman, whose sweet voice was prematurely stilled, exalted the lowly hepatica and pictured the times and season of the Canadian landscape in words that will never die. Roberts, using a broader canvas, interpreted Canadian nature with more virility but no less fascination, and went further in lifting Canadians to an appreciation of their own national spirit. Carman, ever refined and inspired in his descriptions of nature, often added the human figure, and thus enhanced interest in his record of Canadian life. Campbell, whose later work carried the thoughts of his readers especially to Canada's place in the Imperial Commonwealth of nations, first won his place by his sympathetic interpretation of nature in the Lake Region. Bliss Carman, who, sad to say, has made his home in the United States for the past generation, has ever been the sweet lyric singer, whose heart bursts with the rapture kindled by nature and whose work reflects the perfection of craftsmanship, no less than the inspiration of his message. In the same age sang Isabella Valancy Crawford, exulting with her sweet music the commonplaces of the backwoods of Canada.

We have had the Scottish-Canadian dialect of Alexander McLachlan, the Irish enthusiasm of Thomas D'Arcy McGee, and the highly popular French-Canadian dialect of William Henry Drummond, but all have passed, and the field is now in possession of a younger school, who it is believed will successfully interpret a more vigorous Canadian spirit. It is much too soon to sort out for posterity the work of these younger writers, but it should not be rash to say that future generations will cherish the impressions of the Canada of today recorded by Marjorie L. C. Pickthall, Isabel Ecclestone Mackay, and Robert W. Service, and they will find flashes of great talent in lines by Robert Norwood, Norah Holland, B. E. Trotter, and Pauline Johnson.

Fiction has not been of so high a class in Canada as to win wide international notice. It is often said that the writer of fiction in Canada would starve to death were he dependent on that for a living. The statement is true, for it is doubtful if there is a single Canadian now or at any other time able to live for any length of time from this source alone. Sir Gilbert Parker, although long since an emigrant from Canada to the Old Land, has almost a five-foot shelf of his own works, and has perhaps the best sustained reputation among our writers of fiction. Ralph Connor (Rev. C. W. Gordon), has been the most popular Canadian novelist of recent years. Charles G. D. Roberts has invaded the field of prose with a number of novels of exquisite literary quality. Norman Duncan had already earned fame for his stories of Labrador life, when early death overtook him. Arthur Stringer has also written several novels on varying themes. Robt. E. Knowles and Isabel Ecclestone Mackay have pictured the Scottish-Canadian communities of Ontario, while L. M. Montgomery has created a wholesome atmosphere in fiction for the remote island of Prince Edward.

MRS. CHURCH WORKER'S PRAYER.

Oh Lord, I come to Thee in prayer since late,
But pardon me, if I do not kneel before
Thy generous presence, for my knees are sore,
With so much walking, in my chair, instead
I'll sit at ease and humbly bow my head,
I've laboured in Thy vineyard Thou dost Know,
I've sold ten tickets for the minstrel show,
I've called on fifteen strangers in our town,
Their contributions to our church put down,
I've baked a pot of beans for Saturday's spree,
An old time supper it's going to be,
I've dressed three dolls for our annual fair and made a cake which we must raffle there,
Now with Thy boundless wisdom so sublime, Thou knowest that these duties all take time,
I have no time to fight my spirit's foes,
I have no time to mend my husband's clothes.
My children roam the streets from morn till night, I have no time to teach them what is right,
But Thou oh Lord, considering all my cares, will count them righteous and will heed my prayers.
Bless the bean supper and the minstrel show, and put it into the hearts of all to go,
Induce the visitors to patronize, the men who in our programme advertise,
Because I chased these merchants till they hid, when they saw me coming, yes they did.
Increase the contributions to our fair, and bless the people who assemble there.
Bless Thine the grab bag and the fish pond, the flower table and the cake that's sent.
May our whist club be to Thy service blest, and theatre party player from the rest.
And when Thou hast bestowed these blessings, then we pray that Thou will bless our souls, Amen.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Dredging, Ontario, Rice Lake Division, Trent Canal," will be received at this office until 12 o'clock noon on Thursday, July 24, 1919.

Specifications and forms of tender can be obtained by application to the Chief Engineer, Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, or to Superintending Engineer of the Trent Canal, Peterborough, Ont., on and after this date.

An accepted bank cheque on a chartered bank of Canada for the sum of $1,000 made payable to the order of the Minister of Railways and Canals, must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The cheque of the successful tenderer will be held as security, or part security, for the due fulfilment of the contract to be entered into.

The lowest or any tenderer not necessarily accepted.

By order,
J. W. PUGSLEY,
Department of Railways and Canals,
Ottawa, July 12, 1919.

TENDERS FOR COAL.

Sealed Tenders addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for coal for the Dominion Buildings, Ontario and Quebec", will be received at this office until 12 o'clock noon, Friday, July 25, 1919, for the supply of coal for the Dominion Buildings throughout the provinces of Ontario and Quebec.

Combined specification and form of tender can be obtained at this office and from the Caretakers of the different Dominion Buildings.

Tenders will not be considered unless made on the forms supplied by the Department and in accordance with the conditions set forth therein.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank payable to the order of the Minister of Public Works, equal to 10 p.c. of the amount of the tender. War Loan Bonds of the Dominion will also be accepted as security, or war bonds and cheques if required to make up an odd amount.

By order,
R. C. DESROCHERS,
Secretary.
Department of Public Works,
Ottawa, July 3, 1919.

CHAS. WOULD MAY BECOME ROAD SUPT.

IN THE GOOD ROAD WORK OF THE THREE TOWNSHIPS.

The Highways Department has approved the County Council's by-law authorizing the townships of North Monaghan, Otonabee and Asphodel to inaugurate a good roads system with the support of the Provincial Government. The next step in the progress toward active operations in road building is the appointment of a superintendent. Mr. Charles Would, the champion plowman of Peterborough County, was suggested at the June sessions of the Council, and a committee composed of the representatives of the three townships was appointed to interview Mr. Would with regard to the question of salary. Of his experience it was stated that in Asphodel he is head of the municipality's road work and has had much experience. It is likely that a meeting of the Council will be called shortly to deal with the appointment of a road superintendent. Warden McIntosh was suggested for the position, but his acceptance would require his resignation as Warden. Mr. McIntosh has been a practical roadmaker all his life, and is regarded as competent for the work.

THE MINERS' STRIKE.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, July 22.—Sir Eric Geddes, Minister without portfolio, named as the Government Commissioner to try to settle the strike of more than two hundred thousand miners in the Yorkshire district, conferred with the mine inspectors there to-day, but at last reports not one of the mines in either the west or the south Yorkshire coalfields was operating.

Naval Officer As C.P.O.S. Manager

Commander Thomas Fisher, R.N., General Manager of Atlantic Lines, C. P. O. S.

A particularly interesting naval career lies behind Commander Thomas Fisher, who has just taken up his new appointment in London as General Manager of the Atlantic Lines of the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services Ltd. The very broad field of valuable non-naval work in naval, shipping and diplomatic circles during the war covered by Commander Fisher specially fit him for the onerous duties of directing one of the greatest passenger and mercantile fleets in the world.

Commander Fisher was born in Birmingham in 1880, and underwent his naval training at Dartmouth on the old wooden battleship "Britannia." He spent four years in China during the period of the Boxer Rebellion, and then having passed all his examinations with flying colours, he received very rapid promotion, and at the age of twenty was made a Lieutenant. He served for seven years in the Mediterranean on H.M.S. Racoon, flying the flag of the late Admiral Sir Baldwin Walker, Bart, and later on the same ship under Admiral Sir Henry Jackson, the late First Sea Lord. After having qualified as a gunnery specialist Commander Fisher served for a short time on the staff of the Director of Target Practice. Later he joined H.M.S. Bellerophon as Gunnery Officer and when in 1912 Mr. Winston Churchill introduced staff training into the Navy Commander Fisher was one of the first batch of officers to take the Staff course, ultimately being selected to remain on as instructor at the Naval College at Portsmouth. When war broke out he went to sea with Admiral Sir Alexander Bethel, the then Commandant of the War College, as Flag Commander on the Reserve Fleet. He was associated later with the important work of safeguarding the passage of the Expeditionary Force to France, and was present at the landing of a small force of Royal Marines at Ostend in September, 1914. With the termination of this work in the winter of 1914 he joined the Trade Division of the Naval War Staff at the Admiralty and was there in charge of that part of the organization set up to deal with questions relating to neutral shipping. These were the early days of the blockade and neutral steamers were doing their best to evade the Naval Patrols and carry supplies to Germany via neutral ports. Commander Fisher took a prominent part in devising and carrying out the system of supervising the movements and cargoes, etc., to neutral vessels by means of control over their supplies of bunker coal at ports at home and abroad. This system, when in full working order, masterfully tightened the arduous task of the cruisers employed on blockade duty, because it was one of the conditions that all ships bound to or from countries adjacent to Germany should call voluntarily for examination at a British port.

Commander Fisher's services in this matter have recently been recognised by the award of a C.B.E.

In 1916 he was employed as technical representative in the various negotiations for the use of neutral shipping by the Allies. This work was of vital importance to France and Italy and indirectly to this country also, in maintaining supplies during the most difficult part of the war. Incidentally, Commander Fisher gathered a valuable knowledge of the shipping interests of Europe.

During this period Commander Fisher served on various Government Committees dealing with commercial and shipping matters, including the Coal Exports Committee presided over by Sir Douglas Dixon and the Board of Trade Committee for the Conservation of Coal, presided over by Sir William Gilbertwood. It is not without interest that the latter Committee, on a motion by Commander Fisher, supported by Sir Richard Redmayne, passed a resolution which ultimately led to the introduction of the Daylight Saving Bill by the then Home Secretary, Mr. Herbert Samuel.

In the summer of 1917, soon after the United States came into the war, a liaison officer was appointed to link the British Ministry of shipping with the American shipping board. Sir Thomas Royden was first chosen for this important post and he was followed by Commander Fisher, who filled this difficult and responsible position with marked success.

In America Commander Fisher had an opportunity of examining at first hand the shipping and transport problems of the States and Canada and in connection with his duties he visited all the principal ports on the Atlantic seaboard, including the Canadian ports of Montreal, Quebec and Halifax.

Other C.P.O.S. Officials.

Following the appointment of Commander Fisher, R.N., as General Manager of Atlantic Lines, with Head Office at 5 Waterloo Place, London, it is now announced that the other principal officials of the Company in Europe, some of whose appointments have already been intimated, are as follows:

Mr. J. A. Martin, Manager, Royal Liver Building, Liverpool.

Mr. J. V. Portter, O.B.E., Assistant Manager, Royal Liver Building, Liverpool.

Mr. E. T. Stebbing, Passenger Manager, Royal Liver Building, Liverpool.

Mr. A. H. Allan, Freight Manager, Royal Liver Building, Liverpool.

Mr. P. W. Brookes, European Accountant, Royal Liver Building, Liverpool.

Mr. Kenneth Mackenzie, Chief Supt. Engineer, Sandon Dock, Liverpool.

Mr. C. E. Rafter, Agent, 103 Leadenhall St., London.

Mr. Wm. McK. Redan, Agent, 25 Bothwell St., Glasgow.

Mr. A. S. Ray, Agent, 18 St. Augustine's Parade, Bristol.

Mr. W. D. Grosset, Agent, 25 Rue Van Jordaens, Antwerp.

AUSTRIANS PROTEST AGAINST THE TREATY

SCRAPS OF NEWS FROM PARIS —HENRY WHITE WIRES FOR INSTRUCTIONS.

(Special to The Examiner.)

PARIS July 22.—Henry White, of the American Peace delegation, it was learned to-day, has cabled President Wilson, asking for specified instructions as to whether America should sign the Peace Treaty with Bulgaria.

German experts on merchant shipping, chemicals and dyes, and representatives of other industries are expected at Versailles this week for the discussion of the export problem.

Austrian newspapers protest vigorously against the reparation and financial terms of the Peace Treaty.

Flax Industry in Canada

CANADIAN farmers are being encouraged by the Department of Agriculture to engage increasingly in the growing of flax, and while last year there were only some 18,000 to 20,000 acres put under cultivation in the whole of Canada, it showed considerable strides when compared with five years ago, when there were only 2,000 acres under cultivation. While a certain amount of twine and thread has been manufactured it cannot be said that there is any flax industry in Canada or that thread or yarns have been made in any considerable quantities. Last winter a mill was started at Guelph, where the flax was spun into yarn, which in turn was made into table linen, the output in the mill, however, not being large. During the war, owing to the great demand for flax seed, the Canadian crop was shipped to Ireland, and this year the same course will be pursued. Up to this period most of the products from the Canadian farms were shipped to the United States.

The Canadian Government is encouraging farmers to go in more extensively for the growing of fibre flax, and with this end in view they are promised a fixed price for their crop. It might also be mentioned here that with the same purpose in view the Government has offered a bounty running from two cents to nine cents a pound, which bounty is paid to the spinner for the production of the finished yarn.

Some time back the Government instructed Dr. Grisdale, director of the Dominion Experimental Farms, to investigate the subject of the growth of flax for fibre production, both in Canada and the United States. After visiting various points in the latter country, Dr. Grisdale paid a visit to the Fraleigh Flax Mills at Forest, Ontario. He found that Mr. Fraleigh handled about 600 acres of flax each year. The seed, he said, was originally imported from Russia or Belgium, but is now grown almost entirely in Canada, the Canadian seed being found superior to the imported article when it has become acclimatized. The pulling of the flax is done by boys and girls and it is dried and thrashed before being rotted or "retted." The retting is done, as a general rule, by spreading the flax thinly on the grass and turning it at intervals. The result of this retting is a tow, some of which is suitable for twines and other fibre purposes. It might be here mentioned that in strength Canadian flax has repeatedly been declared equal to the better grades of Irish flax, while the finer yarns have also won a considerable reputation. Another method of retting is by means of tanks, but much depends upon the character of the water whether this process is advisable or not.

In summing up his impressions, Dr. Grisdale expressed the opinion that the flax industry in Canada was in the hands of a few capable, and, owing to the fact of the profitable nature of flax growing, he considered that it was wise to encourage the greater growth of the industry in this country. Interesting the said they were seed (cattle feed, oil), fibre for textile or cord-making purposes, tow for upholstering purposes, coarse broken straw for packing, and cheap upholstering, chaff for cattle feed, and residues for fertilisers. Dr. Grisdale has made a number of valuable recommendations to the Minister of Agriculture which should have the effect of greatly helping the industry. Among the recommendations was one for the establishment on the Experimental Farm at Ottawa of a complete plant for all the operations in connection with the production of fibre for flax.

To very shortly trace the history of the flax industry in Canada: The first flax mill was established at Deon, Ontario, in 1865, although it should be mentioned that the French-Canadians have always included a certain amount of flax in their crops. These increased until about 30 years ago there were some 100 mills in Ontario, but they had dwindled down to an almost negligible quantity at the time of the outbreak of the war, which, however, acted as a strong incentive to the industry. There are probably now between 40 and 50 mills in Canada.

The flax plant has a long, thin stem with narrow leaves, and bears sometimes a blue and sometimes a white flower. The fibre, to which the flax plant owes its value, is near the outside of the stem. It will grow practically in any soil which is suitable for other crops, and where there is no danger from drought. The most suitable places in Canada for its growth are western British Columbia, southwestern Ontario, the St. Lawrence Valley, and the Maritime Provinces. It is harvested by being pulled up by the roots, a not difficult process, as flax has a very slender hold of the ground. When the seeds have been thrashed out of it the straw is then retted, the object of this process being the easy separation of the fibre from the rest of the stem. The final process is termed scutching, which is the separation of the fibre from the woody core.

A flax plant was recently equipped in Regina, Saskatchewan, by the Federal Government, which is now in operation for the extraction of the fibres from the flax straw. After this treatment the product is to be sent to Ontario, for experiments in spinning, the mills selected being situated at Kitchener.

Greek Enterprise.

One of the great needs "in the circle of the Aegean," as indeed everywhere else at present, is for manufactured goods. And so Athens is to organise an exhibition of such things, on a large scale. The Greek Government has placed at its disposal the famous "Zappeion" building, close to the Royal Palace, whilst adjoining land is to be used for the purpose of an extension in which to place the larger exhibits. Greece is certainly rising, with a will, to meet her new and enlarged responsibilities in the Near East. This is but another case in point.

Asphalt in Philippines.

A rich deposit of asphalt has been discovered in the Philippines located so near the water's edge that no inland transportation whatever is necessary.

WAVERING OVER THE "ONE BIG UNION"

ELECTRICAL WORKERS ARE UNDECIDED IN WINNIPEG.

(Special to The Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, July 22.—The electrical workers of Winnipeg have not yet taken a vote on the advisability of severing their connection with the International body and joining the One Big Union.

E. Inglis, of London, Ontario, general vice-president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, who is in the city for a few days, addressed the local union last night at a mass meeting held in the Labour Temple. At the close of the meeting it was learned that the taking of the vote on the One Big Union was postponed after Inglis had laid the case of the International organization before the men. It was further stated that there is little likelihood of any local taking action in the matter until after the next meeting of the Trades and Labour Council.

Inglis stated last night that he will stay in the city for a few days before proceeding to Vancouver, where a split in the ranks of electricians on the question of the One Big Union has occurred, and the section which has remained loyal to the International is seeking a new charter.

SUDDEN CALL

Wm. A. Sweet Passed Away in Sanford Co.'s Office.

William A. Sweet, of the Sanford Manufacturing company, and son of the late George Sweet passed away while at his work in the company's office, Hamilton. Deceased has been in the employ of the Sanford company since leaving college, and for many years he was manager of the Windsor branch of the firm's retail department. About two years ago he gave up the position of manager of Oak Hall in the border city to return to his home on account of his father's failing health. Strange to say, while the picture of health, he survived his father only a few months. A widow and two children are left to mourn the death of a kind husband and father. The funeral arrangements have not yet been made. His home is on Proctor boulevard, Hamilton.

The deceased was well known in Peterboro through his connection with Oak Hall.

ANOTHER BLUNDER.

Canada came very early not being represented in the wonderful Peace Day parade in London on Saturday, thanks to the stupidity and lack of vision of Argyll House. The Canadian overseas ministry out of their peculiar brand of wisdom decided that it would be impossible to supply a contingent of Canadian troops to take part in the great parade, fittingly described by Philip Gibbs as "the march of remembrance." Only the firm stand taken by General Sir Arthur Currie, commanding the Canadian Army Corps, made it possible at the last moment to have Canada represented by a contingent of fighting men. General Currie deserves the thanks of Canadians generally for the position he took in the matter, which forced Argyle House to make a belated move to have the services of the Canadian Corps recognized by participation in the great pageant. It would have been humiliating to Canadians had not her troops had a place in line, and Sir Arthur Currie saved the day. The administration of Canadian military affairs by Argyle House has been a series of stupid blunders and mistakes, and the failure to recognize the fitness and importance of having a Canadian contingent in the peace parade was not the least of the mistakes that have been made.

ELIMINATE THE POLITICS.

Sir William Hearst could put an end to the present uncertainty as to whether or not the Provincial general elections and the referendums are to be taken on the same day by a plain statement as to the intention of the government. His persistent silence in the face of the many newspaper and platform references to the situation lends colour to the persistent report that the two votes will be taken together, despite the understanding in the Legislature that the election would not be held simultaneously with the referendum. The Toronto World is authority for the statement that the Conservative members of the Legislature held a private meeting last week to organize for the work of enumeration and in spite of the promise that the referendum would not be partisan in character, the appointing of sub-enumerators seems to be looked upon as political patronge. The chief enumerator is the proper person to appoint those who are to assist him and the Conservative organizations in the different ridings should keep their hands off. In attempting to play politics with an issue that should have no connection with political issues, the government is injuring the cause of temperance.

THE COAL SUPPLY.

There have been frequent warnings issued recently to the people of Canada to place their orders for their winter supply of coal as soon as possible. The latest comes from Sir George E. Foster, who urges that those who are in a position to do so should lose no time in securing the coal they will require for the coming winter. "It is not safe to assume," the Minister of Trade and Commerce points out, "that next winter will be a mild one, nor is it possible to forecast what the labour situation at the mines will be, or what success the railways, just emerging from the strain of the war period, will have contending against possible adverse climatic conditions this coming winter." The facts seem to be that coal will not come into Canada in the same quantities as other years, there is lessened production, thousands of United States' miners are leaving for Europe, and already the Pennsylvania mines are 10,000,000 tons short of their last year's production at this date. The United States' Fuel Administration has ceased to exist, with the signing of peace, and fuel control on this side of the line was abandoned last March. All war-time regulations have been abolished, and the distribution of coal is affected, as Sir George points out, only by the law of supply and demand.

Those who are financially able to do so should lose no time in endeavouring to secure their next winter's fuel supply. Unfortunately, however, the industrial situation is such that there are hundreds of citizens who are unable to finance the purchase of a winter supply of coal at this time. The case of many of these people will be desperate next winter if the shortage proves as serious as the official warnings make it appear. The conditions of two years ago will be repeated and even worse suffering may result if something is not done at once to ensure that there shall be a supply of coal available.

The City Council should not fail to take heed of the statement issued by Sir George Foster and to realize that it means suffering to many local families who are utterly unable to buy coal now and who may find it impossible next winter to secure fuel. There is no use in waiting until the crisis comes before thinking of action. The time for deeds is now, not next winter, and the members of the Council should, without delay, investigate as far as possible the situation in regard to fuel and be prepared to carry out a policy that will assure protection for those citizens whose financial status prevents them from obeying the warning that has been issued. No one seems to be worrying about the matter at present, but the outlook is far from being reassuring, and the Council may as well face the facts and give earnest consideration to the problem of finding a remedy, else there will be many a cheerless home in Peterborough when the cold weather comes.

THOSE THAT MOURN

There are many people in Hamilton who will not be able to participate with unrestrained joy in the peace celebration tomorrow. The sight of the marching veterans will make more acute their sense of loss and intensify their yearning for their "unreturning brave." The mingled pride and grief which they felt in bidding those dear ones God-speed when they went away to the war; the long days and nights — many sleepless nights — of suspense and anxiety after every report of a great battle in which the Canadians took part; the shock of the terrible news which brought lasting grief to them, and the numbing heartache that succeeded and will not wear away — all will be recalled and revived by the sight of marching men and the sound of martial music tomorrow. They had hoped to welcome their own beloved soldier sons or husbands or brothers or sweethearts home from the war, and to see them marching with their comrades in triumphal parade. With their sense of bereavement heavy upon them, how can these mourners rejoice?

Yet even for them there should be a note of joy, of subdued and chastened joy, in the celebration of peace. For the celebration of the peace of victory is to them an assurance that their loved ones whom they gave to the great cause did not die in vain. The lives of those fallen soldiers were not wasted. The martial music heard tomorrow will be their most fitting requiem — no wailing dead marches of pibrochs, but the triumphant music of victory. "Blow out, ye bugles, over the rich dead." Every home that sent forth to the war a soldier who will never come back is a shrine dedicated to the honored memory of that soldier. By and by the loving pride with which his memory is cherished will have survived the anguish of bereavement.

And these absent heroes will survive in their example to the coming generations. In that thought there should be comfort to those who mourn. The self-sacrifice and exalted spirit of duty manifested by our volunteer soldiers will raise the standard of Canadian manhood. Because of what they did and suffered and endured, untold thousands of Canadians will bend to the tasks of life with more loyalty to duty, a purer patriotism, and a more unselfish devotion to principle.

"When the last post sounds, and the night is on the battlefield,
Night and rest at last from all the tumult of our dreams,
Will it not be well with us,
Veterans, veterans,
If with duty done like yours we lie beneath the stars?"

—Hamilton Herald.

COD FISH CAKES

Six large potatoes and one pound of salt codfish. Pare potatoes and boil 20 minutes, then lay the fish (in large pieces) on top and boil until the potatoes are done; remove all the bones and mash the fish and potatoes together while hot. Butter size of small egg, pepper and salt to taste, one egg well beaten or if you want them very white, use whites of two eggs instead. Beat thoroughly with a silver fork until the mixture is light and creamy. With a knife and spoon make into small cakes and slip into hot fat. Fry two or three minutes, turning them often.

Voice Of The People

To the Editor of the Daily Examiner.

Sir—Within the last week some notification appeared in the press that a committee had been selected to consider the form, resources possible, and auspices under which action might be taken to erect a memorial to the service and memory of the soldiers who have given their lives in battle for the Commonwealth.

It may have escaped your recollection that on November 28th, last, a public meeting was called under authority of the Mayor, at which preliminary discussion was had. The meeting was fairly representative of the citizens, and the following Resolution was passed:

"That a further meeting be called by the Mayor, after an interval, and at such meeting a proposition be put together, and afterward be submitted to a general public meeting for discussion and approval, That the Mayor and Council nominate representative citizens from various public bodies to act on such committee. That the Warden and County Council be invited to co-operate." Carried.

In view of the action taken it would be well to take up action where left off, and carry on making use of that which has already been done.

It is further understood, that presently we shall be able to utilize the services of public officials acting under the purview of the Dominion Government, who will afford practical suggestion, comparative estimates of costs, ideas as to advisability of location, nature and form of memorial, etc., and advantage might be taken of this service.

Respectfully,

F. H. DOBBIN

To the Editor of the Daily Examiner.

Dear Sir: — I note that at the last meeting of the Cheese Board, the reason given for an adjournment of one week, is said to be "largely as a protest against the lack of interest which many of the patrons have shown for several years, and against what members term the evil of selling off the Board."

The fact is Sir, that when the Board adjourned on July 4th, the adjournment should have been for 3 weeks, in line with the procedure of former Cheese Boards. They knew that by calling a board meeting for July 16th, they would be selling cheese right up to the hoops, while cheese are required to be at least 10 days old before shipment—again the British Government is likely to commandeer all Canadian cheese, and a cheese commission from the British Food Board, is already on the way to Canada, (if it has not already arrived,) to try and arrange matters connected with the cheese trade, and it is probable that some arrangement similar to last year will be made. Meantime the wholesale houses are unable to quote prices definitely until they meet this commission.

This is the real reason why only two buyers appeared at the Board on the 16th. and offered a price they considered safe, under the circumstances, and it seems to me that the only object accomplished by that abortive meeting, was to enable certain members rid themselves of that 23 year-old grudge against certain others, who cannot always agree with them.

Yours respectfully,

A. E. K.

LABOUR AND LIQUOR

Toronto, July 18th. 1919.

Few social developments are more significant than the changed attitude of organized labour to prohibition. Two years ago the Trades and Labour Councils of Canadian cities were strongly arrayed in opposition to the various prohibitory laws, and not the least reason for this was the distrust awakened by the fact that prohibition was advocated by large employers for what workmen supposed to be class purposes.

The working out of prohibition, however, has had unexpected results. Union meetings are better attended and there is less disposition to leave early before the bars should close. And certainly the new conditions under prohibition have made far more sustained attention and study of the problems of industry.

It is not surprising therefore that prohibition has been accompanied by an emphatic re-assertion of the aspirations of labour for better conditions and more effective organization in support of those aspirations. This explains why leading authorities in the shipbuilding industry appeared before the U. S. Senate Committee in opposition to prohibition on the ground that increased industrial unrest followed the doing away of the liquor trade.

On the other hand men like Professor Leacock have awakened deep resentment by pleas that the ordinary worker is far more happy sitting with his mug of beer than attending to the duties of his union. And writers in labour papers have protested against the efforts of men conspicuous in financial circles to restore the open sale of liquor.

It is, therefore, not surprising that one labour council after another has placed itself on record as favouring prohibition. While there are still several who have not thus fully changed their mind, and others who would favor the provision for beer, there is no doubt about a widespread and definite change from hostility to support of drastic measures for the restriction of the sale of liquor.

Great efforts have been put forth to secure from various unions and Labour Councils, expressions of opposition to total prohibition, but the efforts to maintain the old line-up have been quite disappointing.

If prohibition brings as its first result a more thoughtful and disciplined, and also a more ambitious spirit in organized labour, every true citizen will rejoice.

Yours faithfully,

ERNEST THOMAS
Board of Social Service.

To the Editor of the Examiner,—

Dear Sir:—I would like to express myself on the subject of the high cost of living. Of course it is supply and demand. The blame sometimes is put unjustly on the farmer but to me it appears that this old world will not come to normal conditions till we in the urban centers count our idle moments and put forth every effort to produce something and back up the farmer in great production. But you will say that the farmer will not pay the wages but the farmer is willing to pay and will pay the wage providing we do the work but the trouble is that some of us are looking for the wage and the 5 o'clock bell. We have here in this city able bodied men walking the streets and their wives working in the hot factories to pay the rent and feed them. We have also young men living on the hospitality of their boarding mistress. There should be some drastic measure to put such at work among farmers under a strict penalty for poor service. We in our city are not doing justice to the farmer from a business stand point and if our own city loses the patronage of the farmer it will be largely due to poor service from the business places of this city. Only this week a farmer came into town Thursday afternoon to do some business and found the stores closed and went home and sent an order of $120.00 to Toronto, we the citizens of the city owe to the farmers good service as they are the country's greatest asset.

Thanking you, I remain
Yours truly,
W. H. MERRILL.

| | $414.96 |

Moved by Councillor Porter, seconded by Councillor Young, that the council grant the sum of $120 to the Great War Veterans' Association of Lakefield. Carried.

A by-law, No. 563 entitled a bylaw to authorize the levying of school debentures, general debentures, county and general rates and assessments for the village of Lakefield for the year 1919, received its several readings and was passed. The rate was set at 30 mills. A reduction of 2 mills on last year.

Want Fish Hatchery.

Moved by Councillor Smith, seconded by Councillor Young, that the clerk be instructed to write Messrs. James Thompson, M.P.P. and George Gillespie, M.P.P., intimating to them the strong desire of this council that the Government establish a fish hatchery at Lakefield, that he remind them of the likelihood of the Dominion Government building a new dam here in the near future and pointing out that the construction of the dam and hatchery could be carried on simultaneously.

Moved by Councillor Porter, seconded by Councillor Macdonald that A. G. Clysdale's account for tile be paid, $49.95.

The council then adjourned.

STREET RAILWAY VS. POWER

Sir Adam wants to keep the fat and let us simps take the lean ...

The Railway Committee of the Council went to Toronto to interview Sir Adam Beck, with the view of having much-needed and overdue extensions made to the Street Railway system. Sir Adam made a counter-proposition that the city buy the railway and make its own extensions.

Sir Adam knows full well that the Street Railway and the gas plant are the "lame ducks" of the Hydro Commission's property in this portion of the province that have not paid, and will not likely pay for years to come, and that it would be good business on his part "to load" these unprofitable enterprises on to the City of Peterborough.

Sir Adam knows that his Hydro Commission derives a gross revenue out of the sale of power in Peterborough of upwards of $60,000.00 per year. He does not suggest that the city take over any of the dams under his control and take the benefit of this unprofitable investment, but he wants the city to take over the Street Railway and gas plant, which are the losing end of his business.

If Sir Adam succeeds in this, he will make a better showing for the Hydro in this district and add more glory to his name—and both at the expense of the city.

If the city really wants to embark in a profitable enterprise, let our Council apply to the Minister of Railways and Canals for a lease of Dams 4 and 5 on the Otonabee.

These dams will develop as much power as the Quaker Oats Dam. The estimated cost of the development and equipment of this power, given to me before the war, was $250,000.00. Now it would cost more, and still be a very profitable investment, because the city has control of its own market, consuming annually $60,000.00 worth of power.

It is true that Sir Adam acquired the lease of Dam No. 5, but he can be forced to give up his rights. In fact, he has already abandoned his rights to this dam, because he has already removed its electrical equipment and has ceased to make use of this power.

I know the terms of his lease of this power at Dam No. 5. If he ceases to operate it for one year and six months, all the rights of the tenant are forfeited and all the rights of the Hydro in this valuable power have long since been forfeited.

All our Council has to do is to apply for a lease of Dams Nos. 4 and 5. The Government offered it to private investors at $2,500.00 per annum; and no doubt our City Council could do better. Dr. Reid, the Minister of Railways and Canals, some time ago at the Empress Hotel intimated as much, because, he said, if Sir Adam did not develop these fine waterways on the Trent River basin, the Dominion Government would have to take steps to do so.

This investment on the part of our city would be one of the safest and best in the Province, and would pay for itself in a few years.

Sir Adam is neglecting this city. It is well located to secure cheap power, but to-day it is not as well off as Cobourg and Port Hope. If this city owned and developed its own power at Dams Nos. 4 and 5, it could then, at a later date, purchase the Auburn power plant when the city got ready to buy it on its own terms.

In the meantime, let Sir Adam keep his Street Railway and his gas plant. He wants to keep the fat and let us simps take the lean.

Sincerely yours,
R. R. HALL.
Peterborough, 22nd July, 1919.

OLD SUPERSTITIONS ABOUT WEARING SHOES

Many superstitions are connected with shoes. It is thought unlucky to put either shoe on the wrong foot. Because Augustus Caesar was nearly assassinated by a mutiny one day when he put on his left shoe first, a saying has arisen that the right shoe must be put on first, unless its owner wishes to court misfortune. Pythagoras, the old Greek sage, told his disciples to put their left foot into their baths first. In Anglo-Saxon marriages the father-in-law puts the bride's shoe to the bridegroom, who touched her on the head with it, to denote his lordly authority.

To make a tough steak tender, rub it on both sides with vinegar and olive oil thoroughly mixed, and allow it to stand for two hours before cooking.

Good silage is a splendid and economical feed for horses, but poor silage may kill them.

Calico draperies are revived for summer use in living rooms.

Salsify and potato souffle make a good "main dish" for luncheon.

A tablespoonful of soda in a pan of warm water cleans combs and hair brushes. Dry in sun.

A table of weights and measures, typewritten and framed under glass should be hung in every kitchen.

BARBARA VISITS NEIL'S NEW OFFICES

CHAPTER XXI.

Neil often spoke of Blanche Orton's money.

"A woman with as much dough as she has, can help a man in many ways," he had said when someone told of how she had started her brother on the road to fortune; and how it had been her money that had furthered many schemes of Orton's.

"I wish I had money to bring you, Neil." I never had thought of it before. That is, not until I heard him speak of Mrs. Orton's money.

"I'll make money enough if people will let me alone!" His answer had been gruff. "I wish you had a little of her pep. You might influence some of these fools."

"I would do everything I could to help, if you would let me."

"But you won't drink, and make them feel easy. You are too conventional for the men I have to deal with."

It was the first time he ever had spoken so to me. I thought it an absurd idea that people, women, had to be so unconventional to be of help to their husbands.

"You see, Bab, I am making money, doing a good business. But I want to do more. It costs us like the devil to live. I want to put over some really big deals, get as many of the fat things as I can. I hate piking. And there are lots of big fat things to be had, but a man does not get them by sitting in his office. You have got to go after them. And what gets one man, drives another away."

I had been in Neil's office but a few times. It had been a commonplace office enough. But he had moved, and I never had seen the new rooms. So one day I thought I would surprise him by dropping in upon him unexpectedly. He had just gone into business for himself.

I was the surprised one. Neil was out, but the offices were there—very much there. Great, luxuriously furnished rooms, all oriental rugs and gleaming mahogany. Not one or two, but a suite of half a dozen rooms opening into one another! One or two men, evidently bookkeepers, were bending over their desks, and a couple of very pretty but over-dressed, over-coiffured blondes were also pretending to work at their typewriters, but in reality were watching me as I made my tour of inspection.

"Did Mr. Forbes leave any word as to when he would return?" I asked one of the girls.

"No—he may not come back today," with a toss of the head.

"Very well, then I will leave no message." Suddenly it struck me that I would not tell who I was. I would have a little joke with Neil about it.

"Won't you leave your name?" she asked, rather eagerly, I thought.

"No—it is immaterial."

I smiled to myself as I went down in the elevator. I would have some fun with Neil about my visit. But my smiles were soon dissipated by thoughts which I seemed unable to control.

Why was it necessary for Neil to have such wonderful offices? The girl had said he often remained out all day. What did he do that kept him away? There was nothing really business-like about the offices, although so solidly furnished. Everything looked so new, so unused.

I recalled father's desk—dusty, littered with papers and mail. How he never would allow anyone to touch things because he might get something mixed if they did. I sighed as I thought how different Neil had things. Poor father, he wouldn't know what to do in such offices. I imagined he would feel strangled. Choked with luxury.

I was using my new car for the first time. A lovely town and shopping car Neil had ordered for me. I drove home through the park, going quite out of my way to do so. But it was a lovely day and I hated to go in doors. Just as I drove along the mall, I saw Neil and Blanche Orton in a taxi coming toward me. I shrank back in the corner. Perhaps if they didn't see me, the car would pass unnoticed. I need not have worried; neither of them even so much as glanced toward me as they passed.

To-morrow—Bab Learns of a Business Luncheon—Blanche Orton Is There.

STONE CANNON BALLS.

They Were Used in Iron Guns That Were Held Together by Screws.

In these days of huge projectiles urned to fit exactly into cannon that are as near mechanically perfect as modern engineering can make them it s almost impossible to believe that at one time the Turks carried on effective warfare with wrought iron cannon screwed together and firing stone cannon balls.

Two of these cannon balls are to be seen at the museum of Hobart college at Geneva, N. Y.

They were used by the Turks in their war against the kingdom of Cyprus, one of the numerous Christian states which grew out of the crusades The stronghold of the enemy was the city of Famagusta. In 1571 the Turks undertook to reduce its walls. For nearly a year they hurled stone cannon balls against them. The stones varied in weight from a few pounds to several hundred. In order to conserve the force of the explosion the balls were made to fit the bore of the cannon as nearly as possible, and they were fired with great deliberation.

This method, though crude, was at that time regarded as the height of refinement in siege warfare. The city finally surrendered because its food supply was cut off. It was found that the stone projectiles had done great damage to the walls and spread terror among the defenders. At the siege of Constantinople in 1453 stone shot were also used by the Turks effectively. As late as 1807, when the Turks defended Constantinople against the British, these guns were used effectively, as the records of the British war office show.

Labor-Saving Harvester.

One thousand improved wheat-harvesting machines, known as combines, will be used in Washington state and other states of the Northwest this year, according to farm-help specialists of the United States department of agriculture, and will effect a great saving in labor. These machines, which cut the heads from wheat and thrash the grain as they travel across the field, can be operated by two persons and each machine will harvest from 160 to 400 acres of wheat during a season. They are marked labor savers over the old type combine, which required about 20 men.

DOG REFUSED TO STAY DEAD

Indianapolis Policeman Found He Had Not Done as Good a Job as He Thought.

Frank Finney, motor policeman, lost his reputation as a marksman the other day after he and his partner, Ben Lansing, had been called to the Coburn Storage and Warehouse company, 211 West Georgia street, to end the suffering of a dog that had been run over by an automobile.

Finney shot the dog, all right, the bullet apparently putting an end to the animal's suffering. In fact attaches of the warehouse officially pronounced the dog dead, and told the two motor policemen they could return to headquarters, as further services would not be needed.

A short time after the motor policemen returned, an attache of the warehouse telephoned to Captain Sanders and told him the dog apparently had "come to life again" and was trying to walk. Finney and Lansing were sent back to complete the job. The former, however, refused to take a hand in the affair, contending that he had killed it the first time, so Lansing was chosen as executioner, and the dog was really and finally killed.—Indianapolis News.

Doughboy Missed Treasure.

At Varennes they still show the place where the doughboy fainted.

For the greater part of a week he had been busy there at the humble tasks of general police when into his bailiwick burst an anxious French soldier, who explained that Varennes had been his home before the war, and that he had had to leave it hastily when the Germans came four years before.

After much explanation, he began to prospect about as though he were looking for oil, finally took his bearings, paced three to the right from the pharmacie, ten to the north, four to the east. Then he dug. He dug and he dug, and at last the doughboy saw—disinterred from the very spot where he had been puttering all week—the tidy sum of 20,000 francs in gold.

The Course of True Love.

"Clarence Spradd has had a spat with that 'are plump Guggies girl," related Burt Blurt of Petunia. "He bought one of them there fashionable, thin-legged suits of clothes with a belt and a pucker in the back, and expected it would make him look like the swell young fellers in the advertising columns of the newspapers. And the Guggies girl said he looked more like a comic picture in another part of the same paper. He up and told her he'd rather be hung than to marry her, and she said she'd rather he would be."—Kansas City Star.

Bell's First Phone.

The first message to be carried by a length of wire, with the human voice as a medium, was in 1876. From his room in the upper story of a boarding house at Boston, Alexander Graham Bell, of Brantford, Ont., telephoned to his assistant, Thomas F. Watson, on the floor below: "Mr. Watson, come here; I want you." That first telephone was adapted only to sending from one end of the line, so Watson's reply was to rush up the stairs, shouting triumphantly: "I heard you." It was a moment of joy for the inventor and his coworker, but they still had many obstacles to overcome. In the same year Bell and Watson carried on a conversation over a two-mile wire between Boston and Cambridge. At the Philadelphia Exposition that year Bell exhibited a crude model of his telephone, but it attracted little interest.

GOES FAR BACK IN HISTORY

French City of Montdidier Was of Importance in First Millennium of the Christian Era.

The National Geographic society issues the following war geography bulletin on Montdidier, a few miles east of Amiens:

"This little town, whose history dates back to the first millennium of the Christian era, had a population of less than 5,000 at the beginning of the war, but it was rich in historic associations. It is said to have derived its name from the fact that Didier or Desiderius, the last of the Lombard kings, was imprisoned here in 774 by Charlemagne. It will be remembered that Charlemagne, having put aside his first wife, Desiderius' daughter, took up the quarrel of Pope Adrian I with the Lombard monarch, and after marching an army across the Alps, captured the erstwhile father-in-law's capital city, Ticinum, and took the vanquished ruler back to France, where he died in captivity.

"Montdidier is attractively situated on an eminence on the banks of the river Dan. It is the capital of an arrondissement in the department of the Somme, and is 62 miles north of Paris by rail, and 22 miles southeast of Amiens. Its chief industries before the war were tanneries and the manufacture of cigarettes.

"When the tide of war finally recede it is probable that the three buildings in which the citizens of Montdidier took the greatest pride will be crumbling ruins. These are the church of St. Pierre, which was built before Columbus set sail on his voyage of discovery, and which contains a tomb and font of the eleventh century; the church of St. Magdalene, a fifteenth century edifice, and the Palais de Justice, formerly the city castle. In the last named building visitors before the war were shown six unusually handsome Brussels tapestries of the seventeenth century. These were undoubtedly removed before the Germans entered the city.

"Montdidier's most famous son was Parmentier, the scientist, who gave impetus to the culture of the potato in France. A statue erected bids commemorates his gift to the nation.

"For a number of years this little city was governed by its own lords, then passed under the dominion of the counts of Crepy and Valois. In the twelfth century it became a possession of the French crown and received a charter of liberties. In 1636 it offered a gallant and successful resistance to the Spanish invaders."

Many Feeble-Minded.

A complete census of the feeble-minded in the United States has never been taken, but it is estimated that there is one feeble-minded person to every 200 of the population, or approximately 450,000 in all, according to the secretary of one of the New York mental hygiene organizations. About 12,000 men have been rejected from the new national army on account of nervous and mental disorders; and one-third of these were rejected on account of feeble-mindedness.

RUTH'S VISION

By H. D. Kennedy.)

Come back with me into olden times, and I will show you a roadside scene. Three women stand—one old, two young. Who are they, do you ask? Listen! and I will tell you. One is Naomi; old friendless and poor one is Orpah, young beautiful and fair; the other is Ruth, virtuous and true. See! they gaze on each other. Hark! Naomi speaks—with pleading tones she beseeches the others to return to Moab. Will they go? Look! Orpah with loving face and tearful eye, kisses her mother dear, then turns away, not that she loves Naomi less, but that she loves Moab more. On, on she goes; but see! she stops, once and again, and, looking back, sees Ruth locked in Naomi's arms and hopes that she will come. On, on she plods, with heavy step and lonely heart, till she reaches her cabin home. She retires for the night, the lamp still lit, the door unbarred. Hush! she hears a step. "'Tis Ruth! 'tis Ruth, my sister dear; I knew that she would come. Listen! But no; the step it passeth on." She tosses on her bed, but cannot rest, and the night wears on. But look!—does she sleep? Yes, Orpah sleeps. Hush! I hear her sob, and in the morn I see her wake. She feels for Ruth; but lo! Ruth is not there; Orpah is alone. And now let us return to the roadside scene.

Behold Ruth once more in Naomi's arms! Naomi speaks; in tender tones she pleads with Ruth to return. "See!" she says "thy sister is gone and she will need thee with her in her home." Does Ruth obey? Methinks I hear her voice praying that she may stay. I hear her say, "Naomi, listen awhile to me, and I will tell thee all. Rememberest thou not the day when thy husband lay dying?—how thou didst kneel by his bedside with heavy heart and thy cup of sorrow seemed more than full? Mother, I watched thee that day and heard thee pray, and as thou didst intercede, thy face didst shine, and a joy appeared to thrill thy soul as thou didst rise from his bedside, didst wrap him in a shroud and lay him in the tomb. Oh! yes, Naomi, thou didst let thy light shine in that dark hour, and reveal to me thy confidence in thy God. 'Tis true, Naomi, thou didst walk among the daughters of Moab like a queen and glorified thy God. And oh, my mother dost thou not recall that other day when I, a broken-hearted wife, knelt by the dying bed of him I loved? And oh, how dark it seemed—the clouds hung thick o'er my head; my sun had set and no star of hope appeared. I gazed upon that face and saw the brightness fade, the eyes began to stare, and I felt the hands grow icy cold. I beseeched the gods of Moab, but they heard not my cry. I was alone, and my grief was greater than I could bear, when, dear mother, thou camest and didst kneel by my side; tenderly didst thou put thine arm about me and didst whisper in my ear "Daughter, look up." I obeyed; I raised mine eyes unto the hills, from whence came my help; mine eyes were opened, and by faith I saw a cross; and upon it a form like unto the Son of Man; on His brow a crown of thorns, and as I beheld I heard Him say: 'Daughter, thy sins which were many are all forgiven,' and I felt the burden of my guilt roll away, for He said: 'I have born thy sins in mine own body on the tree.' As I still gazed, the cross disappeared, and far beyond I saw seated on a throne the same Form, yet now in glory. He appeared as the 'Lily of the Valley fair and the Rose of Sharon sweet'— to me the Son of Righteousness with healing in His wings, and lo! a great multitude stood abound His throne and sang the praises of His name.

"As I yet beheld, I saw him whom I loved stand in raiment white amongst the throng; with gentle hand he bade me come, when lo! the voice of the King was heard hushing the harps of gold and stopping the songs of praise. I saw Him bending toward me and heard Him say, 'Daughter, be of good cheeer, for I have born thy griefs and carried thy sorrows,' and as He spoke my heart grew calm and a flood of light engulfed my soul, and underneath were the Everlasting Arms. Then once more I saw him whom I loved, stand in flowing robes and on his head a crown, and I longed to go; but I heard the loving Saviour's voice from His throne in heaven say: 'Daughter, wait; in my Father's house are many mansions; I am here preparing a place for thee.' As I listened, He spake on and called aloud: "Oh daughter of Moab, rejoice, for he, for whom thou didst mourn is not dead, but liveth evermore.' Then didst hope rise within my breast for I, though Moab's daughter, and not of Israel born, saw a wideness in God's mercy like the wideness of the sea, and I trusted Him to bring me safely home.

"And now, Naomi, turn me not away from following after thee, for although thou art homeless, friendless and poor, yet will I go with thee, and where thou lodgest will I lodge. for, I, too am but a pilgrim and a stranger in the earth; but I know if my earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved I have a building of God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. Oh! send me not back again to the gods of Moab, for they are cold dead things, made of wood and stone. Entreat me not to leave thee, from following after thee, for thy God shall be my God, and thy people shall be my people, and naught but death shall part thee and me." And Naomi, overcome by the pleadings of Ruth, yields and the curtain falls and the scene is changed.

Fifty years roll by. Come again with me to the land of Moab. We enter a lowly cot, and on a dying bed see a wasted form. Her hair is white; her face is pale; her eyes are closed; her friends and neighbours gather around to see her pass away. Hush! she speaks. Listen! what does she say? "Ruth never came! Ruth never came! Oh! if I had only gone! Oh! if I had only gone! But now too late, too late!" Poor Orpah! Look at her as the clouds hang o'er her pillow! Hark! Hear her cry, "I'm lost! I'm lost! I'm lost!" as her feet touch the chilly Jordan and its dark waters overwhelm her soul. Down, down, down she sinks, into the blackness and the gloom! Hush ye sons of ment! Hear her wail, from the eternal flame, as she looks across the gulf that's fixed and, on the farther side, sees again in Paradise Ruth in Naomi's arms. Be still! oh, hear her call!—"Naomi, oh, Naomi, send Ruth that she may dip her finger in water and cool my tongue, for I am tormented in this flame!" But Naomi answers: "Daughter, remember that on earth thou didst choose Moab's pleasures and her gods, and Ruth chose that better part, and now she is comforted, whilst thou art tormented." And Orpah shrieks in dark despair until her voice is hushed. From this black scene let us turn back to a brighter one in Canaan's land and Bethlehem's town.

Another death-bed scene. See! a woman lies, with silvery hair and queenly face. Her children gather round. Hush! be still. Her heart throbs fainter and fainter, when lo! what is that I hear?—a shepherd's harp, and [illegible] singer sings: "Though [illegible] walk through the valley [illegible] shadow of death, thou [illegible]; for thy God is with thee. He [illegible]-keeper and thy shade upon thy right hand, therefore shalt thou abide in the cleft of the rock and under the shadow of His wing." When [illegible] place is filled with heavenly [illegible] and two angels appear in shining apparel and hover o'er her pillow. With tender touch they lift her, and soar away—up! up! up! Look! look! look! They bear her away on their snowy pinions to her immortal home. The gates of pearl, they swing ajar; they sweep through the streets of gold, and Ruth clasps hands with her mother dear, who has beckoned her to come, and they walk together this very night in their eternal home. They sit beneath the tree of life that stands beside the throne and drink of the river sparkling bright, that flows in the land where there's no night; they're clothed in garments pure and white; they live in a mansion fair, and crowns are on their heads so bright, which they'll for ever wear.

It seems as if there is a union of feeling out in this country that does not exist in the east. Somehow it seems as if everyone was in the same boat and everyone had the chance to get out of it. Almost every farmer came to this country a poor man. Mostly unmarried and seeking homesteads. Ranchers are, as a rule, a little wealthier than formers, but no imitation cordiality is made in the reception of anyone to their homes. The well-to-do have a strong inclination to help others out, as they remember how they had to work for their money. Not the slightest difference is made no matter what difference there may be in the circumstances of the same and you are more liable to be called a real friend than a thief if you help yourself to any "eats" around your neighbour's when you run out yourself. Often folks come for a meal and explain that they are run out of everything eatable around their place. Just to impress you with the brotherly feeling that possesses the people, I will tell you without exaggeration, of a sale of home-made cooking held in even as forsaken and deserted looking place as this is and where you may ride or drive from two to five miles without passing a building.

Friday evening, July 4th, the ladies' grain-growers, held a sale of home-made cooking at the school house. The bachelors came from miles around besides the married men with their wives. A bachelor was auctioneer and things began to hum in particular. An extra small loaf of bread sold for thirty-five cents. Two cakes sold for five dollars apiece and another sold for six. A plate of buns sold for two dollars. Two pies went for three dollars each. Doughnuts were sold for one dollar a dozen. A paper cone, slightly larger than an ice cream cone, filled with home-made chocolates sold for two dollars and a quarter, while many more sold for two dollars each. In half an hour nothing was left to sell and in a whirl of confusion the auctioneer paid for the last cake. The total sum seems to be somewhat disputed and I cannot say for certain what it was. I will say nothing more than it was what you might expect when things were sold at such prices.

It is so far to town that it takes a good team a whole day to go and return with a load. Yet you nearly always find that over half of a trailer's load is composed of neighbour's wants and not his own.

You are thought too backward if you ask for what you want if you know it is not in use.

Boys are paid good wages and almost as much as men. If they do a man's work they get a man's pay [illegible] if they get a small pay for [illegible] wages, the farmer makes sure he does not do a man's work.

I may add now that wages are going at seventy-five dollars a month and board.

ROUTLY-BRAUND LTD.
NEW LOCAL COMPANY

The incorporation of Routly-Braund Limited, capitalized at $50,000, has been announced. This stock company absorbs the City Footwear Company, of which the late Robert Routly was the head. Extra capital will be put into the business which has been steadily expanding, and operations will be broadened to a bigger scale than ever. It is intended to make this business, which is located on Charlotte street, one of the biggest of its kind in Peterboro.

PROPOSED POWER LINE FOR FARMERS

Asphodel farmers are reported to be much perturbed over the surveying of the route of the proposed Hydro-Electric power line from Havelock and Norwood to Peterboro. Engineers have been at work recently on a line south of and parrallel to the C.P.R., and rumours of possible damage to crops and fields have been heard from the townships of Otonabee and Ashphodel.

PACKING HOUSE FLOTATION.

The Canadian public are now being offered an issue of $1,000,000 Allied Packers, Incorporated, 6 per cent. convertible sinking fund 20-year debenture bonds. This is part of an issue of $16,000,000, which was successfully offered in New York a few days ago. The debenture bonds are convertible into common stock at the rate of thirteen shares of common for every $1,000 bond. This gives to the bondholders for a period of twenty years a call on the common stock at slightly less than $77 per share.

It is understood that the Canadian branch of this concern will be known as the Canadian Packing Co., Limited, and will be headed by T. F. Matthews.

FOREIGN TRADE BOARD FOR WEST IS NOW PLANNED

M. A. BROWN CONSIDERS TIME OPPORTUNE FOR APPOINTMENT OF COMMISSION.

The demand for a foreign trade commission to represent the western provinces of Canada, exclusively, originated by the Alberta, Canada, Industrial Development Association, and urged by the president of that organization from ocean to ocean in many special addresses before public bodies, seems now to be certain of ultimate fulfilment, if one may judge by advices received at the headquarters of the Canadian Industrial Congress, August 11-16, from many sources.

Advices to this effect are received from Winnipeg, from Vancouver and even from Ottawa, and it is now apparent that many of the members of the Dominion Government look with favor on the idea.

The prospect for a foreign trade commission for the west was originated by Mayor M. A. Brown, of Medicine Hat, president of the Alberta Industrial Association. It is based on the belief that only by a proper investigation of the foreign markets for western Canadian products can the west build up industry to its maximum. Such an investigation, it is explained by Mayor Brown, would deal specifically with those possible markets for Canadian products lying on an adjacent to Pacific ocean routes of traffic and the vast undeveloped oriental marts.

Mayor Brown's Belief.

Mayor Brown holds to the belief that eventually western Canada will some day be manufacturing on a larger scale than eastern Canada because of the great potentialities in this connection in China and Japan as well as along the western coast of South America and in Australia.

"The world does not realize," Mr. Brown points out, "that one-seventh of the population of the globe is living and striving and working along the banks of one river alone in China. The possibility of the development of this wonderful market is just one aspect of the great trade which western Canada and the western portion of the United States will have the great opportunity to deal with.

"Great economics of the day, men with vision, see the development of the Pacific regions as the most striking aspect of the future of our continent. I may add that by Pacific regions I include those inland empires such as our own Alberta, Canada."

Strong support is being given the project for a western foreign trade commission, especially in Vancouver, B.C., Victoria, B.C., Seattle, Portland, and other western cities more easterly, such as Winnipeg, Regina and Saskatoon. All these cities will be represented by good delegates at the forthcoming Industrial Congress, to be held in Alberta in August. The principal or "educational" sessions of this congress will be held at Calgary, Canada, August 13 and 14. The Industrial men of the continent are being asked to participate.

OPENING SHOW AT THE GRAND

MABEL NORMAND IN A BRAND NEW ROLE—A GOOD SHOW.

Playing "Puckers" in "The Pest" shows Mabel Normand at her best. The play was enjoyed by a large audience in Manager Daha's Frozen Air Palace last night and the same screen play will be shown to-day and to-morrow, both afternoon and evening. It is replete with novelty from beginning to end and it kept the house in an uproar from the first scene to the last.

It excels even Mabel Normand as "Mickey," or Sis Hopkins, because it is a play which gives her every opportunity to touch both extremes of emotion and also presents her in an infinite variety of guises.

All sorts of adventures befall her but the funniest and most dramatic of all happens when she is invited to a party given by the daughter of the country judge. Vainly she hunts for something with which to cover up her rags, and finally goes to the party wearing the same old sweater and threadbare overalls, with the addition of a cameo ring found among a lot of odds and ends.

Once at the house, Blanche, the judge's daughter, (Leota Lorraine), gives Puckers an old dress, expecting her to make a laughing-stock of herself. Poor Puckers does this unmistakably. In the midst of the hilarity the judge (Alex. B. Francis)) notices the ring worn by the waif. It is this discovery which takes Blanche from her lofty perch and completely revolutionizes Puckers.

The famous screen beauty, Mae Murray, is the star in a special added attraction, "Danger, Go Slow," described as a cyclone of thrills.

Charlie Chaplin in "The Square Head," completes one of the finest screen programmes ever produced at the Grand.

to watch the flight saw the great machine buckle and quiver as it started for the ground on its fatal plunge.

As the blazing bag started its tragic descent four of its five occupants jumped and two of these landed safely in the streets as the "blimp," a veritable ball of flame, struck the roof of the bank with a crash audible throughout the Loop district. There was nothing to warn the hundreds of employees or the institution of the coming tragedy. A shadow passed over the marble rotunda where 150 were busy, and a terrifying crash followed.

It seemed, according to the survivors, that the entire bank was on fire. Breaking through the iron supports holding the glass overhead, the fusilage of the "blimp" with two heavy rotary engines and several gasoline tanks smashed to the floor.

Then the Tanks Explode.

Instantly the tanks exploded, scattering a wave of flaming gasoline over the workers for a radius of fifty feet. A panic ensued. There were only two exits through which the workers could leave the wire cage which surrounded the rotunda. Men and girls, with clothing flaming fought their way through the exits. Girls on the second floor ran screaming to the windows and several jumped to the street below.

In an instant the marble rotunda was cleared except for the dead, whose bodies were buried under the flaming mass, licked to a white heat by the gasoline blaze, and the dying who crawled feebly away from the scorching fire, their clothes slowly burning off.

The intense heat made rescue work impossible until after the fire department arrived. It was thirty minutes before the bodies under the craft's fusilage could be dragged out. They were burned beyond recognition.

Many Cut by Glass

Meanwhile ambulances from every hospital and undertaking establishment near the centre of the city came and the police threw a cordon about the place. Dozens of persons were found to have been more or less seriously cut by the shower of glass which preceded the explosion. The rescue work was watched by a crowd, of twenty thousand on La Salle street and Jackson boulevard while many more thousands took places of vantage on the buildings nearby.

The cause of the fire which brought the flaming gas bag plunging down is not known. None of the survivors of the crew could ascribe a definite reason. Two theories were offered, however. One was that a spark from the rotary motors, a dangerous type to be carried under an inflammable gas bag, set the gas afire. The other was that the balloon was overcharged and the sun's rays caused it to expand and burst, the fire allowing the contact of the gas with sparks in the motors.

The airship was an experimental device modelled after army planes and it had been planned to make a daily trip between an amusement park and Grant Park.

All Came Suddenly.

The following statement was given the police department by Jack Boettner, assistant pilot, of Akron, Ohio, who escaped by leaping from the balloon in a parachute:

"I have no idea how the ship caught fire. The two 80-horse-power motors had been working perfectly. Prior to the explosion we had made two successful cruises, not experiencing a bit of trouble.

"Just before she caught fire we were running smoothly. We had headed away from the lake, when I felt the ship buckle. I saw the flame leap from the side and yelled to the passengers to jump. They were all strapped in parachues and obeyed immediately. I think the fact that all did not land safely was due to the speed with which the burning dirigible fell. My own parachute caught fire, but I managed to land safely. The others probably caught fire and fell when the silk had burned from the parachute."

Among the dead are: John Weaver, Akron, Ohio ,assistant mechanic; Carl Otto, Akron, Ohio, assistant mechanic ;and Earl H. Davenport, formerly well-known sports writer, and publicity man for a local amusement park.

MUSIC IN THE HOME

A NEW ERA IN PIANO STUDY

With the growth of the movement in the United States for crediting outside music study in the public schools we have entered a new era in piano study instruction. The piano teacher, who has been a free lance up to the present, is now given a definite place in the school system. In return, however, he must conform to the pedagogical principles which that system has established.

If the pupil is studying French,, it is not sufficient that he learn to recite by rote a certain number of French poems. He must know the meaning of what he reads and must be able to translate it into English. He must study the grammar of the language, in order that he may become familiar with its construction and forms. He must learn to translate simple English sentences into good idiomatic French. Besides, he is expected to know something of the lives of the authors whose books he is reading, what they accomplished and upon what their fame rests.

The same must be true of music study, if it is to be worthy of school credit on the same basis as other school studies. It is not sufficient that the pupil be able to read mechanically a number of "show" pieces. He should know the meaning of what he plays, in order that he may play intelligently. He should study the spelling and grammar of music—harmony, the construction of chords, and musical forms. He should be able to transpose simple musical sentences into several keys. In addition, he should be expected to know something of the lives of the composers whose works he is studying, and their importance in the development of musical history.

In short, if outside music study—whether of piano or another instrument—is to receive credit, it must be thorough and systematic. The student's work must be planned out, graded, and standardized. Certain subjects, not ordinarily included in piano instruction, must be emphasized, namely, ear training, elementary theory, harmony, musical history and forms. It is obvious, however, that these subjects cannot be treated exhaustively, but each must be developed in its relation to the instrument studied. The various details of each lesson should be so correlated that each contributes to the comprehension of the others.

Such are the problems which confront the private teacher of music to-day, and which they must solve, in order that the interests of the school may be reconciled with those of the private teacher.

Remove scorch marks from linen by rubbing with a fresh-cut onion. Soak in cold water.

CANADIAN CANOE WITHSTOOD STORM IN LAKE ONTARIO

TORONTO MAN USING LOCAL COMPANY'S CANOE PUTTING IT THROUGH A SEVERE TEST.

P. W. Bryant of Toronto, who recently established a record by paddling across Lake Ontario, using a Canadian Canoe Company's canoe, reached Peterborough to-day after a long trip from Toronto to Port Hope, then portaging to Gore's Landing, crossed Rice Lake yesterday, and made the last leg of the trip in six hours and a half.

The Lake Ontario exploit, said to be the first crossing in a canoe, was performed about ten days ago. Accompanied by J. Clarke of Toronto, Mr. Bryant crossed from Toronto to Niagara-on-the-lake on the steamship channel. They set out in a light mist and faced a choppy sea all the way. Twelve or fifteen miles from port they were overtaken by what was said to be one of the worst storms of the season.

In a downpour of rain they ceased paddling and while one man held up his paddle as a make-shift sail, the other steered. By that means they covered nearly all the last part of the route. Their time for the entire crossing from land to land, a distance of 43 miles, was 8 hours and 40 minutes. Mr. Bryant used a compass when out of sight of land.

"Although we were given a choice of several makes of canoes before we started," he said, "with special safety devices, such as air chambers, etc., we decided to use a canoe made by the Canadian Canoe Company of Peterboro, which had previously travelled 1500 miles. Although it was put to the severest strain by the storm we made the crossing successfully and with our boat in perfect condition.

The Port Hope Trip.

Mr. Bryant and his wife left Toronto last Friday for their paddle to Port Hope. Their course lay about six or ten miles from shore, and they used the same Canadian canoe in which Mr. Bryant had crossed the lake. In six hours on the first day they covered the 33 miles to Whitby, and on Saturday they made the remaining 45 miles to Port Hope in eight hours. The last 15 miles were paddled in darkness, Port Hope being reached at 1.40 a.m., on Sunday.

Travelling by stage to Gore's Landing on Monday, Mr. and Mrs. Bryant came to Gore's Landing. Crossing Rice Lake they ran into decidedly heavy water, but crossed safely, and came on to Peterboro last night. On this trip 117 miles were paddled in 20 hours and 30 minutes.

Mr. Bryant will return to Toronto and prepare at once for another long trip, carrying out his purpose of paddling 4,000 miles in two seasons, accompanied by his wife. He has still 1160 miles to navigate and will use his Canadian canoe over the entire journey.

THE HIGH COST OF LIVING CREATES DISCORD IN FRANCE

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, July 22.—In readiness to hear the Government's declaration of its policy on which it had been announced a vote of confidence would be asked, the Chamber of Deputies met this morning.

Premier Clemenceau, it developed, was not ready to make his statement at the morning session, and the Chamber adjourned until this afternoon to await the Premier's pleasure.

There was much in the expected developments of the day to which great importance was attached, as it was anticipated that a motion for an interpellation of the Government on its general policy, which Francos Fournier, Independent Socialist, had given, might precipitate an animated debate.

The agitation against the Government has been most marked on the question of the high cost of living, the feeling of the members on this issue having resulted last week in a vote adverse to the Government.

The issue was met, temporarily at least, by the withdrawal of Victor Boret as Food Minister—N. Noulen former Ambassador to Russia, taking his place.

DOES ADVERTISING PAY?

Many advertisers, and particularly retail advertisers, never get the full cumulative power of advertising behind their business because they lack patience. They demand direct returns. They run a one-time announcement in the local paper to-day and look for sales enough—sales directly traceable to the little one-time advertisement—before next week to pay for the cost of the space. Of course they are disappointed. Retail advertising seldom works out that way. But they are impatient for results. They are not prepared to invest money in advertising as they would in new goods, in store fixtures, in stocks or in real estate—and wait for profits to be earned. No. The returns of to-day's advertising must ring in cash profits to-morrow, or, in the estimation of too many retail dealers, the advertising is not worth what it costs.

Hand-to-mouth advertising is not worth what it costs. It yields only hand-to-mouth returns. To show the best results as a business building power, the advertising of the retail merchant must be persistent. Its chief purpose should be to build up permanent trade; to make the people of your community turn to your store in preference to other stores; to make them think of you and of your place of business; to convince them that they cannot get better quality and price and service anywhere.

"Would you advise a sixty-inch advertisement in the newspaper once a week or six ads. covering ten inches of space each week?" was one of the questions asked.

"I would advise six ads., one each day, or, better still, three twenty—inch ads. each week," replied the advertiser.

"Anything that is desirable is advertisable," he said, and pointed out that the desirability of an article depends much on the consistency with which it is advertised.

"One of the best ways to advertise is to cultivate the confidence you have acquired and they will assist you in your advertising."

His final message was: "Advertise and get out mail-grams."

HASTINGS YACHT BLOWN TO PIECES

SEVERAL MEN HAD A NARROW ESCAPE—HASTINGS NEWS.

HASTINGS, July 22.—An accident which might easily have proved more serious occurred on Saturday morning at Healey Falls when Mr. Chas. Fowlds' yacht carrying a party consisting of Messrs. Fowlds, John Thomson, Walter Thomson, Lieut. Currie of Ottawa and C. Doughty was blown to pieces and sank. The trouble arose, from a defective engine which caused an explosion in the gasoline tank. Some of the party were blown into the water and others badly burned. Lieut. Currie was so seriously scorched that he was conveyed to the hospital in Ottawa where his injuries were attended to. Mr. C. Fowlds was badly burned and has been confined to his home, but latest reports are that he is improving.

Drowning Accident

The sad drowning accident which occurred on Saturday evening has cast a gloom over the entire village Late in the evening a telephone message was received that Mr. Leo Lynch had met death by drowning at a point some miles up the river. It appears that he in company with Messrs. Geo. Stevenson, H. Lambert and W. Turner had gone up to spend the afternoon and on the return journey when not far from the shore where there was a bed of weeds, the unfortunate man slipped into the water and not being a practical swimmer was drowned. The party tried in vain to locate the body but their efforts were unavailing and they were obliged to go to shore and call for assistance. Some men at once started for the scene and after a short time the body was found. The funeral was held from his late residence on Monday morning to the Roman Catholic church and thence to the church cemetery for interment He leaves to mourn his loss a sorrowing wife and a little daughter, besides his aged father and several brothers and sisters to whom universal sympathy is extended.

A Holiday

Saturday was generally observed as a holiday, all places of business being closed and the citizens enjoying themselves in various ways.

A little son has come to brighten the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Preston.

Mr. Albert Armstrong of Toronto, is visiting friends in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Prentice are holidaying with friends in Foxboro.

Miss Gertie Hill of Toronto, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. Hill.

Mrs. Roberts has returned from a visit with friends in Morganston.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart of North Bay, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. Baker.

How You Can Remove Every Trace of Hair

(Toilet Talks.)

A stiff paste made with some powdered delatone and water and spread on a hairy surface about 2 minutes will, when removed, take ever trace of hair with it. The skin should then be washed to free it from the remaining delatone. No harm can result from this treatment, but be sure it is delatone you get and you will not be disappointed.

BANK ROBBERY.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., July 22.—A lone robber entered the Imperial Bank of Commerce at one o'clock yesterday afternoon and held up the lady teller and secured two thousand dollars.

WEAK, NERVOUS CHILDREN QUICKLY GAIN STRENGTH UNDER FOLLOWING PLAN

Nervousness, just like weakness, is a family predisposition. We inherit tendencies to disease just as we inherit physical resemblances. The strain of study, social duties, work at home — these all tend to make nervous troubles among children. No wonder that St. Vitus' Dance, Epilepsy, and constant headaches have become alarmingly common. Pale, nervous, listless young people are met everywhere.

It is nothing short of criminal for parents to neglect signs of weakness in their children. By ignoring the slightest symptom of nervous or mental strain, you may condemn your child to life-long invalidism. If any member of your family complains of headaches, fear of going into dark places, give them that wonderful tonic, "Ferrozone." Strength of body and mind, hardy nerves, ability to study with comfort, all the attributes of health quickly follow the use of Ferrozone. It establishes strength, color, endurance, vim—does this by filling the whole system with nourishment and tissue-forming materials.

It's because we know the enormous good that Ferrozone will do, because we are sure every child and even grown folks, will be permanently benefitted, that we urge you to give it a trial. All dealers sell Ferrozone in 50c. boxes, six for $2.50, or direct by mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

A Sad Note.

Not since early in 1914 has Stoney Lake been as gay. Cottages that have been closed and lifeless for years, are opened and full of happy holiday makers. Peace is celebrated daily at Stoney Lake by grateful parents and by happy returned soldiers. In this year of joy and gladness there is the sad note as one thinks of those who are staying in France, who gave their lives for the world's peace. One hears the reward from returned men who have been overseas for several years. Stoney Lake seems smaller than it used to be. Some have brought their English wives to show them their ideal summer paradise.. A re-union of the returned Canadian soldiers in Lakefield would be a most fitting celebration of peace year.

BIGGEST GAME OF THE YEAR WHEN BELLEVILLE COMES HERE SATURDAY

One of the biggest crowds that ever saw an amateur ball game in Peterborough will undoubtedly be present at Riverside Park on Saturdoay afternoon, when Belleville and Peterborough meet in the crucial game in the Central Ontario League series. If Belleville wins this game the race is over. On the other hand, a victory for the Petes practically means a tie between them and either Belleville or Port Hope. The Ontarios still have a chance if the Petes win Saturday, although it is a slim one, for to qualify they have to beat both Belleville and Oshawa on their grounds.

Belleville have beaten Peterborough twice this season. In the first game at Belleville they were nosed out 5 to 4 in a ten innings game. The game was ordered replayed at Port Hope, and the Easterners again won, this time by 6 to 3. The Petes, however, are confident of getting revenge on Saturday, and will go after Goyer, Mills and company from the drop of the hat.

Belleville are worthy adversaries. Freddie Goyer, their left-handed twirling expert, is one sweet pitcher, and none of the backstops in the League have anything on Mills, the big catcher of the Belleville gang. Rose, the centre fielder of the visitors, is one of the Central League's bests hitters. In the game against Peterborough at Belleville he came through with a double, triple and home run, the circuit drive tieing the score in the ninth and saving the game for Belleville.

There will be fans from all over the Central League circuit at this game, including all the League officials, and the fixture is attracting widespread attention. It is the baseball event of the year, and Riverside Park will be crowded for the occasion.

DEMPSEY MATCH NEARING COMPLETION

HEAVYWEIGHTS MAY MEET IN ENGLAND IN NEAR FUTURE.

By Don Chamberlain.
(United Press.)

LONDON, July 22.—Jimmy Wilde, the British flyweight marvel, is to go to the United States and "make a clean up" of dollars. Therefore, it is not likely that Pal Moore and the little champion will meet here again soon, although Nate Lewis, manager of Moore, has asked for the match and received the sanction of Promoter C. B. Cochrane, who started the recent bout between the boys. The proposed match between Jack Dempsey and the winner of the Carpentier-Beckett bout is still hanging fire. Cochrane says he has obtained the signatures of Carpentier and Beckett, but that Dempsey has not definitely made an answer. Cochrane's American agent is said to have deposited $50,000 in New York to be transferred to Dempsey when he signs articles.

Cochrane said yesterday he had received word from the United States that the deal for Dempsey was nearing completion.

If matched, Dempsey would make his appearance in England in the famous Olympia Hall, which can seat 80,000 persons. Admission prices would range from $5 to $125.

EMPLOYERS

THE

EMPLOYMENT SERVICE

OF CANADA

The PROFESSIONAL and BUSINESS SECTION has been established to assist professional, business and technical men and women.

Many officers, soldiers, sailors and war workers, who sacrificed their positions during the war, now desire to secure employment in the occupations for which they have been specially trained.

Employers should not wait until increasing business forces them to employ anybody they can obtain, but should look ahead and avail themselves of this unusual opportunity to enlist the services of highly trained workers, ordinarily secured only with difficulty. On application there can be referred to you, for example:—

| | |
|---|---|
| ENGINEERS | LAW CLERKS |
| ARCHITECTS | COMMERCIAL ARTISTS |
| BUSINESS EXECUTIVES | SALES MANAGERS |
| ACCOUNTANTS | TRAVELLING SALESMEN |
| SECRETARIES | CHEMISTS |
| TEACHERS | YOUNG COLLEGE GRADUATES |

These workers are returning to civil occupations with increased initiative, a broader view of life, and a greater capacity for work.

Teachers' Pay in Nova Scotia

PUBLIC interest requires that teaching should be made an attractive and honorable vocation. This can be done only by making it remunerative and desirable. It is not properly remunerative in any case, at present. In most instances, mere pittances are paid. Therefore, in some way, teachers' salaries must be increased so as to bring them into more or less accord with those enjoyed in other callings.

Unfortunately a wretchedly low standard of remuneration has been set for all instructors, in church and school or college. In consequence, the upward movement may be slow and difficult; but it must be begun at once. Our public is not otherwise ungenerous. It has learned to give freely during the war; and can surely be impressed with the idea that another war must be waged in perpetuity—that against ignorance—if the state is finally to be "saved"; and that the necessary "sinews" must be provided, as in all wars, if victory is to be achieved. It may and should involve a degree of effort and sacrifice which can be felt; but what good is ever to be attained without such effort and sacrifice?

Heretofore the people of Nova Scotia, in the main, have been letting their schools exist on the mere crumbs which fall from their tables. School rates, in the average rural section, are frequently less per head of family than the head of that family, if only a pipe smoker, ordinarily expends on tobacco. There are municipalities in which the rate per head of the population of contributions to the foreign mission funds of a single denomination sometimes reach an amount in excess of the total annual county fund for education! Surely this is a case of supposed charity beginning very far from home! The rate assessed annually for school purposes in each county municipality was, until lately, the beggarly sum of thirty cents per head of the population. It is now, we are informed, 35 cents. Can the expression to make one "look like 30 cents," that is, as mean as possible, have come from this educational assessment?

The province contributes just $60 annually towards the support of each licensed class D teacher, $90 for each C and $120 for each B; and from $150 to $180 for a few class A's, under closely restricted conditions, apart from class A's or academies, employed in County Academies and other secondary schools. The County Academies receive, on their own account, prescribed annual grants. Whatever other funds are required for the support of schools must be levied directly on the sections employing teachers. And the sections, as we have already pointed out, are in many cases so small, and the taxable property so limited, that the burden of providing grimly increased salaries would be almost unbearable.

The extent of general assistance which any section can receive varies according to the class of teacher employed, from $60 to $90 and $120 a year, plus the county grant, averaging probably less than $50 for each school, or a total, say, of from $110 to $140 and $170 per annum. Many sections have not more than a dozen rate payers; some very considerably less. In addition to paying the teachers' salaries, sections have to provide school houses and maintain them. They have to furnish fuel, apparatus and insurance, and employ janitors. A percentage is allowed to the school-tax collector on the amounts collected. It will readily be seen from these facts that the possibilities of materially increasing teachers' salaries, under the present system, are limited.

Let us suppose that a section of twelve ratepayers employs a grade C teacher, who will in most cases have a degree of scholarship and training low enough, in all conscience, and undertakes to pay a salary of $360, or a little over $30 a month, which, in all conscience, in these times—is too low—and—and yet is nearly double the usual amount paid—being less than a kitchen maid receives, when board is taken into consideration. How will the ratepayers of the supposed section stand in the matter? Leaving out of account entirely all the minor charges mentioned above, which together may come to quite a sum, they will be liable for the $500 agreed to be paid. They will receive towards its payment $140 from both province and county, likely less rather than more, which will leave $360 to be levied on the twelve ratepayers, or $30 a head at least. This, be it remembered, will be for school purposes alone, and entirely apart from all municipal and other taxes, which are by no means light.

The burden of a $500-a-year salary would be almost intolerable on a section of a still less number of ratepayers, which, on account of the limited number of its children of school age, would probably receive a considerably diminished county grant.

It is perfectly obvious, therefore, that so to increase salaries in this province, as to make teaching an attractive and honorable vocation by making it remunerative and desirable, something more practicable than either pious aspirations or moral suasion is requisite. There must be radical reform of our system in at least two ways. First, the number of sections must be reduced, and those remaining made much larger. Second, the method of support must be completely reformed. It seems to us that the sections should be responsible only for buildings, their equipment and maintenance, and that the cost of salaries should be assumed either by the province or the county municipality or by the two conjointly.—Halifax Herald.

YAQUIS OF MEXICO

An Indian Tribe Notorious For Its Savage Practices.

EVER DEFIANT AND WARLIKE.

Never Thoroughly Conquered, They Have Been Fanatically Fighting Four Centuries For the Land They Held Before Columbus Was Born.

The story of the Yaquis of Mexico is one of the most remarkable narratives in history. It has never been told in English except in short or less fragmentary fashion, and the English speaking world has missed recently a romance worth reading.

The tale is literally blotted with blood and stained with incidents of savage torture and treachery, for the Yaquis are a savage people, but running through it from beginning to end are a fanatic love of country, an indomitable courage and a hardihood that have never been excelled.

In certain parts of Mexico the name of Yaqui has acquired terrorist dreadful significance since the bitterest enemies it has become a bogie with which to frighten children. Even on the friendliest side of the border the Yaqui often gets credit for being a more terrible person than he really is. It is point of fact the Yaquis are the Apaches of Mexico, with rather more than the Apaches' ability for organization and stubborn resistance.

Allied by the fact that the government opposed to them has always been monstrously wicked rather than of the United States and by the inestimable nature of the country that they love so devotedly, they have the distinction of being the only Indians alive that has never been thoroughly and completely conquered by the whites. There have always been defiant Yaqui outlaws in the hills.

The story of the Yaquis is the story of their wars. Almost a century before the landing of the Pilgrims in New England an army of Spaniards with their Indian allies moved northward from Mexico City, conquering everything in their path. When they reached the bank of the Yaqui river they were met by a large band of Indians whose leader drew a line in the soft earth.

That line he forbade the Spaniards to cross. The white men opened fire with their cannon, but after a brief engagement the Yaquis routed them. The old Spanish chronicler states that he had fought with most of the Mexican Indian tribes, but, he says, "I have never seen Indians fight like these."

That was almost 400 years ago, and since then the Yaquis have fought almost without cessation. The Mexicans estimate that there have been almost 300 years of actual fighting between Mexicans and Yaquis.

Of late years the Mexican government had been adopting the only policy against the tribe which gave promise of eventual success in quelling their fighting spirit. This was the plan of deportation, by which the Indians were sent from Sonora to far away Yucatan as laborers on the plantations. This is said to be the only fate that frightens the Yaqui.

It is easy to idealize the Yaqui at a distance for their courage, their hardihood and their love of country, just as it is easy to paint them as impossible demons for their cruelty and treachery.

They have undoubtedly practiced savage tortures on their captives in the past, just as they have undoubtedly broken treaties with the Mexican government, but it is just as true that they are guided by a savage code of ethics and are fighting for land that in the last analysis belongs to them, for they held it before Columbus was born.

In flesh and blood the Yaqui is not a particularly romantic figure. He is the common laborer of Sonora, the peon, the herder of cattle and the tiller of the soil. In the Mexican towns of the district many of the servants are Yaquis. One of the chief difficulties in subduing them has been the agency dissension that prevails among them.

The outlaw from the hills, hard pressed, slips his rifle into a mesquite brush and enters some peaceful village of his people, where everybody will swear that he is a lifer resident for years.

The Yaqui is a medium sized individual as a rule, rather sturdily built, with a face broader and heavier than that of the North American Indian whom the tourist sees in the west and who adorns our hotels. His very endurance is truly remarkable. Four days on a journey without food, and then a meal, is nothing. He will travel for days at least a hundred miles without water, and make a fight at the end of it. He will work all day in the hot sun, and then dance half the night. He will stand the extremes of heat and cold without apparent discomfort. He is a natural athlete, and a fine shot with rifle or bow and arrow. He is a natural soldier, and a natural guerrilla. He is a natural fighter, and a natural lover of peace. He is a natural Indian, and a natural white man. He is a natural human being.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Fate at Long Range

By SEWARD W. HOPKINS

(Copyright)

It was somewhere about midnight when a frantic ringing of my bell startled me into throwing the book I had been reading to the floor, and rushing to the great old-fashioned oaken entrance.

I had but recently moved into Trivorton, and had made no firm friendships, nor even acquaintances. My small, six-line advertisement was in the only paper published in the place.

My Great Dane growled, being unused to having his early slumbers thus disturbed.

With the exception of the Great Dane, I was alone. I had permitted my only servant, an old man, to go to visit his sister, almost as old, who was ill.

Opening the door, I saw in the clear, cold light of a winter moon, a young girl. She was pale, extremely agitated and decidedly pretty.

"Oh! Are you Mr. Bayne?" she asked.

"Yes, my name is Bayne—David Bayne," I answered. "In what way may I be of assistance to you?"

"You are a lawyer?"

"Yes, I am a lawyer."

"Then—let me talk to you a moment. We—I—my father—"

"Please take a moment to get your breath. You are excited. My office is rather chilly. Suppose I accompany you to your house. You wish to consult me, I suppose?"

"Yes, come with me. That is why I came here. My father is dying. Is there a printed form of will?"

"Ah! Your father wishes to make his will? I will be with you in a moment. But I know of no printed form of will. However, it will take me but a moment to write it."

"My father is Donald Redbagh," said the girl.

"He wants to make his will," went on the girl with a choking sort of sob, "but I don't want you to write it for him."

"You don't want me to write your father's will?" I asked in amazement. "Does he wish you to be left without assistance?"

"No; He wants to leave me everything."

"And yet you don't wish—it seems to me there is something more to this than the mere desire of a sick man to make a will. Please explain."

"He has taken a violent dislike to my brother. He wishes to cut him off with a hundred dollars. I do not want that."

"How much is he worth?"

"More than a million."

"You see," she went on, "my brother Donald married—married a poor girl against my father's wishes. Yet I like her, and do not—you understand—I do not wish him cut off. You are a lawyer. You will know how to manage."

"But if he wishes to make a will, must write it as he commands," I answered.

"Well—I suppose so—but it will be hard on Don."

As we entered the wide iron gateway the girl turned to me again.

"The doctor is with him now. Try to persuade him to be fair."

"The doctor?"

"No. My father. Don't let him disinherit a will that is unjust."

I had no time to reply, and I could not have framed an answer if I tried. A tall, thin old servant answered the ring, and I was ushered into a bedroom where a man lay huddled in the confusion of bedclothes and a grave, intelligent man I had seen driving about the streets sat close at his side.

"You are Bymes?" he asked.

"Yes."

"Mr. Redbagh wishes to make his will. You will need to—"

He glanced at me significantly. He did not need to finish the sentence. I could see that but a spark of life remained in the shriveled old frame and that spark was going fast.

"Write—write—" gasped the sick man. "Leave all to Edna. Just one hundred dollars to Donald."

Alone with him, and with a strange feeling of repugnance, I began writing as he ordered.

It was a brief will. He simply left one hundred dollars to his son Donald, and all the residue of his estate after his funeral expenses had been paid, to his daughter Edna.

While I was writing, a young man entered. He was well set-up, a manly looking young fellow, and there was nothing in his appearance that was not pleasing.

"Father," he said in a low, well-modulated voice, "I am going. Will you shake hands?"

With a scream that seemed beyond his waning strength, the sick man half raised himself on his elbow.

"No!" he said sharply, although feebly. "Shake hands with you? Go! I thought you had gone."

"I knew you ordered me out yesterday," said the young man. "I was not here all night. I am going for good now. I wanted to take your hand before I left."

"Go!"

The young man stood for a moment with bowed head. It seemed to me his lips moved. Then he stepped noiselessly to a large oaken cabinet, opened a drawer, took something from it, and thrust it in his pocket.

Again the sick man and I were alone.

I placed the will on a book and held it before the dying man. The doctor bent over him and lifted him. He took the pen and reached out toward the line on which I indicated he should place his signature.

Suddenly the hand that held the pen dropped. A sound, indescribable, came from him, and with a slight gush of blood from a bullet-wound in the right temple, he fell over—dead.

The doctor stared at me.

"Through the window," he said.

He bent himself to the task of holding back the end. It was useless.

"His son," said the physician. "We'll get him. You go—you two. I must do what I can."

The butler and I raced like two maniacs from the room and out into the crisp night air.

"He is not here, sir," said the thin old fellow.

"We can't let this wait," I said. "The police must be notified."

"Yes—the police," said Simmons in a bewildered manner. "Did you hear the shot, sir?"

"No."

This was the first thought that had struck me. I had heard no shot.

We went out through the iron gate and raced like two madmen along the street. The butler knew the way. I had not yet learned enough of Trivorton to be sure where to find the police.

It did not take us long to tell the story—what we had to tell.

The police officer in charge showed the eagerness characteristic of the sleuth.

I told how the son had asked his father to shake hands. How he had been ordered from the house. And how he had taken something from the cabinet and thrust it in his pocket.

"It's a clear enough case," said the officer. "He must have been watching at the window, and fired just as the old man was about to sign the will. We'll have him. There is no way out of Trivorton before six in the morning."

All the available force was at once put on the case.

I followed with a frenzied sort of fascination all the movements of the police.

Miss Redbagh by this time had been aroused, and sat, dry-eyed and half-stunned, at the bedside of her father.

There had been a way out of Trivorton that night. At half-past seven in the morning Miss Redbagh received a telegram.

"Dear Edna:

Millie and I reached Baldwin at three this morning. I borrowed your horse, and we drove over. I am sending the horse back in care of a man from the hotel here. Don't mind about the will. I am going to work.

"Lovingly,

"DONALD."

"Baldwin—three in the morning," said the police officer in charge of the investigation. "If that's true, he never fired that shot."

"Who did?" I asked helplessly.

"We must verify the telegram first."

Now thoroughly determined to know the end of it, I accompanied two detectives to Baldwin.

At the hotel we learned that Donald Redbagh and his wife did arrive there (twenty miles away) at three o'clock that morning. The shot that killed his father had been fired at half-past one.

"The girl—was she in sympathy with her brother?" asked the detective.

"Yes," I said hesitatingly; "but she never shot her father. The will was all in her favor."

Back we went to Trivorton. The doctor had probed for the bullet.

"You thought young Redbagh took a revolver," he said. "This is a rifle-ball. We heard no shot. It was an accident. I am convinced that no murder was committed. And since the man is dead, I am ready to admit that a great injustice was prevented. Donald married a poor girl, and Redbagh was always a—well—he's dead."

In a small town like Trivorton such a case becomes the main topic of conversation. Sleepless, I was in the police station at about five that same afternoon, when a boy came in, white-faced, frightened, and carrying under his arm a small rifle.

"I'll give myself up," he said. "I think I shot Mr. Redbagh, although I didn't mean to do so. I was out after rabbits. It's fun on a bright, moonlight night. My dog had scared up several, and I guess I got to shooting wild. Do you think I'll have to go to prison?

Everybody breathed a sigh of relief. The chief of police looked at me peculiarly.

"Redbagh was about gone, wasn't he?" he asked.

"He couldn't have lived through the night."

"The girl is true to her brother?"

"Yes, and Donald to her."

"What's your name?" asked the chief of the frightened boy.

"Tom Wynert."

"The doctor's son?"

"Yes, sir. My father was with Mr. Redbagh, and I was out on the old rye field. I might have shot my father."

"I don't know—I don't know but what we'll keep the rifle," said the chief. "As for you, if you are wanted we'll send for you. It is not certain that it was your bullet, anyway. Still, the weapon is dangerous at night for a boy to handle."

As I look back, remembering the impressions made on me that night, the favorable light in which I looked on Donald Redbagh, the harshness of his father, the bitterness of fate, I wonder—I wonder if there was not something more than a boy's chance shot in it all. For I was always a believer in the justness of fate.

LEMON JUICE TAKES OFF TAN

Girls! Make bleaching lotion if skin is sunburned, tanned or freckled

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle, sunburn and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of Orchard White for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles, sunburn, windburn and tan disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.

Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada) of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid. While it is well known that Aspirin means Bayer manufacture, to protect the public against imitations, the Tablets of Bayer Company will be stamped with their general trade mark, the "Bayer Cross."

BENSON'S
Corn Starch
Pie Fillings!
A little Benson's Corn Starch should be introduced into juicy fruit pies, such as rhubarb, cherry, etc., to prevent running over.
Orange Cream Pie (see Recipe below) is not difficult to make and will prove a happy addition to your dessert recipes.
Serve custards, blanc mange, sauces, gravies, cakes and puddings made with Benson's Corn Starch. Write for booklet.
PIE CRUST
Take ½ cup flour with ½ cup of Benson's Corn Starch, ½ teaspoonful baking powder, 2 tablespoonfuls of lard, or butter, ½ cup of cold water, ½ teaspoonful salt.
Sift flour, corn starch, and baking powder in a bowl, add shortening, rub fine through flour, add last water and salt. Turn onto board, roll lengthwise till smooth and use as desired.
ORANGE CREAM PIE
Place in saucepan over the fire, 1 tablespoonful Benson's Corn Starch, ½ cup water, ½ tablespoonful of sugar and 1 tablespoonful of Lily White Corn Syrup. Boil five minutes. Remove from fire; add yolks of two eggs, ½ rind of an orange, and juice of one orange and ½ lemon; mix well.
Line greased pie pan with very thin pie crust, brush out with beaten egg, and sprinkle with bread crumbs. Pour in above mixture and bake in medium oven till crust is light brown.
Beat the whites of the eggs very, very stiff; add one tablespoonful of powdered sugar. Arrange by spoonfuls on top of pie and set in hot oven to brown a nice color.
Serve cold.

You Look As YOU FEEL

You know well enough when your liver is loafing.

Constipation is the first warning; then you begin to "feel mean all over."

BEGIN HOT WATER DRINKING IF YOU DON'T FEEL RIGHT

Says glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast washes out poisons.

If you wake up with a bad taste, bad breath and tongue is coated; if your head is dull or aching; if what you eat sours and forms gas and acid in stomach, or you are bilious, constipated, nervous, sallow and can't get feeling just right, begin inside bathing. Drink before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will flush the poisons and toxins from stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels and cleanse, sweeten and purify the entire alimentary tract. Do your inside bathing immediately upon arising in the morning to wash out of the system all the previous days' poisonous waste, gases and sour bile before putting more food into the stomach.

To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood, nerves and muscles became loaded with body impurities, get from your pharmacist a quarter pound of limestone phosphate which is inexpensive and almost tasteless, except for a sourish twinge which is not unpleasant.

Just as soap and hot water act on the skin, cleaning, sweetening and freshening, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Men and women who are usually constipated, bilious, headachy or have any stomach disorder should begin this inside bathing before breakfast. They are assured they will become real crank on the subject shortly.

Chemistry.

The interest in chemistry and chemical products has greatly increased in Canada owing to the fact that this country has been forced by the war to depend upon its own resources in this direction. The following uses are ascribed to these chemical products: In making soap and paper pulp, mercerizing cotton and purifying mineral oils, caustic soda is used; soda ash is necessary in the manufacture of soap and glass; silicate of soda (better known as water glass) is utilized in the manufacture of soap and in dying and printing calico, finishing cotton goods, preventing wood rot, bleaching jute and preserving eggs.

AWAITING THEIR DISCHARGE.

Canadian Soldiers Among Green Derbyshire Hills.

A short time ago I heard someone talking about the C.D.D. at Buxton, and I asked what the letters stood for.

"The Canadian Discharge Depot," was the reply.

Immediately the cruel meaning of the word "discharge" flashed through my mind. I recalled the way in which the authorities of the European nations, including those of the Motherland, had treated their ex-soldiers in the past; how the fear of unemployment and the spectre of famine haunted the lives and the homes of these men, eating into their minds and destroying the very spirit of bravery which had made them willing to offer even their lives in defence of freedom.

I reflected that the workhouse had been the reward from the nation in the past for thousands of our heroes, while glorified titles and pensions had been given to a few.

Such thoughts led me on to consider my own countrymen. Would Canada fail to do her part for these men who had fought for her? What would be Canada's first step toward helping to bring these men again into the field of construction away from the fields of destruction, I wondered.

So I took a train for Buxton. Conflicting reports had reached me concerning Canada's policy on behalf of her soldiers. I wanted to see and to know for myself.

The Buxton C.D.D. receives only the soldiers having dependents. Buxton is one of the great health resorts, and is known as the "Switzerland of England." It is a pretty town lying in a valley. It has curving streets, with buildings of grey stone taken from the hills of Derbyshire, which surround the town. The district is rich in minerals, for the old Roman mines still yield ore. The fields on the hillsides and the moors look like checkerboards. They are divided by stone fences, the stones having been picked up hundreds of years ago, so that the ground might be made fit for grazing. These fields are a perpetual green, although on the first day of my visit there were little drifts of snow behind the fences on the north side. It was early in March, and spring was just showing herself here and there in the southern exposures, where little flowers were trying to open their petals to the sun, and the early spring birds were singing.

This was the scene on a Sunday morning. In the distance I heard the music of a band. A column of soldiers were marching to the Hippodrome Theatre for morning service—the only building large enough to hold them. The Canadian soldiers nearly filled it, leaving little room for civilians.

"All people that on earth do dwell," sang the soldiers, accompanied by the band. Then there were prayers and the lessons for the day, and the chaplain, Capt. Bruce Hunter, of Toronto, took for his text: "Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven."

It was a simple sermon, of plain words to be understood by plain men, showing the fervor of a deep thinker, an honest leader, and every man in the audience heard and understood. The preacher fitted his text to every-day ideals to guide men's lives, to prepare them for the New Canada. He spoke of the moral force that was greater than physical; he told them that true words cut deeper than the sword. Let their thoughts be true; let them return home determined to be "on active service" in the field of industry as they had been in the field of war.

I could see that the soldiers were deeply affected. Their stillness and attention proved that. I studied their faces and noted the interest those faces showed. Never have I attended a military church service where the audience seemed so to grasp the purpose of their leader.—Special correspondence of Toronto Telegram.

Salmon In Puget Sound.

L. H. Darwin, State Fish Commissioner of Washington State, says the signing of a treaty between the United States and Canada for the protection and replenishment of the sockeye salmon in Puget Sound and British Columbia waters depends largely on the action to be taken by the Washington State Legislature at Olympia. Nothing, he says, has so far been done in regard to recommendation of the United States and Canadian Governments that have been forwarded to Olympia. The proposed federal recommendations are the result of the work of the joint American-Canadian commission which met in Seattle last year. Similar regulations will be submitted to the Legislature of British Columbia, and, if adopted, a treaty will be drawn up between the two countries. If the State of Washington fails to take action at the present session, nothing can be done for a year. So far, there is no knowledge of the proposed arrangement being considered by the Provincial Legislature. It is acknowledged by all the fisheries interests affected in the Puget Sound and British Columbia areas that drastic action is necessary if the sockeye salmon supply is not to be eliminated. Joint action must be taken by Ottawa and Washington to make any conservation method have the desired results. The sockeye spawning beds are mainly in the Fraser river in British Columbia, so that action by the Canadian and Provincial Governments is essential.

The Salmon Pack.

The Pacific Coast salmon pack of 1917 was 9,847,435 cases, of which 5,795,000 cases came from Alaska, 1,567,435 from British Columbia, 1,860,000 from Puget Sound and 570,000 from Columbia river.

CONSERVING MOISTURE

Many Valuable Crops Saved by Mulching.

This Season Especially Trying to Cream Producers—Great Losses Prevented by Cooling Cream During Hot Weather In Properly Constructed Tank.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

WATER is one of the essential requirements for the growth of plants. Its functions are a solvent and carrier of plant-food, a food directly or indirectly for the plants and it helps to maintain the plants in a turgid condition, thus enabling them to stand more erect and resist the force of the winds. Also the evaporation of the water from the surface of the leaves equalizes the temperature of the plants. Thus water serves the plants in no small way, and so the farmer is always very anxious each spring that his soil have sufficient water stored within it to supply the growing plants during the next three or four months, when the rainfall may not be sufficient for their requirements.

The amount of water required for crops is rather surprising; in humid regions they require from 300 to 500 pounds for every pound of dry matter produced, and in dry climates the amounts are about double of these. Of the ordinary farm crops the legumes including clovers, peas and beans, use the most water; then comes potatoes next; then in order oats, buckwheat, barley, wheat, rape, maize and millet.

The water that the plants take from the soil exists in the form of thin films around the soil grains. If the soil be well drained and otherwise in good physical condition, these films will occupy about one-half of the air space of the soil, the other half being available for air, which is very necessary for the growth of the roots. The water in the form of films has the power to rise up through the soil grains in a manner similar to that of the rise of oil in a lampwick or water through a lump of sugar. This rise takes place more quickly and extends higher if the soil grains be fairly fine and in a mellow and friable condition, or in other words, be in good tilth. Water in excess of this film water should be drained from the soil, otherwise the soil remains cold and the air is excluded from the roots.

Conserving the soil moisture consists of getting as much as possible of the rains and the meltage of the snow down into the lower depths of the soil, and in the second place, preventing the water that rises to the surface during the period of growth from evaporating. The first can be secured by fall ploughing and in other ways making the soil surface as open and receptive as possible for the easy entrance of the water and the evaporation can be prevented to a large degree by keeping the surface, after the crops are sown or planted, well mulched. The soil mulch, one to three inches deep, is found to be very effective in keeping the film water from reaching the surface and there evaporating under the sun and wind. The surface of the soil, and this applies chiefly to heavy soils, should not be allowed to become crusted, as a crust on the top cracks open and allows the water to escape. The best illustrations of mulching and its good effects are found in every well-tilled garden, but to a large degree the practice is practicable on the farms by a judicious use of the harrow and roller. When the grain fields are rolled immediately after seeding, the harrow should be used; if power enough be available both may be passed over the field at once. Even after the grain is up 3 or 4 inches, should a heavy rain pack down the soil, the roller may be used to good advantage in re-establishing a mulch. The more frequently the corn and root fields are cultivated throughout the season of growth, the more effective the mulch will be to conserve the soil moisture.—R. R. Graham, B.S.A., O. A. College, Guelph.

Hot Weather Suggestions on the Care of Cream.

The season of 1919 is likely to be one specially trying for those who desire to ship sweet cream, on account of the great scarcity of ice. In many localities, not a pound of ice was harvested during the winter season of 1918-19. The ice-houses are empty and there is nothing but water to cool the cream. On some farms there is a scarcity of water during hot weather which means added difficulty in cooling the cream.

The first thing is to have a cooling tank of some kind for holding the cream can. One properly built of cement, or wood and insulating material, is best. Failing this, a coal-oil barrel, with the inside burned to remove the coal-oil flavor, sunk partly in the ground and having a cover will answer the purpose. This should be near the well so as to be convenient for pumping cold water into it.

Each lot of cream should be cooled at once after separating, and before mixing with previous lots. A separate pail or can should be used for this part of the cooling process. Allow the cream to remain in this special can set in the cold water, from one separation to the next, being careful to wash it frequently, as the warm cream will soon become tainted with the sour cream organisms, if this can or pail be not kept sweet.

Keeping pails, cans, etc., clean, and immediate cooling to 50 deg. F., certainly below 60 deg., and frequent shipment or delivery of the cream, are the main points in hot weather care of cream.—Prof. H. H. Dean, O. A. College, Guelph.

Campaign Against Coyotes.

Coyote hunts are popular in the vicinity of Edmonton, Alberta, the last hunt attracting many automobilists as well as horsemen. Ranchers are planning to continue the campaign of extermination. Twenty-five wolf hounds have been obtained for these drives. The plan is to form a half circle and close in on the coyotes at a given hour.

OLD AGE AND SADNESS

THE TWO THINGS ARE FREQUENTLY ASSOCIATED, BUT THEY NEEDN'T BE.

It is a common belief that as a person advances in years he becomes not only a wiser but a sadder man. The one should gain knowledge as he grows older is thoroughly in order, but that he should become increasingly burdened with the cares of life and saddened because of hopes that have not been fulfilled is not a necessary condition.

It is true that the clouds that gather about the setting sun do take a richer coloring from an eye that has kept watch on man's movable panorama. Wordsworth a bit says that the thought of constantly lessening activity and prospects and tails is enough to make one sad and consider. But consideration goes far enough will reveal that time, whether of this world or another, is an unending opportunity for progression.

After all, the whole matter of age is something that has to do with the mind rather than the body. And when the body begins to fail, when grey hairs appear, the step becomes less springy, sleep more difficult, and joy in things that used to please an impossibility, sadness should not be the result.

The mind is a great crucible which receives and transfuses in its fashion impressions from all the objects and facts of life. The will is the factor which determines what the impressions shall be. A man can let himself relax or he can keep it active, regardless of age. He can make of his existence a heaven or a hell, whether he be old or young, rich or poor, in a favored spot of the earth, or depart still or fallen on evil days.

Discipline of the will cannot at last relieve old death, and it may not in many prolonged health, or material matters. But it can aid in all these things, and entirely regardless of its material accomplishments, the will that is kept properly on the alert can lead its possessor to happiness and maintain him in hope.

"O, well for him whose will is strong."

For him whose will is weak, or rather allowed to become weak, there is joy neither in sunset nor a sunrise. And even the bright light of noonday will only dazzle and bewilder, rather than encourage and inspire.

The strong will sees confidently, "beyond the sunset and the paths of all the western stars." It strengthens a man to hope and leads him to see unlimited possibilities as the years pass. Optimism is the last thing that ought to disappear from age.—Kansas City Star.

MEETING HELD IN WESTWOOD

At a meeting of the farmers and residents about Westwood held last evening in the Westwood Town Hall, Mr. Ed. Sargent and Mr. John Harrison, with a committee of twelve, were appointed to go over the section of the country about Westwood to ascertain the feeling of the farmers about the proposed Hydro line. The committee will go amongst the farmers and find out how many would utilize the proposed power, and to what extent At a meeting to follow the canvass the committee will report the disposition of the farmers canvassed and a representative from the Hydro will state how much the power would cost.

In turkey rearing a good supply of green food is absolutely necessary. Cleanliness, coolness and freedom from disease in coops are the fundamentals of pure milk.

It will pay to market many of the early cockerels as broilers, depending on those later hatched for roasters as the season advances.

Eggs should be gathered regularly and often. All small and dirty eggs should be retained for home use or sold separate from the rest.

OBITUARY

JAMES MURRAY

The funeral took place yesterday afternoon from Comstock's Undertaking Parlours, of Mr. James Murray, 77 years of age, to Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. F. E. Malott, of Trinity Methodist church, conducted the ceremony.

Mr. Murray died in New Liskeard, Ontario last Friday, and the remains arrived in the city yesterday at noon. Mr. Murray was a former resident of this city. The pall bearers included Mr. Robert Wilson, Mr. T. J. Johnston, and Mr. J. H. Weir. He is survived by a wife and two children residing in New Liskeard.

SISTER ERNESTINE

The death took place Sunday afternoon at 4.30 of Sister Ernestine at Mount St. Joseph Convent after a long illness.

The funeral took place this morning from Mount St. Joseph to St. Peter's Cemetery.

MRS. ISABELLA GRIEVE.

The death took place yesterday at noon of Mrs. Isabella Grieve, widow of the late J. B. Grieve, of Coboconk, Ontario, at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Dr. Craig, 280 Hunter street. Interment will take place at Coboconk, the remains leaving this afternoon on the 5.30 G.T.R.

She leaves to mourn her loss, Mrs. James Ross and one son, James Grieve, and one daughter, Annie, both of Coboconk.

WILLIAM J. DRADER.

The funeral of the late Mr. William J. Drader, whose death occured on Thursday evening last, at 543 Water street, took place on Saturday afternoon, July 19th, at Little Lake cemetery, the service being conducted by the Rev. A. J. Thomas.

The deceased, who was born in the town of Lindsay, Victoria County, was the eldest son of the late Philip Drader, and had resided at Lacombe, Alta., for a number of years. Owing to failing health he came to this city in March of this year. He is survived by his wife and one daughter, Miss Gertrude, and one son, W. B. Drader, of Vernon, B. C., recently returned from overseas. He is also survived by two sisters and two brothers, Mrs. A. J. Hawker, of Wellesburg, Mr. C. E. Drader, of Preston; Mr. E. A. Drader, of Wallaceburg, and Mrs. George Jobbitt, of this city.

JOHN McINTYRE.

John McIntyre, a former well-known resident of Peterborough, passed away Thursday, July 10th, at Framingham, Massachussetts, when he had made his home with his sister, Mrs. Hugh Robertson, for the past fourteen years.

The late Mr. McIntyre was a resident of Douro for about forty years and was well known among farmers in the vicinity of Nassau.

Leaving here about thirty years ago he settled in Manitoba residing there fourteen years, retiring and coming to Peterborough for awhile finally, making his home at Framingham, Mass.

The deceased was stricken with a paralytic shock from which he failed to rally. He was 76 years old.

He will be missed by his many friends here and at Framingham, where he was a well known and much respected resident.

The funeral took place Sunday and burial was in Edgell Grove Cemetery, Framingham, Massachusetts.

JAMES MURRAY.

There passed peacefully away at his home in New Liskeard, on July 19th, 1918, Mr. James Murray, a former resident of this city, after an illness of four weeks. He was born in Hillsboro, Ireland, in 1842, and came to Canada when three years of age, where his mother and family settled in Otonabee township, later moving to Haliburton. In 1882 he was married to Margaret Catherine Beavis, only daughter of the late James and Martha Beavis of Otonabee. He then came to Peterborough and resided here till 1906, when he and his family moved to Northern Ontario, where he has since lived.

Mr. Murray was an honorary member of I.O.L. 981, having joined the Order when seventeen years of age and continuing in active membership ever since, not missing an Orange walk in sixty years.

He was a faithful member of the Methodist church, and the service at the home was conducted by his pastor, Rev. George Lawrence, the last rites of the Orange Order being carried out by the local Lodge.

The remains were brought to this city on Monday and were taken to Comstock's parlours, where many old friends had gathered to pay their last respects to the memory of the deceased and where the service was conducted by Rev. F. A. Malott, of Trinity Methodist church. Interment took place in beautiful Little Lake cemetery, the remains being borne to their last resting place by life-long friends of the deceased.

There are left to mourn their loss, besides the widow, one son, Leslie, and one daughter, Myrtle, who cherish the memory of a kind, loving husband and father, whose consistent Christian life made him honoured and respected by all those with whom he came in contact.

Mr. and Mrs. I. S. Miller (Viola Edith Dobson), are in the city.

CARS COLLIDED ON GEORGE STREET

TOO MUCH TRAFFIC AT ONE POINT RESULTS IN A MIX-UP.

A test case this morning at nine-thirty o'clock proved that three vehicles cannot go abreast between the curb and the street car tracks without hitting a passing street car.

Mr. Roland Deane's feed truck was proceeding north on George street, and directly behind it was the motor car of the Jopling meat market. The Deane truck turned out to pass a buggy standing on the right hand side of the street and the Jopling car directly behind turned out to pass the Deane truck thus the three vehicles were abreast when the street car going south hit the Jopling car turning it completely around and pushing it against the standing buggy belonging to Mr. W. J. Forsythe, R. R. 11 (Otonabee). The back wheel was badly broken and the axle bent. The Jopling car had he lamp smashed and one mud guard badly bent. The Jopling car had the lamp body of the car.

The Deane truck proceeded north escaping unhurt.

THE STRIKE SITUATION

HOPEFUL FEATURE OF COAL STRIKE IN ENGLAND---DOCKERS STILL OUT.

BOATS TIED UP

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, July 23. — The most hopeful feature of the coal strike situation is the decision of the Welsh miners at a conference at Cardiff not to join the Yorkshire movement. There was no great accession of strength to the strike movement today. The men on strike total about two hundred and seventy-five thousand Yorkshire, Derbyshire, Nottingham and Monmouth being the counties mainly affected.

Sir Eric Geddes, minister without portfolio, who on Monday was appointed a commissioner to settle the strike, is at Leeds, and according to government statements, will confine himself to affording protection to men willing to work at the pumps, and will not interfere in any way with the actual strike movement. The strikers, however, appear to be in a rather bad mood and seem to fear that troops will follow the naval men in an attempt to break the strike. The conference of the triple alliance, which will be held at Westminster to-morrow, may have an influence on the situation. The conference will be followed by a meeting of the executive of the Miners' Federation, at which the situation will be discussed.

Dockers Strike.

(Canadian Press.)

LIVERPOOL, July 23.—The strike among the dockers, which broke out here early this week, has resulted in bringing about chaos in arrangements for handling more than two hundred ships at this port, their sailing being cancelled or indefinitely postponed. The steamer Scotian, with two thousand passengers, was ready to sail for Montreal yesterday, but was unable to leave. The Adriatic, due to leave on Thursday for New York, and the Orduna, scheduled to sail for New York on Saturday, have had their sailings indefinitely postponed. It seems unlikely that these two liners will be able to leave on time, and perhaps not until the strike is settled. There were no apparent prospects to-day of any speedy settlement of the difficulty.

ATTRACTIVE INVESTMENT

WORTHY OF THE ATTENTION OF LOCAL INVESTORS.

Many investors now regard Industrial stocks as more desirable from every point of view than most other investments now on the market.

And the reason is that if discrimination is wisely used in the selection, Industrials offer a degree of safety and assured income bearing hard to equal.

Brokers used to be very careful about recommending any investment except municipal securities. But now Industrial stock is coming to its own, according to a well-known banker, who has much to do with placing them. He says: "Buying municipals from each other is just like taking in one another's washing, because it don't add anything to the country's production. If you buy Industrial stock you are taking steps to increase production and get money in circulation for wages. In fact, you are getting a stake in the country, and extending your interest as far as the common stock, you have a chance to share in big profits."

The Dominion Dustless Sweeper Company, Limited, are offering for investment in the city of Peterborough a limited amount of its par value stock.

In view of the nature of the company's undertaking in promoting this industrial and public utility, which is bound to enjoy a rapid growth and development, its stock is considered a most attractive investment.

Why let such an opportunity like this pass? Why hold your money in a bank at 3 per cent. when it can be shown, on close investigation, that you can earn many times 3 per cent. by holding stock in by holding stock in The Dominion Dustless Sweeper Company, Limited. Information upon request on application to H. M. Bishop, Manager. Peterborough. 3d-wts-18

GOVERNMENT'S OPINION OF THE PRESENT ACT.

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, July 23. — Government authorities are not inclined to seriously consider the prospect of race track betting starting immediately notwithstanding the expressed opinion of Sir Allen Aylesworth, the former Minister of Justice, that such would be legal on the proclamation of peace. It is felt here that the racing associations will make no move towards betting for some time.

ARE LOOKING FOR PEACE

BOLSHEVIKI SEND A DELEGATION TO ROUMANIANS---MESSAGE FROM LENINE.

THE TERMS

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, July 23.—A Bolsheviki delegation has arrived at Kissineff, with an offer of peace to the commander of the Roumanian Dniester troops, on behalf of Nikolai Lenine the Bolshevik premier, according to a Berlin wireless despatch.

Lenine offers to cede Bessarabia to Roumania on condition that Roumania shall prohibit Ukrainian citizens and bands of Admiral Kolchak, head of the All Russian government at Omsk from crossing the Roumanian frontier. An armistice to last eight days has been concluded on the Bessarabian front and the delegation has gone to Roumanian headquarters.

PLANS TO MAKE REAL ROUND-UP

James Gates, D.C., is not Losing Sight of Stray Dogs.

According to James Gates D.C., owners of dogs are taking advantage of his absence in the afternoon at Inverlea Park and allow their dogs freedom until Mr. Gates relieved of duty at the bathing beach prowls around the city in search of wayward canines when all the bows-wows are called in by the owners, leashed and the dog license is waved in the face of Mr. Gates whenever he appears on the scene. He admitted this morning that he intends to take a day off at the park and round up a few dozen dogs out for their afternoon airing sometime when the owners are unsuspecting.

HIGHER PRICES FOR SHOES

KID SHOES MAY GO TO TWENTY-FIVE DOLLARS A PAIR---DEALERS PREPARE THE PUBLIC FOR HIGHER PRICES.

TORONTO, July 23.—War destroys leather as rapidly as munitions, and people as a rule will wear shoes no longer through one of the greatest leather shortages the world has ever had to face; and it is only through the use of substitutes that we can even hope to keep prices moderate to normal until conditions adjust themselves, said Mr. Lair D. Hutchinson, president of the Wm. Amer Company, of Philadelphia, to-day. He is in attendance at the first annual convention of the Canadian National Shoe Retailers' Association now in session at the King Edward Hotel.

Those who insist on entire kid shoes in future will have to pay the price, and it is rumoured that among the fine grades they will possibly soar to $25.00 a pair.

In conclusion he said that the women in America may consider themselves lucky to get even half leather, as in Russia one well-known leather man paid as high as four hundred roubles to have a pair of canvas shoes made for his wife: and when he later procured a skin large enough for one pair of shoes, a shoe man offered to make them for nothing provided he was allowed the scraps of leather which remained.

MACHINE GUNS USED TO MOP UP AGITATORS IN BERLIN

SOMETHING MORE EFFECTIVE THAN ROSEWATER USED BY NOSKE.--LAST SENSATIONAL ATTEMPT OF REDS TO LAUNCH REVOLUTION PROVES IGNOMINIOUS FAILURE—SCENES ON THE STREETS.

BERLIN, July 23. — Noske's iron hand once more has hammered Berlin Bolshevism into silence.

Yesterday three open-air mass meetings were opened in the city parks. One of them failed to develop radicalism and Noske permitted it to continue. He smashed a second one almost before it was under way. And when the third developed into a big parade he broke it up into small sections and scattered it where it could do no harm.

In two instances shots were fired, but only once were they directed into the crowd. Then a machine gun sprayed across the legs of an advancing column and three persons—two men and a woman—were slightly wounded.

In Treptow Tower Park the meeting met opposition, but thence the parade started toward Lustgarten, where it encountered the row of machine guns across the Sochloss Bridge. men entered the park from the south. The crowd moved around, but would not disperse. The flag-bearers started marching around, avoiding the guard. Then a second group of troops entered from the north and a "squeeze" movement rushed the demonstrants to the east end of the little park. There the flag-bearers seemed disposed to balk, but one burst of machine-gun fire speeded them up. The crowd scattered in all directions, as frightened as two American correspondents, whose taxi was near the head of the column.

In the readiness to use machine measures, the biggest meeting, scheduled at 6 o'clock in the Lustgarten, adjoining the Imperial Palace, was not even attempted. The streets had been mopped up of little groups of agitators and apparently there will be no further disturbances, although some may occur under the shelter of darkness.

Americans Are Frightened.

The first shooting occurred in Friedrichshain. Five hundred were gathered there under two score red flags when the first group of Noske's revolver shots rang from a group carrying a Communist banner, and the machine gun was lowered. Here occurred the only casualty of the day.

But the parade reformed and made its way down Unter den Linden as far as Wilhelmstrasse, where it sought to turn in order to demonstrate before Noske's offices. Half a block up the street it stopped before a huge sign:

"Halt! Who come farther will be shot!"

SATURDAY'S BATTLE THE GAME OF THE SEASON

Every ball fan in Peterboro or around this district will be at Riverside Park on Saturday to see the clash between the Belleville and the Petes upon the result of which virtually hinges the Central League championship. The homesters have to win his battle to keep in the running for a Belleville victory will cinch the championship for the Easterners. It will be a fight from the first ball and the Petes will have to be in their best form to beat Goyer, the Belleville south paw if he is in there with the same brand he has hurled against the Solomon crew on the two occasions he has beat them. Altogether the Petes have only been able to nick six hits off Goyer in nineteen innings and they will have to use their war clubs more effectively than this record if they hope to stay in the League race. The game is called for 3 o'clock sharp with Dickie Butler of Lindsay acting as umpire-in-chief. Fans from all over the Central League district will be here for the game which promises to be the baseball classic of the season.

OUTING FOR INMATES PROTESTANT HOME

OLD FOLKS WERE CONVEYED TO SOUTH BEACH.

Twenty-six inmates of the Peterborough Protestant Home, accompanied by Mrs. Roger, President of the Board, Miss Davidson, secretary, Miss Robinson treasurer, Mrs. F. L. Robinson, Mrs. Duncan Walker, Mrs. (Dr.) Harvey, Mrs. Robert Neill, Mrs. Robert Hall and Mr. E. F. Mason, directors of the Board, were the guests of Royal Arthur Lodge yesterday afternoon at a motor picnic.

At four o'clock, motors driven by Mr. and Mrs. Dickson Hall, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Breyfogle, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. McCulloch, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. MacDiarmid, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Waddell, Mr. Dyson Worth, Mr. Leon Webb, Mr. Chris. Graham, Miss Brightman, Mr. Jas. Harkness, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Mason and Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Fowler called at the Home and picked up their guests and transported them to South Beach. The weather being particularly fine and the roads in good condition, the journey was a particularly enjoyable feature of the entertainment. Upon arrival at South Beach a splendid dinner was supplied by Mr. Brooks in his thoroughly efficient manner, after which the old people were entertained on the lawn and before starting the return journey the old men were treated to cigars and the old ladies to chocolates.

An Appreciation.

The thanks of the Board of Directors, the Superintendent and the inmates of the Protestant Home are due and are hereby tendered to Mr. E. B. Fowler, Master of Royal Arthur Lodge, and to the ladies and gentlemen who kindly assisted him in giving primarily to the inmates and incidentally to several others, the extremely pleasant outing yesterday. The only thing omitted was speech-making and the gentleman upon whom the duty devolved of returning thanks on behalf of the guests became involved in tire trouble and with his usual interest in "Safety First" thought it was best to be sure in transporting his guests by wheels rather than by means of his eloquence. Nevertheless the happy smiling faces of his guests must have assured Mr. Fowler and his assistant that the generous kindness was appreciated and sometimes "The best reward of a kindly deed is the knowledge of having done it."

The united sentiment of the beneficiaries of Mr. Fowler's thoughtful consideration would be "more power to him, may he live long and prosper."

FAMOUS MINSTREL DIES.

Was Born In London, Ontario.

(Canadian Press.)

SAN DIEGO, Cal., July 23.—George H. Primrose, the famous minstrel, died here to-day, following a severe illness that began one month ago.

He was born in London, Ont., sixty-six years ago. A widow and a brother survive him here.

COMMENT ON THE SUCCESS

PARIS PRESS COMMENT ON THE VOTE OF CONFIDENCE.

COMING ELECTIONS

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, July 23. — All the newspapers, excepting those distinctly hostile to the Government, comment today upon the great success of Premier Clemenceau when he won a vote of confidence in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday.

Some papers make the point that the result shows that the vote on Friday, in which the Government was in the minority, was not aimed at the Government, but was intended to obtain more energetic conomic policy designed to end the high cost of living which, it was declared, threatened to paralyse the country.

The papers express pleasure that Premier Clemeuceau had pledged himself to consult the country through the coming elections.

BIG DAY HERE ON CIVIC HOLIDAY

SOME BIG ATTRACTIONS HAVE BEEN BOOKED FOR THAT DAY

Through the medium of big money spending and attractions advisedly chosen the Peterboro Exhibition Board is providing a day on Civic Holiday which will make it worth while for every citizen to stay at home. The day will undoubtedly be the biggest ever known in the city and the attraction will outrival any put on the big cities.

Some of the attractions already arranged for the 91st Highlander Band of Hamilton under the direction of H. A. Stares. This attraction which has toured the United States and Canada has been accorded big receptions and met with splendid press notices in the most discriminating cities. The Macdonald London Juvenile Pipe Band of London, consisting of expert pipers, drummers and dancers has also met with the greatest success in the Dominion. Under the direction of Professor Hand of Hamilton a stupendous fireworks display will be given featuring all the newest fireworks of the year. Two vaudeville acts from McMahon and Dee of Buffalo, will be put on both in the afternoon and evening and will like the two bands give full programmes on both occasions. A local touch will be introduced on the programme when the Y.W.C.A. girls under the direction of Miss Littlefield will put on an exhibition both in the afternoon and evening.

Horse Racing.

In addition to all this there will be some stirring horse races with purses amounting to $1000. As it is expected that some of the best horses in America will be included in the entries the last mentioned attraction will provide a big day for anyone interested in sport of that kind.

Spending Money.

The Exhibition Board is going ahead spending money to make Civic Holiday suit the most critical tastes having one end in view that of not only assuring every one of their money's worth but of sustaining the city's reputation for holiday atractions.

COBALT MINERS GO OUT ON STRIKE

PUBLIC UTILITIES MAY CLOSE DOWN BOTH SIDES WILL FIGHT

(Canadian Press.)

COBALT, July 23.—As threatened for some time and definitely decided upon last Sunday, the miners of the Cobalt camp generally went on strike at noon to-day, after the refusal of the mine managers to consent to Senator Robertson's proposal for a Board of Conciliation to adjust the grievances of the men regarding wages, hours, and conditions.

This afternoon all the mines in the camp are affected, although some of them may keep their pumps going by steam.

A parade of the strikers is called for this evening. The street railway, power and light services are being operated as usual, and municipal and company officials are conferring as to the continuance of these public utilities, which the strike threatens to disrupt.

So far as the miners' walk-out is concerned, neither side is swaying toward a settlement, according to the official report.

BRIDGE CONTRACT SIGNED AND SEALED, WORK WILL BEGUN IN A FEW DAYS

MAYOR DUNCAN SIGNED IT LAST NIGHT—T. H. NEVIN, REPRESENTING THE COMPANY IS IN THE CITY TO-DAY—PART OF THE PLANT ALREADY HERE—MR. FRANK BARBER SUMMONED.

PRELIMINARY WORK AT ONCE

Mayor Duncan last night signed the agreement embodying the Russell-Townsend Company's contract for the construction of the Hunter street bridge. City Clerk Armstrong affixed his signature this morning, and Mr. T. H. Nevin, representing the company, told the Examiner that operations would be begun within a few days, as soon as the work is laid out by the engineer, Mr. Frank Barber. Mr. Nevin came to Peterborough last night, and Messrs Russell and Townsend are expected to-day. Mr. Townsend will remain here as the superintending engineer until the bridge is completed.

After all its vicissitudes the "bridge problem" has been disposed of, and the agreement duly signed and sealed has been stored away for safe keeping in the compartment marked "Agreements" in the City Clerk's vault. Whether the shadow of possible injunctions may haunt them until the contract is successfully accomplished and within the appropriations, the Aldermen are happy in the release from the delays and discussions that have made this year's council work memorable, and often a nuisance, as it dragged along without apparent progress.

"It's a weight off my mind," Ald. Phelan, chairman of the Board of Works, commented, and he doubtless expressed the expansive sentiment of his colleagues.

The Russell-Townsend Company have been prepared for more than a week to forward their plant, but the eleventh hour injunction held up their start. The heads of the company will survey their location at once, erect offices and probably storage buildings, unload their plant and make ready for the first assault of picks and shovels. The work on the approaches will be undertaken first, and is expected to be started, Mr. Nevin stated, in two or three days, probably by Monday. He was informed that City Engineer Parsons had sent for Mr. Barber and after the necessary preliminaries have been straightened out the council's manoeuvres and debates of the past six months will begin to assume concrete form.

HORIES LIKE THE ELECTION ACT

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, July 23.—A resolution protesting against the repeal of the War Time Election Act was passed at a private meeting of the executive committee of Ward Four Conservative Association, held in Broadway Hall last night.

CERTIFICATES FOR THE NEXT OF KIN

COMPETITION INAUGURATED BY THE PETERBORO BOARD OF TRADE.

The Peterborough Board of Trade, in testimony of the heroism shown by our soldiers who made the supreme sacrifice in the Great War, will present a memorial certificate to their next of kin. The certificate will be of artistic merit and of durable form for preservation as a memento of the Great War and should serve as a patriotic inspiration to the rising generation.

The competition for the design will be open to all residents of Peterborough.

Competitors will forward their designs in plain sealed envelopes, addressed to Mr. Ryerson Ritchie, care of the Board of Trade, 358 George Street, on or before Saturday, Aug. 9th, 1919. Each design is to be signed by a pseudonym, the key to which is to be given in a separate sealed envelope.

To the successful competitor an award of twenty-five dollars will be paid. The winner of the prize will at the same time have the happy satisfaction of having contributed to the official record of the part Peterborough's fallen heroes played in the Great War for Democracy.

The judges of the competition will be H. R. H. Kenner, B.A., Francis P. McNulty, M.D., William A. Logan, C. E. Mrs. Vincent Eastwood, President of the Women's Art Association and Mrs. Arthur Stevenson. The award when made will be announced in the local press.

A PARADOXIAL DEVIL

Monroe Salisbury Has Two Natures in "That Devil, 'Bateese'."

When is a Devil not a Devil? When he is a paradox.

Monroe Salisbury is a devil, and yet he is not. He is good and he is evil. And this curious mingling of virtue and vice in the make-up of Monroe Salisbury, as "Batiste" Latour, in that Bluebird production, "That Devil, 'Bateese'," makes the photoplay stand out as a Jekel-and-Hyde epic of the Canadian woods.

In the first place, "Batiste" never goes to church. But he meets Kathleen and falls in love with her, and she persuades him to accompany her to the village place of worship. And he likes it.

But on the way home from church Kathleen's fiance comes along and cuts poor "Batiste" out. So "Batiste" celebrates his first church attendance by going out and getting drunk. That Devil—that Devil, 'Bateese.'

But whether 'Bateese' is worthy of his sobriquet must be decided when you see this masterful Bluebird photo-drama at the Grand Theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

SECURED VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, July 23.—Premier Clemenceau, who won for his Cabinet a vote of confidence late yesterday in the Chamber of Deputies, emerged from the conflict stronger than the test vote showed.

The final vote of confidence on a resolution by the Deputies showed confidence in the Government by 289 to 176, a majority of 113. The first vote, which was on the demand for priority, gave the Premier a majority of only 91.

HAD TO PURCHASE A NEW LICENSE

AGAINST LAW TO ALLOW DOGS TO RUN AT LARGE.

Mr. G. H. Davis, 304 Park street, didn't know who Mr. James Gates was until that city official asked him to visit the police court this morning regarding his dog which runs at large in the city. Mr. Davis is a newcomer to the city, which explains his lack of knowledge of the official position of Mr. Gates. Furthermore, Mr. Davis was not aware that it was against the law to let a canine run at large. He produced his dog license, which described the dog as a collie, the property of Patrick Lavery, and then the plot thickened.

"You're not Mr. Lavery?" asked the Chief.

No, but I got the dog from Mr. Lavery and he gave me this license, etc.

Mr. Davis' dog is not a collie, but a fox terrier, and the Chief advised the owner to purchase a new license, which he did. The case was dropped for the time being.

"I'll bet I saw ten dogs running at large this morning," commented Mr. Davis, which interested the D. C. immensely as he mentally calculated ten times one dollar.

Didn't Know.

John Curtin didn't think that he passed a standing street car Friday, 1 July 11 at the corner of George and Smith streets, and to support his statement he brought a witness, but both the motorman and the conductor of the car swore that the car was stopped and was taking on passengers at the time. Mr. Curtin was asked for $14.00 by the Magistrate.

IF KIDNEY AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take a glass of Salts to flush out your Kidneys and neutralize Irritating Acids.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the block and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame causing a burning scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse again, there is difficulty in avoiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralise the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

It is said that George Washington never went fishing in his life. This may account for his truthfulness.

CARELESS ABOUT GRAMMAR.

A Widespread Fault That a Little Thought Would Correct.

The young woman who is careless about the way she speaks, who thinks good grammar should be used only by teachers and those engaged in "brain work," is making a most serious mistake.

The manner in which a person expresses himself or herself—the use of good grammar or the lack of it—stamps the speaker as either a person of education or of very little learning.

"Ain't Margaret any better?" a young girl was heard asking a chum one day. "No, she ain't a bit better," her friend answered.

Both girls were well dressed and looked as though they came from comfortable homes. Evidently a cure had never come to either of them, and to be in time for a matinee seemed to each to be the paramount issue of life. Now, these girls must have known how crude their speech was, but they were absolutely indifferent as to what opinions were formed by those who overheard them.

Many young persons just out of high school are very careless about their grammar. Perhaps they think no one pays any attention to what they say or how they say it, but the person competent to judge very quickly passes judgment on them and quite frequently lays the blame on the teacher or the school system.

No Chance for the Old Man.

It was the first time that Richard's father had seen "her" and they were talking things over.

"So my son has proposed to you," he said, "and you've accepted him? I think you might have seen me first."

She blushed sweetly as she replied: "I did, but I think I prefer Richard."

ASSAULT CHARGE IN POLICE COURT

DEFENDANT WAS FINED FIVE DOLLERS AND TEN CENTS.

Mr. Sam Dancey didn't like the manner in which little Melville Foley Hunter street, only ten years of age, rinsed his pail before taking away a pail of water at the pump adjoining the two properties behind Lawson's grocery store on Hunter street. He made the ground around wet, and Mr. Dancey's ire rose to such an extent that he went out and gave Foley a cuff in the ears which sent him home without either water or the pail. Mrs. Guthrie, Foley's mother, laid a charge of assault against Mr. Dancey, but he denied the charge in police court this morning.

"He had a red ear when he came home," stated mamma, "as if something had bit or hit him." Mrs. Guthrie stated that she asked Dancey why he hit the boy, and he returned that he would do it again.

"I told him it wasn't his water, it was God's water" When Mr. Dancey cross-examined the boy in the witness box he stepped back several paces out of the box to keep as far away from Dancey as possible.

"I believe the boy," said the Magistrate. The belief cost Mr. Dancey $5.10.

Mr. Dumble intimated to Mr. Dancey that the father of the boy might declare a vendetta against him and that he had better leave his hands off him in the future.

DULUTH WOMAN GAINS 15 POUNDS SHE SAYS

TANLAC MADE MRS NORMAN WELL TWO YEARS AGO—GOOD HEALTH CONTINUED SHE STATES.

"Although it has been two years now since Tanlac relieved me of my suffering and built me up so wonderfully every day is still a well day for me," was the statement made by Mrs. Liddia Norman, Route 4, Box 242, Duluth, Minn., while in Abbott & Company's drug store, recently.

"For three years," she continued, "I had suffered agonies with rheumatism all over my body. My feet were so swollen I could hardly get my shoes on. I had to wear gloves to keep down the swelling in my hands as much as possible. I was in so much pain that I was all bent over and had to use a cane in order to get about. My stomach was in very bad condition, too, and what I would eat seemed to lump badly and lay in the pit of my stomach and ferment. I would bloat terribly with gas and have such depressed feeling in my chest and around my heart that it was difficult for me to get my breath. My appetite was very poor — there were many things I couldn't eat at all and at times I was very dizzy. I couldn't get any sound sleep, had fallen off a great deal in weight and just felt miserable most all the time.

"When I read and heard so much about Tanac I made up my mind to try it and it was the wisest decision I ever made. By the time I had finished my third bottle I discarded my cane and could eat what I wanted without the least trouble afterwards. After taking five bottles the rheumatism was gone entirely and I could walk as well as I ever could, and I also found I had gained fifteen pounds in weight. Well I haven't had an ache or a pain to this good day and I still eat and sleep like a child and feel fine all the time.

"I have related my experience with Tanlac many times and am willing to keep on telling it as long as I can help other people out of their suffering. I am getting a bottle of Tanlac now just to take as a spring tonic and I hope what I say in this statement will start many others on the road to health."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

TEN PERSONS SHOT.

(Canadian Press.)

BERLIN, July 23.— Ten persons were shot during disorders which attended the breaking up of the Majority Socialist meeting by Communists and Spartacans here Monday. Those attending the meeting, which was held in the Trades Union building, attempted to lynch the man who fired the shots, but he was saved by his helpers, who were in the building.

"My face was very itchy at first, and after that it was covered with pimples that disfigured it badly. The pimples were hard and red and they were small, and they were scattered all over my face and were so itchy I had to scratch and I could not sleep.

"These bothered me nearly a year before I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment and when I had used five cakes of Cuticura Soap and five boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Miss Flora M. Boyko, Gardenton, Man., Dec. 26, 1918.

Having obtained a clear healthy skin by the use of Cuticura, keep it clear by using the Soap for all toilet purposes, assisted by touches of Ointment as needed. Do not fail to include the exquisitely scented Cuticura Talcum in your toilet preparations. Splendid after bathing.

Buy from your druggist cake of Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum, or sample each free. Address: Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. A, Malden, Mass. Sold everywhere.

SIMPLY A MISCARRIAGE OF INTENTION

How Easy It Is To Turn Grit Or Tory

By F. H. Dobbin

I have long maintained that many of the habits and affiliations that we have acquired come to us, as it were by accident. That we are drawn into and accept situations we never planned for and that our surroundings from day to day sensibly and often insensibly shape our lives and futures, I believe this to be so.

For instance, I am a member of the Methodist denomination. As a child I was taken by my father or by an older siser to the Sunday school and to church. The theological part of my life I spent in that church, passing from childhood to youth and on to early and later manhood. Members of my family with me in due course. Had I been taken to the Presbyterian, or to the Baptist church and service, the result would have been the samea nd along parallel lines.

And further, I hold to his belief: Place a boy who has been brought up in his father's house—the father being a strong Reformer—in a blacksmith shop in which the boss and the men employed are of the Conservative complexion, infallibly and against his home training he will leave the shop a man and a Tory. Reverse the situation and put the boy of a Conservative thinking father in a cooper shop, the hands of which swear fidelity to Reform principles, and that boy deserts any instruction and inoculation he may have had at home and is ordained to clasp to his breast the aims and objects of a stern Reformer. Ask either, afterwards, and they cannot tell you why, but it was the result of association, it grew into each from association, daily and weekly, but with, to my way of thinking, this one difference, that while the Reformer may have come out with a firm faltering reluctant faith the Tory comes forth with a firm and all abiding faith. Now having laid down the general principle that we have things thrust on us, I want to prove it on myself.

My father was on ald Baldwin Reformer. Just what the Baldwin Reformers stood for I need not here discuss. Those were the days for real reforms, not merely differences of opinion. But they msut have been pretty good men if they were all like my father. A father of whom we used to say that he prayed each morning, "Give us this day our daily Globe." One thing he looked forward to, that some time he and his three sons would go together to the polls and administer four good Refrom votes. Peace to his rest, he never lived to see the day.

At the time of which I write, and at Peterborough, were two weekly papers, one, the Examiner, owned and published by Mr. James Stratton, a Reformer of the most pronounced type. He flayed most merrily right and left when he deemed that circumstances warranted. An earnest advocate of temperance, and an opponent of the saloon and liquor dive. He and my father were working side by side in pushing temperance reform, a thing very badly needed. The local organizations urging temperance had varying success, and the men concerned were bound together by a mutual tie of association and comradeship. The other paper, the Review, was owned by Mr. Robert Romaine, a Tory of the warmest brand and a defender of the liquor interests. There was a tradition of the office, that when a young man, Mr. Romaine was accustomed to go about the streets of Montreal (where he lived as Queen's printer) with a game cock under one arm and a pair of boxing gloves under the other. In that phase of his personality a dead game sport, and the office hands so respected him beyond measure for these accomplishments. A thorough printer of the old school wet paper, soft blanket, ample frisket, heavy impression, and that sort of thing.

At the age of thirteen I had become addicted to hanging around the Review office. A friend of mine named Ford was in the third year of his apprenticeship, so I had the egtree to the office. I here regret to state that eventually he slighted the noble profession of journalism, and left it to be come a mere clergyman, and has been for years and is still doing excellent theological work in the western part of the province. Would have done equally good service in the newspaper field had he stayed within the fold. But what would you have?

However, he and I were chums, and I would go with him to the office on successive Thursday evenings, (the paper was published on Fridays) and make of myself what must have been a darned nuisance. Get in somebody's way, ask ghestions, fuss about until the pages went to press, which generally happened at some unearthly hour in the morning, say about three o'clock, and after working all night. Why it had to be so, I never could understand, and do not even now. Just the habit, while there was no time-and-a half for overtime. Still tradition had to be respected.

I would help fold papers, paste on labels, tie up the bundles and generally assist. The alleged foreman would perch astraddle of a case rack, mix up the letters in the caps boxes, and play doleful tunes on his fiddle. A sort of requiem to the departing newspapers, thrown down the stairs to await being taken to the post office in the gloom of the morning. Others of the thirteen journeymen would add to the ectasy of three hours of printing with hilarious songs, conversation and jocular repartee. I thought the whole weekly performance a sort of adventure, and in some way that I could not define had come to the conclusion that I would be a printer. That printing in itself, while not quite a profession, was something more than an occupation. In short what one might call an avocation. To explain this thought of mine at the time, I may add, there seem to be three ways of getting a living. A profession, by which a man gains a living and never has any fun until he is too old to enjoy it. An occupation, by which a man earns a living and gives up all hope of ever having any fun, and a third, an avocation, by which one gains his living and his fun at the same time, as in the way of life of a professional baseball player, hockey player or golfiac. The avocation idea captured me.

I was at school. After a time my possible future was the subject of family discussion and conference. In these I did not participate, having been brought up to the idea that I should do as I was told. Ultimately, my father said to me one evening, "You seem to have a liking for the printing business. Go over to the printing office Monday morning and stort in. By the end of the year we shall see if you like it, and if it likes you." The reader will note the reservation. This was in the first week of December, 1864.

The next day, being a Saturday, was devoted to getting ready for the great adventure. I was given a suit of old-fashioned fuMcloth, all wool, woven on the hand-loom and fulled in the fulling mill. Warm, thick, hard and stiff. It would turn rain, cold, snow and verbal abuse. Fend off anything that was not fired from a gun. I had a cloth cap, pair of long-legged boots, into which I stuffed the legs of the trousers, and a special gift conferred was a long red, blue and yellow muffler, a very special benediction. This I would give a couple of turns over my head to keep the cold out, crossed across my breast, wrapped around my waist, still leaving enough to tie in a knot and dangle by my side in a guady display. I thought and felt that Solomon in all his glory was so arrayed. Monday morning I took to the road prompt at seven o'clock, tramped along the snowy street, reached the office building, climbed the stair case I had come to know so wll, burst in the door in an impulsive effort to get to business, and asked for the boss. Many a time I had squirmed and crept out of the way of the boss, because I felt that I had been frequenting the office as a sort of interloper. But now I came as a fully accredited aspirant for employment and honors. Observe, I did not ask for the foreman, for I had gathered from certain observations hurled at me by that hand that my candidature would not find full favor in his esteem. I was after higher game, so to speak. I wanted a place in the sun. Mr. Romaine was pointed out to me, esconsced behind a barricade of piled up news print, a box or two and a case rack. Unheeding the compassionate grins of two apprentices, I presented myself, and with all the assurance of youth said, "Please sir, I'm the new boy." "The devil you are" he replied, "whose boy are you?" I told him, and shoving up from the bridge of his nose the glasses, with a gesture I afterwards came to know full well, he paused, looked me over and proclaimed that I never would make the man my father was.

Now, I put it to the disinterested onlooker, wasn't that a nice thing to say to a timid shrinking young creature, standing as might be, with reluctant feet where the brook and river meet, a most cheerful greeting. Whether it was sarcasm, innuendo or the gospel truth, I never considered. What I wanted was a job. He called to the foreman, and told him to set me to work, and I entered on a career.

At home no questions were asked My father was busy with his problems of contracting and building, and, anyway, I was out of the house and not bothering the women folk during early and late parts of the day. A couple of months passed and one evening as I was eating my late supper and retalling something of the office gospel, I mentioned the name of Mr. Romaine. My father, who was reading a paper with his back turned to the lamp, reached about and asked what I knew about Mr. Romaine. Taken aback by the abruptness and earnestness of the question, I, with some hesitation, replied: "Why, he's the boss, the proprietor of the office." Getting up in his agitation and overturning the chair, my fathes blurted out, "For the land's sake are you at the 'Review' office." I admitted as much. "Jerusalem cherry tree." (his favorite objurgation), "I sent you over to the Examiner.' " "No, sir," I replied, "you told me to go over to the printing office."

The deed was done. I had walked into the camp of the enemy. I was a stranger and they took me in. All roads, for me, led to the "Review". Being there, I stayed, and am now a hide-bound Tory. Had I gone across the street I should most certainly have been and ever after, a howling Grit.

My father had arranged with Mr. Stratton that I should go to his office and learn the trade, but thus do the best laid schemes of men miscarry.—Printer and Publisher.

HONORING THE SOLDIER

An injustice was inadvertently done the local Salvation Army in an article in this column the other night referring to the local celebration of peace, when it was remarked that outside of the parade of the War Veterans themselves there was no evidence that the importance of the day was recognised. As a matter of fact the Salvation Army, which over here as "over there" has never failed to support and assist the men of Canada's army, gave another proof of their desire to help on Saturday by arranging a most successful returned soldiers picnic as a tribute to the services rendered by Peterboro's soldiers. The affair was a most enjoyable one, entirely undenominational in its character and open to everyone and the officers and members of the Salvation Army are to be congratulated not only on the unqualified success that attended their efforts, but also on the spirit which animated their desire to pay a tribute to the record of the men from Peterboro who played a noble part in the bringing of peace.

A PLUMBING COMBINE.

Dr. McFall, the Government's Cost of Living Commissioner, declares that he has prepared evidence that leads to the conclusion that a combine is responsible for the high prices in all kinds of sanitary and plumbing supplies. In making this announcement Dr. McFall intimates that the combine is not confined to Canada, and that it includes manufacturers as well as jobbers. He finds that nearly all the supplies needed for plumbing have to go through the hands of the jobbers, who exact a profit of 25 per cent. or more before passing the articles along to the plumbing trade, the members of which, of course, have to secure their profit before the public come into possession.

"Suitable action on these cases has been recommended," declares Dr. McFall, referring not only to the plumbing combine, but to other indications of profiteering and unfair trade practices. What these recommendations are the Commissioner does not state, but if they will do anything to eliminate the conditions complained of, it is to be hoped that his report is not left to gather dust in some department at Ottawa, with the numerous other reports and complaints in regard to the cost of living.

Dr. McFall was appointed to investigate conditions responsible for the high prices. He has succeeded in confirming the impression that in many lines of trade there has been profiteering, but his findings would do no more than prove what the consumer has long suspected if his recommendations are not followed by speedy and satisfactory action. The Government's handling of the cost of living problem has been weak, indecisive, and lax. In the present instance there is something definite to work upon, and the Cost of Living Commissioner's report should culminate in tangible results.

THE USE OF THE TAWS

Magistrate Dumble's explanation of the recent case in which two young boys, found guilty of a series of robberies, were whipped at the police station puts an entirely different lights upon the matter and makes the complaints that have been made by a number of people appear ill-judged and mistaken. It seems to be the common impression that the Magistrate ordered the children to be whipped and that he imposed fines on them with the alternative of going to jail. As a matter of fact Mr. Dumble points out that he had no power to do any of these things, or did he do them. Fines were imposed on relatives of the boys to partly cover the damage done by the young offenders and it was the parents, not the children who were threatened with jail, if the fines were not paid. Neither did the Magistrate order the youngsters to be whipped—the law does not allow him to issue such orders—but out of his experience with offenders of tender age he suggested to the boys' parents that a whipping by a police officer would probably prove as an effective a cure for their misguided activities as could be found, and the parents agreed with the suggestion. The whipping was carried out in their presence and the mother of one complained that the officer who administered the punishment was not hitting hard enough. So that it is evident that there was nothing brutal about the affair.

There is much to be said about Mr. Dumble's approval of the judicial use of the taws on the backs of young offenders. It is true as he points out that many parents are not to be trusted to administer punishment to their children. They lose their temper and often go to lengths that are not justified, where on the other hand a police officer who has no personal interest in the matter can be relied upon to calmly and carefully carry out the whipping. It is not intended to convey the impression that the whipping of offenders should be a general practice, but there are occasions when the judicious use of the taws acts as a corrective when other means fail. Many a reader of The Examiner has no doubt been thrashed more thoroughly with the parental strap than were the youngsters who were the central figures in the recent case, and is all the better for it to-day. The fuss over the case, especially the tendency to portray the boys as receiving the same treatment as is meted out to criminals for whom the lash is prescribed, seems rather ridiculous in the face of Mr. Dumble's statement, which appears elsewhere in to-day's issue.

BRITAIN LEADS IN AIR.

A few days ago the United States Government reduced its aircraft appropriations from many millions to a paltry $100,000, and announced that for the present there would be no further expenditure on a large scale for experimenting in aerial navigation. At almost the same hour the British Government stated that sixty millions had been set aside for "preliminary" investigations, with the object of developing for "commercial and public purposes" all types of aircraft. Our American friends have long been noted for their quick recognition of a new idea, and the imagination to see beyond its conception to splendid success, especially if it shows promise of being convertible to cash, but in this matter of aerial navigation, stolid, conservative John Bull appears to have all the enterprise, energy, and vision.

While in the thick of the fighting, the British Government laid plans to continue aircraft development the moment peace was made. Washburn Childs, an American correspondent, writing in Collier's, asserts that Great Britain is already ahead of all other nations in practical aeronautics, and that within five years she will be as distinctly mistress of the air as of the sea. We have had some indication of this in the recent trip of R-34. The great dirigible made the transatlantic passages with an amazing ease and precision; that could have come only from the most careful study of the subject. The big hop was the culmination of many minor experiments, an elaborate preparation that stopped at no expense or painstaking effort.

Once the dirigible and the aeroplane are made economically practicable to trade and industry on a large scale, that nation that is foremost in aerial navigation will gather in the cream of the world's business, because of the more rapid transportation, and the ability to reach the most remote markets which the airships will provide. And as Britain builds great merchant argosies of the skies she will keep pace with the construction of aerial fighting squadrons for their protection.

Sixty millions of dollars may seem a stupendous sum to be spent in experiment at a time when the nation has to cope with huge financial obligations, but Britishers are looking ahead to a dominating position in the world's business, which would quickly wipe out the piled-up debts. One of the most direct paths to this is supremacy of the air, and "decadent" Britain is the same old thorough, far-seeing, resourceful Britain.—London Advertiser.

MR. ALLAN STUDHOLME SUFFERS A SLIGHT STROKE.

HAMILTON, July 22.—Allan Studholme, Labour member in the Legislature for East Hamilton, suffered from a slight stroke last evening, and for a time his condition was considered serious.

Dr. Mullin, his physician, said that Mr. Studholme's condition was greatly improved, and that he was in no immediate danger.

All is not gold that pays a 6 per cent. dividend and calls for a 12 per cent. assessment.

ONTARIO LIBERAL PARTY PLATFORM

Mr. Hartley Dewart, Leader of the Ontario Liberals, and his colleagues have presented their platform to the country as follows:

Temperance.

That the Liberal party of the Province of Ontario in convention assembled, affirms its attitude in favour of progressive temperance legislation to the fullest extent of the Provincial jurisdiction, and pledges itself to take all necessary steps to vigorously and effectively carry into effect the will of a majority of the people as expressed by the said referendum vote.

For the Farmer.

(1) A system of rural credits to be established to provide long-term money at a low rate of interest.

(2) That agricultural schools, with demonstration farms, be established to continue the education of rural and urban boys and girls after leaving the public school.

(3) That the spirit of co-operation between producer and consumer be encouraged with a view to cheapening the cost of production as well as that of distribution.

The Franchise.

The repeal of this law and the enactment of such provisions as will provide for the preparation by the municipal authorities, in all organised districts, of the Ontario voters' list, which shall include the names of all women and men entitled to vote at the elections of the Legislative Assembly, and the appointment of the enumerators in unorganised districts by the District Judges.

Public Ownership.

The reservation of all water powers within the jurisdiction of the Government of Ontario for development, so that the benefits of cheap and abundant electric energy may be extended to all parts of the Province.

The construction of a system of Hydro-Radial railroads throughout the Province wherever conditions warrant expectation of successful operation.

The elimination of private monopoly of the telephone service, and the creation ultimately of a Provincial telephone service.

Refusal to confer franchises hereafter upon private corporations for railways, power, lighting, heating, telephone, or other services requiring for their successful operation the use of the highways.

Taxation.

Local option for municipalities to assess and tax improvements, including buildings, business and income, on a lower basis than land.

Civil Service Commission.

The creation of a non-partisan Civil Service Commission with ample powers and all the appointments and promotions in the public service to be by merit.

Combines and Profiteers.

That, having regard to the present high cost of living and the increasing burden upon the working classes and those in receipt of limited incomes, due to the high cost of necessaries of life, this convention condemns the Ontario Government for its failure to deal with this matter and its abandonment of the investigation and prosecution of the illegal combines formed to limit competition and to enhance prices.

Proportional Representation.

A law to be placed upon the statute book providing that the election of members to the Legislature and Municipal Councils shall be by a form of preferential voting, which will result in proportional representation.

Better Highways.

The immediate and vigorous prosecution of the county roads system with increased grants for construction and maintenance, so as to remove as far as possible the present unfair burden from the rural municipalities. Provincial highway construction should not be gone on with until the route, quality, and kind of road to be built, with plans and specifications showing the estimated cost therefor are submitted.

Abolish the Senate.

That the Liberals of Ontario, in convention assembled, hereby affirm the conviction that the British North America Act should be amended so as to provide for the abolition of the Senate.

Change School System.

Simplicity and efficiency in all our courses of studies, which has long disappeared from our curriculum, should now be restored by the abolition of all non-essentials to a practical education.

The power of issuing commands dealing with the school curriculum and our educational system generally, and of arbitrarily changing the same to suit the passing whim of some government official to be taken from the Department of Education. All power to alter in any way the practice or the theory of educational work in this province be placed where it belongs—in the hands of the Provincial Legislature.

Condemn Waste.

We condemn the wasteful and extravagant manner in which the millions of dollars designed to open up Northern Ontario are being spent, the miles of roads built where there is no settlement and the neglect of sections where actual settlement is going on. We condemn the system of the expenditure on colonisation roads, bridges, and drainage in organised municipalities by political favourites for partisan advantage, and say that money which is voted from session to session for roads and bridges in organised municipalities should be handed over to the elected officers of the municipality instead of being expended under the patronage of the local member or defeated candidate as is the present method.

Reforestation.

We view with alarm the gradual extinction of our white pine and spruce forests without any serious attempt to re-forest the cut-over areas. We pledge ourselves to the proper conservation of our timber resources and a proper system of reforestation under expert guidance.

Pensions for Widows.

The granting by the Government of Ontario to a widow with dependent children, a pension from the public funds, sufficient to ensure that such widows will not be compelled to neglect her children and leave the home in order to gain a livelihood.

To Help Labour.

This convention places itself on record as favouring the passage of legislation to give affect to such proposals, and, generally, by means of a labour department, to keep in touch with the labour situation with a view to avoiding disputes between employers and employed.

Cost of Living Commission.

The appointment of a permanent commission to inquire continuously into the cost of living in various localities, and from time to time with power to increase the minimum wage such rate as will under all conditions provide a respectable living to all wage-earners. A law fixing the eight-hour day for all industrial occupations throughout the Province, as applied to both men and women.

Mothers' pensions to be administered by the Department of Labour, with power to provide medical attendance and necessaries whenever required for the proper birth and upbringing of children.

For Returned Men.

Adequate pensions for the wounded and for the dependents of soldiers and sailors who have been killed.

Equal pension for equal disability.

Insurance for the enfeebled.

Provision for settlement of soldiers on land in Old Ontario when desired.

That we direct every energy toward vocational training and practical assistance to re-establish in civil life all our returned soldiers and sailors.

In appointments to the Civil Service preference should be given to returned men.

To begin at once the clearing of timber off suitable farming land in New Ontario.

The employment for this work and all other incidental work of only those men who have served their country overseas in the recent war.

BAB LEARNS OF A BUSINESS LUNCHEON—BLANCHE ORTON IS THERE

CHAPTER XXII

I was stunned for a moment, then my good common sense, of which father used to say had more than belonged to me, asserted itself. What if Neil and Blanche Orton were driving in a taxi? Either of them might have met the other and given them a lift. Yet, as I reasoned, it seemed strange that they should be in the park, so far from Neil's office.

When Neil came in I had lost all desire to joke him about my visit to his office. In its place had come a great desire to know more of that business so luxuriously housed. So I told him at once that I had called on him and how disappointed I was to find him out. He flared up immediately I began to question him:

"What motive did you have in going to the office To call or to spy on me?" he asked, "If you've got anything to say, why say it and get it out of your system. But either stop talking or tell me what you are driving at."

I sighed as I answered. I had hoped he would be nice about it and tell me things.

"I saw you out driving in the park with Blanche Orton, so I know you weren't out on business." I had not intended to tell him I had seen them, but it slipped out without thinking.

"I'm of age!" he snapped. Then: "If I lunch with business men and there happen to be ladies there also, is it anything so very dreadful that I take them home?"

"I didnt say there was, Neil. Do talk reasonably. I am not finding fault, I just want to know things."

So he had been lunching with Blanche Orton. I would not be little and mean, neither would I let him thing me jealous. There was a feeling that something had me by the throat, for a minute, but it passed as I added:

"Please tell me about the things which interest you, dear. I feel so out of things when you refuse. Did you talk business at lunch?" I had been about to say "before Blanche Orton" but caught myself in time.

"Of course we talked business!" impatiently. "Didn't I tell you it was a business luncheon I have to go to Boston to-morrow. Most likely I shall go directly from the office to the train. Don't forget to send Tonko down with my bag by noon. I'm catching the three o'clock, but I may luncheon somewhere."

"Let me go with you, dear I never have been Boston, you know, never been there."

"It's a business trip. I couldn't take you about or be with you."

"Neither can you be with me if I remain at home and you go. Please let me go."

He considered a moment, then refused absolutely to take me. I pleaded and coaxed, but it did no good. He was adamant.

I wondered why he wouldn't take me. Exnense had nothing to do with it; of that I was sure. But why did he not want me to go?

There were a great many unanswered questions in my life at this time—too many.

I think Neil was sorry for his brusqueness to me and tried to make up by telling me in extraordinarily optimistic tones of the great amount of money he was to make if he "pulled off this next deal," without in any way giving me a hint as to what kind of a "deal" it was.

I tried earnestly to rouse myself to share his enthusiastic optimism, but in vain. My heart was heavy; but in vain. My heart was heavy; Whenever I asked a point-blank question, Neil cleverly evaded me, and I wondered at the unreasoning fear that had all at once possessed me.

What was going to happen?

That night I dreamed that my future had shaped itself into a horrid stretch of years, unhappy years in which Neil and Blanche Orton, Mr. Frederick and others were all mixed up; and in which I, in spite of incessant work and care, could not shield Neil from some terrible calamity.

I woke sobbing. Neil was sleeping, but my hand found his and, comforted, I fell off to sleep again. Thus it was, always, that my love for Neil overruled my reason and persuaded me that my forebodings were foolish.

To-morrow — Lorraine Morton and Barbara Dine with Mr. Frederick.

HER DAUGHTER WAS SAVED FROM OPERATION

Mrs. Wells of Petersburg Tells How.

Petersburg, Va.—"For two years my daughter suffered from a weakness and pains in her right side; at times she was so bad she could not do any work. For two years she was attended by the best physicians here, and both agreed that she would have to be operated on. I suggested Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and at first she refused to take it, but finally consented. From the very beginning it helped her, and now she is entirely well, and telling everybody how much good it has done her."—Mrs. W. D. Wells, 226 North Adams Street, Petersburg, Va.

If every girl who suffers as Miss Wells did, or from irregularities, painful periods, backache, sideache, dragging down pains, inflammation or ulceration would only give this famous root and herb remedy a trial they would soon find relief from such suffering.

For special advice women are asked to write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of forty years experience is at your service.

Is Your Blood Hungry For Iron?

Iron Is The Red Blood Food That Gives You Strength, Energy and Power—How To Make The Test That Tells

Actual blood tests show that a tremendously large number of people who are weak and ill lack iron in their blood and that they are ill for no other reason than lack of iron. Iron deficiency paralyzes healthy, forceful action, pulls down the whole organism and weakens the entire system. A pale face, a nervous irritable disposition, a lack of strength and endurance and the inability to cope with the strong vigorous folks in the race of life—these are the sort of warning signals that Nature gives when the blood is getting thin, pale, watery and literally starving for want of iron. If you are not sure of your condition, go to your doctor and have him take your blood count and see where you stand or else make the following test yourself: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired; next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. By enriching the blood and creating new red blood cells, Nuxated Iron strengthens the nerves, rebuilds the weakened tissues and helps to instill renewed energy and power into the whole system.

Unlike the older inorganic iron products Nuxated Iron is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

OUR PLACE IN THE SUN.

Human Beings, Like Plants, Need Much of the Outdoor Life.

A home without windows was built for the blind in a certain English community. Scientific heating and ventilation were provided. But architects and trustees reasoned that light was not necessary in a house of sightless people.

Then they discovered that human beings, like plants, dwindle and die when deprived of the light of the sun. And they had to remodel their building and set in the sun's rays to keep the blind alive.

Since the invention of the electric light we have all treated sunlight with amazing indifference. In summer especially we spend much time, thought, energy and money protecting ourselves from the sun.

And in so doing we often are acting not much more wisely than the committee that built a house without light for the blind. In summer, for instance, we try to escape the sun when we actually need its services in the cause of good health.

So take your work and play out of doors when possible. Don't fear sunstroke. Don't be afraid of sweat and tan.

Overhead Charges and Pulleys

To reduce overhead expenses without impairing efficiency is the eternal problem of all employers and factory men.

Yet in many factories a most obvious waste of power is being ignored.

We refer to places where metal pulleys should be replaced by Dodge Wood-Split Pulleys. The money value of the power wasted by the excessive weight friction and belt slip of the metal pulley is calculated at an annual average of $8.00 for each pulley.

Dodge Wood-Split Pulleys prevent this waste of power.

This is a bold assertion, but we do not make it lightly.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

A Pretty Summer Frock.

2816—This is a charming model, especially for slender figures. It is just the thing for organdy, dimity, voile, and crepe, and will require little trimming excepting a smart sash or belt of bright ribbon. Dotted Swiss, with collar of organdie or net edged with Val. lace, and a sash of Chinese, low or liberty red, would be very attractive for this style.

The pattern is cut in four sizes: 14, 16, 18, and 20 years. Size 18 will require 6¼ yards of 27 inch material. The skirt measures about 2 yards at the foot, with plaits drawn out.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 15 cents in silver or stamps.

DON'T WORK TOO HARD

If you want to be inspired, don't work too hard. That old maxim about genius being an infinite capacity for taking pains is no longer more than half true. There was Berlioz, for instance, who worked months trying to think up a melody, and then giving up the task in despair, went diving in the Tiber, with the result that he suddenly came to the surface humming an entrancing tune. When you seem to have run out of rhymes, lay aside your rythming dictionary, and go to a baseball game. During the third inning of an exciting contest the right assonance will come popping up into you consciousness.

Be Careful What You Wash Your Hair With

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for it is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

THE "HUMAN MIRACLE."

Laughter a Blessing No Bird, Beast, Fish or Reptile Possesses.

In the London Opinion the sage James Douglas, speculating on that pleasurable emotion which is accompanied by face cracking movements of the muscles of the physiognomy and a brightness of the eyes and is known as laughter, describes the phenomenon as "the human miracle" and says:

"No bird or beast or fish or reptile can laugh. You can teach an ape to do almost anything, but you cannot teach him to laugh. The awful solemnity of animals is the one really intolerable thing on this earth. They are cut off from the abiding miracle of humor.

"A wise man has warned us to interrogate ourselves when we laugh. I totally and entirely repudiate that diabolical doctrine. Never interrogate yourself when you laugh. You should never look a laugh in the mouth.

"There are many kinds of laughter, but they are all good. Interrogate yourself if you like when you weep. But if you value the well being of your soul never interrogate yourself when you laugh. Laughter is a good thing in itself and an end by itself. The quality of laughter, like the quality of mercy, ought never to be strained. Laugh before you look."

Why Not Say "Woman?"

Whenever one has occasion to mention the most remarkable sex of the human species one is confronted by the pertinacious fact that there is no general term to describe the subject of man's dissertations except the unlovely and almost meaningless term "female." That term is altogether too general. It includes cows, hens and all other beings of that gender. Some word is needed that will express the female of the human species and nothing else. She who orders the universe and makes planets and suns and stars worth while ought to have a name of her own and one worthy of her. We call upon the nations of the world to devote themselves for a time to this really important task.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

AN ANSWER TO REV. J. A. M'KENZIE

MAGISTRATE DUMBLE DENIES THAT HE THREATENED TO SEND TWO BOYS TO JAIL—PARENTS APPROVED OF THE SENTENCE.

Reverend and Dear Sir:—

I have read in the Peterboro Review a letter purporting to have been written by you in which you intemperately refer to a judgment delivered by me recently in the Police Court.

You are a clergyman and an experienced conductor and teacher of a Boys' Boarding School at Lakefield, and, no doubt, experienced in the ways of young boys.

Two boys, Samuel Dewhurst, aged 10 and Findlay Woodcock, aged 7 years, were charged with breaking into the shop of Robert Fair and stealing therefrom sums of money on two separate occasions.

The boys went to the rear of the shop, on one occasion they smashed a large plate glass window worth $50 and on another occasion they broke the plate glass in the door. Once they entered by the broken window and the next time they, by putting a hand through the broken glass in the door, unlocked it and entered.

On the breaking of the glass by four blows from an iron pipe in the hands of the small boy on the instruction of the larger boy, the larger boy says he turned his back so as not to see.

These boys, though young, are bold and daring and have robbed a number of places. Dewhurst is the son of a widow. Woodcock's father lives here.

The charge was fully proved and no part of it denied.

In such cases I never have sent little boys to jail. The parents are responsible to make good for financial damage. The plate glass in Fair's door which they smashed was worth $50. I adjudged that the parents do pay $30.00 as compensation, Mrs. Dewhurst, the widow, $12.00; the father of Findlay Woodcock $18.00, no costs.

I consulted with the parents and suggested that I could not send the boys to jail, but they must be stopped in their criminal career; that I could not order them to be whipped but that if they consented and wanted the boys whipped there was a constable on the staff who would judiciously apply the cat of nine tails and that that would be the best thing to be done, as I could not reach their conscience.

The smart of the cat would give them a lesson they would never forget and might save the boys.

Both parents approved the suggestion. Both stood by and watched the proceeding. The mother of the big boy, Mrs. Dewhurst, expressed a fear that the cat was not being applied vigorously enough. The law does not allow whipping and I never adjudge whipping, but I approve of it and recommend it.

I think the law is at fault. In all good English schools the whip is used.

Arnold of Rugby approved of whipping and whipped accordingly and I have no doubt the Reverend Mr. McKenzie finds it necessary to use a cane occasionally.

I have been 36 years on the Bench and I am satisfied that wayward criminal boys of tender years cannot be saved by imprisonment, and should not be imprisoned. I never sent one to jail. Judicious whipping is decidedly the best medicine for boys, and I have seen the best results from it.

These little boys were young criminals on the high road to destruction. My hope is that the steps taken in their case may deter them from further crime until they get old enough realize that a clean, virtuous life is the best life.

The criminal law does not provide for whipping save in certain serious offences, and I never have adjudged the whipping of boys yet. When satisfied that the whip is the best remedy under the circumstances, I suggest it to the parents and if they request it I allow a taws kept at the station to be administered by a prudent, considerable constable in the presence of the parent or guardian. In this case the parents both readily consented and they stood by and watched the operation. One of them suggesting to the constable to lay on with more force, and I have since learned that the parents before the trial went to Adjutant Buntin of the Salvation Army and asked him to request me to impose whipping. I have followed this course for many years with happiest results. I believe in the whipping for juvenile offenders.

The State of New Jersey has retained its whipping post and stocks and as a result the hoboes and tramps give the State a wide berth.

Many parents have so little control of themselves that they are not fit to whip a dog—but the deliberate application by an officer of the law of the cat, delivered without temper on the shoulders of boys will be remembered when the moral lesson delivered by the Magistrate is never taken to heart or is speedily forgotten. I have never had a complaint from parents because a son was whipped, I think it has saved many a boy from a bad life and I would urge the men who make our laws to legalise whipping of boys, by officers of the law so that it be done under supervision of the Chief of Police. It will save many a boy from the Penitentiary.

It is suggested that Peterborough needs a Juvenile Court. The things constantly said in the Toronto papers about the Toronto Juvenile Court will deter all outside places from trying that experiment. At Peterborough we have a home under supervision of the Children's Aid Society, well administered. We have a most efficient agent of the Children's Aid Society and the Magistrate is in full sympathy with its operations.

At Mimico there is an excellent Reformatory for boys, to which I have sent many boys, but it must be remembered that not the best boys but the worst boys are sent there, and there is danger that a boy may come out worse than he went in. It is useless to send a boy there for a short time and if one is there for say three years, the cost to the Municipality which sends the boy would be $500 or $600. The Municipalities don't like this. I may add that a long knowledge of the Mimico Establishment causes me to approve it as a most admirable establishment, well conducted.

I ask that your readers may carefully read the report made to the Court by Detective Newhall regarding the two boys and settle in their own minds what they, if in my place, would have done with these boys. I was for long years a Sunday school teacher and a superintendent. I am long past my three score and ten years. I sent out to the world my six sons, none of whom had ever a whelt on his back, and never shamed me. I have done my duty before God and man and I feel that the school teacher at Lakefield was hasty in writing his intemperate letter to the Peterborough Review from which you quote. I never fined the children. I ordered the parents to make compensation for $30.00 part of the cost of replacing the plate glass which is estimated at $50.00, and in default of payment imprisonment of ten days of the parents—not the children

I am, Sir,
Your Obedient Servant,
D. W. Dumble

Re: Samuel Dewhurst, Age 10.

I beg to report that Samuel Dewhurst, age 10, makes the following statement in the presence and hearing of Findlay Woodcock and his older brother:—

"I am ten years old and live with my mother at Simcoe street. On Sunday afternoon, about 4 p.m., July 6, I and Findlay Woodcock broke into the Peterborough Floral Co.'s store at Water street, we had previously broken into there last Sunday afternoon by breaking a square of glass and crawled in through the openings—so this time we found a piece of wood over the hole. Findlay kicked it out. I told him to do so. We took all the coppers we could find in the till and a lot of packets of seeds some of which we scattered on the floor, the first time we were in we also got some coppers. After we had done this job we went to the rear of Robt. Soden's store, Hunter St. I told Findlay to break a large glass that was in the door. He got an iron pipe that was behind an auto, with it he smashed the glass. I put my hand through the hole and opened the door, when in we stole about $1.80 each, a lot of pencils, books, rubbers and other things (all those things there on the table). Then we went to the Dominion Police Office, Simcoe street. We had to climb over some gates and when over we found a key in the back door. We went in there but did not take anything, only the key which I gave back to Mr. McBride. We then went behind Perkins, Ince & Co's warehouse and buried all the stuff and money that we had stolen. We showed it to the police this morning. Then we went home to tea and after tea we went into the Oriental Hotel, Hunter street, it would be about 7.30 p.m. We got a plank and put it up to the wall, climbed up and over the wall and down behind Mr. Robert Fair's store, George street. We could not force the back door, as it was locked inside so we smashed a large plate glass window. It would be about twice as big as a door. I told Findlay to smash it with an iron pipe, which we found in the yard and I would not look whilst he did it. He had to strike it three times before it fell to pieces. We crawled into the store and stole $1.50 from a drawer in the office. We had previously broken into this store on Thursday, July 3, about 7 p.m., but that time we unhooked the fire door and then smashed the glass in the door, so as we could put our hands in and unbolt the door. That time we got $1.50 and some coppers and used the elevator, also got some bathing suits ready to take, but we did not take them. The glass in the door was half the size of the door. We would not have broken the big plate glass window if we could have got in through the door. I admit also climbing through a window in Oke's fruit Warehouse at the corner of Bethune and Simcoe streets. Findlay stayed outside. I got money and fruit and divided up with Findlay."

Findlay Woodcock admits that the above statement is all correct.

WOOLLEN MILLS ISSUE ON MARKET

Unique Issue of Industrial Preference Shares Being Made by Canadian Woollens Limited—No Bond Issue and Special Redemption Features—Strong Board of Directors

Toronto, July 22.—There are several unique features about the Canadian Woollens Limited issue of $1,750,000 7 per cent. cumulative preferred shares now being offered to the public. In the first place the company is starting operation with no bonded indebtedness standing in front of the preference stock; and, moreover, covenant has been entered into that no mortgages will be placed ahead of the preference shares unless with the consent of more than two-thirds of the issued preferred shares. In the second place a sinking fund of 2 per cent. on preferred share issue a year will be established commencing with the 1st of July, 1921 and this will provide for the redemption of a goodly proportion of the preference shares, and accumulated profits should easily provide for the balance. Redemption can take place after the 1st of July, 1922 by drawings at 110 or in the open market at a price not in excess of 110.

The total authorized capitalization of the company is $3,500,000 made up equally of preferred and common $100 shares. The aggregate earnings of the Auburn Woollen Company, The Standard Woollen Mills Company and the Bonner-Worth Company, the three firms now amalgamated under the name of Canadian Woollens Limited, have averaged nearly a third of a million dollars a year for the past five and a half years, or over two and a half times the total annual preferred dividend on the present capitalization.

An unusually strong board of directors is associated with the company, Mr. I. Bonner, of Paris, is general manager of Penmans Limited; Mr. A. O. Dawson, of Montreal vice-president and managing-director of the Canadian Cottons Limited; F. R. Sweeney, of Hamilton, president of the Zimmerman Reliance Limited; Mr. J. D. Perry, of Toronto, vice-president of Barrymore Cloth Company; and Messrs. J. B. Ferguson, W. K. George, and F. B. Hayes are well known in connection with the development of important Canadian industries.

The organizers of the amalgamation estimate that net profits will be considerably larger under the merger as present orders are a great deal in excess of all previous records, and the quite considerable saving in administration expenses will increase the surplus at par and carrying a 25 per cent. bonus on common stock. A syndicate made up of the Canada Bond Corporation, Ferguson & Ormsby and Hanson Bros. are handling the issue.

MO MORE STAR CHAMBER SESSIONS FOR COMMITTEE

FIGHT OVER PEACE TREATY CONTINUES AMONG AMERICAN SENATORS.

(Special to The Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, July 23. — The principle of "Open Covenants of Peace openly arrived at" is to be applied to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee's consideration of the Treaty, according to plans made by administration senators to-day.

Usually the committee's sessions the secrecy of the Peace Conference, ise, said he will call up at once his resolution providing that all sessions of the committee be open to the public.

Senator Lodge, Republican Leader and chairman of the committee, has practically assured Jones that he will not fight the resolution.

Democracy senators declared that the Republicans dared not vote against open sessions, because they have assailed President Wilson for the secrecy of the Peace Conference, and have constantly demanded that the public be kept informed from day to day of all developments.

Much interest was manifested to-day in President Wilson's probable action as a result of the committee's refusal to approve his appointing an American member of the Allied Reparations Committee.

Some senators professed to think the President will appoint a delegate anyway, while others expect him to announce to the Allies and to the American people that he is unable to join in an effort to get the Peace settlement under way now because Republican Senators refuse him permission.

THREE TO ONE VOTE FOR BONE DRY U.S.A.

PROHIBITION BILL WITH DRASTIC PENALTIES PASSES IN UNITED STATES HOUSE

WASHINGTON, July 22— By a vote of nearly three to one, the house, weary of talk on prohibition, to-day passed a bill for its enforcement, with provisions and penalties so drastic as to bring from the men who framed it the prediction that it would forever suppress the liquor traffic on American soil.

Some men voluntarily join the ranks of the benedicts, and some have to be drafted.

...courage of times.

A big feature of the game was the hitting of Cavanah for the De Lavals, and Solomon and Head for the Orientals. The De Laval third sacker hit a home run to left field, a line drive that shot by Heenan like a rifle bullet, a single and a double in three times at bat. Manager Solomon cracked out four singles in five trips to the plate, and Head fattened his average with a triple and two singles in five appearances.

The fielding features included a fine catch of a hard drive from Mulhern's bat by the veteran George McDonald, pressed into service at the last moment by De Laval. McDonald not only had this play to his credit, but came through with a triple with two on the sacks. Jack McCarney, the Orientals centre fielder, caught four flies in sparkling fashion, and his throw to the infield on Cavanah's rap in the ninth, relayed in quick style to third by Cherrett, helped to save the game for the winners.

Neither team scored in the first, but De Laval got three in the second. Rose started things with a single to centre and stole second. Cavanah walked, and the two pulled off a double steal. McDonald hit to Murray, whose throw to the plate was wide and high and Rose scored. J. Murray struck out and McNeeley grounded to Mulhern, Cavanah scoring. Legoe hit to Murray and was safe on the third baseman's low throw, McDonald scoring. Dugan singled to centre and stole second, but Bergoine fanned.

Cavanah's home run drive past Heenan with two out in the third, gave De Laval their fourth count.

The Orientals evened things up in the fourth. Cherrett, first up, beat out a bunt and Heenan walked. Mulhern singled to centre and Cherrett was caught between third and the plate, but finally got back to third safely when the throw hit him. Rose threw wild to first in an attempt to get Mulhern and Cherrett scored, the other runners moving up a peg. Solomon singled to second to score Heenan. The Oriental manager stole second. Head singled to right, scoring Mul-

MARVELS OF SCIENCE.

In Wondering at the New Ones Don't Forget the Railroad.

The most recent mysteries of science are the ones that receive most attention. The air is full of talk nowadays about the thrilling wonders of wireless telegraph and aviation and subterranean transportation and submarine navigation. And very rightly, for these are marvels. But for that matter so are some of the things which we have gradually grown so used to that we never see them at all.

There is the railroad. Plenty of romantic mystery is to be found in the railroad yard of a great terminal. It is, first of all, a network of steel pathways which seems unthreadable. Trains come and go by devious ways; semaphore arms rise or fall in that one rectangular gesture of theirs. The providence that shapes the ends of all this takes the form of men tugging at some very prosaic looking levers in switch towers.

To get still another effect look at the yard by night, when great limiteds come surging through the dark, when the only guides are pieces of multi-colored switch and signal lamps. The cars of night freights being made up trundle about, and the yard never sleeps. In its way it is as full of life as the jungle. Every locomotive is a dragon harnessed to man's service.

The marvels of science are all about us, and the ones we have grown used to are just as remarkable as those of today and tomorrow.—Collier's.

WEATHER TO ORDER.

It May Possibly Be Brought About by the Aid of Electricity.

Is it possible to make weather to order? In the opinion of Sir Oliver Lodge, it is by no means beyond the powers of man. He advances the suggestion that exploration of the upper regions would result in discoveries which would enable man to control the weather.

The latter, he contends, is merely a matter of electrical conditions, and the ingredients necessary for fine weather are an upper atmosphere charged with positive electricity and a negative charge upon the earth's surface. Much, he says, could be done by placing a copper rod round the earth parallel to the equator and discharging millions of amperes (units) from this rod. Sir Oliver points out that we have spent millions on building railways, and why not invest capital in controlling the weather by this means?

Meantime, while we are thinking about the copper rod, much might be done by electricians. Sir Oliver Lodge suggests that they should ascend a high mountain, erect a powerful generating station and discharge all the positive electricity they can produce into the air. By this means much of the abnormal weather from which we suffer at times might be avoided and nature be induced to provide us with more regular seasons.

Disorder.

I distrust both the intellect and morality of people to which disorder is of no consequence. What surrounds us reflects more or less that which is within us. The mind is like one of those dark lanterns which in spite of everything still throw some light around. If our tastes did not reveal our character they would be no longer tastes, but instincts.—Emile Souvestre

The Lesser of Two Evils.

"I'll be mighty glad when I start to school," announced Willie one day.

"Why will you be glad, dear?" asked his mother in surprise.

"Well, then you an' papa will have to cut out this spellin' of words that you don't want me to hear."—Ladies' Home Journal.

When a Man Makes His Will.

It is a morbid superstition that a man dies when he makes his will. More often he lives happily and long after he has done so. It relieves his mind.—London Saturday Review.

A TOUCH OF THE GAMBLING SPIRIT PROMPTED CHEESE MEN TO SELL

TO-DAY'S MARKET VERY UNCERTAIN BUT STOCKS HAVE PILED UP AND EXPECTED FIXED PRICE MIGHT NOT BE AS HIGH AS SALESMEN'S HOPES---1,600 BOXES WERE CLEARED.

ALL SOLD AT 25 11-16c.

Facing the present uncertainties of the market and the intimations of a fixed price for export, the cheese board this morning hesitated about accepting the high bid of 25 11-16c, but following the lead of W. A. Anderson of the Keene factory, the other salesmen concluded that a top price in hand might be as good, if not better, than two in the bush, and disposed of their offerings to Mr. W. Weir, buyer for W. A. Grant, and to Mr. G. A. Gillespie.

At the opening of the board Mr. W. S. Cook of Belleville quoted 24c. Mr. Gillespie stated that he had no definite price but on the advice of the Hodgson firm of Montreal, he was prepared to advance to 25 1-2c, and would make up the difference between that and any fixed price that might be announced. Mr. T. H. Thompson made the same announcement, but Mr. Cook explained that he had orders for western trade. Meanwhile Mr. Gillespie received a long-distance telephone call and returning stated that he had orders to buy within a certain price limit.

The information in possession of the buyers and sellers alike was decidedly indefinite. Mr. Thompson said that he understood that a fixed price for the British market might be announced to-day. A commission representing the old country interests had arrived in New York on Saturday and was expected in Canada at once.

Mr. Cook recalled that the British price had dropped 18 shillings and the rate of exchange was also down to $4.23.

It was suggested that to-day's price might, under the prevailing adverse conditions of trade, be better than the expected fixed price. Besides the factories were overstocked with unsold cheese and a few of them that are without cold storage rooms were exposing their large surplus to the danger of depreciation. These were apparently some of the factors considered by the salesmen when they finally decided to sell, after all but Oakdale had waveringly declined to take Mr. Weir's bid.

Mr. Weir's Call.

Mr. Cook opened at 24c but Mr. Weir and Mr. Gillespie pushed it steadily upward to 25 11-16c. At that price Mr. Weir secured first call and filled his order with five factories — Oakdale, Keene, Lang, Villiers and Westwood.

With 25 11-16c for further selections Mr. Gillespie bought the rest of the Board. Adjournment for two weeks was announced.

Had doctored but did not seem to get cured of the ailment. At last I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it did me more good than any medicine I ever took. It built me up and I felt better in every way than I had for two years previously."—MRS. L. HEARN.

PERSONS HELD ON SERIOUS CHARGES

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, July 23.—Four persons held in connection with the deaths of fellow-citizens, appeared in Hull Police Courts this morning.

George Durand and his wife faced murder charges in connection with the death of Private James Maloney, of Toronto, who was killed in a row-house on 16th June.

The case is proceeding.

Corporal Konowal, V.C., was charged with the murder of William Artick on Sunday last, and was remanded until 28th July for preliminary hearing.

Pierre Lamirand, who accidentally shot his neighbour, Mrs. Beauchamp, yesterday, was remanded until 28th July. The woman died of wounds.

STEADY RAIN FOR NINE DAYS

CONEY ISLAND IS DESERTED — CLOUDBURST AT BUDD'S LAKE.

(Special to The Examiner.)

NEW YORK, July 23.—Rain was falling for the ninth successive day in New York and vicinity to-day.

Millions of dollars, it was estimated, had been lost because of the storms, and Coney Island and other resorts have been practically deserted.

Thousands of commuters late yesterday were delayed more than an hour when the Pennsylvania Railroad electric system was paralysed through a short circuit.

Trains on the Long Island Railway, Hudson and Manhattan tubes to New Jersey also were halted. Some trolley lines were affected.

At Budd's Lake, N.J., a cloudburst inundated homes and raised the water in the lake twenty-six inches.

A section of the dam was cut away to avoid a possible catastrophe.

THOUSANDS TOOK IN OPENING NIGHT OF POLACK BROTHERS 20 BIG SHOWS

CONGRESS OF WONDERS INSTRUCTS ENTERTAINS AND AMUSES—THE LA ROSE ELECTRIC FOUNTAIN.

Thousands attended the opening of the Polack Brothers' 20 Big Shows, which are exhibiting at the Exhibition Grounds all this week under the auspices of the Peterborough Agricultural Association. The circus grounds resembles a great white way, its course being lined with side shows, circuses, wild west shows and freak attractions, while the centre of the oval is occupied by the Whip, Ferris Wheel and Merry Go Round.

Fire Eaters.

Queer and strange people, interesting subjects and curiosities from all parts of the earth, comprise a collection of entertainers that are usually seen with the larger circuses. There are fat girls, midgets, clowns, princesses, cowboys, snake charmers, fire eaters, sword swallowers, etc., presenting their individual numbers that are pleasing to the public who is ever seeking new and novel features.

Congress of Wonders.

A journey through the congress of wonders is well worth the time as it is instructive, educational, entertaining and amusing. As one enters the big circus his or her attention is attracted to the first tented attraction, that of Elizabeth, the living doll lady. It can be safely said that Elizabeth has been well named as she holds a perfect likeness to a life size doll. Her variety of entertainment last evening pleased the large crowds that were present. Elizabeth has the distinction of being the feature attraction at the Panama Pacific Exposition in San Francisco, 1915.

Circus Side Show.

The circus side show is the next attraction; it is just like the annex which is usually carried by the larger circuses. Freaks of nature, entertainers and curiosities have been assembled, and the lecturer carries his audience in an interesting trance from one platform to another explaining the merits of each.

Wild West Show.

One of the most noteworthy features of the big wild west show is the fancy roping exhibition given by a 14 year old boy. His work is indeed wonderful, his horsemanship perfect. Princess Wenona, who was associated with the Buffalo Bill Show presents and interesting exhibition of revolver and rifle shooting.

A Wonderful Scene.

The feature attraction of the big Midway is what is known as the La Rose Electric Fountain, a remarkable and beautiful electric display of fire, water and electricity. The spectator is thrilled, spellbound and bewildered with the novelty of this production. High water pressure sends beautiful colored streams leaping high in the air, falling over the very forms of dancing girls. It is a show beautiful additionally interesting on account of its novelty as being an outdoor attraction. A hippodrome feature.

Fat People.

The congress of fat people contains many noteworthy freaks. Arabian Nights produces scenes of the Far East. Bob and Don Barclay, dare devil cyclists thrill upon a straight racing track, while Florida May, the Midnight Follies, Over the Falls, San Francisco Barbary Coast, provides a fine variety of entertainment.

The Whip.

The Whip, Ferris Wheel and Merry Go Round, three large riding devices, were crowded to their capacity last evening with joy seekers.

The Polack Shows is an amusement providing affair, featured by a variety of attractions that are clean, inviting and entertaining.

satin, cut short and loose and is worn over the bloomers of the same material. The bloomers are full and are shirred at the knees. With the suit Miss Dana wears silk socks and black satin bathing shoes trimmed in white. An original touch is given the costume by a close-fitting cap of old rose silk fringe which was designed by the little actress herself and which adds an aid of jaunty frivolity to the otherwise severe suit. Altogether the costume was meant for comfort in swimming, it is made of the richest of materials and is of extreme smartness.

A Home Recipe For Removing Wrinkles

Who will blame the modern woman for trying to look as young and attractive as she reasonably can? Why should she be placed at a disadvantage in numerous ways by wearing wrinkles, if she can avoid these hateful marks of advancing age? Few women, however, know what to do to effectually rid themselves of wrinkles or saggipess. Most of the advertised preparations are unsatisfactory and very expensive. But a very simple and harmless home remedy, which any woman can make, will work wonders where all the patent preparations fail.

Buy an ounce of powdered saxolite at any drug store. Dissolve the whole ounce in a half pint of witch hazel and use as a wash lotion. The results are practically instantaneous. Marked improvement is noticed immediately after the very first trial. Wrinkles and sagging are corrected and the face feels so refreshed and smug-like.

THE WAR MEASURES ACT ENDS WHEN PEACE IS SIGNED WITH CENTRAL POWERS

LEGISLATION WITHOUT CONSULTING PARLIAMENT WAS AUTHORIZED BY WAR MEASURES ACT ONLY TILL PEACE WAS PROCLAIMED WITH TWO FOES THEN IN ARMS.

Only the reluctance of jockey clubs to clash with the expressed wishes of Sir Robert Borden and Hon. N. W. Rowell appear to stand in the way of the early resumption of horse racing in Canada. Sir Allen Aylesworth, former Minister of Justice, has furnished a detailed opinion to the effect that the order-in-council making it a criminal offence to bet on an authorized race track becomes entirely destitute of force as soon as a royal proclamation is issued in London declaring that a state of war no longer exists with Germany or Austria-Hungary.

When Can Liquor Come In?

Presuming that Sir Allen Aylesworth is right in contending that all legislation under the War Measures Act ends with the proclamation of peace with Germany and Austria-Hungary, there are other orders in council besides that against speculation on horse racing which will soon be invalidated. The most important of those which have not already been repealed is that which has made Ontario nominally "bone-dry" for the past fifteen months.

The War Measures Act was passed by the Dominion Parliament Aug. 22nd, 1914, in view of a state of war then existing against Germany and Austria-Hungary. The former Minister of Justice proclaims that when His Majesty George V. officially proclaims the British Empire again at peace with those two original belligerents the act itself and all orders-in-council issued under it have no further validity.

On December 22, 1917, announcement was made of an order-in-council prohibiting the importation of liquor into Canada after December 24th, 1917, and the transportation after April 1, 1918, of intoxicating liquor into any part of Canada where its sale was illegal under local enactment. [illegible] order-in-council [illegible] effective — which will [illegible] within a few days— [illegible] for residents of [illegible] again from other [illegible]

In addition, while retail sale was recently legislated against in Quebec, provision was made for the selection of ten firms who were to be allowed to import into that province and export into the rest of Canada. It is understood that they may also act as inter-provincial distributors for such wet goods as are still allowed to be manufactured under the Quebec Act.

Pressure is said to have been brought to bear upon the Ontario Government to divert to this province from its eastern neighbor some of the profit of this sale for home consumption, which it is powerless to prevent, in view of the Senate's action in throwing out the bill passed by the House of Commons to extend the term of national prohibiton.

Men, Men!

Feel Fine To-morrow

Simple Way to Get "Pep," To Be Put Right On Your Feet.

When a man has lost ambition to "dig in" and stay at things — when he complains of headache, fullness in the right side, pains in the shoulder blade—it's purely a case of "Liver."

These symptoms invariably indicate a clogged, inactive liver. The body can't get rid of its wastes and the whole system is half paralyzed.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills stimulate the liver into activity in one night. Being a mild vegetable laxative they produce results in a few hours. The bilious headache and constipation are cured, spirits rise, complexion clears, animation returns. Nothing in the calender so efficient for that tired, lazy feeling as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Very mild, don't interfere with work, invariably do lots of good. Try a 25 cent box; all dealers.

The love of money is also the root of much matrimony.

If a man is your friend he doesn't have to tell you so.

No young man ever considers his best girl too good to be true.

A woman learns a lot from her servants, but she will not admit it.

DEFENDANTS IN THE JURY SEATS

WINNIPEG, Man., July 23.— If a decision in cases against the labour leaders now on trial rested with the men who occupied the jurors box Monday afternoon when the case came before Magistrate Noble for a preliminary hearing, the odds would be a million to one on a decision of "not guilty." The men in the jury box were the defendants.

After the amended information against them had been read the men started to file back to their places among the spectators.

"You boys can sit in the jurors' chairs if you want," said A. J. Andrews, Crown Prosecutor. So they did.

OTTAWA, July 23 — A. A. McLean, comptroller of the Northwest Mounted Police, emphatically denies a statement made by T. H. "This, like much of the rest of the speech," said Mr. McLean, "is transparent falseness, and is scarcely worthy of attention."

COMMUNITY SPIRIT SHOWN BY CRANES

Birds Are Not Particular Which Nest They Occupy

The remarkable community spirit shown by the cranes is well illustrated in a number of excellent photographs taken by Mr. Fred Roy while holidaying near Ketchecum Lake. At the invitation of the fire ranger in that locality Mr. Roy visited an island on Suckfler Lake. This island has to all intents and purposes been expropriated by hecranes with the result that every tree top on the island has one or more nests built in the topmost branches. The cranes do not object to more than one family occupying one tree top and shuld the paren bird be chased by an intruder it will fly to another nest. The photographs will be on display thils evening in the windows of the Roy Studio.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed with Sulphur It Brings Back Its Beautiful Lustre at Once.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural colour is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous and you appear years younger.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

ORIENTALS WON EXCITING GAME FROM DE LAVAL

PLENTY OF HEAVY HITTING AND FREQUENT SCORING FEATURE CITY LEAGUE FIXTURE---RUNS CAME IN TOO THICK IN ONE INNINGS AND SOME OF THE GRAND STAND SCORERS LOST ONE IN THE SHUFFLE---CAVANAH'S HOMER THE SECOND CIRCUIT DRIVE OF THE SEASON.

Phelan, first up, singled to third, the ball glancing off Cavanah's shins. McCarney's infield out to Dugan advanced Phelan to second. Murray swung a bunt past McNeeley and was safe at first, Phelan going to third. Murray stole second. Cherrett bounced a single over McNeeley's head, scoring Phelan with Run No. 1. Heenan hit a grounder to Dugan, whose throw to the plate was to late to stop Murray scoring with Run No. 2, while Heenan was safe at first. Mulhern drew a pass, filling the bases. Solomon singled through the box, the ball going out over second, Cherrett and Heenan scoring Runs No. 3 and No. 4 respectively. Mulhern rounded third on the play and was tagged out. In the meantime Solomon kept going around the circuit, and when Cavanah lost Bergoine's throw in the run, Solomon came home with Run No. 5. Head made the third out on a grounder to Legon. Five runs.

This seems a rather unusual way to commence the story of a ball game, and is for the benefit of the grand stand scorers, who at last night's City League fixture between the De Laval and Oriental teams, having nothing but their memory to help them keep track of the game, lost one run in the the shuffle and were under the hallucination last evening, and some of them may be yet, that only four Orientals crossed the plate in the seventh innings. Hence the above detailed sketch of the play in that session, which has purposely been made as clear as possible. If it fails to convince them, an endeavour will be made to illustrate the play by diagram, so that the slighest possibility of a mistake may be eliminated.

To get back to the game, the Orientals won by 10 runs to 9 after a battle that was see-saw in nature and full of features as a three-ringed circus. At one stage De Laval led by 4 to 0, but the Orientals tied it up in the fourth. The score stayed at 4 to 4 until the seventh, when the Solomon crew sent five runs over and apparently had the game on ice. De Laval were not yet beaten, however. They rallied in the eighth and chased a trio of counters across which left it 9 to 7. The Orientals nicked their last run in the ninth and they needed it, too, for De Laval came back with a pair and fell only one notch short of tieing up the game.

McNeeley, released yesterday by the Orientals to the De Laval team, pitched for the Separator gang against his old team mates, and thus had the distinction of being the only City League player to perform for two different teams in the League. Kirn was on the rubber for the winners and was his harder than he usually is in the City League, while his support wobbled at times.

A big feature of the game was the hitting of Cavanah for the De Lavals, and Solomon and Head for the Orientals. The De Laval third sacker hit a home run to left field, a line drive that shot by Heenan like a rifle bullet, a single and a double in three times at bat. Manager Solomon cracked out four singles in five trips to the plate, and Head fattened his average with a triple and two singles in five appearances.

The fielding features included a fine catch of a hard drive from Mulhern's bat by the veteran George McDonald, pressed into service at the last moment by De Laval. McDonald not only had this play to his credit, but came through with a triple with two on the sacks. Jack McCarney, the Orientals centre fielder, caught four flies in sparkling fashion, and his throw to the infield on Cavanah's rap in the ninth, relayed in quick style to third by Cherrett, helped to save the game for the winners.

Neither team scored in the first, but De Laval got three in the second. Rose started things with a single to centre and stole second. Cavanah walked, and the two pulled off a double steal. McDonald hit to Murray, whose throw to the plate was wide and high and Rose scored. J. Murray struck out and McNeeley grounded to Mulhern, Cavanah scoring. Legon hit to Murray and was safe on the third baseman's low throw, McDonald scoring. Dugan singled to centre and stole second, but Bergoine fanned.

Cavanah's home run drive past Heenan with two out in the third, gave De Laval their fourth count.

The Orientals evened things up in the fourth. Cherrett, first up, beat out a bunt and Heenan walked. Mulhern singled to centre and Cherrett was caught between third and the plate, but finally got back to third safely when the throw hit him. Rose threw wild to first in an attempt to get Mulhern and Cherrett scored, the other runners moving up a peg. Solomon singled to second to score Heenan. The Oriental manager stole second. Head singled to right, scoring Mulhern and Solomon, but was out trying to go to second on the throw to the plate. Kirn's fly to Dugan ended the innings.

The story of the Orientals' big innings in the seventh has already been told.

De Laval came through with a rally in the eighth. Rose hit to Mulhern and was safe on the latter's bad throw. Cavanah bunted to Kirn, who threw high to second, Rose going to third. McDonald's triple to left scored Rose and Cavanah. J. Murray was hit. McDonald scored on a double steal, Mulhern's return to the plate being wild. McNeeley fanned, Legon rolled to Kirn, and Dugan missed three, leaving Murray on third.

The Orientals ran their string up to ten in the last innings. With two out, Heenan and Mulhern walked and Solomon singled on a line to left, scoring Heenan. Bergoine tossed Head out at first.

De Laval made a determined effort to pull the game out of the fire in the ninth. Bergoine was out on a nice catch by McCarney, but Fitzgerald was hit and stole second, and Rose singled to short. Cherrett making a nice stop. Rose stole second and the two scored on Cavanah's double to left centre. Cavanah tried to stretch the drive into a triple, but was nipped at third on a fast relay, McCarney to Cherrett to Murray, and McDonald ended the game with a fly to Mulhern. The score:

JACK JOHNSON IN BOUT WITH FLYNN

Chicago Negro Reconsiders Decision to Quit Ring—Is in Mexico.

BOSTON, July 22.—Announcement has been made that Jack Johnson, former heavyweight boxing champion, who is exiled from this country, will box Dan ("Porky") Flynn of Boston at Monterey, Mexico, next Sunday. The report comes from Galveston, Texas and is the first intimation that the Chicago negro has reconsidered his determination to quit the ring forever.

Since Johnson fled from the United States he has been shunned in England, France and Spain, and has finally landed in Mexico. Moterey, where the bout will take place, is the capital of the State of Nuevo Leon.

LOS ANGELES, July 22.—Mrs. "Snowy" Baker, wife of the Australian sport promotor, lailed on Jack Dempsey, world's champion heavyweight boxer, and Jack Kearns, his manager, and offered Dempsey $100,000 to stage his next bout at Sydney, Australia. The offer was contained in a cablegram from Baker. Kearns told Mrs. Baker he could not give a definite answer at this time, as he had a similar offer from Paris and was waiting for developments in that matter.

United States Captures the Trade Formerly Enjoyed by Wales.

LONDON, July 22.—It was authoritatively stated at the Swans Coal Exchange that at the week-end a contract was signed for the delivery of 100,000 tons of American coal to France, the delivery to run up to the end of this year.

It is stated that though the American price is considerably below ours, the chief factor is that the Americans can ensure deliveries.

Negotiations are proceeding for an additional half million tons of American coal for France. All of this coal has been supplied hitherto by South Wales.

VERA DE LAVELLE SURRENDERED TO TORONTO POLICE ON ADVICE OF COUNSEL

SWEETHEART OF THE LATE FRANK M'CULLOUGH TELLS WHY SHE WANTS FATE DECIDED---NO DIFFICULTY KEEPING OUT OF HANDS OF POLICE AS LONG AS SHE WISHED.

TORONTO, July 23 — Vera De Lavelle, the woman in the sensational Frank McCullough case, who, while awaiting sentence on a charge of aiding McCullough to escape from the death cell at Toronto jail, herself escaped from the jail, prior to his execution yesterday afternoon, surrendered herself to Detective Walter McConnell. Accompanied by her counsel, Mr. Wm. B. Horkins, of the firm of Robinette, Phelan & Godfrey, she reached police headquarters at 2:35 p.m. In terror of returning to the jail where her lover paid the death penalty, she chose the City Hall as the place of her surrender.

"Take me any place but to the jail. It would break my heart to put me in the place where they took my lover's life," she said. "Even now I cannot think of it without a shudder, and in my mind I can see my brave boy being led to his death."

To a reporter who chanced to be present when she was entering the City Hall, Vera talked freely.

"I just could not stand it any longer. I made up my mind yesterday that I was no criminal, so here I am back to face it all," was her opening plain statement.

Walking slowly up the broad steps of the City Hall, from Mr. Horkins' motor, which had brought her back to the custody of the law, Vera De Lavelle fairly sparkled as she unfolded in her own way "my reasons for getting away as I did and my wish to play square with the authorities."

Lost Wan Look.

She never looked better. The time she has been absent with "my many good friends" has certainly removed that wan and excited look the woman had during the time she was awaiting sentence over the Don for aiding murderer McCullough to escape.

Brighter than ever, the story she told in the presence of her lawyer and Detective McConnell was punctuated with many little reasons all of her own as to why she came back.

Easy To Hide

"Why you could have stayed away indefinitely" suggested the reporter. "Certainly I could" said she, "I'll tell the world that I could have been in New York or Kalamazoo or any place I chose. Why, one man communicated with me that I could leave Toronto in perfect safety at any hour. And I will tell you another secret. A friend of mine spent a long time pleading with me to leave town for any place I mentioned right after dear Frank's death. I just couldn't, however, so I stayed on with my Toronto friends, but let me tell you every now and then I had offers to put Toronto off my map, but I could not see it that way.

"At the same time I did not want to take chances with a sentence and going back to that jail. So I just waited."

Why She Returned

"To hide in Toronto is easy. I could have stayed away by myself indefinitely and had a good time all the time. Why I have had a good dinner at a downtown hotel and I have had all the ice cream and things like that which I wanted. I was always oppressed with a feeling nevertheless that I might be taken some time when I was out and I didn't want to embarrass my friends.

"Then why do you come back now?"

"As I said I am no criminal. I have never been in any trouble. I want to go ahead and lead my own life without all that constant worry that you have done something of which you are ashamed. I don't think I did anything mean or cruel against the law. I don't think there is a woman in Toronto, if she had been in my place who would have done one bit different, provided she loved Frank the way I did."

Took Counsel's Advice.

"So without saying anything to my friends who have been so kind to me I went to Mr. Horkins for advice. I told him I could not rest if I was guilty of an offence and asked him what I should do. He said that there was but one course open for me and that I was to return to the jail and await my sentence.

"I won't do any such thing." I cried. "I will never go back to that place, for no one knows what will happen. That place would kill me. Mr. Horkins was very nice, and explained that it would come out much better in the end if I gave myself up. He seemed to understand my feelings. I have suffered an awful lot since Frank's death, and I don't want to be though knowing that each hour now that Frank has paid the penalty."

"Why did you escape from the jail."

Couldn't Stand Strain.

"Why? Why? Because I would have gone mad had I remained. Think of my thoughts. Picture what mental torture I was going through. Night and day it was the same. I don't know how I stood it. Think of my darling waiting those long hours, though konwing that each hour brought the end the closer."

"Why, I was nearly beside myself. Think of having to stay there and picture his suffering. That gloomy building, those awful people who were prisoners there! Some were kind however. I could picture all kinds of things, and to think he was so near and I couldn't be with him to comfort him."

"But, tell me," she said, "interrupting herself, "who told on Frank? There was a rumour that I did. Just think of it! To think I would give my darling up! And to think that they will get paid for it. I would think that the money would burn their fingers.

"Well, I guess here is where I have to stop talking. You needn't print all I have told you. Good-bye" and Vera entered the inner sanctum of the detective department and the door closed upon her.

Miss Lavelle's Story.

There was romance, although it ended tragically, in the story of Frank McCullough and Vera de Lavelle. They met at a dance. McCullough escaped from Toronto jail on the night of April 13th, and Vera disappeared on the same evening, and was not apprehended until seven days later. When taken she was put through a very stringent examination, but was staunch and refused to make any statement. Frank was caught on May 8th. The first inkling of the facts came out when Vera told her story to a reporter. She met Frank on the night of his escape and later walked the streets, living for two days in an empty ramshackle house, in which she was unable to sleep for the loneliness and eerie surroundings.

At her trial Harry Berman testified that he had lived with her as her husband, but that he left her He, however, met her again after McCullough had escaped. She was found guilty of aiding a prisoner to escape, but later she wrote Frank asking him not to distrust her, and he on his part said: "If Vera came to me on her knees and said she betrayed me, I would not believe her."

The next sensation was Vera's escape from the jail laundry. She is a woman full of resources, and with no little courage. Her companion in the escape was caught, but Vera remained at large, disappearing absolutely from public knowledge, and the police were unable to find her. While her lover was under sentence of death she wrote him to be brave and asking God's blessing on him.

Mr. Horkins was inclined to believe that the case had already had too much publicity. He stated, however, that the unfortunate young woman had phoned him, with the result that, after a consultation, he had persuaded her to give herself up.

CONSTABLES KILL ALLEGED MURDERER.

Wound Another of the Assailants of Nipigon Constable.

PORT ARTHUR, July 22.—Police Constable Symonds and Special Constable George Burns at 8.30 last night shot and killed one of the alleged murderers of George Armstrong, the Town Constable at Nipigon, who was found dead by the side of the railway track about a mile east of Nipigon Station on Friday evening, and wounded the other after a running fight with the fugitives, in which revolver and rifle shots were exchanged.

The dead man, who is believed to be a German, fired four shots at the advancing officers, but none took effect. The German, whose name is yet unknown, was mortally wounded in the left breast, while other shots entered the body.

The escaped man is believed to be wounded, and his arrest is expected hourly.

Civilization has done a great deal for man, but it hasn't been able to prevent his stopping to look at a dog fight.

OBITUARY

MRS. W. J. KEARNS.

The death occurred in New York on Friday, July 18th, of Lavina Bishop, wife of W. J. Kearns, a well-known citizen of Brockville, at the age of 49 years. Deceased was a sister of Mr. H. M. Bishop, 860 Homewood avenue, this city. Besides her husband, she leaves one daughter and two sons to mourn her passing, viz.: Mrs. Wellington Bishop, of New York State; and Allan and Ross Kearns, of New York city. The remains were brought home to the family residence in Brockville and interred in the burial plot in Oakland cemetery on Monday.

Deceased had been a patient sufferer for some years and after exhausting the efforts of the best medical skill in Brockville, was brought to New York to be under the care of specialists, who failed to restore health.

MR. E. JAMES HOLCOMBE.

The death occurred of Mr. Ezra James Holcombe, aged 75 years, after a short illness. The late Mr. Holcombe was born in Richmond, Ont., but has resided in this city for a number of years.

He leaves to mourn his loss, besides his wife, a stepson, Mr. W. L. Oke, East City, three sisters, Mrs. P. W. Reynolds, Mrs. Thomas Donnaghan, and Miss Mary Holcombe, and two brothers residing in the United States.

The funeral will take place from his late residence, 470 Park Street, to-morrow afternoon to Little Lake Cemetery.

A Resourceful Badger.

An English artist while painting a sea piece discovered a badger's lair and thought to play the animal a practical joke. Gathering together a bundle of grass and weeds, he placed it inside the mouth of the hole and, igniting it with a match, waited for the ignominious flight of the astonished householder. But Master Badger was a resourceful animal and not disposed to be made a butt of practical jokers. He came up from the depths of his hole as soon as the penetrating smoke told him that there was a fire on the premises and deliberately scratched earth on the burning grass with his strong claws until all danger was past. No human being could have grasped the situation more quickly or displayed greater skill in dealing with an unfamiliar event.

The First Stock Exchange.

The Stock Exchange did not call itself by that name till nearly the end of the eighteenth century. A newspaper of July 15, 1778, tells us how the name of their place of business was altered by resolution from "'New Jonathan's' to 'The Stock Exchange' which is to be wrote over the door. The brokers then collected sixpence each and christened the house with punch."—London Chronicle.

His Begging Letter.

Poet—There goes a notorious and confirmed begging letter writer. Friend—What! Why, I thought that chap was an editor. Poet—Well, he has written me at least a dozen letters begging me not to send him any more of my stuff.—Puck.

A Great Shipping Record

The 18,000 ton C. P. O. S. Liner "Empress of France."

At the outbreak of war the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services, Ltd., had in commission in the Atlantic and Pacific services thirty-eight steamships, with an aggregate gross tonnage of 341,399 tons. Since August, 1914, the construction of four steamships, previously authorized, having a gross tonnage of 67,000 tons, has been completed, and twelve steamships of 74,000 gross tons have been purchased within the same period. During the war fifteen steamships were lost by enemy action or through accidents at sea, and eight have been sold to the British Government after having been requisitioned, and one sold to an Indian Prince who later presented it to the British Government for use as a hospital ship. The construction is being proceeded with at the Clyde yards of the Fairfield Shipbuilding and Engineering Company, of a ship 625 feet long between perpendiculars, having a gross tonnage of 22,000 tons. This ship will be known as the Empress of Canada. Three passenger ships of the intermediate class for the Atlantic service are to be put under construction at the yards of John Brown & Son, and the Fairfield Shipbuilding Company. At the end of the last fiscal year the company had in ocean service twenty-eight steamships, of a gross tonnage of 264,450 tons, and six steamships under order or purchased but not delivered, having a gross tonnage of about 82,000.

The steamships lost through enemy action were the following:—

Calgarian, 17,515 gross tons; Carthaginian, 4,444 tons; Ionian, 8,268 tons; Hesperian, 10,920 tons; Lake Michigan, 9,283 tons; Milwaukee 7,336 tons; Montreal, 8,644 tons; Mount Temple, 9,792 tons; Montfort, 6,975 tons; Minnehaha, 12,469 tons; Medova, 5,136 tons; Minieta, 4,926 tons; Passemaniam, 6,421 tons.

The ships lost through accidents at sea were: the Corinthian, 7,332 tons; Lake Manitoba, 9,674 tons.

The eight steamships sold to the British Government were the Monmouth, 8,200 tons; Manitoban, 8,986 tons; Montrose, 7,207 tons; Mount Royal, 7,206 tons; Mongolian, 6,328 tons; Numidian, 4,524 tons; Ruthenia, 7,268; Tyrolia, 7,295 tons. The S.S. Empress of India was purchased by an Indian Prince and presented to the British Government for use as a hospital ship. Her gross tonnage is 5,954. The total tonnage lost through enemy action and other causes is 126,553, and the tonnage sold is 59,421, a grand total of 185,978 gross tons.

Ships purchased during the war are as follows:—

Botsford, 4,732 tons; Dumbridge, 6,650 tons; Holbrook, 6,695 tons; Montcrosman, 5,650 tons; Montpelier, 6,542 tons; Modava, 5,135 tons; Ottawa, 4,474 tons; Minieta, 4,926 tons; Methven, 4,852 tons; Motherlent, 5,622 tons; War Beryl, 10,500 tons; War Peridot, 10,500 tons. Vessels built and added to the fleet during the same period were the Minnehaha, 12,469 tons; Montezuma, 12,469 tons; Malita, 12,507 tons; Mikhodiaa, 12,-

Record Railway Building.

An enviable record in military railway construction was set up by the 1st Canadian Railway Troops in France when this unit built a line 173 miles long, standard gauge, under front line conditions, in 90 days. Nor was this record an isolated achievement of this force, whose exploits at Cambrai and later in other sectors resulted in their being showered with the congratulations of the British Commander-in-Chief, Sir Douglas Haig, Gen. H. Rawlinson, commander of the fourth army, and Maj.-Gen. S. D. Cruickshank, director-general of transportation.

Lt.-Col. Blair Ripley, D.S.O., who commanded the 1st C.R.T. overseas, arrived in Canada recently, after having crossed on the Scotian, and gave a brief account of the feats of his unit in their particular sphere of activity.

The Dominion's Gift.

The Department of the Naval Service has concurred in the proposal of the British Admiralty that the gift of a silver plate and an investment bond presented by Canadians to H. M. S. Dominion shall be transferred to H. M. S. Canada. A subscription for the purchase of this silver plate and investment bond for $1,500 to be presented to the Dominion was made in 1905. The British Admiralty now points out that the Dominion has become an obsolete vessel, and is not in full commission, and that her name no longer denotes purely Canadian significance. Hence the suggestion that the gift be transferred to the Canada.

New Canadian Building.

Three sites are mentioned for the new Canadian Government building, which must soon be built in London, England. They are Morley's Hotel, Trafalgar Square; the old Trivoli site, now occupied by the Beaver Hut in the Strand, and a site on Waterloo Place.

ALL SAINTS' PICNIC.

CREDITORS ARE MEETING

MR. CLARKSON WILL ADDRESS THE CHATHAM VICTIMS TO-NIGHT.

EXPLANATION WANTED

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, July 24.—Creditors of the defunct Standard Reliance Mortgage Corporation residing in Chatham, and holding claims aggregating a million dollars, have called upon the liquidator, Mr. George T. Clarkson, to make a full explanation of his plans to "nurse" the assets for the benefit of the creditors.

Some time ago a scheme of reorganisation was decided upon by the liquidators with the view to getting the most out of the company's holdings. A week ago the Chatham creditors held a meeting, but found that they had not sufficient information regarding the company's doings to take any action. They have, therefore, called upon Mr. Clarkson to go to Chatham to explain matters at a meeting to be held in the Town Hall to-night.

Before leaving for Chatham, Mr. Clarkson was asked if any new plans for relieving the creditors of the Standard Reliance Corporation were in view. Mr. Clarkson replied in the negative.

"The Chatham creditors are only holding an information meeting to discuss the general condition of affairs. He said: "They want to ask me questions about the company. So they asked me if I would go up to their meeting, and I said I would. They held a meeting, and are holding another to-night."

WAS GIVEN MONTH IN COUNTY JAIL

ROBERT GASSARD CHARGED WITH THEFT OF FOUR RAZORS.

A month in the county jail was the sentence meted out to Robert Cassard, of Cochrane, Ontario, charged with the theft of four razors from the home of Mr. Walter Hope, Hope's Siding, three miles south of Keene.

Cassard, who is only eighteen years of age, born in Paris, France, and speaks both English and French, was employed on the G. T. R. working train near the Siding. He with Edward Horne another employee went to the house of Mr. Hope and according to the evidence stole four razors which were lying on the shelf in the kitchen. The prisoner stated that Horn carried the razors away and threw them in a swamp on the way back to the train for fear of detection but the timekeeper contends that Horne was searched and that he stole the razors. A gang of men was sent into the swamp to look for the "bunion cures" but no trace of them could be found. Both the men who visited Hope's house left the employee of the railroad after the theft. The prisoner proved to be very deft in conducting his own case and cross examined the timekeeper and Mr. Hope in true Cordonian style.

'The timekeeper stated that he came by the information when Horn stole them.

"Where you ever arrested before?" asked Crown Attorney Hatton.

"Only once for assault," was the hesitating reply.

"Did you ever tell anybody that you were arrested for stealing three automobiles in Montreal" He wasn't quite sure but if he did it was only a bluff.

"Did you tell Sergt. Reid that you stole the razors or was that only bluff too?" It was also a bluff.

The Crown Attorney asked that the prisoner be remanded but the Magistrate decided that a month under the watchful eye of Governor Nesbitt would do him no harm, a sentence which the prisoner took with perfect sang froid.

SPECIAL MEETING WILL BE HELD

Arrangements have been completed for the meetings of the converts obtained during the recent evangelistic campaign held in the city by Evangelist Kennedy. The first of these meetings will be held to-morrow evening in the Y.M.C.A., and will be addressed by Mr. Kennedy. The purpose of the meetings is to give the converts helpful advice and suggestions on the first steps in the Christian life. It is recognised that sometimes there is a tendency for some converts obtained in such campaigns to backslide because of failure to give them assistance shortly after their conversion. The object of these meetings is to conserve the full results of the recent campaign. The meetings will be continued for only a few weeks. Most of the converts have already identified themselves with some of the city churches, and all are being urged to do so. Those invited to to-morrow night's meeting besides the converts, are the personal workers during the campaign and any others who became interested in the Christian life during the meetings.

SUGGEST THE CREATION OF PROVINCIAL LEGISLATURES TO SOLVE THE PROBLEM

ONE FOR ULSTER AND A SECOND FOR MUNSTER, LEINSTER AND CONNAUGHT, SUGGESTS LONDON TIMES---A SUBSTITUTION FOR HOME RULE.

LONDON, July 24. — As an immediate solution to the Irish question. The Times says, editorially: "There should be created in Ireland two Provincial or State Legislatures. They should be set up by an act in substitution for the Home Rule Act. One legislature for the three southern provinces, the other for the province of Ulster. The retention of the whole province of Ulster as a unit would give greater stability than if Ulster were reduced to six or four counties with an overwhelming Unionist majority. The arrangement of the constituencies under the act would insure that there would be a Unionist majority in the province, while the existence of a powerful Nationalist minority in the whole province would give protection against disregard for minority rights and interests.

"Similar considerations do not apply with the same force to the other three provinces of Ireland, which it is proposed to group under one legislature. The variance of their interests is not sufficient to justify the additional complication of the machinery of government that would be entailed by the creation of separate legislatures for Munster, Leinster and Connaught."

CONFERENCE WITH MINERS WAS HELD THIS MORNING

LITTLE HOPE OF AN EARLY SETTLEMENT---MINERS SAY THEY ARE READY FOR SETTLEMENT.

TO-DAY'S SESSION

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, July 24.—The executive of the Miners' Federation met Premier Lloyd George and other members of the government this morning in an effort to settle the dispute in the Yorkshire coal fields. The Premier was attended by Sir Aukland Geddes, Minister for National Service and Reconstruction, Sir Robert Stevenson, Minister of Labour and officials of Coal Labour Department of the Board of Trade. Before entering the conference one of the representatives of the miners said:

"Of course we are ready for settlement, but not on the government's own terms."

No settlement was reached at the morning session. The conference adjourned until this evening to allow the miners' representatives time to consider further government proposals on question of piece rates growing out of advance in the price of coal.

VIOLA DANA LOVED ON STAGE AND SCREEN

Winsome Little Metro Star Has Won Her Way into the Hearts of Thousands

Viola Dana, the winsome little star of "SOME Bride," the latest Metro comedy-drama which will be featured at the Grand Theatre on to-day, Friday and Saturday, has won fame and distinction both on the stage and screen.

Making her debut at the age of five as a toe dancer, she was in constant demand for entertainments of all kinds. As she grew older the dramatic stage claimed her and among other plays she appeared in "Rip Van Winkle" with Thomas Jefferson. Her greatest stage success was in "The Poor Little Rich Girl," in which she created the title role and which ran for two brilliant seasons on Broadway.

Miss Dana's first appearance in pictures was with the Edison Company, but her greatest success has come with Metro where she has played in "False Evidence," "The Parisian Tigress," "Satan Junior," "The Gold Cure," "Opportunity," "Blue Jeans," and others of equal fame.

Though born in Brooklyn the little star has lived most of her life in New York. "SOME Bride" gives Miss Dana a distinctively original role in which she is seen to great advantage.

ALL SAINTS' PARISH CHURCH EXCURSION

On Saturday last the choir of All Saints' Church held their annual picnic to Wallace Point. Always an enjoyable event, this outing was no exception to the rule; in fact, some pronounced it the best ever held. The weather was all that could be desired, and the baskets were well and daintily laden with good things to suit and satisfy the most delicate tastes. The choir and guests numbered some 45 persons, among the guests being Mrs. Bathbone, a valued friend, and Mr. Barling, from Hamilton. Mr. Barling was one of the first choristers in the new church of All Saints', and was an untiring worker. He has just returned from overseas, and was given a hearty welcome back to Canada. Races were run during the evening, and despite the meal just disposed of, the speed of some members did not seem to have suffered in the slightest. The slow walking race was a special feature, and would have been going yet had not the Stoney Lake arrived at the wharf and signalled the pleasant sail home, which was safely reached about ten o'clock.

ROYAL THEATRE CHANGES HANDS

THIS TIME IT PASSES INTO THE HANDS OF THE ALLEN INTERESTS.

The theatre-going public will receive with delight the news that the Royal Theatre of this city has been acquired by the Allen Theatre enterprise, now controlling and operating forty-eight modern theatres in Canada. J. B. Cronk, the Allen representative, is in the city making arrangements for extensive alterations.

Though he would not commit himself to any definite opening date, he expects to have everything in readiness about the middle of next month.

Maestro Luigi Romanelli, general musical director of the Allen Theatres, accompanies Mr. Cronk, and has set to his duty of selecting a first-class orchestra, which will consist of eight musicians, the best obtainable.

Peterborough will get the same high-class attractions that have made the Allen Theatre, Toronto, the foremost in the Dominion. Full particulars as to the new manager and policy will be announced in these columns later.

HUNGARIAN REDS ON THE MARCH

DEFEATED THE ROUMANIAN FORCES AND ARE ADVANCING.

(United Press.)

VIENNA, July 24. — Hungarian Red troops, it was learned here today, have crossed the Tiescar, beating the Roumanian forces, and are advancing on Grosswardein.

The Hungarian Reds apparently have begun the offensive plans reported in recent despatches.

Grosswardein, one of the oldest towns in Hungary, dating from the middle of the eleventh century, is 137 miles east of Budapest.

VIENNA, July 24.—The Hungarian Reds, continuing their offensive against the Roumanians, were advancing along the entire line of the east bank of the Tissa River.

Reports received here stated that the Red offensive was being directed by Bela Kun. This apparently refutes the reports that Bela Kun had been ousted as the Director of the Hungarian Communist Government, or indicates that he had been returned to power.

The Red forces, in their drive toward Grosswardein, had captured the important towns of Szentes and Torok-Szent-Milles, east of the Tissa, between Budapest and their objective. They also had seized large quantities of war materials.

In their defeat of the Roumanians, the Reds crossed the Tissa at numerous places between Tokaj and Czongrad. They were under the command of Commissary Landler and former Lieut.-Colonel Julier, Chief of the General Staff.

Bela Kun has addressed an ironical note to the Peace Conference, explaining that the Reds were obliged to attack the Roumanians because the latter had disordered the "will of the people."

The Reds, it was added, desire to force the Roumanians to respect the will of the Peace Conference.

A WARNING TO WORKERS

HUN GOVERNMENT SEEKS TO PROVIDE A REMEDY FOR PRESENT DAY EVILS.

RIVER CROSSING

(Canadian Press.)

WEIMAR, July 24.— Addressing the National Assembly to-day, Gustav Adolph Bauer, the Premier, alluding to recent strikes, warned the country against hasty revolution, which, he said, could only be a counter revolution resulting in disaster. The Premier agreed that great masses of people had ground for distinction and said it was the government's task to remove any just reason for this. The remedy, he added was a law regulation Workers' Council and Economic Councils which the government would draft.

Still Fighting.

VIENNA, July 24.— Skirmishing continues between Roumanians and Hungarians. The latter have crossed the river Theiss at points between Tokai, 110 miles north-east of Budapest and Chiongrad, 87 south-east of Budapest, the water being low. The Hungarians used rafts, as the bridges have been blown up. The Hungarian Soviet feels the necessity of keeping its army busy. For a long time it hesitated to making an attack, anticipating that this action would lead to a general counter offensive against the Soviet.

PETERBORO GROWERS IN THE PRIZE LIST

RESULTS OF CABBAGE AND VEGETABLE COMPETITIONS.

Mr. C. P. Blaney, secretary of the Peterborough branch of the Ontario Vegetable Growers Association, supplies the following list of prizewinners in the cabbage and potato competitions. The list follows:

District No. 1—

A. Farquhar, Jersey Wakefield, 97 points.

No. 2, Jersey Wakefield, 97 points.

C. Kitney & Sons, Peterborough, Copenhagen, 95 points.

John Baker, Cataraqui, Jersey Wakefield, 94 1-2 points.

Cooke Bros., Cataraqui, Jersey Wakefield, 94 points.

R. H. Wright, Aylmer, Que., Copenhagen, 90 points.

James Cox, Ottawa, Jersey Wakefield, 87 points.

H. Sanderson, London, R. R. No. 7, Judge.

For Potatoes.

District No. 1—

Cooke Bros., Cataraqui, Cobbler, 96 points.

Frank Wise, Peteborro, Cobbler, 85 1-2 points.

B. Lancaster, Cataraqui, R. R. 1, Cobbler, 85 points.

John McMullen, Cummings Bridge, Cobbler, 84 points.

W. J. Oke, Peterboro, Cobbler, 80 1-2 points.

William Dempster, Aylmer, Que., Cobbler, 78 points.

H. Sanderson, London, R. R. No. 7, Judge.

Mr. Kiteny is not very optimistic over the potato crop. He regards the prize list results as a barometer of general conditions pertaining to the potato crop. The figures speak for themselves.

MISS JESSIE CRESSMAN RELINQUISHES POSITION AT CRESSMAN STORE

After a very successful career of about a year and a half in a field hitherto uninvaded by the fair sex in the city, Miss Jessie Cressman has given up her position as advertising manager in the Cressman stores. Miss Cressman took a position which is acknowledged to be one of the most difficult to fill, and held it very creditably with only a couple of weeks tuition from her predecessor, who had been called to serve overseas, and in a very short time became thoroughly familiar with all the branches of work. The position included turning in copy properly put together, both from the store and printers' standpoint. Anyone at all familiar with the work involved, will appreciate the talent and the patience needed for such a position which at a good percentage of times means working against time when the department to be advertised is not ready to give the information required until a very short time before the copy is needed for the press. Miss Cressman has always been thoroughly well able to cope with any unfavorable circumstances and bring in the copy required attractively and effectively put together.

RUSSIANS MUTINIED

SLAVS RUN TRUE TO FORM ON THE ARCHANGEL FRONT.

WERE REPULSED

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, July 24.—The Government has received a despatch from Major General William E. Ironside, commander-in-chief on the Archangel front, stating that Russian troops have mutinied and joined the Bolsheviki, handing over the town of Onega and the Onega front to the enemy. The latter also tried to take the railroad front but were repulsed. There are a few British troops on the railroad front and none on the Onega front. General Ironside now has the situation in hand and believes that fresh British volunteer troops are equal to their difficult and perilous task.

RETURNED MAN WAS APPOINTED TO LOCAL STAFF

MR. LORNE M. RICHARDSON SERVED OVERSEAS FOR THREE YEARS.

Mr. Lorne M. Richardson, of Barrie, has been appointed to the staff of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute to succeed Mr. Jethro S. Graham. Mr. Richardson served three years with the overseas forces, and was in France for the most of the heavy fighting of the war. In the words of one of the members of the School Board, "Mr. Richardson will be a valuable acquisition to the present staff of the Collegiate Institute."

LAUNDRY WORKERS FORM A UNION

GIRLS IN TORONTO LAUNDRIES ASK FOR BETTER WORKING CONDITIONS.

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, July 24. — A weekly pay envelope of $7.50 for 50 hours' work—this is what has led to the formation of the Laundry Workers' Union, according to a number of the girls, who declare that their working conditions are little better than slavery.

At Broadway Hall last night, a preliminary organisation meeting was held, and at its conclusion the officials reported that some two hundred girls and women had joined.

Immediately the strength of the union will justify the action, they will present an ultimatum to their employees for a minimum wage of $16.00 per week.

The wages now being paid, they say, range from $7.50 to $16.00 per week, although the usual minimum is about $9.00.

CLOVER SEED IN PETERBORO COUNTY

PROMISING TO BE A GREAT DEARTH OF SEED.

There is no doubt but the good old county of Peterborough could become a factor in Red Clover seed production. In fact it is not an experiment for seed has been produced in former years of splendid quality.

This year there are a number of fine clover meadows in the county. The season for haying has started early and the recent rains have brought about conditions for the second growth to come on rapidly. Every farmer in the county who will have second clover should save it all this year for seed if for no other reason than that they may have a supply of seed to sow next spring.

The prospects are for a great dearth of seed and an unprecedented demand TThis is shown from market quotations in the Seed World, where dealers are bidding $30.00 per bushel for December deliveries. All small seeds may be expected to advance in price this season.

It is expected that clover hullers will be available for the use of Peterborough farmers wherever there will be enough seed worth while saved and where hullers are not already available.

FELL OF FLOAT; SIDE PARALYZED

Port Hope Guide: Mr. A. C. Ferguson, while assisting his son in the haying, met with a serious accident on Saturday afternoon. In some manner he lost his balance and fell from the load of hay, striking the ground with great force. Being a resident of Cobourg, he was taken to the hospital in that town in A. W. George and Son's ambulance. His right side is completely paralyzed.

SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANT WILL BE COSTLY PROJECT COUNCIL MUST PROCEED

THREAT OF AN INJUNCTION RECENTLY RENEWED AND ALDERMEN HAVE ALREADY MADE A MOVE TO OBTAIN OPTIONS ON PROPERTIES SUITABLE FOR SITE.

PROMISES NEW TROUBLES

Unburdened of the Hunter Street bridge contract, the City Council is confronted with another costly project in the sewage disposal plant, the establishment of which has been demanded under threat of injunction by the Townships of Otonabee and the two Monaghans. During the war the city was dispensed from this undertaking, but a short time ago Mr. E. A. Peck, the solicitor for the townships, reminded the city of the suspended legal action and announced that unless there were early and substantial indications of undertaking this work, an application would be made to the Courts to restrain the city from emptying raw sewage into the river.

The Council promptly responded by appointing a special committee to obtain options on certain lands that might provide a desirable location for the plant, but the final stages of the Hunter Street bridge deliberations excluded practically all other problems.

With one Herculean labour accomplished, the Council may be inclined to an avoidance of fresh worries under the impression that they have done twelve months' work in six. They will probably find, however, that the leniency Mr. Peck has shown, with the consent of his clients, may be abruptly changed to the aggressiveness that characterised the opposition to the Council's moves in letting the bridge contract. It may be that from recent encounters the Council are no longer shy of lawyers, but they have probably not forgotten that the Provincial Board of Health has virtually sanctioned the township's claims.

A Big Undertaking.

In fact the Council is aware of the imperativeness of this new problem, and it is more than likely that in the near future they will resume its preliminary details where the war suddenly cut them off. The survey of the scheme at that time promised a big engineering problem, a heavy expenditure of money and incidental troubles from property owners who loudly and publicly objected to the selection of any site whose proximity would depreciate the value of their lots. Even then there was nothing inviting about this job. It revealed itself as a thoroughly odious task that was thrust upon the city. It fairly bristled with obstacles petty and large, and the conditions then existing have certainly not been lightened during the last five years. They have actually become more acute. Increased costs of labour and materials will swell the expenditure for construction, and it's probable that the city will be forced to find a site farther west than the McKellar Street property that was once proposed. This may not be necessary, but it has been

CAMPAIGN FOR GERMAN FUNDS

(Canadian Press.)

NEW YORK, July 24.—A campaign will soon be launched by German-Americans in this country to raise at least thirty-five million dollars for the relief of war sufferers in Germany and in German-Austria, according to a decision reached at a mass meeting here last night.

The meeting was attended by about six hundred prominent citizens of German ancestry. A committee of thirty-five men and women was appointed to conduct the campaign.

It was said that similar organisations will be formed in Chicago, Cincinnati, and St. Louis.

Among those behind the project here are James Spever, bankers, Hubert Cilis, president of the Guardian Life Insurance Co., and Victor Ridder.

FINDS THE PEACE TERMS OPPRESSIVE

AUSTRIAN SOCIALIST LEADER COMMENTS ON THE SITUATION.

(United Press.)

VIENNA, July 24.—"It is already an oppression," Herr Adler, Austrian Socialist Leader, declared to-day in a public address regarding the Peace Treaty concluded between Austria and the Allies.

"We protest against the loss of Western Hungary, and insist on a plebiscite," he concluded. "Payment of our war loans and reparations will place us in a state of bankruptcy.

"The time will come when we will shake off the oppression imposed by the Treaty."

The newspapers deplore this state of bankruptcy, also the loss of South Tyrol to Italy.

"The French press itself shows the limit cannot be complied with," says the "Dermogen." "Our criticism cannot be sterner than that of 'Le Temp.'"

WON THE AUDIENCE

ernhardt's Clever Trick Turned Coldness to Enthusiasm.

Once when Sarah Bernhardt was acting in Italy the audience was rather unfriendly, owing to the fact that the prices of the seats had been considerably increased.

After the first act Mme. Bernhardt called her maid and gave her some directions in an undertone. The left the theater, but speedily returned and just before her mistress went on the stage again she handed her something as she stood in the wings. The scene progressed. "The Divine Sarah" seemed hoarse. She tried to clear her throat, passed her handkerchief across her mouth, and suddenly a stream of blood poured from her lips, and she fell into the arms of the actor with whom she was playing.

The curtain was promptly rung down, and the audience waited breathlessly to hear the worst. All the previous vexation was turned to sympathy, and when it was announced that the great actress would shortly resume her part rather than disappoint them the cheering was deafening. When madame came on again the people applauded her as loudly as formerly they had shown their disapproval, and the rest of the play was one long triumph.

But that audience never knew the truth, for when madame had sent her maid out of the theater it was to get her a small bladder of red ink, which she kept in her handkerchief and which she bit through with her teeth so as to produce the alarming effect that had transformed her audience.

An Eskimo Dinner.

Admiral Peary was talking in Washington about the hardships of polar exploration.

"The white north is the country of hardships," he said—"hardships that are borne cheerfully and gayly, in the spirit of the Eskimo woman.

"An Eskimo woman at the dinner hour served out to her family half a ...ttle apiece.

'Light refreshments,' she said, smiling."

His Mistake.

A long standing creditor resolutely climbed the steps, rang the bell and asked if Mr. Spender was at home.

"Yes, sir. Walk right in, sir," said the footman cordially. "Mr. Spender is at home, sir."

"Thank goodness," said the creditor. "I'm going to see my money at last."

"Oh, don't make that mistake, sir," said the footman. "If Mr. Spender had any money he wouldn't be at home."

Plain Enough.

"How do you like America, count?"

"Quite much, but your figures of speech are somewhat hard to understand. Now, when it dawns upon you"—

"You begin to see daylight," explained the other man.

She Couldn't Understand.

Mamie—Why did you leave your last place?

Katie—The master and missus was forever quarreling behind locked doors.

"But wasn't there a keyhole?"

"Yes, but they always quarreled in French."

Mosby's Present

A Gift and Message that Tickled Lincoln's Sense of Humor.

RETURNING THE COMPLIMENT

An Equivalent That Was Appreciated and Treasured by the Confederate Colonel—An Episode Born of the Capture of General Stoughton.

Colonel John S. Mosby, the southern cavalry leader in the war between the states, accumulated many memorials of that long and bloody struggle, but none which he treasured more jealously than a lock of dark hair wrapped in a faded yellow scrap of newspaper. The hair was cut from the head of Abraham Lincoln. It was Lincoln's own hand which cut it, and the great war president himself who sent it.

In the spring of 1863 the Army of the Potomac lay along the north bank of the Rappahannock, about fifty miles south of Washington. The intervening country was, of course, in the possession of the Union troops. Off in the recesses of the Blue Ridge mountains, about thirty miles westward, was Colonel Mosby, with a body of picked southern cavalrymen, seeking to do what injury he could to the Federal outposts and lines of communication.

About the middle of March there encamped at Fairfax Court House, a village of about 500 inhabitants, halfway between Washington and the army on the Rappahannock, a force of several thousand Union troops under General Stoughton.

From a military point of view, his camp at Fairfax was nearly as safe as Boston. Between his own force and the southern army, under General Lee, lay General Hooker's great Army of the Potomac. Even Colonel Mosby's small force—less than a hundred men—was thirty miles away.

Nevertheless, Colonel Mosby determined to capture General Stoughton. Selecting twenty of his best troopers, he started one drizzly March afternoon for Stoughton's camp. It was after midnight when he ran into the first picket, who was easily captured in the darkness. And thus, taking picket after picket in the black night, Colonel Mosby made his way without alarm into the village, until he entered General Stoughton's bedchamber.

The unhappy officer was compelled to dress and accompany his captors. The pitch black, rainy night and the fact that the men of both commands wore rubber capes of the same style rendered it impossible for the prisoners, Stoughton included, to determine the number of the enemy. With half a hundred prisoners and a hundred horses, Colonel Mosby quietly made his way out of the camp and was soon beyond reach of pursuit.

The adventure created a stir in military quarters. Stoughton was roundly censured for allowing himself thus to be stolen from the midst of his troops, although he was in nowise to blame.

President Lincoln, whose sense of humor nothing could quench, remarked, when told of the affair, that he did not mind losing the general, but the hundred horses were a serious matter. "I can make a general with the scratch of a pen," he said dryly, "but I can't make horses."

Shortly afterward Colonel Mosby, with a few companions, was reconnoitering in the vicinity of Washington. On the road he encountered an old Dutch market woman taking her garden truck in her cart to peddle it through the Washington streets. Colonel Mosby stopped and questioned her. Noticing a pair of scissors at her belt and having heard of President Lincoln's comments on General Stoughton's capture, he said:

"Do you know Mr. Lincoln?"

"Yah," replied the old woman. "Seen him often, I have."

Taking the scissors, Colonel Mosby cut off a lock of his hair, and wrapping it in a piece of paper handed it to the old woman, saying:

"I'm Colonel Mosby. When you get to Washington go to the White House and tell the president that Colonel Mosby sent him this lock of his hair and say also that he is coming over into Washington some night to get a lock of the president's hair."

The old market woman went her way, and Colonel Mosby rode back and forgot the incident. Some weeks later, however, when making another reconnoissance in that neighborhood, the old woman hailed him from a roadside cottage. Hurrying into the cottage, she brought forth a scrap of newspaper and delivered it to Colonel Mosby.

"Here iss a lock of President Lincoln's hair," she said. "He told me to say to you that he had rather you would not come ofter to see him and that he send it to you by me. Here it iss!"

As She Saw It.

"What is the meaning of specter (sizzle)"

"Please, sir, I don't know."

"Now, think. What is the specter that usually frightens people?"

"The school 'specter, sir."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Said

"After all, what a man does with his money is to invest, and there is no better way to invest it than in Life Insurance."

As an ESTATE BUILDER there is nothing to equal Life Insurance

TAKE THE FOLLOWING ACTUAL RESULT

A young man, sixteen years of age, took out a 15-year Endowment (No. 210380) in the Sun Life of Canada, which matured on the first of April. This young man paid annually $66.30 for fifteen years, and he has now, through that investment, an immediate estate of $1,425.00 in case of death.

DO YOU KNOW THAT THIS AMOUNTS TO ALMOST 15% COMPOUND INTEREST ON EVERY DOLLAR HE PAID?

No wonder Sir Wilfrid said (and he might have added, No better place than the Sun Life of Canada). "There is no better way to invest it than in LIFE INSURANCE."

AND THE SUN LIFE OF CANADA GIVES THIS RESULT.

7% Cumulative Redeemable Sinking Fund Preferred Shares

The Preferred Shares are redeemable in full at par July 1st, 1941, or in full or in part at any prior date, after July 1st, 1922, either by drawings at 110 or in the open market at a price not in excess of 110. The Preferred dividend accumulates from 15th July, 1919, and will be payable quarterly 1st days of January, April, July and October. A sinking fund of 2 per cent. per year on the Preferred Share issue will be established commencing 1st July, 1921. Said Preference Shares are issued upon the condition that the Company covenants that no Mortgages, Bonds or Debentures will be issued by it having priority over the said Preference Shares excepting with the sanction of the holders of not less than two-thirds of the said Preference Shares for the time being issued and outstanding. It will thus be seen that the Preference Shares are practically the equivalent of First Mortgage Sinking Fund Bonds.

G. D. PERRY, Toronto
General Manager, Great North-Western Telegraph Co. Vice-President, Barrymore Cloth Co., Limited

F. R. SWEENEY, Toronto
President, Zimmerman-Reliance, Limited Knit Goods Manufacturers

The personnel of the Directorate is notable as being largely composed of competent and practical men who have had experience in textile and other industries.

The General Manager of the company is Mr. Edgar Worth, who has made such a success of the Bonner-Worth Company of Peterboro'. He is a man of wide experience and proven ability, and the Company considers itself particularly fortunate in securing his services.

The average annual sales of the combined companies for the past five years have been $3,786,999. At present they are at the rate of $4,500,000 per annum.

All three mills are working to capacity, and are unable to accept more than a portion of the orders which are being offered to them at the present time.

The combination of these three mills gives the Company a range and diversity of products, which will insure most economical arrangements for manufacture and sale.

WARSAW WOMEN'S INSTITUTE MET ON MONDAY AFTERNOON LAST

SPECIAL PRIZES FOR SCHOOL FAIR—LAKEFIELD AND WARSAW TEAMS CLASH IN FOOTBALL MATCH

WARSAW NEWS

WARSAW, July 23.—The executive of the Warsaw Women's Institute met at the home of the President on Monday afternoon, July 21st. Plans for the work of the year ending June 30th, 1920 were laid and several matters of business were discussed. The members present, besides the President, were Mrs. E. R. Hamblin, vice-pres., Mrs. Robert Moore, sec-treas., Mesdames James Moore, Garfield Crowe and Robert Payne, directors, and Mrs. Turriffe.

Regarding assistance for the School Fair, the Institute as a whole had voted $10 to be given Mr. McCrae for the general prizes. Also, the Institute voted $5, to which a friend has added another $1 for special prizes, and these special prizes are to be for the best essay on "The British Navy," four prizes, $1.00, $1.00, 75c., 50c.

There will also be a spelling match, pupils to be chosen by the teachers, and the second book used. Prizes, three—$1.00, 75c. and 50c.

The programme for the year's work, which will be followed as closely as possible, is as follows:

Aug. 14—Our Responsibility in Regard to Prohibition. Rev. Knox has kindly consented to take this subject.

Sept. 11— Medical inspection of schools.

Oct. 9—Ontario laws regarding women and children.

Nov. 13—Business methods in conducting meetings.

Dec. —Winter series meeting.

Jan. 8, 1920— Delegates' report of convention of Women's Institutes.

Feb. 12—Communicable diseases.

March 11 — Physical training in schools. Truancy laws.

April 8—Discussion on a National flower for Canada.

May 13—Canadian poetry. There will be a roll call to which each lady is asked to reply by a selection of Canadian verse. The executive will be responsible that selections from Canadian authors are provided.

June 10—Annual business meeting.

The Women's Institute meetings are open to all women and girls over fifteen years of age. The membership fee is 25c. per annum and members are entitled to use of library and to get the Departmental literature, also have a right, by paying postage, to use books from the MacDonald Institute Library. The meetings are held in the second Thursday of each month in the hall over Mr. Calder's store, at 2.30 p.m. The Minister of Education has left a good deal of the school work in the hands of the Women's Institutes, so it behooves every woman who has the interest of the rising generation at heart to take an interest in Institute work.

Personals.

The Misses Rose, of Souris, Man., are visiting their uncle, Mr. John Rose.

Mrs. Ottis Kidd, Peterborough, and two children, are visiting Mrs. Kidd's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Snelder.

Mrs. Robert Sinclair and two children, Tilsonburg, are visiting Mrs. Sinclair's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Selkirk.

Mr. Ruben Stone, Toronto, is visiting at the Manse.

Mr. George Taylor has bought out Mr. George Brown's share in the mill.

Mr. Joseph Gallagher has returned to the military hospital in Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. Cullen and Mr. Percy Cullen, of Smith, spent Thursday visiting relatives.

Mr. David Miller lost a six months old calf by sunstroke last Friday.

On Friday evening there was a war moving picture show, and some sleight of hand work in the town hall. It was fairly well attended.

Several of our young people motored to Lakefield Friday evening to attend the baseball and football games.

Football Match.

A series of football games are being played between Lakefield and Warsaw. First game score was Warsaw 4, Lakefield 0. Last Friday evening's score was Warsaw 1, Lakefield 2. The Warsaw eleven wish to give Lakefield a chance to even up the score by playing at Warsaw Saturday, July 26th, after which a return game will be played at Lakefield. Lakefield eleven are asked to accept this as a challenge.

Saw Aeroplane.

Last Friday afternoon many people of this vicinity saw the aerial visitor. The plane sailed around quite low and performed several stunts before it flew off. Some heard the droning, but did not realize what it was, nor think of looking up. This is the second visitor of the kind we have had. One flew over last November.

A few odd corners of hay are still out. Most of the wheat is in and some little barley is cut. The rain to-day was most welcome.

Church Services.

There will be service in the Anglican church next Sunday afternoon.

Last Sunday morning a representative of the Christian Brotherhood Federation spoke in the Baptist church on behalf of the Serbian Relief.

None of the congregations were any too large last Sunday morning.

ATTRACTIVE INVESTMENT

WORTHY OF THE ATTENTION OF LOCAL INVESTORS.

Many investors now regard Industrial stocks as more desirable from every point of view than most other investments now on the market.

And the reason is that if discrimination is wisely used in the selection, Industrials offer a degree of safety and assured income-bearing hard to equal.

Brokers used to be very careful about recommending any investment except municipal securities. But now Industrial stock is coming to its own, according to a well-known banker, who has much to do with placing them. He says:

"Buying municipals from each other is just like taking in one another's washing, because it don't add anything to the country's production. If you buy Industrial stock you are taking steps to increase production and get money in circulation for wages. In fact, you are getting a stake in the country, and extending your interest as far as the common stock, you have a chance to share in big profits."

The Dominion Dustless Sweeper Company, Limited, are offering for investment in the city of Peterborough a limited amount of its par value stock.

In view of the nature of the company's undertaking in promoting this industrial and public utility, which is bound to enjoy a rapid growth and development, its stock is considered a most attractive investment.

Why let such an opportunity like this pass? Why hold your money in a bank at 3 per cent. when it can be shown, on close investigation, that you can earn many times 3 per cent. by holding stock in The Dominion Dustless Sweeper Company, Limited. # INFLAMED GUMS—A CAUSE OF LOOSE TEETH

Pyorrhea is undoubtedly a vital danger to both gums and teeth. Tender gums indicate it, and with it comes loosening teeth. Imperceptibly, at first, the gums recede from the normal gum line. They inflame. They present many tiny openings for millions of bacteria to attack the unsanctioned tooth base. Tooth-base decay quickly follows. Even if the cavity be filled and the tooth saved, the gums continue to recede. Remember, too, that inflamed and bleeding gums act as so many doorways for disease germs to enter the system—infecting joints or tonsils—or causing other ailments.

Against this Pyorrhea (Riggs' Disease) ordinary tooth-pastes are powerless. Yet Pyorrhea attacks four out of five people who are over forty, and many under this age. But Forhan's—if used in time and used consistently—positively prevents Pyorrhea. It is a scientific tooth cleanser as well. Brush your teeth with it. See how promptly bleeding or gum tenderness ceases and how your teeth are kept white and clean.

If gum-shrinkage has already set in, start using Forhan's and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

THURSDAY, JULY 24TH, 1919.

PUBLICITY NOT WANTED.

Our contemporary finds fault because there was no mention of the celebrating of peace in Peterboro, in the Toronto newspapers. "There is something the matter with any city that holds a peace celebration, and yet no announcement of the event is made in the Toronto press," says the Review. But, honestly, was it not just as well that the outside world was not given a chance to hear all the details about peace day in Peterboro? The local celebration of the day, devoid of any municipal leadership, and with no public opportunity of recognizing the importance of the day, compared so unfavorably with the whole-hearted community demonstrations that were held in other cities, that no one who has the good name of Peterboro at heart, should be sorry that the big city journals failed to carry a story of the day's events. And the circumstances leading up to the day itself, with the confusion as to whether or not the signing of peace should be celebrated on Peace Day or Civic Holiday, or whether or not the stores would close would possess nothing but humiliating features if printed in the outside press. Outside of the efforts of the Great War Veterans and of the Salvation Army, we have no particular reason to feel proud of our attitude towards Peace Day in this city—certainly not proud enough to want other communities to know just how badly we fell down.

THE BRIDGE AGAIN.

No matter what personal opinions the citizens may have had as to the Hunter street bridge, as to what plans should be followed and what firm should secure the contract, there were few residents of Peterborough who did not heave a sigh of relief last evening when they read that Mayor Duncan had signed the contract with the Russell-Townsend Company, and that at last action was to be substituted for words. The average citizen was weary of the very name of 'bridge.' Inclined at first to tell their visitors boastingly that Peterborough was to have one of the finest bridges in Canada, the people were led at last by the comic opera nature of the long bickering and confusion over the various methods proposed and the different contracts, and the frequent changes of front on the part of the Council, to regard the whole matter as more or less of a joke that was making Peterborough ridiculous in the eyes of the country. The signing of the contract means that work on the bridge will commence at once. The news was received by nobody more gladly than by those who have been unable to secure employment, and while the construction work will not absorb all the idle labour in Peterborough, it will undoubtedly relieve the industrial situation to some extent and will be welcomed on that account.

A DANGEROUS SPOT.

Canoeists are again complaining of conditions at the Peterborough locks, where there is an ever-present danger of accidents, especially if the passage of the swift water below the dam is attempted by a paddler who is not an expert. These complaints are with us every year, and the Department of Railways and Canals or the Department of Public Works, which ever has the jurisdiction over matters of this kind, should be called upon to see that safeguards for the benefit of canoeists are adopted. Under the present conditions it is necessary to paddle against a swift current for a considerable distance to reach the canoe slide over the dam, and the danger is that unexpert canoeists attempt to paddle in the shelter of the long pier until the last moment and then cut out into the current, a feat that contains a considerable element of danger. Some years ago, after a drowning accident at this point, the suggestion was made that a breakwater constructed parallel with the pier would ensure a safe passage in quiet water to the foot of the slide, and there seems no reason why such a precaution should not be taken. Even in the middle of summer the trip up to the lock is dangerous and earlier in the season it requires an expert canoeist to make his way through the turbulent water. For years the need of improvements at the lock has been pointed out and canoeists should get together and forward a petition to the proper authorities, a petition sufficiently signed to galvanize them into action.

BETTER GET READY.

The local organ of the Conservative party supplies another indication that an election is imminent, by calling upon the local party organization to prepare for the campaign. "There is no reason to believe otherwise than that there will be a general election this fall," says the Review, which goes on to intimate that the question has not yet been settled whether or not the election will be held simultaneously with the referendum. The continued silence of Sir William Hearst in the face of statements such as these, which are repetitions of similar declarations in other Conservative newspapers, confirms the impression that the government has practically decided to commit a breach of political confidence by combining the two votes. There is no justification for such a course, and temperance organizations everywhere should lose no time in expressing their condemnation of what appears to be a bold attempt to mix politics with the referendum, which it was promised should be a non-partisan affair. In view of the uncertainty, Liberal voters, too, should be careful to see that their names are not missed by the enumerators, for in the event of an election the lists that are being secured now will be used. Each voter should look out for himself or herself if danger of being found without a vote is to be eliminated. The government is certainly allowing the impression to gain ground that the referendum and an election will come together, so no one should be caught napping.

BRITAIN SAVED THE WORLD.

Of all the public men throughout the Empire, none have been more ardently loyal to the British and Allied cause than Premier Botha of South Africa and General Smuts. A dozen years before the war broke out both of these generals were in arms against the British Empire. A few years of existence within the Empire has taught them that no other freedom is so complete as that which is to be found beneath the Union Jack. Both Premier Botha and General Smuts played a great part in organizing South Africa against the Huns and subsequently in the Councils of the Allies and at the Peace Conference. Early this month General Botha left Southampton for Cape Town. Before going aboard his ship he gave out a remarkable statement, including the following sentences:

> I return to South Africa happy in the knowledge that my native land emerges from this terrible conflict with its status raised and its destiny assured. I carry away with me also the conviction that of all the peoples in the Alliance the peoples of the British Empire have played a great part than any. This war was, in my judgment, primarily a French war. It was not a British war essentially. Nevertheless, the British people made the war their own and so saved not only France but also civilization itself.
>
> To me, as an observer coming from a great way off, and for certain reasons perhaps able to survey and estimate the varied and conflicting elements in this vast struggle with more detachment than some of my fellow delegates at the peace conference, the part played by Great Britain from the day war was declared until this hour is one that places her first amongst the nations of the earth. We have her primarily to thank for the overthrow of Prussianism and the saving of the world, and she has come out of the terrible ordeal of sacrifice which she has suffered with her prestige higher than ever it has been.
>
> As Great Britain has led the war so she has led the peace, and we look to her to secure its just fulfilment. I go back to South Africa more convinced than ever that the mission of the British Empire now and in the time to come lies along the path of freedom and high ideals. Britain is the corner stone upon which our civilization must rest. It largely depends upon her action and her spirit whether the newborn League of Nations will be a success or not. The essence of the League of Nations lies in the ideal brotherhood, in making this world a better place to live in. In the League the British Empire will play the part of the big brother and continue its historic role of protector of the weak.

No other nation in the world could exact such a glowing tribute as this from the chief of a people with whom it was in armed conflict only a short time ago. In the Mother Country's ability to earn such praise from from former enemies lies the source of her main strength. As the inhabitants of the foremost British Dominion, Canadians have a right to join in the applause of British deeds which comes up from the ends of the earth, and will continue to ring around the world so long as time lasts.—Toronto Times.

Voice Of The People

To the Editor of the Examiner:—

In your issue of July 21st., we have noticed in a paragraph of the happenings at All Saint's S.S. excursion at South Beach of the supposed bravery of the Vimy Troop of Boy Scouts and Scoutmaster Tyrer in which through his quickness and the work of the boys the fire was beaten out. Now we wish to correct this statement. When the fire was first observed it was not through the medium of Scoutmaster Tyrer but the Firehall lads who calling for help set to work, not with fir trees, but their bathing suits which of course suffered to a certain extent until aid came from the hotel when everyone went at it as hard as they could go. When the practical part of the work was done Scoutmaster Tyrer and his trusty men came from the bathing beach.

Now we don't want the credit for anything; but we do want to see that those who are not entitled to credit, do not get it.

CAPTURED THE AUDIENCE.

Ned Harrigan's Plea at the Critical Point in a Play.

Edward Harrigan once said that the most trying moment in his theatrical career occurred in New Orleans soon after the war between the states. He had gone south with his company and, yielding somewhat to popular request, put on "The Blue and the Gray."

The play had been a success up north, but down south, with the air still full of the bitterness of the war, it was a dangerous experiment. Tony Hart was to represent the Confederate gray, so he hunted up a uniform of the Louisiana Tigers, and when he came marching on, young, stalwart, handsome, the typical soldier boy in the beloved uniform, the house, men and women, cheered and shouted and cried for all their heroes embodied in this boy.

Harrigan, standing in the wings in his northern blue, waiting to go on, had just one thought—"They'll kill me!" Then he stepped out, the embodiment of the enemy, and a cold, dead silence fell upon the house. Not a hand moved for him. The audience was tense with emotion, and there was only an instant to act if the play was to be saved.

Harrigan, big, kindly, good looking, came swiftly down to the front and stepped over the footlight gutter, leaning down to them. "For the love of heaven, won't you give the Yankee a hand?" he exclaimed.

At once the house was caught and all the pentup feeling turned the right way. There was a yell of applause and the audience was won.

AN AVIATOR FROM B.C.

COLLISHAW IS A LEADER IN R. A. F. RECORDS.

When He Commenced His Career, He Was Described as "One of Those Fool Would-be" Airmen. But He Has Covered Himself With Glory and His Breast With Decorations In the War.

AMONG airmen and those who study their records, a constant theme of discussion is, "Who is the outstanding Canadian aviator?"

Lieut. Clarion, of Toronto, brought down 24 machines in one month; Col. Bishop, V.C., holds the highest record; Major Barker, V.C., fought the greatest battle of them all and was looked upon as the finest tactician among the airmen on the Italian front; Major McKeever has the world's record as a two-seated pilot; Capt. MacLaren should have had the V.C. for his 57 machines; Capt. McAll, of Calgary, has a tremendous record, and if Major Carter hadn't shot his propeller off and had to descend in German territory, he would have been causing the leaders very close.

But whatever name comes up before these impromptu tribunals, that of Major Collishaw is invariably mentioned among the very first. Collishaw is now 24 years of age, but I venture the opinion that in the matter of adventure, he could give almost any octogenarian a decent start and still come ahead.

He started his career by being born in Victoria, B.C., and, at the age of four, he had been to Alaska and back. He was educated in Victoria, but the proximity to the sea, and a personality that has something of a hurricane about it, was urging him to seek new experiences. Accordingly when Stefansson went to the Antarctic one of his ship's officers was young Raymond Collishaw, for which the latter received his first decoration — a habit that grew on him in later years.

His next venture of consequence was to join that formidable service, the Canadian navy, sailing on the good ship Niobe.

When war broke out he was in the fishery patrol vessel Fispa operating off the British Columbia coast, and he conceived the idea of joining the air service. He was one of the very first to try and fight in the air, and had the honor of being described by a (then) powerful person, as "one of those fool would-be aviators."

However, he was granted the privilege of paying the Curtiss Company for his tuition and with a dozen other air pioneers was taken to England and lost track of in the Naval Air Service. They were kept for months doing training more or less in connection with flying and France seemed an unattainable goal. At last they were sent out as an experiment, followed by the hearty doubts of everyone.

Of the eight greatest British pilots living to-day, seven are "would-be" Canadian aviators. When the time comes to apportion credit for the tremendous prestige Canada has attained through her airmen, let it be remembered that these first few pilots fought without encouragement or recognition, but they blazed the trail for the thousands who followed, until the Canadians dominated the whole British Air Force.

At different periods Collishaw paused long enough to hoist a D.S.O., then a D.S.C., followed by a D.F.C., and then a Bar to his D.S.O. These, added to his Antarctic ribbon, made an imposing array which grew with a Croix de Guerre (two palms) and the 1914-1915 ribbon.

He has an extraordinarily virile constitution, and shows very little strain from his three years and two months' flying service. True to his globe-trotting instincts he fought in Mesopotamia as well as in France. In the latter theatre of war he commanded No. 3 Naval Air Squadron, composed entirely of Canadians. In one year they shot down 263 hostile aircraft.

I ran into him the other day in London. He is heavily built, with a broad face and forehead, and one gets a distinct impression of power from the poise of the head. He told me many interesting things about the enthusiasm of Canadians at home for their own air service, and when Collishaw talks one listens. He is full of ideas and utters them with a rapidity that gives an impression of illimitable energy rather than nervousness.

"Are you going to fly the Atlantic?" I asked once when he paused.

"If I can get a machine I will," he said, "and if not I want to go to Russia. Say, listen—"

"I inclined my ear.

"Australia had her own air force of six squadrons during the war and now she's going to maintain twelve. What's Canada going to do about it?"

The question was one of those that did not demand an answer, (like the queries put by clergymen to their congregation during a sermon).

However, there is no harm in pasing the question on. I know we have a Canadian air force in England composed of two squadrons, but what will happen when they get home?

Electricity.

Different methods are in use for keeping the supply of electricity steady in spite of the varying demands made on it. In some systems of distribution, instead of the two main conductors being one positive and the other negative, each is positive and negative alternately, the reversals taking place some hundreds of times a second. The current is then said to be alternating. When such reversals do not take place, the currents are said to be direct.

Grinned Into Matrimony.

That grinning matches were an accepted form of sport in early English days is shown by an advertisement announcing a gold ring to be grinned for by men on Oct. 9 at the Swan, Coleshill heath, Warwickshire, which appeared in the Post Boy of Sept. 17, 1711. Addison gives a detailed account of one of these "contrevenes of faces," telling us that the audience unanimously bestowed the ring on a cobbler who "produced several new grins of his own invention, having been used to cut faces for many years together over his last."

His performance was something like this: "At the very first grin he cast every human feature out of his countenance, at the second he simulated the face of a spout, at the third that of a baboon, at the fourth the head of a bass viol and at the fifth a pair of nut crackers." Addison adds that a comely wench whom he had wooed in vain for more than five years was so charmed with his grins that she married him the following week.

Bites as Required.

He was trying to sell a dog, a handy legged brute, with features calculated to stop a motorcar, and the old lady did not seem averse to buying one. Their ideas as to the brute's value scarcely corresponded, however, and there was little prospect of agreement, when suddenly the lady demanded:

"Will he bite?"

"Only his meat, mum," responded the fancier.

"Oh, but I wanted one for trampe."

"Trampe is his meat, mum," was the artful reply, and there was a deal, after all.—Exchange.

TAPPING THE NEW NORTH.

Span Over Peace River Is Link of Civilization.

It is seldom that the term "halfway house" may properly be applied to a bridge, but such is the case with the giant Peace River bridge of the Edmonton and Dunvegan Railway, at Peace River, formerly Peace River Crossing, Alberta.

For three hundred miles down stream to the eastward of its spans and for exactly the same distance up towards the Rockies the river is navigable. Thus it links all dwellers near the stream with civilization, for the southern terminus is Edmonton.

"But the line should be extended hundreds of miles northward again, into the heart of the Peace River country," was the statement of no less a Peace River enthusiast than Percy Sholto Douglas, ninth Marquess of Queensberry.

The Alberta and Dunvegan line is the one whose bond interest payments cannot be met by its western builders and whose acquisition by the Dominion is being urged at Ottawa.

It was learned recently that the railway, with all its wonderful future possibilities, is not in good condition. Although new, and indeed built only half-way to its strategic destination, the line is lacking in proper ballast, while the cars are very ramshackle.

Lack of funds is said to be the sole difficulty, as the constructive abilities of Mr. J. D. MacArthur, the head of the company, are not questioned. The Alberta Government, has guaranteed the bonds to the extent of $20,000 per mile, and is also making representations.

Aside from the financial crisis, the urgency of the case typified by this "in the air" bridge is that the commercial feasibility of oil production in the hinterland depends on northward extension of the steel. Drillers have gone in and are striking oil every time.

Hundreds of settlers have also trekked in ahead of the railway, have land broken in considerable acreage and are producing fine grains.

"It is a bit of paradise," said Lord Queensberry in enthusiastic exclamation, after describing the possibilities of the district. "The town of Peace River itself is thriving and has two weekly newspapers, each equipped with power plant and modern composing machinery. Nearer the mountains there is gold-copper ore in which I have every confidence.

"The nearer to the Mackenzie river one gets, the better are the oil prospects," he added, pointing to a copy of the Peace River Record which reported his activities in sending up explorers and drilling gangs, and contending that half of the usefulness of the wonderful bridge is lost if the line is not completed.

Aerial "Jitney" In Toronto.

The first Toronto aviator to make use of his flying experience for financial gain is Lieut. L. R. H. Holmes, formerly an R.A.F. man, who has bought a Curtiss 80-horsepower biplane and proposes conducting a species of aero joy-riding business during the summer months. He is advertising his amusement for the benefit of those who have never experienced the sensations of aerial flights and wish to be taken up for a fifteen-minute straight flight at an altitude of over 2,000 feet at a fixed charge.

Those who request to be treated to the thrills of looping the loop, the spinning nose dive and the other stunts which make the uninitiated shiver to think of performing, Lieut. Holmes says he will willingly accommodate, but only on request. He is out to build up a business this summer and say that he intends taking no chances on spoiling it by dangerous exploits in the air.

Lieut. Holmes' charge will be in the neighborhood of $15 for the same number of minutes of straight flying, which means that for that charge the passenger will be in the air about half an hour, as it takes nearly ten minutes to ascend and to make a landing. Lieut. Holmes thinks the amusement will be very popular in the summer months, and he is laying plans for an extensive business.

The progressive young aviator is a fully-qualified airman, being the possessor of a regular aviator's license and pilot's certificate. He was engaged as an instructor at Leaside and Camp Borden for a year prior to last fall, when the training of the R.A.F. was at its highest efficiency, and he has the unusual record of never having had a crash or an accident of any kind during his period as an airman. His trips with passengers are to be taken from Armour Heights, where his plane is housed in its hangar ready for use.

Sow Fasted Three Months.

That a pig can retain life for three months without nourishment has been demonstrated to Uriah Pendleton of Mulmer. Last December Mr. Pendleton was puzzled over the mysterious disappearance of a sow. He had ceased to think of his loss when a couple of weeks ago the sow reappeared in the barnyard. She weighed 450 when she vanished, but came back a skeleton, every bone being discernible. The sow had forced her way into a small passage between the remains of a stack which had been cut down sheer and the new stock built over it, and was unable to get out. There she remained for three months and six days without anything to eat or drink other than what nourishment could be obtained from the straw within reach. The animal is picking up and has already put on considerable flesh.

Dorothy Was Puzzled.

"Mamma, have I any children?" asked six-year-old Dorothy. "Of course not, dear. What do you mean?" "Well, the preacher spoke in church this morning about children's children, and I wondered if I had any."

Just Like Duty.

"Why does your wife call herself Mrs. Duty Rounder?" asked Mr. Naybor. "Where did she get that name Duty?"

"Oh, she adopted it," replied Mr. Rounder. "She claims that every married woman's middle name is Duty because she is either being done or neglected."—Exchange.

Wall Papers.

Stamped paper for wall decoration was first made in Spain or Holland or simultaneously in both countries, about 1555. For some reason this earliest form of wall paper was succeeded by wall hangings of velvet and floss about 1620. About a century later paper came into vogue again, but it is only for the past fifty years or so that the papering of the walls of houses has been general.

LORRAINE MORTON AND BARBARA DINE WITH MR. FREDERICK

CHAPTER XXIII

The next morning I packed Neil's bag and sent Tonko with it. I slipped in a little note telling Neil how I loved him; and how even the two days he was to be away would be interminable. Then I kept busy so that I should not think too much of his refusal to allow me to accompany him.

Lorraine Morton called me up on the 'phone and asked me to tea in the afternoon. When she found out I was alone she proposed that we be "real sports" and stay out to dinner. "We'll go to the Vanderbilt or the Waldorf for dinner, get tickets for some good show, and make an evening of it."

I heartily agreed. I knew that, should I stay at home alone, I would be depressed and blue. So we were quite gay as we sat down to a secluded table in the Della Robia room of the Vanderbilt. We had ordered, when to my surprise I saw Mr. Frederick making his way toward us. I had no idea he was still in New York, and told him so.

"Business matters detained me. And"—he hesitated—"if I won't intrude, and you are expecting no one else, won't you ladies take pity on a lonely mining man and dine with me?"

"But we have ordered," Lorraine said, then kicked me under the table. I knew she meant for me to accept.

"Make that order for three, and bring me a wine card. We'll have a bottle of very light wine. Something that won't hurt you," he added noting the refusal in my face.

Evidently a hotel was more nearly the stamping ground of this westerner; for he was far more at ease than he had been at the house. He knew how to handle waiters, and the order, so that we had good service, if he did not quite know what to do in a private house. I could see he was making a good impression on Lorraine (and she was very critical.)

In the course of the conversation he learned that we had ordered tickets for the theatre at the news stand. After asking our permission, he excused himself for a moment to tell them to make it three seats instead of two.

"Isn't he fine?" Lorraine said when he was out of hearing. "I like such rugged men. They are like a good cool drink of water after the inane society men one meets now-a-days. Is he a bachelor?"

"I'm sure I don't know," I replied just as he returned, "but I will ask him."

He looked from one to the other in a puzzled way, a pleasant smile on his face.

"Ask anything you like, Mrs. Forbes. I will answer if I can."

"Are you a bachelor?" I laughed, and they both joined me at the frankly-put question.

"Yes, I am a bachelor, free, white and a little past twenty-one." He was forty if he was a day.

We were very gay at dinner. Then we took a taxi for the play.

It was a society drama, very amusing to those who knew the inside workings of social life. Afterward Mr. Frederick insisted we go to one of the Broadway places for a cabaret. I demurred at first, but he and Lorraine overruled me.

We had a bite of supper, and we watched the show, which was really worth seeing. He did not dance, and we saw no one we knew. I did not care, but Lorraine was an indefatigable dancer, and tried her best to make Mr. Frederick get up on the floor.

"I'll lead, then all you will have to do is to follow me," she told him.

"My dear young lady, I should probably step on your toes, tear your gown, and make both you and Mrs. Forbes ashamed of knowing so clumsy a man."

It was after one, when they left me at the door. Mr. Frederick took me into the elevator, and while waiting, said:

"I want particularly to see you. May I call tomorrow some time?"

"Certainly! any time after three." I wondered why he wanted to see me again.

"I will be here at three," he replied.

This Will Remove Hair or Fuzzy Growths

(Toilet Tips.)

A safe, certain method for ridding the skin of ugly, hairy growths is as follows: Mix a paste with some powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface about 3 minutes, then rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This is entirely harmless and seldom requires repeating, but to avoid disappointment it is advisable to see that you get genuine delatone.

MAN FOUND DEAD IN TRENT RIVER.

An elderly gentleman, Mr. Christie, of Toronto, who is cottaging with his family at Trent River, was found dead in the water at the bridge one day last week. It is thought he had had a stroke and fallen off the wharf into the water. A young lady, who went down to get a pail of water made the horrifying discovery of the body. —Norwood Register.

THIN, NERVOUS PEOPLE NEED BITRO-PHOSPHATE

What It Is and how It Increases Weight, Strength and Nerve Force in Many Instances

SHOULD BE PRESCRIBED BY EVERY DOCTOR AND USED IN EVERY HOSPITAL

Says Editor of *"Physicians' Who's Who"

Take plain bitro-phosphate is the advice of these physicians to thin, delicate, nervous people who lack vim, energy and nerve force, and there seems to be ample proof of the efficacy of this preparation. Moreover, if we judge from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, neck and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are often due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive and is sold by MacDermid & Jury in Peterborough and most all druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements, bitro-phosphate should produce a welcome transformation in the appearance; the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

Clinical tests made in St. Catherine's Hospital, N. Y. C., showed that two patients gained in weight 23 and 27 pounds, respectively, through the administration of organic phosphate; both patients claim they have not felt as strong and well for the past twelve years.

Increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, should soon disappear, dull eyes ought to brighten and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.

Physicians and hospitals everywhere are now recognizing its merits by its use in ever increasing quantities. Frederick Kolle, M.D., editor of New York Physicians' "Who's Who," says: "Bitro-Phosphate should be prescribed by every doctor and used in every hospital to increase strength and nerve force and to enrich the blood."

Joseph D. Harrigan, Former Visiting Specialist to North Eastern Dispensatory, says: "Let those who are weak, thin nervous, anaemic, or run-down, take a natural, unadulterated substance such as bitro-phosphate and you will soon see some astonishing results in the increase of nerve energy, strength of body and mind and power of endurance."

Bitro-Phosphate is made entirely of the organic phosphate compound referred to in the National Standard Dispensatory as being an excellent tonic and nervine and a preparation which has recently acquired considerable reputation in the treatment of neurasthenia. The standard of excellence, strength and purity of its substance is beyond question, for every Bitro-Phosphate tablet is manufactured in strict accordance with the U. S. Pharmacopoeia test requirements. Bitro-Phosphate is therefore not a patent medicine and should not be confused with any of the secret nostrums, so-called tonics or widely advertised "cure-alls."

CAUTION: — Although Bitro-Phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, owing to its tendency to increase weight it should not be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh.

MARK TWAIN STORIES.

Unintended Jokes and a Bit of a Humorist's Wit.

England fairly revered in Mark Twain. At one of the great banquets roll of the distinguished guests was called and the names properly announced Mark Twain, busily engaged in low conversation with his neighbor, applauded without listening, vigorously or mildly as the others led. Finally a name was followed by a great burst of long and vehement clapping. This must be some very great person indeed, and Mark Twain, not to be outdone in his approval, stoutly kept his hands going until all the others had finished.

"Whose name was that we were just applauding?" he asked of his neighbor.

"Mark Twain's!"

But it was no matter—they took it all as one of his jokes.

He was a wonder and a delight to them. Whatever he did or said was to them supremely amusing. When on one occasion a speaker humorously referred to his American habit of carrying a cotton umbrella, his reply that he did so because it was the only kind of an umbrella that an Englishman wouldn't steal was repeated all over England next day as one of the finest examples of wit since the days of Swift.—Paine's "Boys' Life of Mark Twain" in St. Nicholas.

Tanks May Tow Barges.

When the swords are beaten into plowshares, what is to happen to the tanks? Many people must have asked themselves this question, and C. J. Auberlain's recent article in the London News suggests an answer, for with slight modifications, the "whippets," at pay rate, might well be used as tractors on the towpaths of our reconstructed state canals. The French government, I am told, observes a writer in the Edinburgh Scotsman, has made experiments already in this very direction and has found that a light tank is capable of hauling four fully laden barges at a speed of two miles an hour, which is about twice that of a horse. Mechanical traction has been employed on some of the German canals for some considerable time.

GIRLS! USE LEMONS FOR SUNBURN, TAN

Try It! Make this lemon lotion to whiten your tanned or freckled skin.

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle, sunburn and tan lotion, and complexion whitener, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of Orchard White for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands, and see how quickly the freckles, sunburn, windburn and tan disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.

USE OF THE TOOTHBRUSH.

It Was Unknown in England in Lord Chesterfield's Time.

When did the English first adopt the toothbrush habit, which in recent times has been denounced by certain medical authorities? In "Esmond" Thackeray makes Lord Castlewood spend "a tenth part of his day in the brushing of his teeth and the oiling of his hair," and in doing so the novelist commits a double anachronism.

During the first half of the eighteenth century all fine gentlemen wore wigs and had no use for oil on their hair while the toothbrush was so late as 1754 unknown to Lord Chesterfield. Writing to his son, Chesterfield says:

"I hope you take great care of your mouth and teeth and that you clean them well every morning with a sponge and tepid water, with a few drops of orgusebunade water dropped into it. I do insist upon your never using those sticks or any hard substance whatever which always rub away the gums and destroy the varnish of the teeth."—London Saturday Review.

Poisoning as a Diversion.

Poisoning is never likely again to become a fashionable diversion, as it was from time to time in ancient Rome. In B. C. 331, for instance, there was a mysterious pestilence which seemed to be particularly fatal to leading men. At last a slave gave information to the authorities and a consequent police raid resulted in the discovery of about twenty matrons, some of them of high patrician families, busily preparing drugs over a fire. They insisted that the drugs were not poisonous, but, being compelled to drink them publicly in the forum as a guarantee of good faith, perished miserably. Further informations followed, and 170 matrons in all were condemned. But this record was soundly beaten in B. C. 184, when a four months' inquiry by the praetor is said to have led to the condemnation of 2,000 persons.

Vancouver to Mexico.

The Mexican Consul in Vancouver has announced that the regular marine freight between Vancouver and Mexican and South American ports will be established. There will be sailing every two months.

The War Toronto.

Something sentimental attaches to the good ship, War Toronto, which has just sailed down the St. Lawrence. She is the last wooden ship to be built for the Imperial Munitions Board in Canada, since vessels of her type are no longer needed to transport munitions to the war zone. She carries a cargo of about 1,000,000 feet of lumber which she will discharge at a British port. Her type is a type of a bygone day, but it is a type to which all honor is due and no record of the war would be complete unless her name were inscribed upon the honor roll.

Children Cry for Fletcher's

CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is strictly a remedy for Infants and Children. Foods are specially prepared for babies. A baby's medicine is even more essential for Baby. Remedies primarily prepared for grown-ups are not interchangeable. It was the need of a remedy for the common ailments of Infants and Children that brought Castoria before the public after years of research, and no claim has been made for it that its use for over 30 years has not proven.

What Is CASTORIA?

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep. ### DIED IN 98TH YEAR.

Mrs. Duncan McConnachie, One of Bowmanville's Old Residents.

BOWMANVILLE, July 24.—Mrs. Duncan McConnachie is dead at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. John Spencer, in her 98th year. She had attended the peace celebration on Saturday. She was born in Argyleshire, Scotland, in June, 1820, and came to Canada with her parents, James and Marion MacNiel, in 1833, being nine weeks crossing the Atlantic, and were towed up the Hudson river by oxen.

ACTIVITY IN THE METAL MARKETS

FOUNDRIES AND STEEL MILLS IN THE MARKET AGAIN.

In its summary of the iron, steel, metal and machinery markets for week ending July 20, Canadian Machinery and Manufacturing News, Toronto, makes the following comment:

It is not very often that the scrap metal market is called on to provide the best news for the week, but such is the case this time. The big dealers in Toronto marked the whole list up this week, special attention being paid to anything in the line of copper. The metal market regards it as certain that there will be a big export demand for copper very soon, and as there is not a great quantity being produced owing to labour troubles, the prices are due to go higher. Not only that, there is a demand for scrap metal. The foundries and the steel mills are buying material now and there is a lot of business moving.

Machine tool dealers still have to contend with the problem of getting the buying public away from the used machine tools that came on to the market when war work ceased. Many of the inquiries that come to the dealers contain the request that prices should be quoted on used as well as new machinery. There has been no concerted action on the part of the dealers in regard to the policy to be followed on the taking in of used material. Some firms are always in the market for it, and as a result other dealers, against their wishes, must figure on taking away old equipment if they are going to sell new.

One thing that makes used equipment attractive is the price of the new material. Prices are not far from 100 per cent. above pre-war days, and even now talk comes of increases. Some of the big shops have given a shorter work-day with the old wages, which amounts to an increase in costs, and the makers threaten to pass it on in the way of higher selling figures.

Pittsburgh steel mills report that they continue to work nearer to capacity. Plate is probably the weakest spot in the steel market at the moment. Reports indicate that while 2.65 is the normal quotation, there are cases where as low as 2.50 has been the price at which a fairly good tonnage would be closed.

"SLOW" JOHN BULL BEATS UNCLE SAM

PASSES IN TRADE OFFICIALS WHILE YANKS CLOSE THE GATES.

COBLENZ, July 24.— British and French commercial interests have got an enormous start on the American commercial interests in the race for German business. This has been accomplished by the British and French military authorities passing through the Rhine bridgeheads into Germany, the business men of their nations for the past three months, while the American military authorities have not permitted this travel into Germany. All three armies were acting on the same general instructions from Marshal Foch.

Since the signing of the Peace Treaty England and France have been sending a great number of Consular officials into Germany. The truth is that the British and French beat America to the German trade.

NO PROSECUTION FOR DIRIGIBLE CREW

No Law to Cover Case—May Result in New Set of Air Laws.

(Special to The Examiner.)

CHICAGO, Ill., July 24.— In the absence of laws governing the case, criminal prosecution is believed unlikely to-day to follow the inquest into the thirteen deaths resulting from the fall of a blazing dirigible through the roof of the Illinois Trust and Savings Bank Monday. Coroner Hoffman declared he believed the net result of the double jury investigation he is conducting will be the drawing up of laws restricting air flying above cities.

Montenegrin Monarch Will be Placed Back on the Throne, Says Hun Paper.

(Special to The Examiner.)

TRIESTE, July 24.— Reports from Agram declared to-day that a recent meeting of the Council of State, Great Britain and Italy were accused of plotting to restore Nicholas I to the Montenegrin throne, according to the editor of the Staats Zeitung. It was said the meeting was sanctioned by the State Department.

$10,000 FIRE IN KINGSTON TO-DAY

Cause is Unknown — Started at 3 O'Clock This Morning.

(Special to The Examiner.)

KINGSTON, Ont., July 24.— One of the principal blocks on Princess street, this city, had a close call from being wiped out by fire this morning about three o'clock. The blaze started from some unknown cause in C. E. Marrison's photograph gallery, which was gutted and the stock of A. E. Treadgold, sporting goods, was damaged by water. The loss is placed at ten thousand dollars.

HUGE LINERS ARE NOW BUILDING

UNITED STATES HAS ACTIVE MARINE PROGRAMME.

(Canadian Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 24. — Two gigantic ocean liners, larger than any ships now afloat, and designed to cross the Atlantic in four days, are to be built by the Shipping Board.

The new liners will be 1,000 feet long and of 30 knots' speed, and will be equipped for use as commerce destroyers in the event of war.

AQUATIC EVENTS FINISHED TO-NIGHT

The unfinished races from the Peace Day Regatta, as well as a number of extra races, will be held to-night at 6.30 on Rye's Course, at the end of the Street Railway.

In all, there will be thirteen races, which should make an interesting programme.

The prizes for the different events will be presented to-night.

RUSSELL-TOWNSEND CO. BUILDING THEIR OFFICES

Mr. John Russell of the Russell-Townsend Company, was detained in Toronto yesterday and to-day by urgent business, but Mr. Townsend joined Mr. T. J. Nevin here yesterday, and this morning a number of men were engaged in building an office on the south side of Hunter street, opposite the Quaker Oats property.

PARIS, July 24.—The Baltic Commission of the Peace Conference presented its report to-day, recommending that the Aland Islands, between Sweden and Finland, in the Gulf of Bothnia, be neutralised under the guarantee o fthe League of Nations.

KNIFE SLIPPED; ELBOW GASHED

FENELON FALLS, Jly 24.— Mr. Fred Metcalfe met with a painful accident a couple of days ago, while cutting a branch off a tree on his premises. In some manner the knife he was handling slipped, inflicting an ugly gash in his left elbow. He had the wound attended to by Dr. Johnston, and will be obliged to carry th earm in a sling for some days.

DANCING IN ROUMANIA

Peasants Make Merry on Sunday to t Their Joints For Monday.

The Roumanian peasants have a saying that they must dance on Sunday to keep the creak out of their bones on Monday. Most of the dances are on the public houses—dance halls under the blue sky, as it were—and young and old gather there. The old folk spend the day with the tipple, while the young ones dance. There is very little drinking on any other day of the week, and a tipsy man except on Sunday is seldom seen.

The dances are organised by the boys of the community. They arrange for the music, provide the refreshments and preside as masters of ceremony. When the girls reach a marriageable age and have been sufficiently instructed in the household arts they are allowed to attend these dances as participants. "She dances at the dance" is the peasant way of saying that a girl has made her debut and is eligible for matrimonial attentions.

The national dance of Roumania is a sort of cross between a jig and the game of ring-around-the-rosie. All the dancers clasp hands and form a ring. They then begin a stepping, swaying motion that never moves them out of their original tracks, and to the music of the gypsy band they keep it up for hours.

SPECIAL HONOUR FOR LLOYD GEORGE

Week of British Premier at Peace Conference will be Rewarded by King — Will not Accept Seat in Upper House.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, July 24. — King George is eager to bestow an honor on Premier David Lloyd George in recognition of his services in war and at peace conference and the form the honor is to take is being discussed in court circles, says the Mirror.

Premier Lloyd George would not accept a peerage ,the newspaper asserted, but some special honor may be created.

BIG SHOW ON CIVIC HOLIDAY

Civic holiday is going to bring a real show to the city and the attractions are such that the day is going to be a long remembered event in the history of Peterborough. The Exhibition Board has already booked the 91st Highlanders Band of Hamilton which alone is a treat such as is seldom duplicated.

In speaking of this band the Lockport Daily Review says: "The Kilty Band from Canada continues in favour with the crowds. Each time they appear they are given an ovation.' The other attractions are equally good and have drawn almost as much favourable criticism as the famous 91st Special mention might be made of the tremendous display of fireworks which will be held in the evening, under the direction of Professor Hand. This will feature every known device in fireworks known to the times and will be a splendid treat.

LINKING GRAVENHURST WITH THE TRENT CANAL

Gravenhurst Banner: A project that would be of immense benefit to the Muskoka Lakes, and incidentally to Gravenhurst, is the linking up of the lakes to the Trent Canal. This would enable wealthy yacht and motor launch owners to cruise up to the Muskoka lakes from various lake points in the United States and Canada. At present this class of tourists, while appreciating the beauty of the Muskoka lake region, do not desire to be landlocked in these waters, preferring to take their boats to southern points in the winter. An open waterway from the region would undoubtedly mean the addition of a large number of wealthy Americans to the district. At the request of Dr. P. McGibbon, M.P., the government has had a survey made of a proposed canal route between Lake Muskoka and the Trent Canal at Washago, and an estimate of the cost prepared, and we understand that they have the project under consideration.

THE QUESTION OF FOOD PRODUCTION

MONTREAL, Que., July 24.—That stimulus should be given by the government, not only to agriculture, but to other food producing possibilities in Canada, notably stock raising and fishing, was the decision arrived at to-day by the army and navy veterans' convention. Discussion on this subject arose from a Halifax resolution which emphasized that too much stress was being laid by the government on the question of supporting agriculture. It was urged that ex-soldiers in vocations other than farming deserved and were in need of just as much assistance as farmers. Various measures for assisting ex-soldiers in canning, fishing, stock-raising and other industries were discussed and passed on to the government for action.

SASKATCHEWAN ANNOUNCES MINIMUM WAGE FOR CLERKS

REGINA, Sask., July 24—The Minimum Wage Board for Saskatchewan last night announced that it had decided the minimum wage for retail stores for a 48-hour week. Beginners will receive $9.50 a week, with an increase of a dollar at the end of three and six months' service, and an increase of two dollars at the end of nine months, and at the end of one year they shall be deemed experienced and receive a minimum of $15. Other classifications will be decided in a week, and the new schedules will all become effective 30 days after first publication in the Saskatchewan Gazette.

DOES ADVERTISING PAY?

Many advertisers, and particularly retail advertisers, never get the full cumulative power of advertising behind their business because they lack patience. They demand direct returns. Thy run a one-time announcement in the local paper to-day and look for sales enough—sales directly traceable to the little one-time advertisement—before next week to pay for the cost of the space. Of course they are disappointed. Retail advertising seldom works out that way. But they are impatient for results. They are not prepared to invest money in advertising as they would in new goods, in store fixtures, in stocks or in real estate—and wait for profits to be earned. No. The returns of to-day's advertising must ring in cash profits to-morrow, or, in the estimation of too many retail dealers, the advertising is not worth what it costs.

Hand-to-mouth advertising is not worth what it costs. It yields only hand-to-mouth returns. To show the best results as a business building power, the advertising of the retail merchant must be persistent. Its chief purpose should be to build up permanent trade; to make the people of your community turn to your store in preference to other stores; to make them think of you and of your place of business; to convince them that they cannot get better quality and price and service anywhere.

"Would you advise a sixty-inch advertisement in the newspaper once a week or six ads. covering ten inches of space each week?" was one of the questions asked.

"I would advise six ads., one each day, or, better still, three twenty-inch ads. each week," replied the advertiser.

"Anything that is desirable is advertisable," he said, and pointed out that the desirability of an article depends much on the consistency with which it is advertised.

"One of the best ways to advertise is to cultivate the customers you have acquired and they will assist you in your advertising."

His final message was: "Advertise and get out and prosper."

GERMAN TRAITORS.

Said to be Officers and to Have Given Valuable Information to General Pershing.

NEW YORK, July 24.—Marked for death by a vendetta because they had betrayed the plans of the German High Command to American Army Intelligence officers just before the beginning of the great American offensive in 1918, two men listed as "two German prisoners of war consigned to the Director of Military Intelligence, Washington, D.C.," were landed at Hoboken from the United States transport Agamemnon.

They were under heavy guard of fifteen United States soldiers, who had had charge of them from the moment they left the other side of the ocean. Mystery surrounded their identity. They had been allowed the full freedom of the ship, received the finest treatment in their cabins and at meals, and were afforded every facility that their voyage might be comfortable.

While the army officers professed to be entirely ignorant of facts concerning the prisoners, it was generally reported that the two had held positions of high responsibility under General von Hindenburg until their capture by the American Army.

Lieutenant R. M. Owen, who had been assigned to maintain guard over the prisoners, declared that he knew nothing of their identity nor of the circumstances attending their coming to this country.

Found by American Officers.

According to bits of information, it was said that the two were picked up in German territory by the American Army Intelligence officers just before the beginning of the big offensive that crumpled the St. Mihiel plough point. The American Intelligence officers, who were disguised, prevailed upon the two young German officers to deliver plans of the German General Staff covering their proposed drives on the Eastern front, just at the most critical point in the war. The information gleaned gave the probable lines of retreat if the Germans were forced to withdraw, the points at which the stands would be made, the important bridgeheads and how they would be protected, the location of some of the mined territory, the position of some of their largest ammunition dumps and the points whence the German aviators were scouting out.

This information, it was said, was laid before General Pershing, with the result that he was enabled to plan his campaign with the greatest freedom and assurance of complete and definite success. Moreover, it gave him a chance to route his advance and protect it so as to cut the cost in men to a minimum.

Almost at the beginning of the drive, it is believed, these two German officers were taken prisoner. Meantime, their fellow-officers had become suspicious of them and had banded together to punish them in a way they felt was their due. Even after the two young officers were taken back of the Allied lines. It was found wise to keep them under careful guard for their own safety.

Officers of the American Army believed that the two men were not safe so long as they remained in Europe, and orders were given for their transfer to this country. Preparations for the moving were kept a close secret, and it was only through a misunderstanding that they were included in the roster of the Agamemnon when she left Brest.

To Isolated Army Post.

According to one report it was arranged to send the two to some isolated army post where they might be given military protection, for eventually, it is said, they were to have been permitted to go to some other country. Officials would not say whether this scheme can be safely carried out now.

Lieutenant Owen is expected to leave with his two prisoners for Washington at any time. Lieutenant Owen came over in command of the Fifth Ammunition Train and was detached from the command upon the arrival of the ship in Hoboken to allow him to journey to Washington with them.

When the men were taken off the steamship they refused to give their names. Later it was said they are Alfred Scholz, an infantryman, captured at Stimihiol on 2nd September last, and Alwin Grothe, an aviator, shot down in the Argonne Forest on 18th October last. It is believed, however, that these names are fictitious.

Each man is about twenty-five years of age. They were dressed neatly in blue serge. They clearly indicated by their bearing and general set-up that they were German officers. Scholz spoke English perfectly, although with a German accent. Grothe spoke English, but with more effort.

They conversed affably about the weather, about the conditions of the ocean, about the approach to New York, and about the wonderful appearance of as much of America as they had seen; but the moment the war was touched upon in any way, they became silent. They would not reply to a single question that pertained to any phase of the great conflict.

The two are now in the guardhouse on the pier at Hoboken waiting for word from Washington as to their disposition.

SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANT COSTLY

casually discussed as a likely extension of the original plans. The market gardeners and other residents will be just as strenuous in their objections as before. In fact, the war may have made them more belligerent, and the higher their estimates of depreciation in the value of their land, the louder will be their protests. The public meetings of five years ago may be all rehearsed, with the aldermen stumping some suburb with appeals for moderation. After wrestling with lawyers for several months past, they should be in fighting trim for this prospective campaign.

May Cross the River.

In discussing the question of the most desirable site, the Council will reconsider the alternative of pumping the sewage across the river if they can obtain a location to suit their purposes on the south shore. As was pointed out in the long ago, the sewage will have to be pumped anyway, and the extra lift across the river, with a discharge of the effluent by gravity, may not be serious. But there are many angles to this phase of the problem to be investigated, with great possibilities for divergent opinions among the aldermen.

What Type of Plant?

There is also the question of the type of disposal system. City Engineer Parsons has made a special study of sewage treatment, and is doubtless familiar with any developments that are now preferable to the activated sludge and other ideas that were put into practice five years ago. In this connection it may be considered advisable to send deputations to find out what improvements have been made in the disposal of sewage. Deputations have journeyed farther from Peterborough for less. One trip has already been made in connection with this project, but it was only a motor drive into the outskirts of the city in search of options. Ald. Phelan knows all about it, to mention one member of the Council. He climbed so many fences and crossed so many fields, ploughed and otherwise, that he may be quite satisfied to delegate this duty to some other alderman should another expedition be necessary.

In the meantime, Ald. Edgar's committee is loaded with Sir Adam Beck's offer to sell the street railway and gas plant to the city. In short, there is more than enough work in sight, although most of it may be nursed along until next year.

FROCKS OF SUMMER-TIME LOVLINESS PRETTY ENOUGH FOR ALL OCCASIONS

THEY are simple little frocks of organdie with picturesque frills, soft and exquisitely dainty models of georgette, cool voiles and foulards—so that every occasion may have its frock and every woman the model particularly suited to her. The pricings are moderate, and no indication of the style and quality of these charming dresses. For general summer wear, we have frocks that are unequalled and will serve with distinction at many of the afternoon fetes when one wishes to be comfortably and prettily dressed.

Charming in it's simplicity, is a little organdie frock in that new and alluring shade of victory rose. The plainness of the skirt is relieved with wide tucks piped with white. The Quaker-shaped collar and deep cuffs are of white organdie, daintily embroidered. The price, very modest, at.....$13.95

Grey voile, of fine quality with an all-over flower design in mauve and green shadings, is used for another, becoming model. Rows of tiny frills trim the bottom of the overskirt, while the neck, sleeves and belt are trimmed with mauve velvet ribbon. Priced at.....$25.00

A stunning sports costume in white rajah silk, made with plain, narrow skirt and bodice in coat style. It boasts of a vest and cuffs of strawberry satin. A band of white wool and strawberry silk embroidery trims the bottom of the loose bodice. The price..... $35.00

Sports Apparel

There are two distinctive types of sport apparel to consider in deciding your purchase, and your choice depends on whether you indulge heavily in sports—or not at all—

"Now bathing" said one small boy, "is taking a bath in a tub. When you go in the river, I call that swimming." "But swimming," insisted the other, "Is when you make your hands and feet go at the same time."

But whether you swim or bathe, you need only to wear sports clothes to be smart. You may choose a serviceable two-piece jersey bathing suit or a lovely costume of silk, a simple linen suit for golfing, or a bright hued affair of a soft, silky material to gleam against the green of the club lawn. Which ever you choose, we have it. Our sport apparel for all the varied sports achieves both service and beauty.

FLAYS ALL SENATORS WHO OPPOSE LEAGUE

"HELLHOUNDS AND SNAKES," CRIES THE VIGOROUS GENTLEMAN FROM MISSISSIPPI.

WASHINGTON, July 24.— Comparing Senators who opposed the League of Nations to "hellhounds" and "snakes," Senator Harrison, Mississippi, delivered a fiery attack on them in a speech in the Sentae.

Harrison dared Republicans opposing the league to make American withdrawal from it the issue in the 1920 campaign.

He declared opposition to the league is based, first, on jealousy of the great prestige attained by President Wilson, and next, on the fear of munitions makers in States represented by anti-league Senators, that disarmament under the league will cut off their profits.

"If this treaty is rejected what is to take its place?" asked Pomerene? "To quit now is as if, after the flames of a great conflagration had been checked the fire department were to quit its work while burning embers were lying around, to be again fanned into fury by the first winds that blow. That the treaty is not perfect all concede. That it would have been drafted differently by the American nation there can be no doubt. But many of those who criticize have no remedy to propose. In view of the unrest now prevailing, and the immediate necessity for the preservation of the world's peace at all hazards, I believe it better to accept the treaty as it now stands and trust to the future to make such changes as experience may suggest."

Pomerene charged that the Republicans have made the league a party question.

"I owe my allegiance to the Democratic party," he said. "I believe in its principles and hope for its success, but I would rather have my party lose and the League of Nations win than to have my party win and the League of Nations lost."

Urging that the Senate ratify the treaty without delay, Pomerene said: "A war-sick world demands the early ratification of the treaty. That demand must not be ignored."

HUGE AIRSHIP BUILDING.

LONDON, July 24.—Great Britain is now building a dirigible half as large again as the R-34.

It will be in commission shortly.

FRUIT CANNING NOW EXPENSIVE LUXURY

CANNERS' ATTEMPT TO CONTROL MARKETS HITS HOUSEWIVES HARD.

As a result of the increasing demand made by the English and foreign markets on the Canadian trade, Peterborough housewives will not have their troubles to look for in financing the family urse this winter.

Through the canneries endeavouring to control the fruit and vegetable markets with their abnormal prices, the canning of fruits which was formerly looked upon as a great saving in the home, is now becoming an expensive luxury. The factory canned goods will prove even more so, according to the manager of one of the local stores.

Quotations on the new crop of strawberries ask for $6.40 for a dozen imperial pint tins f.o.b. at the factory. "This means in order to handle these goods we will have to ask around 46 cents a tin for fruit which we have sold up to the last two years for 18 and 17 cents," he said. "In fact this year's prices will exceed those of last year by 10 cents. Strawberries brought 20 cents a box to the producer on his own ground, and it is stated that raspberries and other fruits will command equally as exorbitant a price. Vegetables likewise, promise to be out of sight.

LAYS CLAIM TO SPANISH FLU

"Spanish influenza," the world infection has been popularly called. This is a misnomer, says Collier's Weekly. Convincing proof is unobtainable, but the evidence points to this country as the starting point to the attack, in the light of facts recently adduced which show a slowly but definitely rising tide of the disease in America for several years.

After the pandemic of thirty years ago influenza, while it still existed in the U. S. A., as it did the world over, sank to a low level and stayed there until 1914. In that year the deaths from influenza rise to two typical, seasonal "peaks," one in the early winter, another in the spring. In 1915 these peaks are somewhat more marked. The following year shows a still higher rise, and in 1917 there appears so decided an increase that the absence of expert medical commentary upon it is surprising.

A BLOOD-FOOD DISCOVERED THAT ENTIRELY OVERCOMES ANAEMIC WEAKNESS

CAREFULLY INVESTIGATED REPORTS ESTABLISH TRULY WONDERFUL RESULTS.

Heretofore it has often been a hopeless task for a thin-blooded person to gain either strength or weight Neither food or medicine in many instances had beneficial effect.

What is practically a perfect blood-food, containing such elements as iron, has at last been produced, and when taken after meals will put new life and vigor into people that have despaired of ever being strong again.

This truly wonder-working treatment consists of taking two small chocolate-coated Ferrozone Tablets at the close of every meal.

This wonderful blood-food supplies nourishment, vim, energy —sends a stream of vigorous, strength-making blood to every nook and corner of the body, makes every muscle and fibre sing with new-found life and health.

That gnawing tiredness leaves you —Ferrozone drives it away. Sleepless nights are turned into periods of rest, and you pick up fast. Day by day your appetite improves,—this means more food is transformed in nutriment that will build and energize weak organs. The inclination to worry passes away because Ferrozone imparts nerve — tone and bodily strength that prevents depression.

Think it over—Ferrozone is a wonderful tonic, in fact, it is more than a tonic, because it establishes health that lasts. Thousands use it and thereby cleanse and restore the entire system to a perfect condition. You'll feel the uplifting power of Ferrozone in a week,—it's bound to help you if you only give it the chance. Sold by all dealers, 50c a box or six boxes for $2.50; be sure of the name Ferrozone. Forwarded by mail to any address if price is remitted to The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

ELIZABETH WANTS A MODEL HUSBAND

A CHANCE FOR PETERBORO MEN—THE POLACK SHOWS.

Elizabeth, the living doll who is exhibiting here all this week with the Polack Brothers 'Twenty Big Shows, who are playing under the auspices of the Peterboro Agriculture Exhibition Board at the Exhibition grounds, has caught the fancy of the Peterboro folks. She was the feature attraction at the Panama Pacific Exposition, San Francisco, California in 1915, where she broke all attendance records by entertaining to over two million people.

Elizabeth is not a dwarf, nor is she a midget. She is just as she is represented a sweet living doll. Of course she is unlike other dolls, for she talks, sings, walks and dances, and does everything a little girl would do. She has the distinction of speaking over seven different languages and has appeared before the royalty of several of the European countries.

The living doll is possessed with a pleasing personality, making friends quickly. She is a witty conversationalist and is bound to pull a smile from the most stern face. Elizabeth is an entertainer of worth, and offers selections upon various musical instruments. She is but thirty two inches tall, weighs twenty seven pounds and is twenty six years of age.

Elizabeth always informs the public that she is still single and looking for a husband, but, an ideal husband he must be—one that neither smokes chews, drinks nor flirts, and who is in favor of "women suffrage." So far Elizabeth has paddled her own canoe for the past twenty six years and says that she is willing to do so for the next quarter century unless she gets that model "husband."

YOUTH BURGLARIZED EMILY RESIDENCE

TOOK THE FARMER'S SUNDAY SUIT —LIST OF STOLEN GOODS.

A case of robbery in the form of a general clean-up occurred this week. Chief Short received a telephone message notifying him of the burglary which took place at an Emily farmhouse near Omemee, and was asked to meet a freaight train at Santiago to see if the culprit was on it. The chief lost no time in getting to Santiago and stopped the train, but no undesirable passengers was to be found.

The story as told the chief of police is as follows. A farmer living in Emily Township, near Omemee, by the name of Connell had a French-Canadian farm-hand by the name of Albert Young who had worked for him 13 days. The family arose early this morning, and began milking. Young milked one cow then while the others finished he ransacked the house and gathered together a large quantity of valuables.

List of Stolen Goods.

The following is a list of the goods stolen:—

1 new light brown suit of clothes cuff on trousers, belted coat, pair of brown boots, yellow suit case, ladies' gold watch, gold ring with three opals, signet ring with initials, C.M., one scarfpin, andone shirt striped.

Young is described as being 18 years of age, 5 feet two or three inches tall, weighs 130 pounds, coal black hair and a dark complexion.

BELGIANS' GERMAN TRADE.

Transactions Begin This Week, Subject to Control by Licenses.

BRUSSELS.— The Belgian Government will next week issue regulations governing trade with the Germans. Every transaction will require a license, and importers and exports will be obliged to submit specifications, prices, and other details. Subject to this control, trade will generally be free, except the exportation of gold, platinum, arms, and munitions.

Importations of raw materials from Germany will be encouraged, and the importation of finished products, not directly competing with Belgian industries, will be permitted.

PLANE CRASHES; AVIATOR KILLED

ONTARIO FLYER MEETS DEATH DURING PEACE DAY EXHIBITION.

WINCHESTER, Ont., July 24.—Pte. Willis Nephew, 19 years of age, aviator, of Finch, Ont., was fatally injured here Saturday morning when his machine crashed as he was making an exhibition flight in connection with the Peace Day celebration. His companion in the machine, Lieut. Arthur Deweert, sustained a fracture of the collar bone and severe injuries to his head and shoulder.

The accident occurred as the men were attempting to get into the air. The machine was twelve feet from the ground and travelling at a rate estimated at 50 miles an hour, when the nose suddenly pointed toward the ground and the machine fell and turned over. Both the men were thrown clear of the wreck. There were only a few persons on the grounds at the time, the spectators being for the most part stablemen trainers and drivers, assembled there in connection with the races in the afternoon.

Failed to Rise.

As far as could be learned from the office of the chief of police in Winchester, the machine was a new one and it was reported to the chief that it had been made by Deweert himself. He brought the machine to the town last Tuesday and assembled it himself. He was under contract with the municipality to fly twice during the celebration and he made all arrangements personally. On Friday he tried the machine all day, but failed to get into the air.

It was then that he sent for Nephew, who had been overseas in the Royal Flying Corps and who was something of a mechanic. The men worked the best part of the night on the engine and on the machine and shortly after seven o'clock Saturday morning decided to make a trial flight.

Lieut. Deweert, according to the chief of police, was a member of the Belgian Flying Corps and had served during the entire war. The accident caused the postponement of the flight for the celebration, but the other events took place. Deweert was to have made several other flights in Ontario, but it will be some time before he will be able to handle a machine again. The machine he used Saturday was smashed to bits and can never be used again.

FORMERLY RESIDED IN DOWNEYVILLE

T. D. Collins is Proud of Canada's War Record.

Mr. T. D. Collins, druggist, of Gratlinger, Iowa, writes as follows:

"I was born near Downeyville in 1838. In 1865 I came West, then returned and went to Rochester, N.Y., in the Union Army. At the close of the Civil War, in the fall of 1865 I returned to Iowa. My home has been here since.

When the world war started I desired to learn how my relatives and Canadians in general behaved in the days of danger. An Iowa born nephew of mine returned here from France this morning, and he told me that everyone he met of all classes overseas spoke admirably of the Canadian soldier's fearlessness, efficiency and wonderful endurance. It was very pleasant for me to hear that.

Canada has grown to be a country co-existent and co-equal with the nations of the earth, enjoying full liberty under self-made laws, regardless of your efforts to make yourselves believe in class distinctions and special providential selections by heredity. But, as the twig is bent, the tree is inclined, and we are all, to a great degree, the product of the influence of our association and our environment. Still it is a proud distinction to-day to have been a Canadian soldier.

MONRO SALISBURY IN "THAT DEVIL, 'BATEESE'"

AT THE GRAND TO-DAY, FRIDAY AND AND SATURDAY.

The Story.

Kathleen St. John leaves her Montreal home when a broken romance clouds her happiness. She goes into the Canadian woods to teach a parish school.

On her way to the home of a kindly old priest, who is to watch over her, Kathleen becomes lost and falls into the clutches of Courteau, a dreaded bully of the woods.

He grapples with her and attempts to kiss her. Down the river on a raft comes "Bateese" Latour, "that devil, Bateese," as he is generally called.

"Bateese" struggles with the bully and beats him. He then tries to win Kathleen on his own account. Kathleen seems to have little interest in him and finds that her fondness is returning for the man she left in Montreal.

The man she left in Montreal comes to her in the woods. A reconcilliation is about to take place. "Bateese" sees Kathleen in the man's arms and hurls him against a tree. Then he forces Kathleen to go to a notary and be married against her will. After the ceremony "Bateese" goes away when Kathleen says that she does not love him.

The man from Montreal and Courteau grapple to the death in Kathleen's cabin for the girl. She runs out into the night calling for "Bateese." He has thrown himself from a cliff in agony a moment before. As she reaches him he is found to be badly injured but alive.

It is than that Kathleen realizes that she loves: "That devil, "Bateese."

Fishing Before Business: Back at 7 p.m.

(1) Kaslo, B.C., on the Beautiful Upper Kootenay Lake.
(2) Quiet Fishing in Noisy Waters.

Fishermen who like a rest to live, look up and write on a blackboard, in log fires, provisions from a conv- outside my store: 'Fishing before try grocery store, fish that they business. Will be back at 7.00 p.m.' However, I usually stay as long as they bite well." Mr. McGregor is always glad to see anglers at Kaslo, and delighted to tell them all about the kind of tackle he finds most successful. "I will answer any inquiries to any tourist at any time," he says.

There are several good guides for fishermen available at Kaslo. For salmon fishing it is best to make Kaslo headquarters, and take the waters in a row-boat. Fly fishers are recommended to furnish themselves with bread, butter, any canned goods they need, a frying pan, blankets, and canvas for a tent, then take a motor launch and go to the mouth of some of the best fishing creeks, send the motor launch away, with instructions to call back a few days later, and then pitch a tent. If the campers know anything at all about fishing they are likely to find all the trout they can eat and lots to bring home with them. Those who have undertaken such a holiday say that if we all could have a few weeks of this kind of life annually there would be less patent medicine concerns in the country.

Big game hunters also find a sphere for their activities in the neighbourhood of Kaslo, five miles from the C.P.R. line, in the hunting season. Deer abound, and black, brown and grizzly bears are numerous. A government agent at Kaslo issues licenses to game hunters.

The scenery in this district is extremely beautiful, but trails are not yet generally opened up. Mr. McGregor is loud in praise of the glacier scenery. He likes to be "up amongst the eagles where he can see numerous mountain peaks, "just like a field of great hay cocks."

Kaslo, the headquarters of tourists to Upper Kootenay Lake, is one of the most beautiful little cities in Canada, the centre of a prosperous mining and fruit growing district in the Kootenays, B.C., owes its origin some twenty years ago to a New Zealander, Mr. D. P. Kane, who with a fellow prospector saw the possibilities of the promontory on which it is located and decided to clear the brush and establish a townsite. Originally it was called Kane's Landing, but as the community grew, a picturesque Indian name signifying "the place where the blackberries grow," was adopted. Sixteen years ago the early residents began to plant fruit trees, and to-day there is no more successful orchard country in Canada, cherries being particularly plentiful. For this the mild climate is largely responsible, the Kootenay Lake never freezing over.

The city is surrounded by mining camps providing lead, zinc, copper, silver, and gold.

GOYER IN FORM FOR SATURDAY'S BIG GAME

Interest continues to increase in Saturday's game as it draws nearer, and a record crowd will see Belleville and Peterboro clash in the crucial contest of the Central Ontario League race. Belleville can win the honors by beating Peterboro on Saturday, as a win for the railroaders means that no other team can head them off. Word comes from Belleville that Goyer is in great form after a rest of over a week and he expects to fatten his strike out record at the expense of the Petes. The latter however know they are fighting in the last ditches and are confident of trimming the visitors and securing a tie-up in the league chase. The game will start sharp at 3-o'clock with Dick Butler of Lindsay as the umpire in chief.

LINDSAY BOWLERS WERE DEFEATED

BIG TOURNAMENT OPENS HERE ON AUGUST 4TH.

Peterborough defeated the Lindsay bowlers yesterday afternoon and evening at the Bowling Green, the results of the games being:

BIG LOCAL TOURNAMENT.

The big local tournament, when 35 or 40 rinks are expected to play in the city, will be held on Monday, 4th August.

At this tournament, the J. R. Stratton Trophy, at present held by St. Matthew's, of Toronto, and the G. A. Gillespie Trophy, held by Mr. Delaney, of Cobourg, will be competed for.

CENTRAL SCHOOL WON YESTERDAY

A game in the city playground league was played at Queen Mary grounds yesterday afternoon between Queen Mary and Central. The score:

Queen Mary: R 16, H. 16; Central R 4, H 7.

Home run Wolfe: Two base hits McPherson, Outram.

17 STRIKE OUTS FOR EDDIE SCOTT

LINDSAY, July 23. — Cobourg proved easy picking for the Lindsay Greys in to-day's Central Ontario League game, the score being 11 to 1. "Cannon Ball" Scott should have had a shut-out, Cobourg scoring on an over throw in the 8th. The Greys were behind Scott with the willow, hammering Skitch all over lot. Scott allowed but three hits and had a league record in strike-outs, viz., 17. As a result of the game Lindsay finishes with five wins and five losses. Next week they meet Hillcrests of Toronto in an exhibition game.

Lindsay — Scott and Logan. Cobourg — Skitch and Turpin. Umpires — Day and Butler.

PACKERS VS. VETS TO-NIGHT

Matthews-Blackwell and the Great War Veterans' team meet to-night in a City League fixture at Riverside Park and the game between the league leaders and the tail enders promises to be unusually interesting. If the packers win they cinch the City League honours. On the other hand if the Vaterans win the Orientals would still have a chance of tieing up the race by beating Matthews-Blackwell next week. The Vets promise to have their strongest team of the season in action to-night.

CENTRAL TEAM WILL PRACTISE

There will be an important practice of all members of the Central Ontario League team at Riverside Park to-morrow night. All those who have figured in the Central League games are asked to be on hand.

INTERESTING BENEFIT GAME AT PORT HOPE LAST EVENING.

The Matthews-Blackwell team journeyed to Port Hope last evening and played an exhibition game with the Port Hope Central League team, as a benefit for Hewson, a Port Hope player who had his leg broken in a recent game. The Packers were beaten 8 to 5 after an interesting battle. Crowe, the crack left hander of the Toronto West End Y.M.C.A., who was visiting in Port Hope, pitched the first five innings for the Ontarios and Finnegan Hills finished the engagement. Frost twirled the first three innings for the Packers, yielding four runs, and Daynard of the Vets was on the rubber for the rest of the battle. Swanston had three hits, including a double and a triple. The Matthews-Blackwell team consisted of Lafave c., Frost p., Daynard p., Swanston 1b., Hagerman 2b., Holyman s.s., Butcher 3b., Cunningham, Mulhern and Shaughnessay outfield.

Jack Rosevear of Port Hope, umpired.

WEEKLY SHOOT ON FRIDAY EVENING

The Peterborough Gun Club will hold their weekly shoot on Friday evening, and all members are urgently requested to be on hand, when a couple of handicap shoots will be held. The executive of the club have invited the gunners from Port Hope to have a shoot with them one of those Friday evenings, and as the Port Hope shooters are going pretty strong, it will be up to the locals to get in some practice.

Mr. Curvin and Stan. Coon had a race for the honours last Friday evening, the latter winning by one bird.

Some more excitement is expected at to-morrow night's shoot.

FINAL GAME IN CHURCH LEAGUE

The final game in the Church League was played last evening between Knox Church and All Saints. The former won by a margin of 3 runs. The score was 9-7.

SOME BASEBALL RECORDS.

Big Shutout Scores in the Modern History of the Game.

In the early days of baseball white washing a team was one of the most sensational episodes of the game. The ball was so lively, with plenty of rubber between the covers, the pitcher's delivery so restricted and the fielding owing to the inevitable tremendous batting, so loose that to prevent a team from scoring was considered almost a miracle. Big scores were the rule sometimes going into 100 runs. When the Mutuals in 1870 shut out the Chicagos, the score being 9 to 0, it created an excitement all over the country, the memory of which lasted for more than a score of years. Occasionally even now we hear of a team being "Chicagoed."

Because of the radical changes in the rules of the game it would be rather misleading to measure present standards with the models set up in "ancient" days. "Modern" baseball history begins in 1890.

In the major leagues (National league and American association) big shutout scores had been registered in the ancient days—28-0 in 1883, 24-0 in 1885 and 1887 and 23-0 in 1883. But the record in modern history is 19-0 in the National league and 21-0 in the American.

Three times in the National league a score of 19-0 was turned in. The first was made on July 15, 1893, in a game in Pittsburgh, the Pirates shutting out the Washingtons by these figures. Three years later, nearly to the day (July 8, 1896), the feat was repeated the Pirates again shutting out the Washingtons, 19-0.

The third 19-0 game was played at New York on June 7, 1906, Chicago defeating the Giants.

In the American league Detroit shut out Cleveland, 21-0, on Sept. 15, 1901, and on Aug. 31, 1907, New York shut out Washington, 20-0.

Think of This.

"Found an honest man yet?" we asked Diogenes.

"Ran across a phenomenon today that interested me almost as much. A lady giving up housekeeping was running around trying to find a situation for a good cook."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

KING EDWARD PLAYGROUND SPORTS

Crab race for boys —Joe Jones, Fred Jones.

Backward race for girls — Edna Jeffreys, Ethel Robson.

In the all around point contest for the boys of King Edward Playgrounds, Joseph Jones leads with 173 points; Fred Jones stands second with 135 points and Olaf Kelleher third with 118 points. Badges will be awarded to the five highest September 1st.

Joseph Jones recently won the horseshoe tournament for boys, and Marion Hill is horseshoe champion of the girls.

The play at King Edward grounds is under the direction of Mr. Allan Draper of Rochester and Miss May Nelson of Peterboro.

CLOTHES AND THE MAN.

How to Be Well Dressed and Not Look Like a Cloudy Winter Day.

In the American Magazine is an account of one of the most successful insurance solicitors in the country, who attributes a large part of his success to the fact that he always looks well dressed and prosperous.

"If you have only one suit of clothes, keep that one suit clean and pressed all the time," he says. "Press your trousers yourself every day if necessary. I have pressed my trousers lots of times. Keep your shoes shined.

"If you can afford several suits, change off from one suit to another frequently and keep all of them spotless and well pressed. I never wear a suit longer than the second day at a time. To change every day is better. It gives the clothes a chance to 'rest.' I always hang my clothes on hangers the minute I take them off. It gives them a chance to 'come back' into shape and the nap to come up again.

"It is a great economy to have lots of good clothes. A suit will last twice and three times as long and always look well if you keep changing off from one to another. Besides, people get tired of seeing a man in the same suit day after day for a whole season.

"When I started in the insurance business years ago I realized that to make a good appearance was to look prosperous, and I paid much attention to my dress. I avoided solid color and always selected clothes with some life in them. A dash of color about your person, whether it be in the plaid of the suit, the shirt, tie, hat or handkerchief protruding from the coat pocket, will take away the monotony of one's appearance and is sure to please. But, in adding this 'life' and 'pep' to one's appearance, avoid, above all things, the colors that clash. Get clothes with 'snap' and 'life,' avoiding those which make the wearer look like a cloudy winter day."

PLAN MODEL TOWN.

New Village Will Be Situated on Lake Timiskaming.

On Lake Timiskaming there is growing up a village that may become within a few years a place of pilgrimage for those social reformers who have come to realise the deplorable results that follow uncontrolled development in the earlier stages of urban life, and may rival in picturesqueness those delightful villages perched on the hillside of continental lakes and bays that remain among the pleasantest memories of foreign travel. A large industrial concern that had decided to establish a plant near Lake Timiskaming for the production of pulp decided also that it would be good business to provide for the comfortable housing of its employes so that home life should be possible as well as work.

Skilled advisers were therefore called in, and on a site covering about a square mile on a hillside overlooking the lake a new town, Kipawa, has been planned as a social unit, with a civic centre for the chief public buildings to which the main roads converge; a village green that will be the focus of the recreation life of the community, and a far sighted scheme of arboreal treatment. Town-planner, surveyors, architects and engineers have co-operated in the project, and by skilful arrangements have laid out the streets with grades, for the most part, at less than five per cent., where a more rigid plan of rectangular character would have necessitated grades of not less than eighteen per cent. The workmen's houses will mostly be semi-detached with a few groups of three to six, and in all cases will provide gardens and extensive views over the lake. Attention to home beauty will be encouraged from the outset, and the rights of the community to protect the town from unlicensed ugliness and land speculation will be recognised, as they can so easily be, by the consent of the community. Plans are being shaped whereby the workmen can acquire their homes by easy payments, and the domestic exile that so often accompanies forest labor may be abolished.

Immunity in a Mule.

An Alabama doughboy had trouble galore with a mule.

"Ah jest couldn't take any interest in dat mule. The others were all right. Dis one first crack outa de box, done bit mah finger. Den, while Ah'm 'maintain' mah finger he ups an' kicks me in de pants. Den done back Germans started a gas attack.

"Ah was s'posed to put gas masks on dem mules an' den on me. Ah put masks on two of dem.

"Den I led dis ornery one around in dat gas fo'ah two hours, an' dog mah cats, nothin' ever happened to dat mule a tall!"

WHEN MEN FLY OVER OCEAN.

Lt.-Col. Bishop Predicts that Airplanes Will Cross This Spring.

Surely an Canadian aviator, with the highest score of Huns brought down to his credit, has the right to prophesy. Lt.-Col. William Avery Bishop, age of aces, predicts that this spring airplanes will cross the Atlantic—not one alone, but dozens for on the first favorable day there will be an international race to accomplish this feat. This feat, which there is no authentic record of a bird's doing, is at last to be accomplished by man.

Truly we live in an age of marvel. Not long ago, as Alexander Graham Bell tells, the wireless operator at Arlington, Va., who talked to a man on the Eiffel Tower in Paris, was overheard by another operator in Honolulu. Mr. Bell predicted that soon we should be talking by wireless telephony with any part of the world.

This is perhaps not much more wonderful than a phenomenon we see every day in our city streets—people riding on tubes of air and propelled by explosions. As a writer in the Atlantic Monthly says, "we live in a motor age and here we must find our happiness or not at all."

Radium offers another marvel for the future to explain and utilize. It is the paradox of the scientific world to-day, "ever vanishing as it does and never vanishing. When it is remembered that streams of particles rush from the radium atom at the prodigious rate of twelve thousand miles a second, while the original quantity of radium remains the same, it is seen what a marvellous metal we have. The discovery of radium has upset long cherished theories of matter and force. How can a substance constantly give off rays without appreciable loss, to its supply? No one can now predict what stores of heat and light from this mysterious source we may gather in some future day.

We fly in the air, we travel under the water. It is predicted that we shall yet control the ocean fogs. The time is not far distant, they say, when we shall regulate the growth of plants by artificial light and thus mature our crops in half the time it now takes, and multiply them, too.

And what undreamed-of good is yet to come within our social life? No one can foretell. But as we have solved the problem of the production of goods, we shall solve the problem of their distribution. Our homes and shops will be lighted and heated without smoke or soot, dust or ashes. We shall have social order and unity without clash of class with class; we shall have freedom without license, industry without greed, education without pride, religion without dogmatism in the better day which is to come.

THE "SAM COME-AND-GO" RAID.

How a Canadian Indian Captured a Wee Hun.

The boys called it the "Come and-Go" raid in memory of Pte. Sam Comego, the soldier who made the "show" a mirthful success.

The First and Second Canadian Divisions had taken over the Messines-St. Eloi front from the British during the Loos battle in 1915, and a demonstration was ordered to bluff the enemy from calling reserves from that sector. Brigade raids were ordered first, however, for information. To add zest to the venture the Fourth Brigade hung up an honorarium of 100 francs for the first man to bring back a live German.

Pte. Comego was a great big Chippewa Indian of admirable type from Rice Lake, Ont. His smile overran his copper-hued cheeks and made a friend - impression on every soldier in the 31st Battalion, of which Sam was an original. He was also an original volunteer for this

COLD AIDS EXPLORERS.

Vilhjalmur Stefansson Explains the Reason.

One of the curious errors about the north that are prevalent among those few who have any ideas about the north at all, writes Vilhjalmur Stefansson in Harper's Magazine, is that cold is the chief enemy we have to fight beyond the Arctic Circle. I am sure that all those who have traveled extensively on the moving polar ice would agree with me that the cold is our best friend. For that reason February is a better month than March for sledge travel, and January would be as good as February were it not for the fact that it is then too dark for safe working among broken ice, where waterholes are an danger everywhere. In April, when the temperature, seldom goes lower than 30 degrees below zero for a night, if a gale breaks up the ice, as often happens, forming open leads that crisscross each other in all directions, it takes several days for the frost to cement the broken places and to form ice over the lanes, which are impassable meats while they remain unfrozen, but which become smooth boulevards when covered by six inches of young ice. In February, when the temperature is seldom above—30 degrees and frequently goes down to —50 degrees, the same lanes would freeze over in a night, saving many a tedious delay.

It was therefore heart-breaking to lose by the delays in outfitting, as it proved, the whole month of March, for, although we were ready to start on the 22nd, a gale which had just swept the country had broken up all the ice to eastward, and seven miles from land we were stopped by impassable open water. We had then an extraordinary spell of warm weather, about two months ahead of its time, when for a week or 10 days the temperature seldom dropped to zero and occasionally went as high as 25 degrees above. With regular March temperature —30 degrees, the gale would have delayed us only two or three days.

Aircraft for Surveys.

Among the peace time possibilities of aircraft are forest fire patrol and aerial photography. It is now expected that fire patrols by flying boats will be established during the current year by the British Columbia Forest Branch and by one or more of the forest protective associations of Quebec, assisted, by the Quebec Government. The St. Maurice Forest Protective Association is the leader in this respect in the east, as the British Columbia Forest Branch has proved in the west. It is believed that there are large possibilities also in connection with aerial fire patrol on Dominion lands in the west, through the Dominion Forestry and Parks Branches. Many men, whose experience in aviation overseas should qualify them to express thoroughly practical opinions, state that, beyond question, these things are eminently feasible.

Similarly, there is undoubtedly a large field for developments along the line of actual photography, both in conjunction with forest protection and independently. The recent address of Col. Cull before the Geodetic Society of Ottawa showed some of the possibilities of aircraft in furthering the line of work with which the Geodetic Survey is partially concerned.

The possibilities in connection with forestry work are also very great. There are vast areas of relatively inaccessible lands in all the provinces, where only fragmentary data are available as to drainage and topography, or as to the extent, composition and volume of the forests. As a result of war developments, the importance of our forests in the national economy is now recognized as never before. An adequate knowledge of the character, location and extent of the forests of Canada is essential to the proper administration and exploitation of this vital resource.

The Commission of Conservation made a survey of the forest resources of British Columbia and Saskatchewan, although the data available as to extensive areas were of the most fragmentary character. Similar work in other provinces is planned, as rapidly as the necessary funds are secured. The prosecution of such projects would be enormously simplified, and the results would be much more accurate and valuable, if necessary work on the ground could be supplemented by systematic surveys made by means of aerial photography. Such surveys might of course serve other public purposes as well. This suggests the extreme desirability of co-operation between all agencies interested, Dominion and Provincial, as well as private.—Conservation.

A Venturesome Calf.

A seven-months-old calf belonging to D. Ridwell, 6th concession, Uxbridge, climbed on to a straw stack, then scrambled to the roof of the driving house; from this it was easy a step to the roof of the stable and from the stable roof it got on to the barn. Not satisfied, it scrambled to the hip or peak of the barn, slipped down the other side, and fell 15 feet to the ground, receiving injuries so serious that it had to be killed. The calf was well bred.

VIOLA DANA IN "SOME BRIDE"

—THE STORY OF A BEWITCHING FLIRT—

TO-DAY, FRIDAY and SATURDAY

[illegible]

A brief bombardment opened the night "show." Over went the squads. The 21st Battalion raiders, led by Capt. Miller and Lieut. Davidson, leaped into "Jerry's" line to the tune of blood-bleaching war-whoops from the Indian. Frenzied search for fugouts ensued.

Chasing a German round a traverse, Pte. Zacharias discovered a dug-out barred by a sheet of iron. Capt Miller, Sergt. McBride and Pte. Comego pried open the retreat. One lone prisoner emerged. "Come-and-Go" jerked him to his feet, ejaculating one subdued burst of joy. The lone "Jerry" was a mere small-sized boy.

"Say, Sarge, I know that leetle feller," urged Comego. "Sure? His name is 'Beaucoup France'!" And in a trice the Indian had tucked the bewildered midget under his arm and scrambled over the parados.

Eventually, the password "Wisdom," meaning "Get back as best you can," was passed.

In our "home trench" "Come-and-Go" was found holding a reception, with his diminutive prisoner comfortably ensconced, enjoying a rum ration; while to every returning raider the victor waved his honorarium. Then the wee "Jerry" was ordered to the rear.

Terrible Wounds.

Dr. Peter McGibbon, Muskoka, was informed by Gen. Mewburn in the House of Commons recently that one Canadian soldier had lost his four limbs, sixty-six had lost the sight of both eyes, and seventy-four for the remainder of their lives would be compelled to remain in bed. Most cases of this type, he said, were the result of gunshot wounds of the spine, with resulting paralysis.

One Horror of War.

Hon. Hugh Guthrie stated in the Commons a short time ago that he had been informed that a number of Canadian deserters overseas had been executed. Others had received sentences up to 30 years. He said the punishments in England were more severe than in this country.

Gen. Hughes said they had been tried by court-martial and shot, both in England and at the front.

Strindberg and Magic.

Georges Brandes, writing in Vanity Fair about August Strindberg, declares that the famous Swedish writer's belief in magic was deep rooted and cites the following conversation in proof. Strindberg once said to Brandes:

"You have an enemy. A newspaper enemy. I want to do something for you. Let me kill your enemy."

"You're very kind. But I should prefer not."

"But no one would know about it."

"So all criminals think. Besides, don't you feel it would be rather unjust to kill a man on account of an unkind newspaper article?"

"Well, let's not kill him. We'll simply blind him."

"I still have my doubts. However, how would you go about it?"

"If you will give me the man's photograph I will, with my magic, blind him by driving a needle through his eyes."

"In that case you could easily deprive me of my eyesight, too, if you wished?"

"Hardly. It must be done with hatred."

"Granted. But if a man who hates me tears my picture into pieces will I fall to the ground in bleeding bits?"

This remark seemed to put him out, and he did not answer me.

WHEN YOU LAY YOUR PAPER ASIDE

After you've read the news, have you gotten all the valuable information out of it? Not until you have read the advertisements.

Reading the advertisements should be as much a part of your day as reading the news columns.

The advertisements in your favorite newspaper are a daily record of what your local merchants have laid in store to meet your needs and add to your comfort.

They tell you what the manufacturers of these goods, who are constantly striving to please the public, have done to add to your advantages and comforts. The news, while always interesting, may often concern you only in a general way.

The advertisements are almost certain to tell you something that may mean a great deal to your home life or your business and social welfare.

STORK BEATEN BY AN AEROPLANE

(Canadian Press.)

NEW YORK, 24th July.—In the first race ever staged between a stork and an airplane, the stork lost by ten minutes.

Byron Brooks, naval architect, the winner, was on Staten Island, when he received the summons. He motored to Mineola, rented an air taxi, and paused only to send the following message:

"Coming by air. Ask Jean to wait."

Brooks made the entire 75 miles trip from Staten Island to East Hampton, L.I., in one hour and twenty-two minutes.

DANIEL McCARTHY

The funeral of the late Daniel McCarthy, was held from the family residence, Otonabee, Tuesday, July 8th to St. John's Church, Keene, where Requiem High Mass was sung by Rev. P. J. McGuire, who paid a high tribute to the blameless life of the dead man. The remains were taken to St. Peter's Cemetery, Peterboro for interment, Rev. P. J. McGuire officiated at the grave. The pall bearers, who were life long friends of deceased were Messrs. Wm. Foley, Michael O'Keefe, Wm. Nelson, Frank Walsh, Fred Eason David Wallace.

Mr. McCarthy, the oldest son of the late Owen and Isabel McCarthy was born in Otonabee 48 years ago. Possessed of a kind heart and great sense of humor he was respected and loved by all, and the crowds that came to him in death and followed him to his last resting place mourned with sincere hearts the loss of a true friend and comrade.

He leaves a wife and seven children, the youngest but three years, also three sisters, nurses in New York city, one brother in Otonabee, and a brother a telegraph operator in Saskatchewan to whom is extended the heartfelt sympathy of the community. His eldest son, Joe, made the supreme sacrifice at Cambrai-Arras in 1918.

TWO MONTHS FOR VERA DE LAVELLE

Promised not to make Another Attempt to Escape.

(Canadian Press.)

TORONTO, July 24. — Vera de Lavelle, the sweetheart of the late Frank McCullough, who assisted him to escape, and later herself escaped, and returned a few days ago, was sentenced to two months on the jail farm this morning. She promised Judge Coatsworth not to make another attempt to escape.

ONE HUNDRED AND TEN MILES FOR $1

A DELIGHTFUL WATER TRIP TO HEALY FALLS AND HOME AGAIN

By Our Special Correspondent.

"One hundred and ten miles for a dollar; a fresh breeze excursion." Ye gods! Why, this is less than a cent a mile! Who can now complain of the high cost of travel when the publicity agent of the Stoney Lake Navigation Company makes this promise—not only makes, but keeps it?

Yesterday in fulfilment of this promise made on the bills issued, saw the first trip of the season to Healey Falls and return. The weather man had promised a fine, warm day; and well he redeemed his promise. The earn morn opened up brightly, a delicious zephyr-like, gentle breeze was blowing. At 7.30 a.m. "All aboard for Healey Falls" was the slogan on the lips of jolly Frank Young, Lord High Admiral of the Stoney Lake Fleet, who came to wish God-speed and a pleasant trip to the upwards of 150 passengers who were aboard his flagship, the Stoney Lake, under the able command of the senior officer of the fleet, the genial Captan Scollard. At 7.45 the warps were cast off, at 8 the Lock was being negotiated, at 8.10 the street railway wharf was passed, at 8.35 we were abreast of the T.A.S. Park, were passing through Hale's Bridge and Rose's Bridge at 9.05 and 9.30 respectively, and were off Jubilee Point, in the open Rice Lake, at 10.15. The Narrows were reached at 11.25, Hastings at 12.17 (where we took on a further contingent of passengers), the Trent Brdge was passed at 1.17, and proceeding along the Trent River, Healey Falls was reached at 2.10. Thus it will be seen that a goodly section of the Otonabee River, a considerable stretch of Rice Lake, and some fifteen miles of the River Trent were embraced in this trip.

The sail down the Otonabee River wes extremely pretty. There was a cloudless blue sky, barely a ripple on the surface of the water, the reflections of the trees and shrubs on the river's brink were at times truly marvellous. The birds sang, the patches of water lilies nodded their pretty yellow heads; all nature seemed happy, and I thanked the Divine Architect of the Universe that I was alive to appreciate and enjoy the morn.

"A fresh breeze excursion," the press agent of the steamship company had termed this trip; and right enough he was, for the air was delightfully fresh without the slightest suspicion of being too cool. It was fresh air for 110 miles—less than one cent a mile, for fourteen and a half hours. Surely that's not dear at a dollar! Long before we arrived at the Falls, the effect of the fresh breeze was in tangible evidence. At quite an early hour lunch baskets were in requisition, and good, solid meals—notwithstanding the high cost of living—were disposed of. The men enjoyed their smokes, whether pipes, cigars, or cigarettes. The ladies retailed the latest little bits of gossip: some chewed gum, ugh! And the kiddies were ubiquitous. Everybody was happy, and why not, on such a really divine day? The run down the Otonabee River is, to my mind, always pretty. The sinuous bendings of its course—whence its Indian name, signifying serpent-like—are ever opening fresh vistas. So snake-like are some of these bends, that the boat is, according to the compass, heading back for Peterborough, although steaming on with the current. How true it may be I can't say, but I have been seriously told that Rose's Bridge, which is further by water from this city than is Hale's bridge, is really some miles nearer as the crow would fly. And I do not doubt it! Anyway, each time I go up or down this river, the more charming it strikes one as being. The run through Rice Lake, too, is very pleasant. There are so many islands which lend enchantment to the view. On entering the lake there is Tich Island at the end of the old railway fill off Harwood. Then are passed, inter alia, Potash Island, Long Point, Sugar and White's Islands, Grape Island, Margaret Island, together with several others of smaller extent—and now goes the dinner bell. For those who had not laden themselves with the impediments of picnic hampers, there was an excellent meal served in the saloon; and a refreshment bar—I beg pardon, booth—was well stocked with excellent ice-cream, cigars, soft drinks, candies, etc., under capable feminine management, which seemed to do a thriving business.

Arrived at Healey Falls, fifty minutes were allowed us to visit the dam and the big power house. A big engineering scheme has been laboriously and patiently carried out here. A huge concrete dam with sluices and an extensive range of training walls, also in concrete, have been built, not only to utilise the water power at these falls for the generation of electric energy, but also to form, by means of a double lock with a rise and fall of some eighty feet, communication between the Trent River above and the river below the falls, as part and parcel of the Trent Canal scheme, thus giving access to Campbellford and on to Lake Ontario. The falls and cascade here are really picturesque; a very considerable body of water rushes over them and are worth a visit, while the big turbine house and power station will repay the attention of those interested in the generation of electric current.

At three o'clock the return journey was commenced; it was equally as pleasant while homeward bound as it was on the outward bound journey. At Hastings we stayed to disembark the young ladies we had taken on there for a few hours' addition to our pleasant time, while we embarked an American canoeist who had come, it was said, by canoe from New York, up the St. Lawrence, through Lake Ontario, up the Trent Canal, up the Healey Falls lock and River Trent to Hastings. He was bringing his stout little canoe to this city for some necessary fixing, after which he purposed proceeding up the Trent Canal as far as may be possible to get.

A delicious afternoon and evening, interluded of course by the necessary meal, was brought to a close by the mooring of the Stoney Lake at the Government wharf on George street as the clocks were chimming the hour of ten.

And I should fail in what is due from me, were I not to say a word of high commendation on behalf of that genial Captain Scollard and his efficient first officer and courteous crew, who, as usual, did all they could to promote the comfort and happiness of their passengers; their attention and courtesy were everything that could be desired even on the most exclusive ocean liners.

A parting word to the ise and I conclude my commission. When you see this trip again advertised, Go and do thou likewise. I don't somehow fancy you'll regret it!

200 SAILORS MAN YORKSHIRE MINES

(Special to The Examiner.)

LONDON, Eng., July 24. — The pumping station in Yorkshire mines to-day was pronounced satisfactory with the exception of one important mine. Two hundred sailors are now manning the mine pumps without interference, and attention is being given to the operation of ventilation systems in deeper pits of South Yorkshire, where fans have been stopped since the strike began. Sir Eric Geddes, minister without portfolio, who is on the spot representing the government, has received satisfactory replies from the Lord Mayor of Leeds and other municipalities whom he asked yesterday to see that the supply of coal was economized. The supply at Leeds is virtually exhausted and the outlook for householders is serious.

All mines in North Staffordshire district were idle yesterday because of the strike, but resumed operations to-day.

The exportation of Cardiff coal has been stopped by a government order issued to-day.

OLD SAWDUST PILE ON FIRE THIS AFTERNOON

Provides Annual Run For Firemen.

The old sawdust pile on the river bank near the Seymour power house, called out the fire brigade on its annual visit to-day. The sawdust is usually set afire two or three times a year by spontaneous combustion, and this is thought to be the cause this year. The brigade are still fighting the blaze at the time of going to press.

PLAN BIG WAR ON COOTIES.

300 Americans Off for Poland to Wipe Out Typhus Vermin.

PARIS.—The most important medical expedition ever organized to fight typhus will leave Paris in a few days to try to stamp out the disease in Poland and to attempt to avert a threatened epidemic in Central Europe this Winter.

Colonel Harry L. Gilhirst of the Medical Corps, U.S.A., will command a group of 550 American Army officers and volunteers, all sanitary experts. The first efforts of the expedition will be to eliminate typhus from camps in Poland.

American and British army authorities have sold Poland the larger part of their delousing equipment, and the Polish Minister of Health is gathering all such equipment left behind by the Germans.

Eight hundred railway cars and 700 motor trucks will be required to transport the equipment and chemicals of the American Medical Expedition. Permission has been obtained to go through German territory to Poland.

Typhus now is said to be epidemic from the Baltic to the Black Sea. Nevertheless, it is hoped the expedition can terminate the typhus-bearing lice before cold weather permits the disease to become virulent. The interallied relief expeditions throughout Poland are giving every possible assistance to the people. It is planned to disinfect people, their clothing and their homes.

TOBACCO SOARS IN ITALY.

Cigars and Cigarettes Twenty Times Higher Than Before the War.

ROME.—While Americans complain of the advance of 1 and 2 cents in the price of cigars and cigarettes, the prices in Italy have advanced ten and twenty times what they were formerly. Cigarettes of the cheapest varieties which sold before the war for 2 cents a box now sell for 20 cents and sometimes 30. Cigars have mounted in price almost to the point where they are unmarketable.

Besides the difficulty of importing tobacco—which, of course adds considerable to the price—there is increased taxation upon it. The governmental income from tobacco in pre-war days amounted to approximately $75,000,000 annually. During the past fiscal year tobacco users have paid the Government $170,000,000 while for the next year, 1918-1919, the budget anticipates a revenue from tobacco of nearly $300,000,000. The latter will be one-sixth of the entire budget.

Away down underneath you can bet Germany is mighty glad to get off as easily as she does—Santa Fe New Mexican.

READY FOR OFFENSIVE

ALLIES READY TO TAKE A SMASH AT THE HUNGARIAN REDS.

THE STRENGTH

(United Press.)

VIENNA, July 25.— The start of the Allied offensive against the Hungarian Red army appeared imminent to-day. A number of Allied officers inspected the Hungarian White army at Szegedin with a view to co-operation. The White commander, Admiral Hortly, received the Entente officers, who later went to the front in the region of the Tisza river, where the Reds are now attacking the Roumanians.

The Hungarian Red army, which the Allied forces are expected to engage, consists of eight divisions, totalling 600,000 front line and 100,000 reserve troops. There are also one thousand cavalry men.

Material includes 800 guns, 800 machine guns, two 12 inch mortars, 25 airplanes, six monitors, four heavy armoured motor cars and five light cars.

NOTED ARTISTS CHALLENGED BY "THE VELVET HAND"

Wonderfully Tinted Costumes Worn by Fritzi Brunette in Latest Play

Lawrence Massanovich, the distinguished landscape painter of Westport, Connecticut, says that he will gladly take his symphonic study of the Forest of Fontainbleau down from its nail in the Louvre if the French authorities will agree to hang the kaiser in its place.

Mazzanovich is a master of color, but if he tried to record the various hues of the costumes used in "The Velvet Hand," the brilliant Bluebird photodrama in which Fritzi Brunette is starring at the Grand Theatre, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday he would have to trudge across Westport's dusty square and rout out Arthur Dove, another one of Westport's seventeen famous painters.

Dove was said by Chicago critics to have cleverly painted the squeak in a waggon which he depicted in motion. Perhaps he could paint the melodious uproar that swept through the pastoral Italian village used as a scene in "The Velvet Hand". Surely it was a gladsome sound when beautiful little Gianna, the daughter of Rossalli, the old violin maker, danced with her shadow over the sun-splashed cobblestones.

But speaking of sunlight, warm, mellow, golden sunlight. There is Linde, who also gets his mail at the Westport post-office. Surely he would be a better craftsman for sunlight on the water, for was it not Linde who dipped his brush in the rainbow and swept it dripping across the canvas for $5 25c. per annum and members are for the magnificent studies of the canals of Venice for the Academy?

HOLD JOINT CONFERENCE

LABOUR MUST GO BEFORE THE ROBSON COMMISSION WITH CLEAN HANDS.

INDUSTRIAL UNREST

(Special to The Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, July 25. — "Labour must go before the Robson Commission investigating the causes of the Winnipeg general strike, with 'clean hands,' before any charge of discrimination by employers can be made," Commissioner Robson asserted yesterday.

"Labour must establish that the strike was free from criminal taint, and that it was justified by economic conditions," Judge Robson said.

He urged labour to prepare its case properly so that fair judgment may be reached.

"It is certainly impossible to believe that the whole vast number of strikers were seditious, and those who disclaim the charge should take advantage of the opportunity to do so publicly," the Commissioner said.

Joint conferences and actions of employers and real labour leaders, with a view to placing in satisfactory employment every British subject within the district of Winnipeg, are suggested by Judge Robson as a means of solving the problem with unemployment and industrial unrest.

CITY'S COAL SUPPLY BECOMES AN ASSET

ABOUT 1,000 TONS LEFT FROM LAST WINTER—MARKET PRICE RISING.

A rising market has transformed the city's coal reserve of 1000 tons from a prospective liability at the close of last winter to a present asset. When spring came with peace and promises of plenty it was expected that the price of coal would begin to recede from its war time levels and some of the aldermen suggested that the municipal supply should be cleared out at a sacrifice wide this fall and winter. Other and by reducing the price before the anticipated margin of loss became too more far-seeing counsels advised holding the coal for its original purpose of providing for any emergency that might arise, and apparently there are greater possibilities of scarcity next winter than at any time during the war.

City Treasurer Adams stated this morning that there had been very little demand for the city's coal this summer. About 1000 tons remain. The old prices were $11 a ton for mixed nut and pea sizes and $10 for mine run. Market conditions indicate that these prices will be exceeded next winter, and there are no longer any feelings that the city will be unable to sell its supply.

It may be that the Fuel Committee will have to decide whether they will retain this reserve for extreme scarcity that may arise or simply sell it as quickly as orders are received.

SETTLEMENT IS EXPECTED

New York Marine Men Will Likely Go Back to Work.

(Canadian Press.)

NEW YORK, July 25.—Announcement of the settlement of the Marine Workers' strike was expected to be made to-day. Raymond B. Stevens, vice-chairman of the United States' Shipping Board, who came here Monday has since had conferences with representtaives of both the seamen and operators, and it is intimated that practically the only things necessary to complete the compromise are signatures.

LISTS OPEN UNTIL AUGUST THE FIRST

The voters' list will not be closed until 1st August. Mr. J. F. Strickland, chief enumerator for the county, was appointed to that position on the 22nd of July, and the enumeration is to continue ten days after appointment. This applies to the city only, as in some parts of the county deputies have not yet been selected, and enumeration in their sub-division continues ten days after appointment.

The list is filling fast, although some difficulty has been experienced by the deputies in reaching eligible voters who have closed their city homes and are summering at Kawartha Lakes.

One enumerator brought in a list of no less than twenty houses in his district where he had called, and the tenants had closed "shop" for the upper lakes. The deputies will call on one house three times, if it is necessary, and after that the voter must put his name on the list by his own efforts.

MRS. FITZ RANDOLPH WINS DIVORCE SUIT

(Special to The Examiner.)

FREDERICTON, July 25.—The first jury ever summoned to hear a divorce case in New Brunswick found last evening for the defendant, Mrs. Charles Fitzrandolph, when they brought in their decision in the sensational case which has been going on in the Court here for some time past.

There were eight questions in all submitted to the jury, and when they brought in their decision after being out more than two hours, they were unanimous in their decision on five of the eight counts, while they stood five to two on two others, and six to one on the remaining question.

Five of the seven jurors were enough to make a decision, so that Mrs. Fitzrandolph actually won all of the counts.

THE LIBERALS WIN IN PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND BY A SUBSTANTIAL MAJORITY

CONSERVATIVE GOVERNMENT OVERTHROWN IN THE ELECTIONS YESTERDAY—PREMIER ARSENAULT BLAMES UNREST AND OTTAWA FOR GOVERNMENT DEFEAT.

J. H. BELL NEW PREMIER

CHARLOTTETOWN, P.E.I., July 25.—The Liberals swept the Province in the general election yesterday, capturing 26 seats out of 30. The only Conservative survivors of the debacle were Hon. A. E. Arsenault, Premier; Hon. James A. McNeill, Commissioner of Public Works; and Hon. Murdock Kennedy and J. D. Stewart. This was the most one-sided election since Confederation, when the Liberals won only two seats. When the House dissovled the parties stood: Conservatives, 18; Liberals, 17, and one seat vacant.

Such a sweeping victory was unexpected by both sides, although the result of the Federal elections, when all four Liberals got the majority of the home vote, afterwards changed by the soldiers' vote, foreshadowed a Conservative defeat to-day.

Soldiers Voted Liberal.

Returned soldiers did not take an active part in the contest, but it is evident that the majority of them voted Liberal.

Fine weather brought out a very large vote.

Premier Blames Ottawa.

Premier Arsenault also charges that many electors held his administration responsible for their grievances against Ottawa.

Premier-elect Bell, when the results showed 20 Liberals and only five Conservatives elected, stated that the result was a people's protest against misrule.

At the last Provincial election, 17 Conservatives and 13 Liberals were elected.

In the present contest, 38 Conservatives were in the field, 26 Liberals and two Independents.

COAL STRIKE SETTLED

QUARTER MILLION MEN WILL RETURN TO WORK

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, July 25.— The London strike of approximately a quarter million men in the coal mines, which threatened to paralyze many industries, was settled to-day.

The past few hours have been fully occupied with conferences between Premier Lloyd George and other members of the Government and the mining interests, and concluded with a settlement. According to the strike leaders in Yorkshire, the whole trouble arose through the Coal Controller attempting to evade the piece rate provisions of the Sankey report, which the Government had adopted as a working basis.

One of the results of the conference between the Premier and the miners' Executive was a new piece rate offer on the part of the Government, which the Miners' Federation appointed a sub-committee to consider.

The sub-committee, which required elucidation of the points in detail, held a long conference last evening with the Coal Controller.

To Adjust [illegible]

The settlement provides for the appointment of a small committee representing the Coal Mines Department and the Miners' Federation, to adjust a formula adopted to the requirements of the different districts.

The settlement came none too soon. Evidence is accumulating hourly of how heavily the coal shortage is pressing on all industries and public services. The Government has already stopped the export of coal from Cardiff, and the railways have plans laid for a severe restriction of their services, to begin Monday if the strike is not settled.

The Government's statement made it clear that the Sankey report must be adhered to, and that an average of ten per cent. increase in piece rates must be the basis of the arrangement. This was not a question between the employers and the workmen, Mr. Bonar Law explained. Under the present arrangement the employers' profits are guaranteed, and any increase must be borne by the State, he pointed out. The employers, he said, had agreed to an increasme of 14.5 per cent., but the Coal Controller could not agree to this, as it was the State, and not the employers, who would have to pay.

OFFICIAL REPORT.

An official report issued after the conference held to-day between Premier Lloyd-George and the executive body of the Miners' Federation, said an agreement had been reached, and that the principle laid down by the Government in its proposition has been adopted.

The Government proposition, based on the interim report of the Sankey Coal Commission that the reduction of output through reduced hours would be less than ten per cent., afforded the Government the assurance that piece-workers should not suffer any loss in earnings, and that the piece rates would be increased by an amount which, on the average, was found necessary to correspond with the ten per cent. reduction in hours.

In order to carry out this agreement, says the report, it was necessary to fix a definite average of reduction in the working time, resulting in the introduction of the seven-hour day, and after the next examination of figures, it was decided to accept forty-seven minutes as the basis for this calculation.

COUNTRY IS IN RACE AGAINST A COAL SHORTAGE AND ONLY 2 MONTHS TO WIN

UNITED STATES IS 125,000,000 TONS SHORT OF THE DEMANDS—SIMILIAR CONDITIONS IN CANADA.

HIGHER PRICES

(United Press.)

WASHINGTON, D.C., July 25.—"The United States is in a race against a coal shortage, and has only two months to win," George H. Cushing, of the American Wholesale Association, told the Rules Committee of the House yesterday.

"We are falling short of meeting the demands by at least 125,000,000 tons," he said. "After the crops begin to move, the railroads will be least able to carry coal at a time when we need it most. The present shortage is due to nothing less than a weak demand. People are hoping for lower prices, but I can see none in sight, and they are bound to go higher when the shortage becomes acute."

Similar conditions prevail in Canada.

COMPANY WILL SETTLE FOR DAMAGES DONE IN CHICAGO BLIMP TRAGEDY

A COMMISSION HAS BEEN NAMED TO FIX THE AMOUNTS TO BE PAID TO FAMILIES OF THE THIRTY-NINE DEAD AND INJURED.

(Special to The Examiner.)

CHICAGO, Ill., July 25.—A precedent in settling outside of Court for damages done in great disasters was seen to-day in the announcement of officials of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., Akron, Ohio, that a commission of Chicagoans had been named to fix amounts to be paid the families of the thirty-nine dead and injured in the recent blimp tragedy here.

The announcement by G. M. Stadelman, vice-president, declared that the company will pay without resistance any amounts the commission decided on. Families, however, are not required to accept the amounts, but have the opportunity offered to save tedious Court proceedings.

The funerals of the last of the thirteen victims were held yesterday. Employees at the bank bowed their heads in silence for five minutes during the services.

The double coroners' jury was to resume its investigations into the cause of the explosion to-day.

MOTOR CAR OWNER IN A COLLISION

CAR OF MR. J. T. C. LANG WAS STRUCK AMIDSHIPS.

Mr. James T. C. Lang of the local Customs Office staff, had a busy time to-day at 10 o'clock at the corner of George and London streets when a north-bound street car hit his car, breaking the steering gear, bending the mud guards and badly denting one side. Mr. Lang was proceeding north on George street and wished to turn on London street, but another car travelling at terrific speed, going in the opposite direction, impeded him from turning on London street and he went past that street. He reversed his engine in order to get on London street, when a passing motor car [illegible] proceeded.

Music & Drama

"SOME BRIDE."

"Some Bride' at the Grand is "some show," and just the idea needed these warm evenings to make one forget the heat and enjoy a good laugh over a wholesome attraction. The action centres around a young bride whose husband has "a touch of Spanish blood," and cannot appreciate the fact the bride Miss Viola Dana is still too young to settle down. Miss Dana's charming handling of the extremely funny situation the play offers is the work of an artist and the audience could not help loving her in spite of her naughty but thoroughly innocent actions. Two other splendid pictures are also included in the week end programme, one of which is one of the hits of the season, "Scared Stiff," featuring the inimitable Lyons and Moran. The play opens with a scene, "the morning after the night before," when two young men, Lyons and Moran, have been celebrating the wedding which is to take place that day. Each man awakens at different times to find the other wearing a blood smeared shirt while he himself finds a revolver in his hand. Each believes he has committed murder while intoxicated and bolts. The apparent tragedy happily winds up in an unusually amusing comedy. The theatre these evenings besides offering a splendid show is doubtless the coolest place in the city.

RESERVES WILL BE MUSTERED OUT

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, July 25.—It is officially announced that all French army reserves will be mustered out shortly, leaving only classes from nineteen-eighteen to nineteen-twenty as the standing army of France.

NO DISCOUNT FOR PROMPT PAYMENT

POSTERS REFERRING TO TAXES ARE IN ERROR.

Posters calling the ratepayers to the pleasant duty of paying their taxes display an error to the effect that two percent discount will be allowed for prompt payment. This concession was withdrawn this year by the Council, probably in the opinion that the city needed the money worse than the citizens. The old days of give and take are evidently gone for ever, and only the take remains, even in the relations of the municipality and its public. The H. C. of living has fostered more than the cash and carry idea of business and something of the same method seems to have permeated all business. If you fail to pay half your taxes on August 1st five per cent. will be added. The second instalment is due on November 1st and if these are unpaid on that date five per cent. will be added to the second payment. Tax Collector Green's tax bills which have been distributed throughout the city bear the warning that legal proceedings may be instituted to speed up delinquents.

FLU EPIDEMIC LIKELY TO RETURN

WHAT IT COST THE INSURANCE COMPANIES LAST YEAR.

(United Press.)

NEW YORK, July 25.—A recurrence of the epidemic of influenza, which cost nearly half a million lives in the United States last fall, was predicted to-day by insurance experts.

Edward Kept, of the Statistical Bureau, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, stated that the epidemic had cost the life insurance companies in the United States from $90,000,000 to $100,000,000, while the Bureau of War risk insurance in Washington paid out about $150,000,000 to beneficiaries of influenza victims.

DENY RUMOURS.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, July 25.—Rumours of mutiny and other troubles in Jugo Slavia were denied, officially at Laibach, in Jugo Slavia, according to a despatch received to-day from Laibach, via Vienna and Basle. The despatch said that it was stated officially that order and tranquility prevail throughout the country.

A Bit of Literary and War History.

Many competent judges say that Lt.-Col. John McCrae's "In Flanders Fields" is the most poignant of all the poems written during the war, and the most certain to have an enduring place in English literature. The incident that led to the writing of the verses is recalled by the return to Canada of Lt.-Col. L. Miller Cosgrave, D.S.O., who brought back to Ottawa for demobilization the First and Second Batteries of the Canadian Field Artillery. As the 'baby" subaltern, Lieut. Cosgrave answered Col. (now Gen.) Morrison's call to join the battery on August 9, 1914, and was at the front with the guns continuously till March, 1919. The First Brigade Canadian Artillery went into line along the Yser Canal in February, 1916, and there on May 2nd, during the fierce cannonading that accompanied the attempt of the enemy to force the passage of the Yser and gain the Channel ports, Lieut. Alexis Helmer, an officer of the battery, was killed. Morrison, McCrae, Cosgrave and other officers were present at the hasty burial of Helmer's body in a shell-torn spot on the canal bank, where, despite all the churning of the surrounding ground, it still rests undisturbed.

Near by and closer to the canal is one of the irregular patches of burial ground, common near the front, where even so early as May, 1915, there were buried British, French, Belgian, Moroccan and Canadian dead, beneath their crudest "row on row." The poppies were beginning to bloom and the larks were singing when young Helmer was laid away with the smile on his face that sudden death had not disturbed. Col. Cosgrave says McCrae was deeply moved during the burial. He went to his dugout muttering to himself like a man putting an idea into suitable words, and in twenty minutes came back with the verses, "In Flanders' Fields," substantially as they were afterwards printed.

Mrs. Helmer, mother of the young officer whose death gave Col. McCrae his theme, did not know of the friendship between the poet and her son until Col. Cosgrave told her of it. Col. McCrae, killed by overwork, followed Helmer to a resting place at the front. Col. Cosgrave came through and is back home in Toronto. His D.S.O. is one of the relatively few that have a bar to it. The original decoration was won on the Somme in 1916, out beyond the Sunken Road at Courcelette, when in a reconnaissance of the front line he discovered and guided back two companies of a Canadian battalion that had got lost. The bar was added because of signal bravery in the saving of life on the Zonnebeke road during the Passchendaele operations of 1917. Eight lorries loaded with 9.2-inch and 8-inch shell were on the way up to the guns when the Germans, who had direct observation on the ground, began to shell the lorries and the marching men who also occupied the road. A direct hit set one of the lorries and its contents on fire and the great shells began to explode, carrying death and wounds to dozens of men round about. The officer in charge of the convoy was killed and most of the men. Col. Cosgrave and a young lorry driver, who got a D.C.M. for his fine services, ditched the burning lorries and collected the wounded, placing them in safety in shell holes near the roadside, where the fragments of the exploding ammunition passed over them harmlessly. That is why the "baby" of the battery, who went off to the front almost five years ago as a junior lieutenant, comes back as Lt.-Col. Cosgrave, D.S.O. with a bar. That and a fine record of over four years of active service which ended at Mons, where he commanded the artillery of the 9th Brigade.

No Wonder.

Mrs. Crabshaw—Don't cry, Willie. I'm not going to punish you this time, for you hurried when I called you. Willie—Boo-hoo, mamma! I fell downstairs!—New York Times.

Death expecteth thee everywhere. Be ready, therefore, and expect death everywhere.—Quarles.

Chess in Ancient Ceylon.

In ancient Ceylon the game of chess was played with local variations peculiar enough to note. The king was a castle, but he is permitted to jump like a knight till checked. The pawns exchangeable on the last row for pieces on whose row they stand.

Stole a Useless Thing.

An indignant merchant who had been robbed of a thermometer put this notice in his window:

"The person who took the thermometer from my door had better return it, as it will be of no use where he is going as it registers only 125 degrees."

Their Fears.

"I'm afraid, my dear, that you were asleep during that learned discourse and the woman with a strong sense of duty."

"Yes," replied her husband. "Why, what started I was afraid I wouldn't."—Washington Star.

Told Him.

Father (appearing suddenly)—What sort of business do you call this, kissing my daughter? Suitor (without hesitation)—It's a sort of co-operative affair, sir!—Town Topics.

The youth of the soul is everlasting, and eternity is youth.—Richter.

Buried In Secret

Two Famous Kings Whose Last Resting Places Are Unknown.

Two ancient kings were buried in secret. Attila, king of the Huns, after his siege of Rome, died in Hungary A. D. 453. His soldiers, desirous of giving their great leader a right royal burial, inclosed his body first in a casket of gold, this in one of silver, and this in one of lead, and transported it into a desert. There slaves were selected, and under the direction of men who were sworn to secrecy they dug the grave of the dead monarch. When this was accomplished no traces of the spot were left. The slaves were all cruelly slain.

Alaric, king of the Goths, the celebrated conqueror of Rome, died when with his army at Cosanza, south Italy. His men turned the course of a river, interred the body of their sovereign, with much treasure, in its bed and restored the stream to its channel.

No man has ever lighted on the resting place of either of these kings, who in this respect resemble Moses, of whom it is written, "No man knoweth of his sepulcher unto this day."—London Standard.

Poor Thackeray!

Sir William Howard Russell's diary for April, 1852, has this amusing glimpse of Thackeray:

"The sportsmen among whom I had the honor to be numbered were of the Winkle order. Thackeray, Dickens, John Beech, Jerrold, Lemon, Ibbotson, were invited, and carriages were reserved to Watford. As we were starting a written excuse was brought from Dickens to be conveyed to Mrs. X. by Thackeray. The party drove up to the house, and after compliments Thackeray delivered the billet. The effect was unpleasant. Mrs. X. fled along the hall, and the guests heard her calling to the cook: 'Martin, don't roast the ortolans. Mr. Dickens isn't coming.'

"Thackeray said he never felt so small. 'There's a test of popularity for you! No ortolans for Pendennis!'"

Repartee.

"My mother always told me that in taking you I was marrying beneath my station."

"Beneath your station, eh? That wasn't a station your family had; it was just a water tank."—Detroit Free Press.

A YOUNG LAD'S PROFIT IN PIGS

India'a Boy Builds Up a Big Herd From a Small Start.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—In July, 1917, Levi Young, then a fifteen-year-old boy, obtained a pure-bred Duroc in the distribution of pigs by a Terre Haute Trust Company. Levi was a charter member of the first Pig Club started in Vigo Co.

From this little start, a hog weighing only 60 pounds, Levi has built up a herd of pure-bred animals which now number thirty, including a boar to head the herd and five sows, which farrowed last spring.

"I wouldn't trade my bunch for a farm in Texas," said the youthful hog breeder. "At least, it would take over $1,000 to buy them now."

Hog men who have seen Levi's animals declare that $1,000 is a decidedly conservative estimate in placing their value. Thus, he has earned more than $500 a year while attending high school.

The boy expects to pay his own way through high school and college via the pig route. He will hold his first sale next fall and also will consign one or two animals to the Junior Live Stock Breeders' Association sale which will be arranged soon.

LAD'S REMAKABLE ESCAPE FROM DEATH

GUELPH, July 24.—A Guelph lad had a remarkably narrow escape from death here. On Delhi street a live wire was down, and as it lay there Kenneth Croft, who lives on King street, took hold of it with both hands. He instantly fell back and the wire was removed only after some difficulty. It was thought young Croft was dead, and he was removed into a house, but he showed signs of life nad was taken to the General hospital, where he was finally brought around. A strange thing in connection with the incident was that his hands were not even burned.

LIGHT WAVES.

Some Too Tiny to Be Seen, Yet Science Can Measure Them.

The very smallest thing on earth which has been actually measured is a light wave.

Light waves, of course, are of different lengths. In the spectrum the red waves are longest, orange next, yellow next, and so on to the violet, which are shortest of the visible waves. So if we were to give the measurement of the very smallest thing we would have to take one of the light waves in the violet end of the spectrum or, better still, one of the waves of the ultra-violet portion which is invisible.

The sharpest of these that has been determined is 180 millionths of a millimetre. Changing this to fractions of an inch, we can comprehend the smallness of the wave. If 1000 of your pencil dots on top of the other these would be more than 200,000 of them in a line one inch long. The negative corpuscle which is a constituent part of the atom is known to be smaller than this, but its exact size has not been determined.

That these light waves can be measured in this is the fact that as light waves are perceived it is only a matter of determining the angle of refraction and by triangulation finding the length

MARK TWAIN'S LAST DAYS.

"Sorry, but I Can't Hurry This Dying Business," He Told a Friend.

Mark Twain's last days, it will be remembered, were spent in Bermuda, at the home of Vice Consul Allen, where he had gone following the shock of his daughter Jean's death. The great humorist, suffering from heart attacks which began to recur with increasing frequency, knew that he was a dying man. Yet his whimsical humor never failed him. His biographer, Albert Bigelow Paine, writing in St. Nicholas, recalls how Mr. Clemens at this time referred to the hypodermic injection, which had become necessary to him, as "hypnotic injunctions."

"As long as I remember anything," writes Mr. Paine in describing the trip from Bermuda, "I shall remember the forty-eight hours of that homeward voyage. He was comfortable at first, and then we ran into the humid, oppressive air of the gulf stream, and he could not breathe. It seemed to me that the end might come at any moment, and this thought was in his own mind, but he had no dread, and his sense of humor did not fail. Once, when the ship rolled and his hat fell from the hook and made the circuit of the cabin floor, he said, 'The ship is passing the hat.'

"I had been instructed in the use of the hypodermic needle and from time to time gave him the 'hypnotic injunction,' as he called it. But it did not afford him entire relief. He could remain in any position but a little while. Yet he never complained and thought only of the trouble he might be making. Once he said:

"'I am sorry for you, Paine, but I can't help it—I can't hurry this dying business.'

"And a little later:

"'Oh, it's such a mystery, and it takes so long!'"

EVOLUTION OF A SENATOR.

His Career Briefly Sketched From Baby Holding to Congress.

Prior to election a future United States senator is meek and lowly. He is not averse to holding babies or four aces, as the environment may demand, while campaigning for votes. One may [illegible] his white clothes and a fresh collar and begins to practice a dignified stride for future use on Pennsylvania avenue. Babies and packages have lost their alluring competition; no longer does he [illegible] familiarity; he is as patronizing to a rooster who supplies wenge for the home and then eats them before his invited guests arrive.

Seated in a niche of the hall of congress the new senator feels as though he should peer through a microscope to make sure he is there, but confidential letters sent to the editor of the Jumped Broke tell how he is preparing a bill advocating the irrigation of Sagebrush valley; also how he is working to death by other senators asking favors of him. As a school for fiction writers the United States senate has all other correspondence schools lashed to the mast.

Many senators fail to receive just reward at the conclusion of their maiden voyage through the troubled congressional waters probably because the law is so strictly enforced against murder.—Harper's Weekly.

FREAK TREES.

Heavy Snowstorms Often Cause Bent and Twisted Trunks.

To the person who is not versed in forest lore the grotesquely bent tree trunks that are to be found in almost all woods are mystifying, and wonder is often aroused as to the cause.

Foresters will tell questioners that in the case of trees in mountainous country and other sections where the snowfall is heavy the weight of snow is responsible in most instances for the queer twists they assume.

When a tree is young the weight of snow that falls on its branches often bends the trunk over until it is flattened to the ground. Sometimes it is buried under six or eight feet of snow and held in that position so long that when warm weather comes the tree fails to spring back into its normal position.

The summer sun causes the tip of the young tree to turn upward, and if it manages to withstand the weight of the snow of the next winter that portion of the tree will, as a general rule, continue to grow in a normal way. "Hairpin" bends and other odd shapes result.

A curious tree stands on the top of Tunnel hill, Johnstown, Pa., about four miles from town. It is a sugar maple about 100 years old, which has prolonged its own life by grafting a branch into a much younger tree.—Popular Science Monthly.

VAMPIRE BATS OF PERU.

These Bloodsucking Animals Have Bulldog Heads.

On the morning after our arrival at San Miguel bridge (Peru) the pack mules nearly all showed blood blotches on their withers and backs, where they had been attacked during the night by vampire bats which had fed on their blood. This bat, Desmodus rotundus, is plentifully distributed throughout Peru in altitudes below 10,000 feet.

It is one of the most highly specialized species of existing bats. The lower jaw is decidedly undershot, and the head, with its short cropped ears and broad muzzle, has a strikingly bulldog appearance. The legs are well developed and rather heavy, enabling the animal to move fairly rapidly on the ground, in which situation it is by no means the shuffling, helpless creature like many other bats. If molested when thrown to the ground it will turn and bite savagely.

The teeth are a highly modified cutting apparatus for making incisions in the skins of mammals and birds.

In habits they are sociable and are commonly found living in caves or tunnels, suspended from the ceiling in clusters often of immense size.—National Geographic Magazine.

LEAVE US THE STARS.

(To Mr. Marconi)

Leave us the stars—
This world hath noise enough,
Without the roar of Mars.
Rob not the holy spaces of their calm
Bring us no idle gossip of the spheres;
Nor desecrate the psalm
That, on still nights, into our burdened ears
Pours its mysterious balm.

Soon shall the airship blot the rising moon
With vulgar light across the evening sky.
In vain shall tortured [illegible] eye
Flee from pursuit of each last silly tune,
And each new fashion of deformity;
In vain seek sanctuary
On dawn-kissed peaks of unascended snows,
Or in some isle the sea
Hath kept a secret from eternity.
Hid in her bosom like a lover's rose.

Leave us the stars! O wizard, let them be.

—Richard Le Gallienne.

MAY STOP SUNDAY GOLF

Massachusetts Enthusiasts Force Issue on Sabbath Law.

BOSTON, July 24. — It is possible that on every golf links in the State Sunday playing will be forbidden by State police authorities in the near future.

This state of affairs will be brought about by the indignant members of two Holyoke golf clubs who were forbidden to play yesterday by members of the State police, following complaint by the Rev. Martin D. Kneeland of Winchester, President of the Lord's Day League.

Holyoke golfers are determined to complain to State police authorities that golf is being played on Sunday in other cities and towns of Massachussetts, and they will present evidence to substantiate their complaints. The motive of the Holyoke golfers in tieing up Sunday playing throughout the State is to force action on the Sunday golf issue and compel the Legislature to make such playing legal.

Not only Sunday golf was put under the ban in Holyoke yesterday, but Sunday baseball was forbidden also. For the first Sunday in ten seasons, the diamonds used by local amateur clubs were deserted.

Chief John H. Plunkett of the State Police declared that if there is to be a State-wide crusade against the playing of Sunday golf, baseball and other sports "it is up to the police to enforce the law and not wink at it." The Lord's Day League is taking a leading part in the move against Sunday sport.

A YOUNG LAD'S PROFIT IN PIGS

India"n Boy Builds Up a Big Herd From a Small Start.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—In July, 1917, Levi Young, then a fifteen-year-old boy, obtained a pure-bred Duroc in the distribution of pigs by a Terre Haute Trust Company. Levi was a charter member of the first Pig Club started in Vigo Co.

From this little start, a hog weighing only 60 pounds, Levi has built up a herd of pure-bred animals which now number thirty, including a boar to head the herd and five sows, which farrowed last spring.

"I wouldn't trade my bunch for a farm in Texas," said the youthful hog breeder. "At least, it would take over $1,000 to buy them now."

Hog men who have seen Levi's animals declare that $1,000 is a decidedly conservative estimate in placing their value. Thus, he has earned more than $500 a year while attending high school.

The boy expects to pay his own way through high school and college via the pig route. He will hold his first sale next fall and also will consign one or two animals to the Junior Live Stock Breeders' Association sale which will be arranged soon.

LAD'S REMARKABLE ESCAPE FROM DEATH

GUELPH, July 24.—A Guelph lad had a remarkably narrow escape from death here. On Delhi street a live wire was down, and as it lay there Kenneth Croft, who lives on King street, took hold of it with both hands. He instantly fell back and the wire was removed only after some difficulty. It was thought young Croft was dead, and he was removed into a house, but he showed signs of life and was taken to the General hospital, where he was finally brought around. A strange thing in connection with the incident was that his hands were not even burned.

LIGHT WAVES.

Some Too Tiny to Be Seen, Yet Science Can Measure Them.

The very smallest thing on earth which has been accurately measured is a light wave.

Light waves, of course, are of different lengths. In the spectrum the red waves are longest, orange next, yellow next, and so on to the violet, which are shortest of the visible waves. So if we were to give the measurement of the very smallest thing we would have to take one of the light waves in the violet end of the spectrum or, better still, one of the waves of the ultraviolet portion which is invisible.

The shortest of these that has been determined is 120 millionths of a millimetre. Changing this to fractions of an inch, we can comprehend the smallness of the wave. If 5,000 of them were placed one on top of the other these would be more than 200,000 of them in a line one inch long. The negative capacity which is a constituent part of the atom is known to be smaller than this, but its exact size has not been determined.

That these light waves can be measured in this is the fact that as light waves are refracted it is only a matter of determining the angle of refraction and by triangulation finding the length.

MARK TWAIN'S LAST DAYS.

"Sorry, but I Can't Hurry This Dying Business," He Told a Friend.

Mark Twain's last days, it will be remembered, were spent in Bermuda, at the home of Vice Consul Allen, where he had gone following the shock of his daughter Jean's death. The great humorist, suffering from heart attacks which began to recur with increasing frequency, knew that he was a dying man. Yet his whimsical humor never failed him. His biographer, Albert Bigelow Paine, writing in St. Nicholas, recalls how Mr. Clemens at this time referred to the hypodermic injection, which had become necessary to him, as "hypnotic injunctions."

"As long as I remember anything," writes Mr. Paine in describing the trip from Bermuda, "I shall remember the forty-eight hours of that homeward voyage. He was comfortable at first, and then we ran into the humid, oppressive air of the gulf stream, and he could not breathe. It seemed to me that the end might come at any moment, and this thought was in his own mind, but he had no dread, and his sense of humor did not fail. Once, when the ship rolled and his hat fell from the hook and made the circuit of the cabin floor, he said, 'The ship is passing the hat.'

"I had been instructed in the use of the hypodermic needle and from time to time gave him the 'hypnotic injunction,' as he called it. But it did not afford him entire relief. He could remain in any position but a little while. Yet he never complained and thought only of the trouble he might be making. Once he said:

"'I am sorry for you, Paine, but I can't help it—I can't hurry this dying business.'

"And a little later:

"'Oh, it's such a mystery, and it takes so long!'"

EVOLUTION OF A SENATOR.

His Career Briefly Sketched From Baby Holding to Congress.

Prior to election a future United States senator is meek and lowly. He is not averse to holding babies or four aces, as the environment may demand, while campaigning for votes. One may safely say that he wears his clothes and a fresh collar and begins to practice a dignified stride for future use on Pennsylvania avenue. Before and perhaps he has lost their glittering possibilities no longer does he tolerate familiarity; he is as patronizing as a reagent who supplies wampum for the hour and then eats them before his invited guests arrive.

Seated in a niche of the hall of congress the new senator feels as though he should peer through a microscope to make sure he is there, but confidential letters sent to the editor of the Jumpoff Crossroads tell how he is preparing a bill advocating the irrigation of Sagebrush valley; also how he is worked to death by other senators asking favors of him. As a school for fiction writers the United States senate has all other correspondence schools lashed to the mast.

Many senators fail to survive just reward at the conclusion of their maiden voyage through the troubled congressional waters probably because the log is so strictly enforced against flattery.—Harper's Weekly.

FREAK TREES.

Heavy Snowstorms Often Cause Bent and Twisted Trunks.

To the person who is not versed in forest lore the grotesquely bent tree trunks that are to be found in almost all woods are mystifying, and wonder is often aroused as to the cause.

Foresters will tell questioners that in the case of trees in mountainous country and other sections where the snowfall is heavy the weight of snow is responsible in most instances for the queer twists they assume.

When a tree is young the weight of snow that falls on its branches often bends the trunk over until it is flattened to the ground. Sometimes it is buried under six or eight feet of snow and held in that position so long that when warm weather comes the tree fails to spring back into its normal position.

The summer sun causes the tip of the young tree to turn upward, and if it manages to withstand the weight of the snow of the next winter that portion of the tree will, as a general rule, continue to grow in a normal way. "Hairpin" bends and other odd shapes result.

A curious tree stands on the top of Tunnel hill, Johnstown, Pa., about four miles from town. It is a sugar maple about 100 years old, which has prolonged its own life by grafting a branch into a much younger tree.—Popular Science Monthly.

VAMPIRE BATS OF PERU.

These Bloodsucking Animals Have Bulldog Heads.

On the morning after our arrival at San Miguel bridge (Peru) the pack mules nearly all showed blood blotches on their withers and backs, where they had been attacked during the night by vampire bats which had fed on their blood. This bat, Desmodus rotundus is plentifully distributed throughout Peru in altitudes below 10,000 feet.

It is one of the most highly specialized species of existing bats. The lower jaw is decidedly undershot, and the head, with its short cropped ears and broad muzzle, has a strikingly bulldog appearance. The legs are well developed and rather heavy, enabling the animal to move fairly rapidly on the ground, in which situation it is by no means the shuffling, helpless creature like many other bats. If molested when thrown to the ground it will turn and bite savagely.

The teeth are a highly modified cutting apparatus for making incisions in the skins of mammals and birds.

In habits they are sociable and are commonly found living in caves or tunnels, suspended from the ceiling in clusters often of immense size.—National Geographic Magazine.

LEAVE US THE STARS.

(To Mr. Marconi.)

Leave us the stars—
This world hath noise enough,
Without the roar of Mars.
Rob not the holy spaces of their calm
Bring us no idle gossip of the spheres;
Nor desecrate the psalm
That, on still nights, into our burdened ears
Pours its mysterious balm.

Soon shall the airship blot the rising moon
With vulgar flight across the evening sky,
In vain shall tortured ear and tortured eye
Flee from pursuit of each last silly tune,
And each new fashion of deformity;
In vain seek sanctuary
On dawn-kissed peaks of unascended snows,
Or in some isle the sea
Hath kept a secret from eternity.
Hid in her bosom like a lover's rose.

Leave us the stars! O wizard, let them be.

—Richard Le Gallienne.

MAY STOP SUNDAY GOLF

Massachus"tts Enthusiasts Force Issue on Sabbath Law.

BOSTON, July 24 — It is possible that on every golf links in the State Sunday playing will be forbidden by State police authorities in the near future.

This state of affairs will be brought about by the indignant members of two Holyoke golf clubs who were forbidden to play yesterday by members of the State police, following complaint by the Rev. Martin D. Kneeland of Winchester, President of the Lord's Day League.

Holyoke golfers are determined to complain to State police authorities that golf is being played on Sunday in other cities and towns of Massachussetts, and they will present evidence to substantiate their complaints. The motive of the Holyoke golfers in tieing up Sunday playing throughout the State is to force action on the Sunday golf issue and compel the Legislature to make such playing legal.

Not only Sunday golf was put under the ban in Holyoke yesterday, but Sunday baseball was forbidden also. For the first Sunday in ten seasons, the diamonds used by local amateur clubs were deserted.

Chief John H. Plunkett of the State Police declared that if there is to be a State-wide crusade against the playing of Sunday golf, baseball and other sports "it is up to the police to enforce the law and not wink at it." The Lord's Day League is taking a leading part in the move against Sunday sport.

ANOTHER PROTEST

The Windsor and District Referendum Committee is the latest body to protest agains tthe rumored intention of the Government to hold the Provincial Elections on the same day as the Prohibition Referendum. The Committee points out in a telegram of protest to Sir William Hearst that such a course means the injection of politics into the prohibition issue. This is so undoubtedly true that there can be no evasion of the question and if the Ontario oGvernment finally anounces that the election will be held simultaneously with the referendum, there will be no doubt in anybody's mind that the Government is determined to sacrifice principle for expediency, and that tre old game of part ypolitics is considered of more importance than the settling of a vital question like the prohibition issue. Sir William Hearst should not keep the Province in suspense. If there is to be an election and the hurried activities of Conservative organization throughout the Province point that way, the Premier is to say so.

In the meantime it cannot be too often or too strongly urged upon the Liberal voters to see that their names get on the lists. The enumerators are now at work—make sure that your name is enrolled.

GET THEM HOME

The declaration of Major C. W. Gordon (Ralph Connor), on his return from overseas, that the Canadian soldiers should be brought back from England as speedily as possible, should not go unnoticed by the authorities at Ottawa. The truth of the matter seems to be that the soldiers, wearied of many months of waiting and deadly home-sick, have become involved in a series of riots that is injuring the reputation of the Canadian corps. "The frequent recurring riots in the Canadian corps are making an unpleasant impression and the sooner the Canadian soldier is brought back home the better for the reputation of the Canadian soldier and for the country," says the well-known preacher-novelist-soldier. The services rendered by the Canadians in the war are being forgotten in the stories of the excesses in the camps, and Ralph Connor is undoubtedly right when he says that every possible means should be adopted to bring the men home at the earliest moment and that money should not count at all in the matter. "The trouble is they want to get home," says Major Gordon. That desire is understood. It is nearly nine months since the armistice was signed and those who are still in England, many of them because of stupid blunders over their papers, for which they themselves are not responsible, are naturally home-sick. Are the military authorities using every effort to speed up the repatriation of these men?

THE COUNCIL'S PROBLEM.

The sewage disposal problem, with its threatening law suits and other unpleasant things, looms up so menacingly before the Council at the present time that the proposal to purchase the street railway system and gas plant from the Hydro-Electric Commission is not likely to be entertained. There is no pressing need of the city purchasing these utilities from the Hydro-Electric just now. That body is no doubt anxious to get them off its hands, but in view of the necessity of proceeding as soon as possible with the installation of a new sewage disposal plant the street railway purchase can wait at least long enough for a proper investigation into the matter. An argument in favour of the immediate buying of the railways is that only in this way can the desired extensions and improvements be secured. Improvements in the service would be appreciated, but can be done without just now, for after all the service provided here compares favourably with that given by street railways in other cities of about Peterborough's size. Those who have experienced the service of the Kingston street cars for instance, know that the local system is metropolitan in comparison.

There are other matters that require more immediate attention, and not the least of these is the question of a fuel supply for next winter. There is no excuse needed for repeating the warning that there will be suffering in Peterborough next winter because of lack of fuel, if the civic authorities cannot hit upon some plan by which the working classes can secure a supply of coal. There seems no reason to doubt that there will be a scarcity. The output at the mines is steadily dropping, thousands of the miners who are of alien birth are leaving the United States for their native countries and it has been found impossible to get men to take their places. Canada cannot, therefore, depend upon securing a normal supply for the coming winter, and as government fuel control on both sides of the line has been abolished, the distribution will necessarily be of an uneven nature. Some cities may get all they need; others may fall far below their proper share. The people are urged to order and purchase their coal now. The wealthier citizens will undoubtedly do so, but what of the others? What of the returned soldier with his gratuity expended and positions hard to find? What of the workman who has been unemployed for months? They are not in a position to buy their winter's supply of coal now. What will their situation be next winter if there is not enough fuel to go around? These questions should be considered by the Council and the situation should be investigated. The matter should not be left until the winter.

POLITICAL VALUE OF ALIENS

The July number of the Veteran devotes an editorial to the failure of the Government to get rid of undesirable aliens in Canada. It is claimed that the Great War Veterans' Association warned the Government, over fifteen months ago, of the consequences of allowing undesirable aliens to stay in this country.

The Dominion executive of the G. W.V.A. prepared a memorial on the alien question a few weeks ago, and presented it to Sir Robert Borden. It included the following recommendation:

"That immediate steps be taken under existent legislation to establish tribunals in the principal centres of all provinces before which aliens may be required to establish proof of loyalty to Canadian institutions; that the Great War Veterans' Association be permitted representation on all such tribunals; that the expense of prosecution be borne by the Government; and that the internment and early deportation of those found undesirable be effected.

But the organized returned men can make up their minds that as long as there are possibilities of making political capital for the Government, by using the alien question as a political football, there will be no straightforward action either to deport aliens who decline to accept Canadian citizenship, or to cease penalizing citizens of alien origin who are loyal to Canadian institutions.

Even while the House sat in the session lately ended, Hutterite colonies were being brought into Canada with the sanction of the department of immigration, to settle on land formerly owned, it is alleged, by one of the ministers in the present cabinet, and transferred to certain political associates closely allied with the Government. The Government showed how little they are in earnest about making Canada an English-speaking man's country, when they were willing to allow colonies of German-speaking settlers thus to take up land.

But, during the same session, the minister of immigration, Mr. J. A. Calder, had an amendment to the Immigration Act passed — through House of Commons and Senate, and signed by the Governor-General, in the record time of forty-five minutes —making British-born citizens of Canada liable to deportation. The Government is not quite ready, just yet, to settle the undesirable alien question; but, in the meanwhile, under Mr. Calder's Immigration Act, the troublesome British-born can be deported, though no such action can be taken against naturalized citizens of alien origin—German-born, for instance.

Of course, before the next general election, it is possible that the Government may evolve something new in the form of an alien plank for political purposes. Mr. Calder's reputation as an electioneering staff officer would be worth little to the Unionist party, especially with such an associate as Mr. Meighen to help, unless a vote-catching cry could be worked up over the alien question. Something to appeal to the returned soldier, is, of course, the Government's first consideration. . . . when votes are required. Then, it would have double political value, if it could be used to promote political antagonism between the organized returned men and organized labor. But Messrs. Calder, Meighen, and Company must step cautiously; for they cannot afford to offend influential political patrons who desire an abundant supply of cheap alien labor in Canada, as a reserve of unemployed to keep down wages.

Let the Veteran watch patiently, however, and see if the Government doesn't work up a tremendous furor about the aliens in time for next general election.—Ottawa Citizen.

PETERBORO COUNTY GOOD ROADS?

REEVE GRIFFITH REPLIES BUT FAILS TO EXPLAIN MYSTERIOUS ACTION AT PETERBORO, SAYS HAVELOCK STANDARD.

To the Editor,

In the last couple of issues of your paper I saw letters calling Reeve Griffith to task for not signing up in the Good Road system. With regard to the letter put in by yourself I feel quite sure that it is not the welfare of the township ratepayers that you have at heart, but the axe that you have to grind is with the Reeve. Then on the other hand, I think as you are paying no taxes in our township, and as Clerk of our neighboring village, that it is not very becoming of you to be always slamming at the Reeve of the township. You don't find me, through the columns of any newspaper, cutting and slashing at the municipal officers of Havelock. They are doing the best they can under their present circumstances, and I don't think that it would be very becoming of me or any other non resident not paying taxes into the village treasury, to be always finding fault with the work of the village reeve. I find that I have all I can do to mind my own affairs and leave others alone.

Now with regard to the letter that appeared in the last issue of your paper, signed "Belmont Ratepayer." He may be a ratepayer, but it is doubtful if he is a resident ratepayer, but nevertheless I might here state that if the above mentioned ratepayer had the interest of the people of Belmont at heart and was trying to give them some beneficial information, that he would not be ashamed to sign his name and let the people know who he is, but maybe it is the same with this as it is with some of his actions, he is ashamed of them and don't like his name to be known. If this Ratepayer will be manly and not play the snake in the grass and sign his name to his letters, I will endeavor to reply to them through the columns of your paper and explain to him or any other resident ratepayer the reason why I took the stand I did at the present time in connection with the Municipal Good Roads System. As yet we have no County Road System in our county. I will also reply in a gentlemanly manner and I will do no slamming at any one, as I like good keen criticism, especially if it is for the interest and welfare of our township and citizens, but I like fair play, and not to be wrongfully criticized merely and solely for the purpose of injuring my reputation, which the letter above referred to, would lead anyone to believe.

W. E. GRIFFITH
Reeve of Belmont & Methuen

Ed. Note.—Reeve Griffith's remarks about our comments on his recent action in turning down the Good Roads System at the special meeting of the county council, are utterly irrelevant to the subject in question. The Standard made statements that were absolutely true and that cannot me contradicted by Reeve Griffith or any other man in regard to the action taken by himself and council in regard to adopting the Good Roads System, and when he failed to enter the system with the other townships as per the resolution of his council passed at his own request, we naturally wondered why, and still wonder, and more than that, the ratepayers of Belmont and Methuen are also wondering. Surely Reeve Griffith has more sense than not to know that they have a right to an immediate explanation of his action in the above letter that it is not the welfare of the ratepayers of Belmont that we have at heart, but are slamming the Reeve, and that it is no business of ours anyway because we are not a ratepayer, is utter bosh and mere idle "playing to the gallery." No one knows better than Reeve Griffith that is IS our business as editor of the Standard and as having the interest of the community or district at heart, to advocate the interests of all concerned. The entry of Belmont into the Good Roads system affects the people of Havelock and all other surrounding municipalities and effects them vitally, as Reeve Griffith should know and does know. There wasn't a personal note or reference in any of our comments in this matter that "slammed" Reeve Griffith, and it is useless for him to pretend that there was or that we were trying to grind an axe with him personally, and his reference to us as Clerk of Havelock and for that reason it is not "becoming" of us to criticize him, is utterly beside the mark and totally uncalled for. When the Editor of the Standard wants to "grind an axe" with Reeve Griffith he will know without a shadow of a doubt that such is the case, and that there will be no subterfuge about it. Reeve Griffith should remember that he is representing the people of his township and in his official and public position, that he is accountable to these people and to the public for his actions in that capacity; that he is the servant of the people and not the master; and that the Standard represents the people of Belmont and Methuen as well as the people of Havelock, and that whatever is their public or municipal business, is the Standard's business and is decidedly a perfectly fair and legitimate topic of comment or criticism, and last but not least that he owes his masters—the ratepayers of Belmont and Methuen—a public explanation of the reason he refused to go into the Good Roads System AFTER he went to ouglinrsbusiahrdlu shrdlu shrdluhlshr Peterboro with the intention of voting for it. We agree with Reeve Griffith that "Ratepayer" should have signed his name. Every letter "To the Editor" should be signed by the writer's name, thereby carrying far more weight than otherwise.

Trent River Road a Menace to Life and Limbs

Dear Sir:—

I have read with particular interest the letter written by one who signs himself "A Belmont Ratepayer" and with your kind permission, I would like to express my sentiments in regard to the good roads question. I think I can say without contradiction that the Roads from Havelock to Trent Bridge is nothing better than a plowed field and a bad one at that. The person or persons responsible for such disgusting conditions are a grievous menace to Public Safety; are taking upon themselves a grave responsibility in keeping it in such a disgraceful state.

I understand that the council of Belmont voted unanimously for good roads project, and sen tthe Reeve to Peterboro with full authority and instructions to act in accordance. Now comes the farce of the play. The Reeve deliberately ignors the council and voting contrary to motion, shows distinctly that no man but he shall dominate and dictate to the people of Belmont.

The list of accidents continue on the increase, and yesterday another car struck a shell hole and turned completely upside-down in the ditch, pinning one of the occupants underneath the car. I finish my letter with one question which I address to the Reeve of Belmont, namely: "Do you value human life cheaper than a few paltry dollars?"

Yours truly,
R. S. SCOTT.

GRIM DRAMA IN NEW YORK SLUMS

NEW YORK, July 24.—Denizens of New York's slums stood in doorways and gazed across the street through a pelting rain at an old yellow brick building yesterday. A policeman guarded a side door.

Occasionally a man or a woman flitted through the rain and ducked through an entrance. Sometimes their clothing was good; more often it was poor.

Inside the building figures darted through doors marked "men" or "women." They were registering as drug addicts. Federal and State laws have drawn so tight about them they are forced to obtain permits from physicians. And even then they must gradually cut their dose so that a cure may result.

Yesterday 1,102 addicts passed the policeman and registered. Doors were open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. The predominating classes were laborers and clerks, mostly young. None seemed ashamed.

A large woman, dressed in a cheap blue mounted the steps today. She wanted registration. A man, evidently her son, was with her. He waited for her in the rain.

A once pretty girl of 20 sat at a table. She had been taking heroin for four years, she said. She made her first attempt through curiosity when an older girl friend offered her some.

A matron in the theatre said she had begun through going to drug-stores after "dope" for actresses. They offered her some "for fun." The fun is over now; she is in an addict.

COULD MAKE THE BIBLE CLEARER, FORD THINKS

Motor Car Midas Continues His Display of Wisdom on Witness Stand.

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., July 24 — Henry Ford on the stand in his million-dollar libel suit against the Chicago Tribune said he had always thought the Bible could be rewritten into clearer language.

"Who wrote this?" asked Attorney Stevenson, reading: "'All nations of Europe will be filed white. Europe will appeal to succor. Why allow this filching from our Treasury in the name of preparedness?'"

"Does that encourage enlistment?"

Mr. Brownell (Ford Motor Co. advertising manager) wrote that," Ford said.

"But he wrote what you suggested. Were you going to have him rewrite the Bible?"

"I always thought the Bible could be rewritten into clearer language."

This was preceded by questioning from Stevenson regarding the expedition of the Oscar II. Ford said he only financed the party—had nothing to do with the literature.

Excerpts from writings of Abraham Lincoln were read: "He who dissuaded the soldier from volunteering, harmed the union cause, as he who kills a soldier in battle."

"Do you believe that is so?" Ford was asked.

"Yes, when the country is at war."

"What is your understanding of the Monroe Doctrine?"

"The big brother act."

Stevenson spent some time explaining the Monroe Doctrine.

"Mr. Ford," said the attorney, "you have created here an impression that you cannot read by your refusals to read exhibits I hand you. Do you wish that impression to stand?"

"I'm not a fast reader, and I have a touch of hay fever," Ford answered.

"Did you say back in 1916 that in case of an invasion you would not make a dollar's worth of munitions?"

"I do not remember that statement."

MR. FREDERICK'S OBJECT IN CALLING UPON BARBARA.

CHAPTER XXIV.

I had somewhere heard that one of the great joys of married life lay in its suprises. To be able to say and do things at a moment's notice instead of arranging and calculating everything in advance.

I do not agree.

The surprises of my married life have not been joys— not many of them. Things done at a moment's notice have not turned out as satisfactorily as they might. No. I do not believe I like surprises of any kind.

I thought of Mr. Frederick as I prepared for bed. He was awfully plain looking, there was no denying that. Yet his face was calculated to inspire confidence. Yet neither his appearance or his manners could have been very much use in making him he very wealthy man he had become. That he was ruggedly honest, one felt positive. I wondered idly what it was that he wanted to see me about.

But after I had switched off the lights and had lain down, I forgot that any such person as Mr. Frederick existed. My thoughts veered to Neil, and the business which had taken him to Boston. That business about which he was so secretive. Then, all suddenly, Blanche Orton popped into my mind. On the day after my little dinner party I had decided to dismiss all jealously of her as futile. But just as a person who thinks about love—considers the possibility of being in love—ends by loving, so a person who ponders on whether or not he has cause for jealously ends by becoming jealous.

So I once more suffered the pain of jealously of Blanche Orton. Once more I recalled every word of praise Neil had ever spoken of her. I writhed as I remembered what he had said about her being able to influence business men where I could not. I felt like writing Neil to come home at once, that I was jealous; and he must come and tell me how he loved me, and make me forget that Blanche Orton existed.

Strangely, however, my last waking thought was of Mr. Frederick, and a sleepy wonder regarding what he wanted.

The next day was very unpleasant so I busied myself about the apartment, doing little odd jobs that always wait for a rainy day to be done—rather, for a housewife to have the grit to attack.

All the morning I kept thinking of Mr. Frederick, wondering what he had to tell me. He came promptly at three o'clock. At first he seemed a bit awkward ,and I began to think he was just making a social call. But there had been something in his manner the night before which precluded that. He had an object. I would try to put him at ease, then he would tell me what it was. So I chatted about the play we had seen and other things until suddenly he stopped me:

"I have come here this afternoon to say something, and, being a blunt man, I am going to say it."

"Yes, Mr. Frederick, I knew you had some purpose in calling."

He looked at me keenly, and I thought I detected a gleam of admiration in his gray eyes. But But if it was there ,it was already gone when he began to speak.

"Your husband is a young man—compared to me. He is a very smart young man—too smart, I am afraid. I think you have great influence with him; you must have. You are a sensible, level-headed woman. Hold him back. He wants to make money too fast."

But I do not urge him to make money!"

"No—but you are extravagant. You live, you dress, you entertain as I wouldn't feel I could afford to do; yet I'll gamble I am worth ten times as much as Forbes —your husband. I am interested in him, and—in you. There aren't enough steel sharp young men floating around for him to make a bungle of his business life just because he is in a hurry to fill his basket with golden eggs."

"But, Mr. Frederick—I don't understand. I have told him he would make himself ill, but he only laughs at me. I never have urged him to extend his business to give me luxuries, even tho I have accepted them gladly. I am afraid I don't understand—why"—

"No wonder you don't. But you will when I tell you that no young man can make money as fast as he does, in the way he makes it and do it honestly. Someone is bound to suffer. Forgive me, but I had to tell you so you could make him call a halt before it is too late. Already he is looked upon a bit suspiciously by conservative business men."

To be continued.

Tolstoy's Intensity.

Everything in Tolstoy's character, says a Russian writer, attains titanic proportions. "As a drinker he absorbed fantastic quantities of liquor. As a gambler he terrified his partners by the boldness of his play. As a soldier he advanced gayly to bastion four, the bastion of death at Sevastopol, and there he made dying men laugh at his witty sayings. He surpassed every one by his prodigious activity in sport as well as in literature."

Dogwood Dye.

Dogwood was the source of the famous "Indian red" with which the vain warriors dyed their eagle feathers and buckskin clothes. They procured the dye from the roots of the tree. This is probably the most brilliant dye to be procured from American trees.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain
How to Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acids and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

Not a Swimmer.

The orderly officer was on his usual round. "Any complaints?" His voice sounded above the din of knives and forks.

"Yes, sir," answered a healthy looking representative of the Tommy Atkins tribe. "This 'ere blinking joint's raw!"

"Look here, my man," said the officer, after due examination, which proved this complaint to be justified. "Do you know that Capt. Webb trained on raw beef in order to swim the channel?"

"Oh," said Tommy Atkins, "I thought as 'ow we was goin' across in boats!"

GARRICK'S MOBILE FACE.

Its Varying Expressions Put Gainsborough in a Fit of Temper.

At an entertainment at which Gainsborough and the famous actor David Garrick were present an ardent admirer of the great artist declared, according to "Bibliothek der Unterhaltung und des Wissens," that Gainsborough had never failed to take a person's likeness in a portrait, no matter how difficult the subject might be. Garrick thereupon asserted that Gainsborough could not paint his likeness and begged to be allowed to sit for his portrait. Gainsborough, pleased at the commission and expecting to find it very interesting to paint the actor's expressive countenance, gladly consented. Garrick then made a secret wager with the artist's friends that he could prove to them that there was one face at least that Gainsborough could not paint.

The results of the first sitting were very satisfactory to the complacent artist. At the second sitting, however, Gainsborough was made uncomfortable and nervous at finding it necessary to make several alterations in his work. At the third sitting his displeasure became extreme when, on comparing the half completed work with Garrick's face, he saw that the two bore so little resemblance to each other that the portrait had almost to be repainted. When Garrick appeared for the fourth time, with the most innocent expression imaginable, and begged the painter to begin work Gainsborough, thoroughly angry, broke out:

"I've no use for you! You can ape thousands of faces and never have one of your own!"

Smiling, Garrick left the studio to announce to the artist's friends that he had won the wager.

Hunting the Elusive Spark.

To find a dead spark plug I take an ordinary hammer and hold the wooden handle in my hand, says James Atcherson in the Farm and Home. Laying the face on the cylinder head, I bring the claws slowly toward the head of the plug. If the plug is alive the spark will leap across when the right gap is reached. If no spark is made the plug is dead. This method does away with the danger of receiving a shock, as you are holding the wooden handle.

Painter and Tavern Keeper.

Mariotto Albertinelli, who lived in the fourteenth century, was a painter who spent much time in endeavoring to produce certain mixtures in oil. He was not very successful and objected so much to the criticism he received that he gave up painting and kept a tavern, but his name as a painter still lives, while his tavern keeping record has passed away.

Some Poets Laureate.

Wordsworth, who succeeded Southey as laureate, held the unique honor of being the only poet to the crown who never wrote an ode in his official capacity. He was also the most elderly poet to receive such an appointment. Tennyson was the youngest, having been appointed in his thirtieth year. Tate, a native of Dublin, was the only laureate not born in England.

METHODS OF EDUCATION.

A Plea For Fewer Studies and Longer Time Devoted to Them.

The defect of American education is diffuseness. The children are bothered and confused by being dragged across the surfaces of too many studies in a day. All of our schools, both public and private, and all our universities and colleges suffer from this same national vice, which is a vice in the American character, a weakness in our temperament. It ought to be met and corrected in every field of life.

What we need is depth. Depth can be imparted through the teaching of anything. It can be imparted through Latin grammar, through handwriting, through carpenter work, through arithmetic or history. The one element required is time. Depth cannot be imparted quickly or in many subjects at once. Leisure is necessary—a slowing down, a taking of things, not easily, but slowly, determinedly, patiently, as if there were plenty of time and nothing else counted.

This is the road to rapid and brilliant work, and there is no other. The smallest children should be set on this road and guided and governed and helped and slaved over by the best of your masters. One subject understood means the world mastered. My friend Frederick Mather of Yale puts the thing as follows:

"If one of our small colleges should, after the manner of the English colleges, devote itself to a few old fashioned subjects, such as Latin and Greek, and some kind of history and philosophy, and should really teach these things, its graduates would soon be so famous and so eminent that banks and railroads would be clamoring for them at the college doors."

The epigram summarizes the present needs in American education.—John J. Chapman in Atlantic Monthly.

Imprisoned by Her Tongue.

In translating the Bible for the Zulus and for some other aboriginal peoples it is necessary to have two versions, one for the women and one for the men. The Zulu law compels a married woman to cut herself off from her father-in-law and all her husband's male relations. She is not allowed to pronounce their names even mentally. As a result, there is a distinct dialect among Zulu women.

Earthquake Regions.

The most shaken countries of the world are Italy, Japan, the Pacific slope of South America, Java, Sicily and Asia Minor. The lands most free from earthquakes are Russia, Canada, Scandinavia and Africa. The United States and Australia are to a large extent unshaken by earthquakes save on the Pacific (in the United States) and in a few localities in the inland continent.

The Difficulty.

"My wife's mad with me and has gone on a hunger strike."

"Then let her go hungry till she comes to her senses. Why should you worry?"

"Because I'm the one that's going hungry."

CAKES AND BUNS WENT UP TO-DAY

CONFECTIONERS TAKE STEPS TO MEET THE WAGE INCREASE.

Confectionery of all kinds took a long-looked for advance to-day, and in the bake shops, cakes, buns and pastry of all kinds were raised on a schedule of from 3 to 5 cents a dozen. The store owners attribute the raise in price to the advance in both materials and wages. The former have been raised, especially butter and all shortening abnormally the past few weeks, and the confectioners have long anticipated the making of to-day's raise to compete with the high cost of material. Wages have advanced at least $4 to $6 a week for all hands in the bake shops and many of the bakers are receiving wages as high as $30.

Candy Goes Up.

Candy by the box has advanced rapidly lately in price and $1.00 boxes are quoted at $1.25 at present. The local manufacturers have not made any raise as yet in their own candy, but admitted that they certainly expect to presently. The latter raise is accounted for by the high cost of labour.

TO CLOSE UP AN ESTATE

J. T. O'Connell and Co., are instructed to sell house No. 195 Park street, with a large garden.

The property consists of a red brick house with plans laid out to be converted into a double house, each half commanding $16 or $18 per month rent.

This is a very desirable location and the property must be sold at a very low price.

FARM—110 acres of choice land, 10 miles from the city, with a frame house and bank barn. Land is fenced in twelve fields; all under cultivation. Possession may be had this fall. The owner would exchange for city property.

This is a good chance for anyone wishing to start farming. For further particulars and inspection, apply to

J. T. O'CONNELL & CO.,
136 Hunter St. W.,

MR. F. W. MILLER WAS INJURED BY A FALL

Mr. F. W. Miller, the city's relief and truant officer, was back at his office to-day for the first time since Tuesday, when he was severely shaken by a heavy fall down the steps leading to his office in the City Hall. His left side and shoulder were severely bruised, and although he has not entirely recovered from the effects of the fall, he returned to work to-day.

THREE DIE OF HEART FAILURE.

BELLEVILLE, July 24. — John Shaw, a merchant of Stirling, dropped dead at Oak Hill Pond as he was about to engage in fishing. He was a prominent member of the Masonic and Oddfellows' societies.

Thomas B. Wilson, timekeeper at the Canada Cement Co.'s plant at Point Anne, died suddenly this morning; as did also Mrs. John M. Blair, of Madoc Township.

All three were victims of heart failure.

SOLDIER'S WRIT TO RECOVER MONEY AND CAR FROM FIANCEE

TIMOTHY P. BOLLER ENTERS AN ACTION AGAINST EDITH REDMOND AND ALBERT VASS.

Timothy P. Boller, a returned soldier undergong treatment at the Military Convalescent Hospital in Toronto, has issued a writ for $855.00, and costs, against Mrs. Edith Redmond of Peterborough, and Mr. Albert Vass, of North Monaghan.

Boller, in his statement, alleges that in the summer of 1918 Edith Redmond became engaged to him and promised to marry him, but that she agreed to a postponement of the wedding until he returned from the war.

He also states that Edith Redmond fraudulently conspired with the defendant, Albert Vass, to deceive him and to obtain from him his money and possessions, by the defendant, Edith Redmond, becoming engaged to marry the plaintiff, and after obtaining the money it was agreed between the defendants that the defendant, Edith Redmond, should refuse to marry the plaintiff.

Edith Redmond was, at the time of the contract, to marry the plaintiff, and still is, a married woman, it is alleged.

Boller claims that Albert Vass well knew that Edith Redmond was a married woman, and could not enter into a marriage with the plaintiff, but the plaintiff did not know that the defendant, Edith Redmond, was a married woman and could not enter into a marriage with him, and relying upon her statements that she would marry him, and that she was a single woman, before leaving for overseas he delivered to her a bill of sale of a Ford car valued at $450.00, $225.00 from his account in the bank, and gave an assignment of his soldier's pay to the defendant, Edith Redmond, upon which she has collected $180.00—making in all that the defendant, Edith Redmond, has received from the plaintiff, $855.00.

Boller was a farm hand in North Monaghan before entering military service.

The plaintiff states that the defendants divided the money obtained from him and that Albert Vass is now in possession of his automobile. Continuing he says that he demanded his money and automobile when he returned, and that Edith Redmond told him the money was safe in the Bank of Commerce. He agreed to release her from the engagement to marry her and she would thereupon return the money and the car. She failed to appear at the appointed place and has since repudiated the agreement and refused to pay the said moneys or deliver the car.

Boller concluded the writ issued by stating that he is now crippled and unable to work, and is suffering from the loss of an arm and from a general breakdown in health, and for that reason was unable to have the said bill of sale set aside. The writ was issued in the County Court.

"IN THE DAY'S NEWS"

The life-story of Sir Marcus Samuel, who has purchased from the Earl of Berkeley for the sum of $25,000,000 a parcel of the fashionable residential section of London known as Berkeley Square, furnishes one of the real romances of the business world. Sir Marcus, in his early days, kept a little shop in one of the poorer quarters of the British metropolis, where he made and sold for a shilling or two ornamental boxes made of shells from the sea-shore. Later, he invested his savings in oil, made money and started a company called the "Shell", thus identifying his big new venture with his original struggling business. Since those days he has accumulated a fortune of many millions and has been honored with a baronetcy. And all from selling shells from the sea-shore—mixed with an abundance of brains and energy.

DIPLOMATIC MOVE BY THE PRESIDENT

Woodrow Will Feel Sentiment of Country Before Submitting Defensive Treaty Before Senate.

(Canadian Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 25.— President Wilson does not now plan to present the defensive treaty with France to the Senate until after he returns from his tour of the country. This statement was made to-day at the White House.

NEW TIRE FACTORY.

OSHAWA, July 25.—Rumours are current that a $100,000 company has been formed here, headed by a well-known Oshawa business man, to manufacture automobile tires.

Details regarding the new organization have not been made public, but it is understood that operations will be started this fall. The company has a strong financial backing, and promises inviting returns to its shareholders.

DEMPSEY TACKLES JOHN BARLEYCORN

New York, July 25.—The Sun says: Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, has, according to a despatch to the Sun, from San Francisco, indulged in a bit of relaxation. Although Dempsey in his autobiography declared he never drank or smoked it is reported that he put in a boisterous night in the white light district of San Francisco last Friday, and that in the company of a party of former friends, he most thoroughly celebrated his triumph over Willard. It is charged that the champion eluded his argus eyed manager, Jack Kearns, and with a merry party visited all the palaces of Bacchus in the coast city.

If this was merely a temporary outbreak on the part of the title-holder, it soon will be forgotten. But if the new champion is under the impression he long can retain his pugilistic honors and keep steady company with J. Barleycorn he will do well to study the history of other noted champions who unsuccessfully attempted to combine athletics and conviviality.

RESUME SYSTEM OF BI-MONTHLY BONUS

Ottawa Government Likely to Acquiesce to Request of the Mail-carriers

Ottawa, July 25.—Consideration is being given by the Government this afternoon to the demands of the letter carriers to have their bonus payments made semi-monthly instead of monthly. Recently a change was made to the monthly payment system and this seems to have caused some dissatisfaction. It is confidently expected that the old system of payments will be resumed. A letter from Toronto letter carriers was only received Tuesday, and an answer will be sent at once.

ORIGIN OF THE NAMES OF WELL-KNOWN FLOWERS.

Fuchsias were so called after Leon-Fuchs. Dahlias were named from Andre Dahl, who brought them from Peru. The camellia was so called from a missionary named Kamel, who brought some magnificent specimens of the flower to France from Japan. He called it the Rose of Japan, but his friends changed it to camellia. Magnolias were named in honour of Professor Magnol de Monpellier, who first brought the beautiful trees to France from America and Asia. The Latin word for to wash is "lavare," and lavander received its name because the Romans put the flowers into the water used for washing to perfume their hands.

Gasoline production in the United States has increased from 35,000,000 to 70,000,000 barrels a year since 1914.

Voice Of The People

Dear Sir,—The Chautauqua series of entertainments recently held in Central Park for the education of the well-to-do multitude has resulted in a deficit of something like two hundred dollars. Strange thing that people nowadays want cheap entertainment at somebody else's expense. The well-to-do in Canada, unlike those in the Old Country, are quite willing to live at the expense of others. That is what is called colonial pride.

CITIZEN.

"HELP!"

Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I noticed in last night's "Voice of the People" that the little fire hall boys were in a great state because Vimy Troop received a little praise for helping to extinguish a small grass fire at South Beach. Now, as one of the troop I wish to state that we did all that was possible to extinguish the blaze, but we did not consider ourselves brave and we did not say we were, as the fire hall boys claimed, and if the fire hall kiddies think they put it out why we are satisfied.

Vimy Troop Leader.

LEGISLATIVE EFFECT.

LONDON, July 25.—It is impossible at present to give legislative effect to the government's trade policy, Premier Lloyd George said to-day. He suggested that trade restrictions expiring in September should therefore be extended.

OTTAWA STRIKE OF MACHINISTS FAILS

Return to 'Open Shop' With None of Demands Granted.

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, July 25.—The machinists' strike in this city, which has lasted eleven weeks, collapsed to-day when the strikers returned to work on the employers' terms. The men who went back gained none of the points raised and they return to "open shop."

DISAPPROVAL OF ROWELL'S LETTER

This journal heartily supported the candidature of Hon. N. W. Rowell, K. C., at the last Federal election and his course in Parliament since his election has been generally acceptable, we believe, to those who voted for him. This country owes him much for his stand and action in favor of prohibition and in helping forward reinforcements for overseas at a time when they were urgently needed. But we have heard nothing but regrets for and disapproval of the letter from him which appeared in the Toronto papers on Monday last. The spirit evinced toward his successor in the Provincial leadership and the widening of the cleavage in the Liberal ranks do no credit to Mr. Rowell. We are very sure that his friends and admirers all over the Dominion must feel keen regret over the contents of that unfortunate epistle—Bowmanville Statesman.

INTERNATIONAL LABOUR RULINGS

EIGHT-HOUR DAY

Conference Called in Accordance With Peace Treaty Terms.

WASHINGTON, July 25—Plans of the international labour conference, created by the peace treaty, when it convenes here for its first meeting next October, were outlined to-day by Dr. James T. Shotwell, American representative on the organizing committee of the conference.

This meeting he declared will be the first step taken in accordance with the peace treaty, on behalf of labor. Dr. Shotwell, who is head of the history division of the American Peace Commission, commented on these four major questions to be taken up by the conference:

1.—An eight hour day throughout the world. "In the treaty all powers have agreed to accept the principle so it can be applied by each nation and prepare a detailed treaty to make the obligations reciprocal."

2.—State help to remedy unemployment. "The Peace Treaty," he said, "provides that each nation provide remedial legislation with reference to unemployment. The conference in October will discuss definite laws."

Women in Industry.

3.—Women in industry. "This is to be taken up with reference to three separate problems. "Dr. Shotwell stated. "First, safeguarding the health of mothers obliged to work for their living. It is proposed to prohibit their work for a certain period before and after childbirth. To provide for a mother's maintenance during this period she is not permitted to work each nation will be required to create a maternity fund. The second will be the enforcement of prohibition of night work for women and third consideration of women in dangerous trades."

4.—Children in industry. "The main question involved here," he said, "is the prohibition of child labor up to fourteen years of age. There is a definite clause in the peace treaty stating that no country shall be asked or required as a result of any of these annual labor conferences to lessen any of the protection accorded to its workers by law.

The organizing committee, Dr. Shotwell stated, has cabled a long series of questions to each member of the League of Nations, about its existing and proposed laws on these matters. Answers are now arriving.

Four delegates from each nation of the League of Nations will be sent to the conference he said—two representing the government, one representing capital and the other representing labor. They may be accompanied by technical experts, who will not have a vote.

CACTUS IS VEGETABLE EQUIVALENT OF THE CAMEL.

In the hot desert regions of Arizona and Mexico the cactus stores in its thick leaves every drop of water or dew that it can get, so that there is always a supply, not for a day, but for a dry season. In reality the spines of the cactus are the remnants of its leaves, and the so-called leaves are the modified stalks. In the waterless regions where the cactus grows it has very little use for leaves that would only wither away from the heat, so it reduces them to a very effective weapon against all enemies, and then swells the stalks to make the kind of water-tank it can best use for its purposes. The best proof of the efficiency of its reasoning is in the fact that it exists where very little else can, except a few plants, which have similarly adapted themselves to circumstances.

LARGE CROWDS ATTEND THE POLACK TWENTY BIG SHOWS

THE DADDY OF ALL SWORD SWALLOWERS.

Polack Bros. Circus Side Show, which is exhibiting in this city, is considered equal to any large circus side show on the road to-day. Many of the entertainers are those that have entertained millions of people while under the Barnum and Bailey, Ringling Bros., or Hagenbeck and Wallace banners.

Gentleman "Joe' Cramer, P. T. Barnum ever employed, and in fact was one of the first freaks that Mr. Barnum ever employed, an din fact was one of those that helped the greatest of all showmen to finance the coming of "Jennie Lind" to America. Mr. Cramer has had an exceptional career, having crossed the great pond some fourteen times and has played in nearly every city, village and town in the United States.

The "daddy" of all sword swallowers, Delmo Fritz, is another old timer that was a member of the original P. T. Barnum aggregation. "Del" is still presenting his sword numbers as in days of old, swallowing all kinds of swords and bayonets as though digestible food. George Mulligan is the oldest tattoo artist in the United States. This does not mean that Mr. Mulligan was the first "needle" worker but he is the oldest living tattoo man. Mr. Mulligan like Cramer and Fritz, was associated with the greatest show on earth.

For variety the side show offers many unusual and interesting features, La Pearle, with her "pet" snakes, Memory L. Baker, a contortionist of worth, Population Charlie, a remarkable memory artist that informs one of the population of the various cities in Canada and the United States. Then Geo. McKniff shows the public just how easy it is to sit down to a meal of broken glass as a good square dinner, while the fire eater demonstrates how one can eat fire instead of drinking firewater during the cold winter months. Walter Levine, the clever magician, deceives the very eyes with his disappearing objects. As a whole the circus side show predominates as being one of the biggest attractions with the 20 big shows.

TRYING TO SUPPRESS THE REVOLUTION

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, July 25.—Despatches from Agram and Gruta report a serious military revolt in Crotia. The revolt is taking the form of a movement for the separation from Serbia and the formation of a republic. Violent combats occurred Tuesday and a large part of the garrison revolted. Thirty persons were killed and many wounded.

Troops are leaving their units, officers and subalterns are tearing off their insignia and the army is in a state of dissolution, advices say. Serbians are trying to suppress the revolution by the use of troops, both Serbian and Croation.

MAE MARSH DELIGHTFUL IN "THE BONDAGE OF BARBARA"

Mae Marsh cleverly combines whimsical comedy and gripping drama in her new Goldwyn Picture, "The Bondage of Barbara," which comes to the Grand Theatre beginning Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

She finds her happiest role as the "little mother" of a weak younger brother, for whose shortcomings she holds herself responsible. He is used by two individuals to gain their own ends. One is "Slick" Simmons, keeper of a questionable resort. The other is Jack Newton, son of Barbara's employer. Tony, the brother, is eager to escape his sister's care and seek his fortune in New York. Jack Newton fans this desire until the boy is willing to accept money from him on the promise that he (Tony) will leave town for good. The money Jack gets by robbing the safe in Barbara's office, taking enough to pay his debts as well.

Barbara suspects her brother, but says nothing that will fasten the guilt upon him. Instead, she silently takes the blame, and, while her employer cannot believe her a thief, he feels justified in turning her over to the authorities Her sentence to a reformatory cannot be prevented by her lawyer sweetheart. How these two solve the mystery and bring the guilty ones to justice constitutes most of the engrossing action.

Hereafter many a Mr. Newlywed will expect Mrs. to make doughnuts like the ones the S. A. made at the front.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

BONE DRYNESS IS KILLING CABARET AND OTHER JOY

Lots of Elbow Room, But That's Not What the Patrons Want.

NEW YORK, July 24. — It's goodbye to the chow-chow. Soon we will not be able to dance with the soup, laugh with the salad and watch a contortionist while we eat spaghetti. Because the cabaret is going away from us. Bone-dryness is killing it.

A tempered form of aridity has been in being since June 30. The drought has been modified by intermittently humid areas. Whisky is sometimes served in teacups, if the service is known to the waiter. Calls for sherry often meet with prompt response, although sherry is one of the most impish mockers known to man. A special ginger ale, in which the special part is mixed in the bottle before the bottle is brought on, has been known to produce excellent results. But oases are few and far between. Broadly speaking the town is dry.

The proprietors of cabarets approached the great thirst shaken by doubt. A few thought it might be possible to serve capers and food at a profit without the admixture of alcohol, but they are mostly convinced now of its impossibility. At Healey's Golden Glades the other night five depressed spectators watched a full chorus of lissome lassies do stunts on the ice. The ice was no colder than the audience. Yet the five were of the faithful who have beamed happily at the show throughout the season. At Churchill's one night, eight musicians played lively music for four couples. They had the floor to themselves. They were not even bumped by the fat man who strives to accomplish by tonnage what he is unable to do by agility. But they were not happy.

Lots of Elbow Room.

At Rector's one has elbow room, but it was not elbow room for which one went to Rector's. The Palais Royal announces that it will close up. The Moulin Rouge's management states that it may be kept open. The statement is made in that tone of tempered sorrow in which your broker states that Wild Oats common has just crashed another four points.

Mr. Dunstan of Jack's says that happiness has been handed the cranberry. The Beaux Arts has been closed for the summer. Reisenweber's is offering entertainment only in the Sophie Tucker room. Three bartenders are mauling the heated cocktails pleasantly in the McAlpin bar looking at each other. King Cole is frosty and commensionable to the gentlemanly servitors at the bar.

The truth, according to cabaret proprietors is that folks will not ingest enough food to make a floor show profitable. There is a distinct limit to the height to which prices can be raised. Restaurant patrons thought the limit had been reached some time ago. They did not worry so much when they could dull care and drive away apprehension by hoisting in a scuttleful every now and then; but there is slight exhilaration in Virginia ham plain. Once a merry party could while away an evening counting the birthmarks of the performers, but now cold doubt intervenes. There are muffled whispers of rubber moles and stanciled freckles.

Owners Just Hoping.

The cabaret owners are still whistling among the tombstones. They vaguely hope that something may happen — that the Anti Saloon leaguers will all drop dead or that there will be a popular uprising, or something — but none of them expects anything. As time goes on they intimate the cabarets will close one by one. People will continue to go to shows, they say, and they will continue to go to restaurants, but only drink made the siamesing of the twain possible.

Bon vivants intent upon eating green corn without disturbing the Oxford bows would—if frigidly sober—resent the irruption of a young person dressed like a Cupid and playing a violin. Ladies from our best home circles have in the past been known to think it a good joke when the young lady on the end tickled a fat husband on his third chin. Under prevailing conditions such an incident would furnish a topic for fireside discussion for the rest of the year.

Of course, the cabaret owners might abandon the theatre business and entice custom by purveying very good food. But that has not been the New York way. On the continent diners-out approach the menu in a good restaurant with something like awe. They select after consideration that is almost prayerful, a dinner that starts with hors d'oeuvres and finishes with cognac. When they finish they have had what the army calls a perfectly balanced ration. They enjoy a pleasant sense of repletion with no symptoms of apoplexy. The New York habit has been to order a large plate of something hot, washed down with something cold, and followed by something cold irrigated by something hot. Then the diner turns red and glows.

Food May Be Improved.

It may possibly be that the departure of the cabaret will be followed in the better New York restaurants by the perfect service of perfect food. New York will pay for it, if it gets it. That is one of the best things that New York does. But the restaurants keepers are handicapped by the present conditions of the labor market. Good cooks are hard to find the restaurant men say. Good waiters say they will not submit to serving mere food. Their tips are not generous enough when the patron's eye is hard and fixed. Just what the good waiters will do has not been stated. Peradventure they will retire to their farms or go into the movies.

Anyhow, the cabaret seems doomed. The shows cannot be paid for at the present price of food, and if the price gets much higher the diners will visit, the deal-'em-off-the-arm place. Some restaurants have advanced the theory that patrons will eat more to make up for the lack of drink. They hold that when a man takes a party of friends out to dine he plans to spend about as so much, and spends up to that limit regardless. But they forget that the human body can only hold about so much ham and cabbage, and as yet the New York restaurant's menu is framed along ham and cabbage lines. The restaurateur's hope seems to be in bettering his food and bettering his service, but when that hope is mentioned he bursts into tears.

There's another thing about this home dryness in Broadway restaurants. Pity the poor bathboy. He hasn't the chance of a Korean on the Japanese Fourth of July.

TO MAKE SPECIAL SEARCH OF WAR ZONES FOR TRACES OF MEN REPORTED MISSING

(Canadian Press)

London, July 25.—In order to exhaust all sources of information in regard to the fate of officers and men missing in Belgium and Northern France during the war the Government has decided to despatch a special mission to the continent to make an extensive tour throughout the country districts and conduct an inquiry among peasants, parish priests and other classes of the population likely to have been in touch with men hiding in occupied territory.

The members of the mission are Dame Adelaide Livingstone, Sir Malcolm McElwrath, and Brig-General C. G. Bruce. Any recent information likely to be of service to the mission and not previously communicated to a Government department or committee, should be sent without delay to the Honorary Secretary Prisoners of War Committee, House of Parliament, Westminster, London, England.

GERMANY TO RETAIN RANKS OF NOBILITY

But Convention Bar Special Rights Based on Birth—Heavier Tax on Capital.

WEIMAR.—It is reported that the government's new tax bill will include a surplus assessment on capital amounting to 80 per cent., and also a drastic imperial income tax, the receipts from which will be apportioned among the Federated States, according to their needs.

Mathias Erzberger, Minister of Finance, is understood to be planning to centralize the nation's tax assessments, obviating the necessity for an individual tax in financing part of the Federated States. An increase in the general trade tax, especially on articles of luxury, is also planned. It includes a 10 per cent. lexty on advertising.

The National Assembly this morning rejected the Socialist motion to abolish ranks of nobility, but declared in favour of a constitutional proviso decreeing the equality of all men and women and refusing to recognize special rights or privileges based on birth or social station. The new constitution prohibits a German citizen from accepting a title or decoration from a foreign government.

SOON TO RETURN PRISONERS

Germans to be Repatriated by Way of Switzerland.

BERNE. — According to official despatches from Berlin, it is expected in Germany that the return home of German prisoners of war in France will begin about the middle of August.

It is said that these prisoners will return to Germany by way of Switzerland at the rate of about 2,000 a day. The Germans still held by the French number about 450,000.

JAPAN ISSUE PUT UP TO PRESIDENT FOR HIS DECISION

ALLIES INDUCED HIM TO FIX THE TERMS OF SHANTUNG SETTLEMENT, HE ADMITS.

SECRET AGREEMENTS TIED OTHER POWERS

WASHINGTON, July 25. — The Shantung settlement, under which 36,000,000 Chinese citizens are turned over to Japanese rule, was President Wilson's own idea. The President made this admission to Republican Senators with whom he conferred.

The allied diplomatists, tangled in a web of secret agreements, under which Japan entered the war, unloaded the Shantung problem on President Wilson, it was learned. They found themselves so hampered by pledges to the Japanese Government that they asked the President to take personal charge of the Japanese claims for Germany's rights in Shantung and to endeavour to work out a solution. The complete satisfaction of all Japan's demands, over the protest of Secretary of State Lansing, Henry White and General Bliss, American peace delegates, and the representative of China, was the result.

The revelation that Mr. Wilson was personally responsible for the Shantung affair caused something of a sensation in the Senate. Heretofore, it has been the practice of the administration spokesman to represent the President as having been highly displeased with the Shantung settlement, and the general impression of friends and foes of the treaty has been that the President was forced to yield to the convincing of European and Oriental diplomacy.

Hopes Japan Will Make Statement.

In admitting responsibility for the Shantung settlement, President Wilson told the Senators who conferred with him that he was confident Japan, at an early date, would give definite assurance to the world of her intention of restoring Shantung to China within a fixed period.

Some new reasons for the secret bargaining which formed the basis of Japan's claims for Shantung came to light to-day through the President's conferences. The British Government, the President explained to Senators, was forced to make certain secret promises to Japan with regard to Shantung to obtain the co-operation needed in the prosecution of the war, and it was because of these secret promises that they asked Mr. Wilson to personally straighten out the Shantung dispute. The President found he was confronted by demands which could be satisfied in no other way than by the settlement made in the treaty.

FARMER MOORE HAS GAINED 37 POUNDS

ALL TROUBLES OVERCOME BY TAKING TANLAC—HAD SUFFERED EIGHT YEARS.

"I suffered for eight long years before I found a medicine that would do me any good, but since taking Tanlac I have gained exactly thirty-seven pounds, and all my troubles have been completely overcome," said John H. Moore, a well-known and prosperous farmer who lives on R. F.D. No. 4, Empire, Ill., while in Shorthouse's drug store in Bloomington the other day.

"When I commenced taking Tanlac," he continued, "I had reached the point where I couldn't do any work at all, and was forced to hire a hand to take my place on the farm. I had suffered so much and so long with stomach trouble, I was just about down and out so far as health and strength was concerned. During all these years my appetite was very poor, and what little I did eat would cause me worlds of suffering. Gas would form on my stomach so bad that I could hardly get my breath, and I would have the worst sort of cramping spells. I finally got to where I was hardly ever able to retain what I ate, and would actually get nauseated every time I looked at anything to eat. I had fallen off so much, and was so low in health, that all my friends were talking about the awful condition I was in. I was very nervous all the time and never knew what a good night's sleep was.

"I heard about Tanlac then, and I thought I would give it a trial. Well, sir, my friends and neighbors are talking differently now. They are asking me what in the world I have been taking to make such a big improvement in my condition, and it just does my heart good to tell them that Tanlac did it. It is wonderful the way I have gained in weight and strength. I can go to the field now and do as much hard work as any hand on the farm. My stomach seems to be in perfect condition, and I never have indigestion, and am not bothered with gas forming after meals. I have the best appetite I ever had in my life, and can eat just anything I want. I am free from all that nervousness, too, and I sleep just like a baby every night. Tanlac has done all that for me, and I am as well and hearty now as I ever was in my life, and as long as I live I will pass the good word along to others who suffer as I did."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

Matthews-Blackwell Win City League Championship

VICTORY OVER THE WAR VETERANS LAST NIGHT CINCHES THE HONOURS FOR THE PACKERS, WHO HAD LITTLE TROUBLE IN WINNING BY 9 TO 2 THE GAME THAT MEANT THE HONOURS TO THEM.

The Matthews-Blackwell team won the championship of the City Baseball League last night when they defeated the War Veterans by 9 runs to 2. The Packers have only one game to play, and although it is with their closest rivals, the Orientals, they can lose to the runners-up and still win the flag, as last night's victory made it an impossibility to head them off.

Their win over the tail-enders was a hollow one, and they never were in any danger. Daynard, the Veterans' left hander, pitched six innings for the Packers the night before in Port Hope, and had nothing left last night. He was derricked with nobody out in the third after the Packers had scored two runs in that session, and was relieved by Foley, brought in from the outfield. The youngster got by in good style, allowing the winners same. The safeties were benched in only four hits for the balance of the the fifth to give the Packers three runs, and those were all they were entitled to score off the relief pitcher.

Frost pitched a fine game for the winners. He allowed only two hits and no runs up to the eighth, getting out of a hole in good style in the fifth when the losers had the sacks filled and nobody out. Frost weakened a little in the eighth, when three hits and a pass gave the Veterans their two counters.

Matthews got their first counter in the second innings. With one gone, Coursey doubled to right, went to third on Shaughnessy's infield out, and scored when Morrow missed Cunningham's drive.

Four more came over in the third. Frost led off with a double to right and scored on Holyman's single through short. Lowe was safe when Murphy's throw pulled Wade off the bag. Jackson singled over second to score Holyman. That was enough for Daynard, and Foley went to the rubber. He got Corrin on a pop fly. Murphy made a bad throw on Lefave's grounder and Lowe and Jackson scored. Coursey popped to Kano and Murphy threw Shaughnessy out.

In the fifth Lowe opened with a double to right. Jackson singled to left and stole second. Corrin fanned, but Lefave doubled to left, scoring Lowe and Jackson. Coursey's single to left scored Lefave. Shaughnessy flied to Foley and Coursey was doubled off first.

In the seventh, with one gone, Jackson was safe on Murphy's miss, stole second, and scored when Morrow fumbled Corrin's grounder and then threw wildly to first. Lefave hit to Murphy, who tossed Corrin out at third. Coursey walked, but Shaughnessy fanned.

The Vets. got their pair off Coursey in the eighth. Daynard beat out a roller to Corrin. Murphy singled through short, and Capoli was passed filling the bases. Stan Wade singled to right, scoring Daynard and Murphy, and went to second when Coursey missed the roller. Alan Wade struck out. Morrow hit to Frost, who threw Capoli out at the plate. Dineen was hit, again filling the bases, but Kano fanned.

The two double plays pulled off in the first innings were the fielding features. Matthews-Blackwell made theirs after Murphy had hit safely. Capoli, the next batter, hit a roller to Hagerman, who tossed to Holyman to force out Murphy, while the shortstop's peg nailed the batter at first. The War Veterans' double killing was a nice piece of work, too. Stan Wade made a fine running catch of Jackson's foul fly, and when Holyman tried to go from second to third on the play, he was snuffed out by a quick relay—Stan Wade to Alan Wade to Kano.

CANADIAN HENLEY IN ST. CATHARINES

COURSE IS IN EXCELLENT CONDITION NEW RECORDS LOOKED FOR.

(Canadian Press.)

ST. CATHARINES, July 25.—The contestants are all here for the Canadian Henley, which opens on the old Welland canal this afternoon. The weather is excellent this morning, the course is in good condition and oarsmen who made trial trips early today expressed the hope of being able to break many rowing records.

SWINGING ALONG ON SPORT'S TRAIL

BASEBALL ST. SWITHINED AGAIN—YANKS STILL HARD ON TRAIL OF MAYS, OF RED SOX.

At last three American League clubs, the Yankees, Clevelands and White Sox, are making determined efforts to get Carl Mays, the pitcher from Red Sox. Each has made big money offers to Harry Frazee, but Mays is not to be had for money, the Boston magnate declares. Only obstacle in the way of a deal is the obstacle in the way of a deal is that difficulty in getting down to a practical basis.

What players can any of these clubs give for Mays which would satisfy Boston and at the same time not weaken the other club? Mays is an asset and can be had only for a stiff price in the way of players. As late as yesterday the Chicago club was trying to start something with Frazee, but with Mays the White Sox would make a runaway race of it sure enough, and the New York club, which needs him more, has a better chance — if anybody has a chance—than Comiskey! The matter is still alive, and in a day or two Messrs. Ruppert and Huston will try again to make a deal for the Red Sox star.

It wouldn't be surprising were the directors of the National League to decide in a day or two in favor of the Reds and Pirates playing the last three innings of that game of July 6, which was called at the end of the sixth inning to allow the Reds to catch a train they didn't have to catch. Baker and Ebbets are the directors to decide the point, with President Heydler voting in case of a tie. Stoneham, of New York, is a director, but as his club made the protest which provoked the Cincinnati howl about unsportsmanship he has no voice.

The Reds probably would win under the course suggested, but that would be all right. It would be a fair arrangement and besides the main thing has been accomplished, the rebuke of the Cincinnati club, a rebuke fully merited and one the New York club is to be commended for bringing about. Rules are not rules for the sake of being violated. No club is so important that it can flout provisions made for the conduct of all.

Incidentally the whole idea of calling games to catch trains is wrong. I think it would be fairer to the fan to abolish that sort of thing entirely. Better not schedule games in the next town for the next day if games have to be called to do it. It is too suggestive of this sort of reasoning: We've got the seventy-five cents of these fans, now let's go over to the next town and get theirs.

It seems that Ping Bodie is very popular in Chicago. They applaud him for everything. Maybe it's because they're glad to see him—with New York.

There's an unusually good lot of eligible football material for next fall, but a question of importance is how much of it will be back. Harvard, Yale, Princeton—three of the places where many stars are turned out—are considering with the uncertainty who went into the service, along with other first class material which would be eligible if it returned and qualified scholastically—all this would supply the best of material. But how much of it will be on hand when the colleges open neither coaches nor anybody else knows.

Since the latest demonstration of the rapidity and vigor with which Jack Dempsey lands punches, the grim earnestness with which he fights and the black and blue and groggy effects on the recipients of his favors, there has been a marked not to say, wide spread and eloquent stillness among the other ringsters of the heavyweight set. In one or two instances there has been a not wildly enthusiastic assent to suggestions to meet the new champion, but on the whole, on both sides of the water, an impressive scarcity of desire to get within range of those flying, ripping fists of Dempsey's until time shall have tempered a bit their power to punish and put to sleep.

Buck Freeman holds the home run record for a single season. He made twenty-five with Washington in 1899. Babe Ruth this year has made fourteen homers in eighty games, one for every 5 10-14 games. Twelve more will bust Freeman's record, and the Babe has sixty games in which to make them, or one for every five games.

OLD SHIP CARVERS

Their Occupation Gone, There is Now a Lost Art.

FIGUREHEADS OUT OF DATE.

Those Famous Old Faithful Figures, Elaborately Fashioned in Wood, Find No Place in the Decorative Scheme of a Modern Windjammer.

While there is a revival of wooden shipbuilding in Maine, giving employment to the carpenter, rigger and sailmaker, there is not on the whole length of the coast any job for the carver—the sculptor in wood who used to make the figureheads. That is an occupation now entirely gone, for the figurehead is out of date and the carving a lost art.

One of the most famous of the ship carvers was the late William L. Seavey of Bangor, who fashioned figureheads for the best equipped riggers that ever left Maine. He learned his trade in a Bangor shipyard when the banks of the Penobscot bristled with new vessel frames, piled his cleaver, chisel and gouge through all the years of America's greatest maritime glory, witnessed the decline of our ocean commerce and lived to see his occupation entirely gone.

For forty years or more did Seavey carve angels and cherubs, kings and queens, mermaids and dolphins, statesmen and warriors, not to mention an occasional lion and numerous eagles, for the adornment of "down east" vessels, for every craft of any considerable size carried a figurehead, some sort of ornament under the bowsprit being regarded as necessary to complete her outfit. But now all that is gone. Owners can see no sense in spending money on such gewgaws as a blue eyed and white robed queen wearing a yellow crown. When they build a vessel now—square riggers are no longer thought of—they whittle her off forward to a billet head and let her go at that. Maybe a gilt scrollwork tops her stem, but nothing more.

Thus it is that Bangor knows the wood sculptor no more, the sole reminder of Seavey's art being a broken and faded specimen of his work, once carried by a big ship, but for many years mounted as a sign over his shop door in Exchange street. In the days of her youth this attenuate lady whittled and chiseled from a fine pine had golden tresslings on her Grecian robes and in one dainty hand held aloft a golden goblet. Now she is weather worn and grimy, and the goblet has gone, but she is the most striking memorial of Seavey, all his other painted beauties being scattered to the seven seas under foreign flags or gone to the port of dead ships.

One of the finest figureheads in its day was that of the clipper ship Western Belle. It was the full sized figure of a woman, with her left arm outstretched, carrying a few sprays of wheat. Her right hand gathered the folds of her skirt, the drapery of which considering that the material was wood, was admirably executed.

From the general outline no less hint from the careless curl lying along the breast it is suspected that the carver had worked in marble or was a natural genius. His name was Ramsdell. He neglected to cut his initials on his masterpiece. He lived and toiled in Bath, the home of American shipbuilding, where the Western Belle was built in 1876.

His handiwork was carried by both built ships to the most remote parts of the world, and it is related that a South Sea Island chief was so impressed with the Yankee carver's skill that he sent him a commission by a friendly skipper to make a set of idols to meet the theological needs of the chief's heathen subjects.

The Western Belle is spending the evening of her days as a coal barge, but the lady who graced her prow was retired from the sea and now occupies a place in a garden. One of her peculiarities was a detachable arm, the one in which she held the wheat. During voyages it was unscrewed so that the grain might not break it, being replaced when the ship was about to make a port. This was not known in the more elaborate of the old wooden figureheads, especially of men-of-war, where danger of shattering was greatest.

Some figureheads were illustrative of the vessel's name, others were whims of the owners or the captains and still others symbolic of events occurring at the time the vessels were built. The schooner War Eagle, for instance, was built in wartime, and she had for her figurehead a fierce looking eagle, perched on a heap of cannon balls and with arrows clutched in its talons. The War Eagle was destroyed some years ago at Boston by an explosion of naphtha in her cargo. The schooner American Eagle was decorated with a gorgeous bird of freedom and the brig American Union was similarly ornamented, stern and bow with symbols of the nation.

The old steamer Expounder had a figure of John Marshall holding the constitution outspread, and the steamer Daniel Webster carried on either paddle box a medallion head of the great orator, while in her saloon was hung a life sized portrait of him, presented by the citizens of Boston.

THE ENGLISH PHEASANT.

Originally From Asia, It Is Still Found In China and Tibet.

Generally speaking, the English pheasant is misnamed, since it came from Asia and is still to be found in India, Tibet and China. The birds were brought to Europe more than 600 years ago, turned loose on hunting preserves and thrived amazingly. They supply the finest bird shooting in Scotland and England, and so much care is taken in raising them that they may almost be regarded as a half domesticated bird.

Under the present system the eggs are hatched by hens or in incubators. The chicks are carefully fed on insects and prepared foods, and when they are able to shift for themselves they are turned into the woods. While the common pheasant will roost in trees, it is a ground bird. The female will remain under cover until it is almost stepped upon.

Because of this trait the pheasants are scouted by men who beat in the thickets until the pheasants take flight over shooting boxes, where the hunters are concealed.

Dodging Mother Meng.

Infant prodigies are not unknown in China, and Chinese Buddhists find it easy to account for them. According to the doctrine of the transmigration of souls, persons passing through Hades on their way to the wheel of life (which relaunches souls into the bodies of babies or animals just being born) have to cross a bridge. Before mounting the bridge they are stopped by an old hag called Meng, who, ladle in hand, compels each soul to drink a mouthful of the waters of forgetfulness, for which the popular name is Mother Meng's soup. Those who drink of this forget all that they had passed through or had known in their former life and thus on being reborn into the world are entirely ignorant. Some, however, manage to dodge Mother Meng and enter the world full of knowledge, which they display as soon as they can articulate.

First Stamps of Nippon.

In March, 1871, that portion [illegible] were for the first time issued in Japan, following the system of western countries. The stamps were of four denominations of mon. These stamps, however, disappeared shortly after their issue, to be replaced in 1872 by another series in the denominations of sen. These denominations are still in use today, but at the present time there is a far wider variety, the values being from one-quarter of a cent to $5. The first stamps were extremely crude in appearance, were without gum and were printed by the ancient method of wood engraving. Today electric fabrication turn out the stamps, as we know them in this country, in enormous quantities.—Japan Society Bulletin.

Animals Under Water.

The ability of a beaver to remain under water for a long time is not really as tough a problem as it looks. When the lake or pond is frozen over a beaver will come to the under surface of the ice and expel his breath so that it will form a wide, flat bubble. The air, coming in contact with the ice and water, is purified, and the beaver breathes it again. This operation he can repeat several times. The otter and, possibly, do the same thing.

ALL FORD STOCKHOLDERS BUT TWO ARE IN MULTI-MILLIONAIRE CLASS

DETROIT'S MAYOR'S HOLDING IS WORTH ROUGHLY $30,000,000—OTHER MINORITY SHAREHOLDERS SELL OUT.

It is seldom that the minority shareholders in a concern meet with the good fortune which has fallen to the lot of the minority holders of Ford Motor stock.

As the result of a deal just completed these stockholders will receive in the neighbourhood of $100,000,00 for their shares, or equal to some $12,500 a share, thereby establishing a record unique in the annals of finance.

Henry Ford, and his son Edsel Ford, are now practically absolute owners of the Ford Motor Company as the result of the consummation of the deal, James Couzens, mayor of Detroit, and formerly connected with the management of the company, being the only stockholder outside of the Fords, who retains an interest in the business.

The number of shares held by the minority stockholdesr and the approximate price paid each one follows:

James Couzens holds the largest amount of stock they held before aside from the Fords. He has 2,180 shares, valued at $29,250,000.

Other minority stockholders, the amoutn of stock they held before selling, and the value follows:

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| John F. Dodge, | 1,000 .... | $12,500,000 |
| Horace E. Dodge, | 1,000 .. | 12,500,000 |
| J. W. Anderson, | 1,000 .... | 12,500,000 |
| H. H. Rackham, | 999 .... | 12,487,500 |
| David Gray, | 525 .... | 6,562,500 |
| Philip H. Gray, | 525 .... | 6,562,500 |
| Paul R. Gray, | 525 .... | 6,562,500 |
| Alice Gray Kales, | 525 .... | 6,562,500 |
| Mrs. A. P. Hass, | 20 .... | 250,000 |

Before the purchase Henry Ford owned 11,400 shares of the remaining stock of the company; Edsel B. Ford, 800 shares, and Frank L. Klingensmith, treasurer of the company, one share.

Added to the price paid for the stock it is estimated that close to $17,000,000 go to the Government in excess profit taxes.

TORONTO CHURCH LOSES BEFORE PRIVY COUNCIL

Grosvenor Street Presbyterian Church's Appeal Is Dismissed With Costs

London, July 25.—The Privy Council has dismissed with costs the petition of the Grosvenor Street Presbyterian Church for leave to appeal over the award for the expropriation of their property by the Toronto corporation.

The Privy Council also dismissed the appeal of Grant, Smith & Company and McDonnel, versus the Seattle Construction and Drydock Company. The council also dismissed a cross appeal which concerned the construction of a breakwater at Victoria and the employment of a drydock which sank. No costs were allowed in either case.

BOY SAVED; MOTHER LOST

Woman Drowned at Port Elgin While Excited Over Child's Peril

Port Elgin, July 25.—Mrs. Humphreys of Winnipeg, who was spending a vacation with relatives here, was drowned while attempting to rescue her little son, who was wading along the shore and had gone into the channel at the end of the dock.

Mrs. Humphreys had apparently become excited as the son and little niece were being picked up and brought to the shore, and it is thought she herself rushed into the water and got beyond her depth. Her body was recovered.

SAYS HOT WATER WASHES POISONS FROM THE LIVER

Everyone should drink hot water with phosphate in it, before breakfast.

To feel as fine as the proverbial fiddle, we must keep the liver washed clean, almost every morning, to prevent its sponge-like pores from clogging with indigestible material, sour bile and poisonous toxins, says a noted physician.

If you get headaches, it's your liver uncleanliness. Your liver is the your liver. If you wake up with a bad taste, furred tongue, nasty breath or stomach becomes rancid, it's your liver. Sallow skin, muddy complexion, watery eyes all denote liver uncleanliness. Your liver is the most important, also the most abused and neglected organ of the body. Few know its function or how to release the dammed-up body waste, bile and toxins. Most folks resort to violent calomel, which is a dangerous salivating chemical which can only be used occasionally because it accumulates in the tissues, also attacks the bones.

Every man and woman, sick or well, should drink each morning before breakfast, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, to wash from the liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, the poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Limestone phosphate does not restrict the diet like calomel, because it can not salivate, for it is harmless and you can eat anything afterwards. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless, and any pharmacist will sell you a quarter pound which is sufficient for a demonstration of how hot water and limestone phosphate cleans, stimulates and freshens the liver, keeping you feeling fit day in and day out.

BANK MURDERER IS IDENTFIED AS WINNIPEG MAN

Uncle is a Health Inspector in Winnipeg Yet.

CHICAGO, July 24.—The veil of mystery behind which Gordon Fawcett Hamby, New York's unique condemned murderer, has hidden his life history since he was convicted a few weeks ago of the killing of two officials, of the First Brooklyn Savings Bank, was lifted yesterday by the aged widow of "Blind John" Condon, one time "race track king" of Chicago and the Middle West.

Mrs. Condon, after a long struggle with her memory, identified Hamby as in all probability the shiftless son of "Busy Jim" Hamby, race track employee of her sightless husband. Hamby shook the turf dust from his heels when Canada began sending troops across the ocean, and despite his fifty-six years, gave his life as a soldier, although he died of disease en route to France.

"If the 'Hamby' of Sing Sing's death house is the son of 'Busy Jim' Hamby, he comes of a substantial and highly respected family of Winnipeg, Canada. Reports from that city tend to confirm Mrs. Condon's identification of the son of her husband's late race track "runner."

Gave Clue Himself.

In the death house of Sing Sing Thursday the bank slayer, apparently annoyed over the persistence with which officials pursued their efforts to penetrate his alias, gave way finally and told them they would learn who he really is if they asked the information of John Condon, 2623 Michigan Avenue, this city. No John Condon could be found there, but Mrs. John Condon was found, and she readily identified herself as the widow of "Blind John" Condon, the race track man of prominence.

With considerable difficulty the aged widow eventually recalled also the association of her husband with "Busy Jim" Hamby, and then police and other investigators agreed that "Hanby's" sole effort to shield his identity consisted in changing a sinble letter of his name

Tracing the history of "Busy Jim" Hanby revealed that he came originally from Canada and that Gordon Fawcett Hamby apparently had imbibed some of the father's roving traits. Inquiry in Winnipeg established the fact that "Busy Jim" Hanby had lived there and that after he had left to satisfy his desire to follow the racing game, his children were cared for by the family of George Hanby, an uncle of Gordon. George Hanby is a health inspector for the city of Winnipeg.

It has been charged that Woodrow Wilson is an Idealist. If he still is, after what he has bumped up against in Europe, then there is no cure for him.—Brantford Expositor.

AGREE WITH FRANCE ON SALE OF STORES

—PARIS — The American and French Governments have at last come to an agreement as to the price to be paid by France for the American military stores, buildings, railroads, and material. The price is still secret, but it is higher than the $300,000,000 offered by France which the United States rejected.

The French press continues to repeat that the United States military authorities in France are burning and otherwise destroying American stores rather than sell them at small profit to the French Government. It has been shown that such stores as were destroyed were utterly worthless and could not be sold. Among them were some motor cars which were so decrepit as to be useless or so oil soaked as to be dangerous.

I am able to give the figures of the subsistence supplies sold by the United States Army to the European Governments since the armistice. These do not include material embraced in the omnibus deal just ended with the French Government. The statement furnished me shows that of the subsistence supplies sold since the armistice France bought 202,306,280 pounds, at a cost of $22,640,130; the Czechoslovak Government, 33,000,000 pounds at $18,442,520; Poland 33,359,000 pounds at $8,271,850; Belgium, the amount of the supplies not stated, paid $937,200; Rumania, 35,400,000 pounds at $21,324,000, and Esthonia, 21,910,000 pounds at $5,132,500.

JAPANESE RADICALS GROWING IN POWER

TOKIO. — Demands for more comfort for those who work for wages, and that fewer privilegns be granted to the rich, are the fundamentals of a popular movement which is gathering form in Japan, and which is causing considerable uneasiness not only to the Government, but to representative Japanese in all spheres of activity. Socialism is attracting the interest of not only the working people, but of men holding important places in the domain of education. This general movement is partly the reflex of the labor unrest in foreign countries, and partly the result of a steadily growing revolt at home against the amassing of wealth by the few as against the poverty and hardship of the masses of the people.

Japanese Socialists recently sent out manifestos to Socialists in foreign lands asking for a formal recognition of the Japanese body which has been organized under the name of "Japanese Socialist Party." The Socialist Party of Italy sent a response conveying their willingness to recognize the Japanese Socialists as their friends and co-workers. Sen Katayama, the pioneer Socialist of Japan, is now abroad as the representative of his party at home.

The attempt to promote Socialism or a more radical doctrine, is being pushed now because of the awakening of the workers to what they regard as the evils of present economic and industrial conditions. The average Japanese workman is beginning to raise his voice for better pay and more freedom generally.

The central organization for working men in Tokio has addressed an open letter to the Home Minister, the President of the Chamber of Commerce, and others, declaring that in case of war it is the working people of Japan who are called upon to defend its shores, and asking whether it is the national policy of Japan to allow capitalists to fatten while the workers are starving.

Dr. Jikei Yokoi of the Imperial University, in a public statement says that democratic ideas long prevalent in the great cities have recently spread among the rural population. They have particularly affected, he said, school teachers, members of the young men's associations, and army reservists.

Many Japanese scholars are reported to be enthusiastically studying Socialism. Laborers are openly interested, and are often heard discussing the subject in street cars.

DEPORTING 900 INTERNED GERMANS

Will Embark at Montreal June 23 for Holland.

OTTAWA, July 24—Nine hundred Germans who have been held in internment camps in Canada will soon be shipping homeward to their fatherland. Arrangements have been made for their departure by the Dominion Government and it is understood that they will sail on July 23rd from Montreal or Quebec for Rotterdam, Holland, whence they will be sent to Germany. The 900 have been detained is internment camps at Vernon, B. C. and in Kapusking, Ont., chiefly, and their reparation will reduce the number of prisoners at those places to a very small figure.

They are being shipped to Germany in accordance with the terms of the Peace Treaty. That treaty provided that as soon as possible after it became operative the Allied and Associated Powers, should repatriate German prisoners of war and interned German civilians. Arrangements for carrying out this stipulation are made by a committee upon which the Allied Powers and the Germans are represtned. Details for each individual allied nation are worked out by sub-committees upon which eit delegates of that nation and delegates from Germany. The Dominion Government takes the necessary steps in Canada to carry out arrangements made. Germany under the terms of the treaty is required to pay the cost of repatriating her nationals. Prisoners handed over to the German authorities are to be returned to their former homes without delay.

A small number of German prisoners of war were deported during the armistice period by arrangement with the British Government. These leaving on July 23rd are the first to be repatriatetd under the treaty terms.

BRANTFORD SEES POSSIBILITY OF A 75-MILL TAX RATE

Brantford, July 24.—A forecast of a 75-mill tax rate if the new amendments to the Municipal Act with re was made by Assessment Commissioner value and from that amount up, in proportion. He points out that fully 60 per cent. for less than the amount stated, and the taxation figures would be cut away down. So with the increasing of the exemption from increasing tax, which was raised to 1,700 if carried out to the letter the assessment would be reduced by seven million with a 75-mill rate in sight.

Nature and the Indian

The Indian never liked work but he wanted his squaw to get well as soon as possible so that she could do the work and let him hunt, therefore he dug peppermint root for her, for that was their great remedy for female weaknesses.

Dr. Pierce uses the same root—called Blue Cohosh—in his "Favorite Prescription" skillfully combined with other agents that make it more effective.

Women who are worn out, who suffer from pain at regular or irregular intervals, who are nervous, dizzy at times, should take that reliable, temperance, herbal tonic which a doctor in active practice prescribed many years ago. Now sold by druggists, in tablets and liquid, as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Send 10c. to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., for trial package.

Woodstock, Ont.—"I cannot say enough in praise of Dr. Pierce's Medicines. I had numerous complaints and was completely 'down and out.' I was so bad the doctors considered calling a hospital case. I was much discouraged and was ready to give up when I began taking the Favorite Prescription and the Golden Medical Discovery. These medicines put me on my feet again and gave me the only real health I have enjoyed for years. Recommend Dr. Pierce's Medicines to any one suffering as I did. Have also taken Dr. Pierce's Pellets and found them very beneficial." Mrs. [illegible]

If you want to know more about your own health write Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., for a free medical advice letter.

CAN AN EVANGELIST TIE A NUPTUAL KNOT?

Power of Revival Preacher to Perform Ceremony Challenged

Cornwall, Ont., July 25.—Evangelist L. Draffin, who has been holding services in Mille Roches for some months, representing a sect known as the Association of God, appeared before Judge O'Reilly yesterday on a charge of performing a marriage ceremony without having legal authority to do so. Evidence was submitted to show that he had performed a marriage ceremony between a young couple residing in the vicinity of Mille Roches, on January 21, last, and the case was adjourned until September 23, for the submission of further evidence, Draffin being allowed his liberty on his own recognizance of $1,000.

Judge O'Reilly instructed the Evangelist to refrain from performing marriage ceremonies in the meantime.

KNIGHTED IN 1908, NOW IN WORKHOUSE

PITIFUL ENDING OF CAREER OF SIR LUKE WHITE, ONCE AFFLUENT.

London.—From a position of affluence, popularity and public service which won him a seat in Parliament and knighthood, Sir Luke White is ending his days as the inmate of a workhouse infirmary in Driffield. Clever enough to rise fro mpoverty to a noted career, injudicious investments brought him low, and at the height of his political power he was forced to confess himself bankrupt. He carried down with him numerous trusting constituents, and his liabilities of $135,000 included $25,000 in loans from poor people who had confided their all to him. The shame of having thus wrecked the savings of those who believed in him completely unnerved him. Now he is dependent on public charity, his spirit utterly crushed, and he is one of the most pitiful figures in the north of England.

Born in Deighton, near York, in 18845, he was an office boy at fifteen for a solicitor who paid him about 90 cents a week. After eight years in that service, of course, with increasing income, he became managing clerk for another solicitor in Driffield. In another six years he was admitted to the bar as solicitor, and in th esame year he succeeded to the practice of his employer, who had died.

He speedily became known as a local preacher and speaker for a large district, and he was highly popular and successful. For years he was chairman of the Local Board, and then of the urban District Council. The nhe went to the East Riding County Council. In 1896 he was appointed one of the Coroners for East Riding. He acted as election agent for Sir Angus Holden, Liberal Member of Parliament for the Buckrose division, and when Sir Angus died in 1900 White was chosen as his successor. In 1906 he was knighted.

He continued to djvide his time between his attendance at Westminster and his business in Yorkshire, but as he gave more time to his Parliamentary duties than to his private affairs, his practice suffered. The war brought out the fact that he was in financial distress, and last fall he resigned his seat and filed a petition in bankruptcy. It appeared in the bankruptcy proceedings that some of his poor constituents had confided their money to him to put into war loans.

Friends provided for him for awhile in a sanitarium near Scarborough. When that fund was exhausted he was removed to the workhouse infirmary, which almost adjoins the court in which he formerly practiced. His tragic misfortune caused a great sensation in East Yorkshire, where for years he had been so well known and liked that in the town of Bridlington particularly his photograph hung on the walls of every other house. He had been eminently a poor man's lawyer.

His fate is now brought afresh to public notice by—an action against Herbert Brown, a Deputy Coroner for the East Riding of Yorkshire, who is charged jointly with Sir Luke, with having appropriated to the personal use of Sir Luke in 1907 $1,000 intrusted to them by Witham Hatfield for investment. Sir Luke escapes arraignment owing to his physical and nervous collapse.

Hair Often Ruined By Careless Washing

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff, and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

UP IN THE AIR FIRST.

Honeymoon Afterwards Is Order Of New York Nuptials.

NEW YORK, July 24.—A wedding in which the contracting parties and the clergyman will be in separate airplanes a thousand feet in the air will be performed at the field games of the New York Police Department, to be held at Sheepshead Bay next Saturday.

Lieut. George S. Burgess, of Brooklyn, will be married to Miss Lillie K. Schaffer, of Sea Gate, Coney Island. They will be in a machine piloted by Lieut Burgess. In the other plane will be the Rev. Alexander Wonters, of Brooklyn, and First Lieut. Eugene H. Bartsdale, who will pilot the machine, and will also be best man at the wedding. The bridesmaid will be on the ground at a wireless magnifier. A wireless Telephone operator will be stationed in front of the grand stand to announce the wedding to the spectators.

AUDITOR EXAMINES THURLOW'S BOOKS

A government auditor, Mr. Peters, is in Belleville conducting an audit into the books of Thurlow township. Some time ago there was some criticism in letters to the press on the administration in Thurlow. The auditor has been sent in answer to the request of the Thurlow council for an investigation by a government auditor.

OLD BRIDGE ON FIRE.

Cigarette Stub Threatened to Hasten Its Demolition.

Somebody evidently wished to save the city the expense of moving the old Hunter street bridge up to London street. A cigarette thrown this afternoon by some careless individual, set fire to one of the boards of the walk flooring, and it was burning merilly when the brigade arrived. It was extinguished by chemicals.

To Have Perfect Skin Throughout the Summer

This is the season when she who would have a lily-white complexion should turn her thoughts to mercolized wax, the firm friend of the summer girl. Nothing so effectually overcomes the soiling effects of sun, wind, dust and dirt. The wax literally absorbs the scorched, discoloured, withered or coarsened scarf skin, bringing forth a brand new skin, clear, soft and girlishly beautiful. It also unclogs the pores, removing blackheads and increasing the skin's breathing capacity.

An ounce of mercolized wax, obtained at any drug store, applied nightly like cold cream, and washed off mornings, will gradually improve even the worst complexion. There is nothing better for the removal of tan, freckles or blotches.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR WEEK

July 27, 1919.

Christian Fellowship. Acts 2:42, 44, 47; Phil. 4:10-20.

Golden Text: If we walk in the light as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another. I John 1:7.

1. Acts 2:42.—What is the gist of the "Apostles' doctrine"?

2. What relation is there between the doctrine of love and Christian fellowship?

3. When the members of the Christian church do not truly love and fellowship one with the other what is it a sign of?

4. Verse 46. How would you improve the organization of the church to promote perpetual Christian fellowship?

5. Verse 46. Why would you say or not that "gladness and singleness of heart" may be the perpetual experience of every follower of Christ?

6. Verse 47. If a Christian's heart and life are always praising God, is that an unfailing guarantee that all the people will be pleased with him?

7. What factor in adding to the membership of the church is conspicuous Christian fellowship in the church?

8. Phil. 4:10. To what extent should every member support his pastor?

9. What should be the relation of the salary of the pastor to the combined and average earnings of the congregation?

10. Verse 11. What knowledge is it necessary for us to acquire so that we can truthfully say, "I have learned in whatsoever state I am therewith to be content?

11. What is the responsibility of the church to its members who are in financial difficulties? (This is one f the questions which may be answered in writing by the members of the club.)

12. Verses 12-14. What do we need to give us victory, or equipoise of soul no matter how difficult our circumstances?

13. Our obligations to others are very great; from whence or from whom may we receive the necessary power and wisdom to discharge them all?

14. Verses 15-17. How many churches do you know who are doing all they ought to help the needy and to enthrone Christ in the hearts of the people, and what do you suggest by way of improvement?

15. Verses 15-17. What is the greatest praise we can give to a church or to an individual?

16. Verse 18. How is it that so few Christians attain the experience of perfect satisfaction as indicated in this verse?

17. Verse 19. What do the riches of Christ consist of?

19. How may we obtain from God all the things which we lack to complete our true blessedness?

20. Verse 20. Is it really practical for every Christian to always have a shout of victory in his heart?

Lesson for Sunday, August 3, 1919. Christian Worship. Matt. 6: 5, 6; John 4: 1-10, 19-24; Feb. 10; 19-25; Rev. 7: 9-12.

HIGH COST DUE TO PLUMBER COMBINE

Dr. McFall Says Clothing and Foodstuffs High for Same Reason

Ottawa, Ont., July 25.—That an elaborate combine is responsible for advancing prices in all kinds of sanitory and plumbing supplies is the statement in an interview with the Cost of Living Commissioner, Dr. McFall, who has prepared evidence which, in his opinion, leads t othat conclusion.

"At this time," he said, "when the excessive prices of building materials is working such hardship, the activities of this combine are particularly pernicious. It is intimated that the combine is interpational in its scope and includes both manufacturers and jobbers."

The commissioner says that "by means of this combine practically all plumbing supplies are forced to go through the hands of the jobbers, who frequently take as much as 25 per cent., or even higher, for themselves, in spite of the fact that the plumbing trade which is now attempting to free itself from this burden, considers the jobbers to be an unnecessary factor in the trade. Cumulative evidence obtained over a protracted period is indicative of similar conditions prevailing in many other lines. Infractions of the law have been disclosed in the matter of articles of clothing, and some of the most important foodstuffs, as well as less vital articles of domestic consumption. Cases have also been prepared to prevent unfair trade practices, which are being exercised to forestall the operation of measures which would greatly reduce the cost of living. "Suitable action," said Dr. McFall, in conclusion, "on those cases has been recommended."

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Relieves the Ailments of Change of Life.

"During Change of Life I had hot flashes, dizzy spells and every month I was wild with misery. I had a constant dull pain, and would always feel tired. I suffered in this way for five or six years and was treated by a physician and took different remedies without benefit. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me and I took it, and I believe I would never have been well if it had not been for the Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I am recommending your medicine to all women ailing as I was, for I think it will carry them safely through the Change of Life, and relieve the ailments that come at that period."—Mrs. ALEXIS C. NADEAU, Galatia, Ill.

Women who suffer from nervousness, "heat flashes," backache, headaches, and "the blues," should try this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and if complications exist write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of their 40 years' experience in such cases is at your service.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Natural Colour and Lustre at Once.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small stand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

A STORMY INTERVIEW

MELBOURNE, July 24.—As the outcome of a stormy interview between H. S W Lawson, Premier of Victoria, and a deputation of soldiers in the premier's office the premier was struck on the head and cut by an inkwell thrown by one of the soldiers The men then proceeded to pitch the office furniture into the streets and tore up important official documents. The police dispersed the rioters and arrested five of them.

NINE PREMIERS WILL BE DELEGATES

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, July 25.—As a result of the defeat yesterday of the Conservative Government of Prince Edward Island province, eight of the nine Provincial Premiers of Canada will be delegates, it is expected, in attendance at the National Liberal Convention in Ottawa from August fifth to seventh. All Provincial Parliaments except Ontario, are now majority Liberal. It is believed that two chairmen will be selected for the convention, Premier Gouin of Quebec and Premier Murray of Nova Scotia. Regarding the leader to be selected, it is understood that while the western members will insist on a western man, Hon. Mr. Fielding seems to be the favourite of the Eastern Liberals.

JAPS START MOVEMENT AGAINST TRYING EX-KAISER

TOKIO, July 25.—The citizens of Fukushima have started a movement against Japan participating in the International Tribunal to try the former German Emperor, on the ground that such action would have a bad effect upon the Japanese people.

Viscount Takaaki Kato, member of the House of Peers, and former Foreign Minister, addressing a meeting of the Kensei-Kai, or Opposition party, at Osaka, expressed doubt whether the League of Nations would restrict armaments, and said he believed that expansion of the Japanese navy was necessary to the interests of the Empire.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of my dear son, Sam Hirst, who died July 25, 1918:

Affliction sore long time he bore,
Physicians were in vain,
Till God thought it best to give him rest
And ease him from all pain.

The blow it was heavy, the shock severe,
To part with one we loved so dear,
Our loss, His gain, so we'll not complain
But hope in Heaven to meet again.
—From Mother and Sister.

We never knew what pain he bore,
We never saw him die,
We only know he passed away
And never said good-bye.
It went to our hearts like the cold blast of winter
When the whisper went round He is dead.
—From Aunts and Uncles in England.

In loving memory of our dead friend Sam Hirst, who died on July 25th, 1919:
Thy voice is now silent, thy heart is now cold,
Where thy smiles and thy welcome oft met us of old,
We miss thee, we mourn thee in silence unseen,
And dwell on the memories of joys that have been.
—Fred, Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery.

ATTEMPT TO FORCE PRICE OF WHEAT AT WINNIPEG

SCHEME, IF IT SUCCEEDED, WOULD SHUT CANADIAN WHEAT OUT OF FOREIGN MARKET.

MEETING TO-DAY

(Special to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, July 26.— That bidding in wheat on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange is part of a scheme to keep Canadian grain out of Europe was the report current here to-day. Minister of Trade and Commerce Sir George E. Foster had called a conference of those interested in the grain situation for Monday.

Handling of the year's grain crop will be discussed at this conference and J. S. Stewart, of Winnipeg, who, during the war, was at the head of the Commission handling Canadian wheat, will be present.

It was said the bidding at Winnipeg to force the price of Canadian wheat above that of the United States crop is being forced from Minneapolis with a view to giving the United States the European market and depriving Canada of the full benefit of the St. Lawrence water transportation.

Some of the ministers favour a minimum price, but also believe a director should be named to supervise the marketing and prevent profiteering.

LIKES FLYING AT AT SEVENTY YEARS

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, July 26.— "Flying is the only way to travel. I don't think inside the next few years any one who can afford it will have the patience to go around by motor," said Mrs. Annie Porter, 498 Runeymede Road, who, in spite of her 70 odd years, made her first flight at the Erickson Aircraft Company picnic, which was held at Leaside yesterday.

"Do you realise that you are the first woman in this city of your age that has made the venture," she was asked.

"I suppose three-score and ten is getting on a bit, but you should never judge a woman by her years, only by her vitality and her looks," she responded. "It was merely a little opi-

[illegible] BE BUILT THIS YEAR

Taylor's bridge in Otonabee was assumed by the County at yesterday afternoon's meeting of the Council. Mr. Reid, whose property was damaged by floods held back at this bridge, has agreed not to press any litigation in support of claims for damage which have been settled by the Otonabee Township Council. Reeve Anderson urged the Council to build the bridge this year, and Mr. Reid intimated that he would expect the Council to pay for any damage caused by the water next spring. The Council instructed Reeve Nicholl's committee, composed of himself, Warden McIntosh, Reeves Anderson and Bell, to provide for the erection of this bridge this year.

RUSSELL-TOWNSEND TO OPEN PLANING MILL

The Russell-Townsend company have leased the Rapid Tool building on the east side of the river and will install in it a planing mill in the near future. This report this morning indicated that the company intended to prepare all the lumber they will need in setting up the concrete forms and supports. This will constitute the main feature of the work, that is the concrete setting, and it is evident that large supplies of lumber and timber will be needed.

A high price

A HIGH PRICE FOR RASPBERRIES

At the market this morning wild raspberries appeared to be the chief produce on hand and sold at $8.00 for a ten quart pail and 94 cents a quart box.

Butter sold at 55 and 60c. a pound.

Eggs sold at 50 cents a dozen.

Chickens sold at 35c. a pound.

On the outside market vegetables were fairly high for the season, corn selling at 35 cents a dozen, beans at 10 cents a quart and carrots, beets and onions, at 5 cents a bunch. Potatoes were not procurable.

NINE DEPUTIES TO BE APPOINTED

Nine deputy enumerators have yet to be appointed in West Peterborough. There are forty-one polls in the riding, twenty-two of which are in the city.

The townships of Galway and Cavendish, together with Harvey, have as yet no enumerators, and another enumerator will be appointed in Smith; one in Ennismore, and two in North Monaghan.

THE POLES ARE SLOWING DOWN

(Canadian Press.)

VIENNA, July 26.—The Poles appear to be ceasing their offensive against the Ukrainains. The latter are using all their strength against Kiev, intending if successful against the Bolshevik there, to return and contest the Polish pacification of Eastern Galicia. Roumanians declare their artillery are stopping the Hungarian advance, but the Hungarians claim fresh successes.

THE FRENCH REPLY TO GERMAN NOTE

LETTER EXPRESSES ASTONISHMENT AT THE REQUEST OF THE HUNS WHO DEVASTED EUROPE.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, July 26.—The Temps publishes a note which the Protestant Federation of France has addressed to President Poincaire in answer to a letter sent him some days ago by the Protestant community of Berlin asking democratic France to right its wrongs towards the Huguenots driven from France in 1685 by sparing their benefactors, the Hohenzollerns. The note of the French Protestants expresses stupefaction that Berlin Protestants, claiming to be of Huguenot extraction can raise their voices in favour of the former German Emperor in an attempt to protect him from having to face the verdict of civilized nations. What occurred several centuries ago, the note says, does not disprove the fact that the Kaiser has committed against humanity a crime for which he must personally answer.

"We are astonished," the note concludes, "that German Protestants have not remonstrated against the devastation in Northern and Eastern France, the destruction of cathedrals and deportation of old men, women and children."

WEEKLY DANCE

Last evening the weekly dance given by the Peter Robinson Chapter, I.O.D.E., at the Chemong Park pavilion, was a tremendous success and attended by a larger number of the young people than in any pervious week. The patronesses were Mrs. D. Burritt, Mrs. Alex. Elliott, Mrs. D. N. Carmichael and Mrs. McClelland.

Among those present were Misses Esme Aylmer, Helen Stapleton, Ruth Robertson, Gladys Mulholland, Phyllis Robertson, Robina Gordon Cumming, Phyllis Young, Agnes Carmichael, Agnes Eastwood, Grobb, Madge Graham, Helen Bulmer and Jessie Matthews, Mr. and Mrs. Coon, Dr. and Mrs. Mann, Mrs. Birks, Messrs. Hal Crane, G. Matthews, W. Stevenson, R. Byers, H. Rush, P. Burritt, H. Bradburn, R. Lockhart, H. Carmichael, H. McClelland, J. Matthews, P. Gliddon, H. Patterson, G. Lamb, H. Morrow, Jerry McLeland, S. O'Shea and H. McHeron.

Moher and Fitzgerald's orchestra supplied splendid music for the affair.

SHOW WILL OPEN THIS AFTERNOON

POLACK BROTHERS CONCLUDE THEIR ENGAGEMENT WITH THIS EVENING'S PERFORMANCE.

The Polack Brothers 20 Big Shows which have been exhibiting in this city all week at the Exhibition Grounds, will end their engagement with this evening's performance. The shows have made a great impression with the Peterborough folks with their many fine attractions, riding devices and features.

The patronage during the week has been greater than the management anticipated. Manager Larry Boyd said last evening that it had eclipsed attendance records in some of the larger cities in the States, and that it was gratifying to note the manner in which the patronage left the grounds boosting for the shows.

Owing to the fact that Saturday afternoon is considered a half-holiday in many of the plants, the shows and riding devices will open promptly at two o'clock.

Victor's Concert Band will give a concert in the city at 1.30, and will proceed to the grounds.

The La Rose Electric Fountain has been the talk of the town ever since the opening performance. This beautiful water, fire and electric display is simply wonderful, and is the best attraction that has ever been seen in this city. Over the Falls and the big circus side show have pleased and entertained all who had the opportunity of witnessing the various performances.

PLAYGROUNDS CONTRIBUTIONS

The following contributions have been made to the Playgrounds Association funds.

| | |
|---|---|
| Dr. and Mrs. F. Neal | $10 |
| Mr. Edgar Worth | $25 |
| Mrs. McDuffee | $1 |

CIVIC HOLIDAY PROGRAMME WILL BE REAL EYE-OPENER FOR THOSE WHO TAKE IT IN ### TWO OUTSIDE BANDS AND A GRAND DISPLAY OF FIREWORKS INCLUDED IN DAY'S PERFORMANCE

Through the efforts of the Exhibition Board, Civic Holiday is going to be a notable event in Peterboro as the attractions offered by the Board will out-rival any which have ever been featured in the city. The programme which is to be presented has been selected with great care. Two bands with national reputations for excellence have been secured; the 91st Highlanders Band of Hamilton which has toured the continent several times each meeting with the most overwhelming success and the Juvenile Pipers Band of London, the latter a unique organisation different to anything ever shown previously in the city. The Y.W.C.A. girls under the direction of Miss Littlefield will put on an entirely new programme demonstrating the strides the girls in the city have taken in becoming athletes of high order. All three attractions will present full programmes both afternoon and evening.

Fireworks Display

Hitherto the city has never really seen a fireworks display of any magnitude and in consequence the monster exhibition which Professor Hand will display in the evening will be an eye opener to the citizens. This feature which represents an expense of several hundred dollars and includes discharge of aerial bombs, ascent of colored fire balloon ,ascent of mammoth illuminated balloon, "the maple leaf" and "welcome", ascent of 2 pound rockers, ascent of novel bombshells, discharge of British admiralty shells, discharge of Victor bombshells, the pyrotechnic flying machine, discharge of beautiful bombshell, discharge of monster bombshell, discharge of surprise bombshell, display of floating star rockets, wheel of molten gold, grand slave of bombshells, procession of 3 pound exhibition rockets, novel exhibition of bombshells and aerial spinners, fountains of the Champs Elysees, discharge of palm tree bombshells, display of new rockets—northern lights, discharge of large shell with four bursts, discharge of mammoth bombshell "the golden umbrella", discharge of the "Coronet", the "Shell of Erin", exhibition of twisting serpentine, the Christmas tree, the ascent of the "caskets of tinted crysals", the triple bursting Empire bombshell, the "blue bells of Scotland" an ascent of 4 pound exhibition rockets, the Star of Versailles daiu rocket number, exhibition of bombshells, flight of silver grain rockets, fireworks portrait of His Majesty King George, golden effect rockets, exhibition on rockets "the Peerls of Paradise," Mammoth bombshell "the cock of the north" coronation rockets "the poppies of Flanders" flight of beautiful bombshells and the final device the motto "Good night".

Horse Races

In addition to all this the horse races are bound to be a big drawing card and the purses amounting to several hundred dollars will doubtless be keenly competed for.

LIGHTENING DESTROYS VALUABLE BARN

(Special to Examiner.)

BRAMPTON, July 26. — During a severe electrical storm which passed over here about 5 o'clock this morning a large barn on the farm of B. S. Bull and Sons, the well known cattle breeders and importers, was struck by lightning and burnt to the ground. The barn contained a considerable part of this year's crop and is a total loss. It was found impossible to remove the horses in the barn and eight animals perished.

AVIATORS WILL RETURN TO WORK

(United Press.)

NEW YORK, July 26.—The first air strike in history has been settled to-day.

All mail pilots, who yesterday refused to take their planes out from Belmont Park, L.I., had agreed to resume their regular flights upon the assurance of Charles I. Stanton, superintendent of the Air Mail of the Post Office Department, that their demands would be reconsidered in Washington to-day.

COLLIER'S WEEKLY CHANGES HANDS

(United Press.)

NEW YORK, July 26.—Collier's Weekly has changed hands to-day, under a contract by which the Crowell Publishing Company became owners of the Weekly, as well as all other publications issued by P. F. Collier & Sons.

No changes in the personnel of Collier's are contemplated at present, it was announced. Finley Peter Dunne is editor.

PETERBORO SHOE DEALER GIVES SOME OF THE REASONS FOR PRESENT HIGH PRICES

SHORTAGE OF LEATHER IS ONE OF THE CHIEF REASONS--NO RELIEF IN SIGHT.

Mr. C. E. Smith of the Smith Shoe Store, has returned from the Canadian National Shoe Retailers' Association convention which was held in Toronto. Commenting on the increase in prices for all lines of boots and shoes, Mr. Smith said that he, like many other retailers, were selling shoes at less than the present wholesale price. Boots that the wholesalers are now selling for seven dollars and a quarter per pair are being retailed in the stores at seven dollars. In addition to this the retailers are not likely to get delivery of new stock until next March.

"What is the cause of the high prices?" Mr. Smith asked.

"Shortage of leather," he replied. Russia and other countries involved in the world war have ceased for the time being to produce raw material for export. It will likely be some time before this condition can be remedied. In the meantime, higher prices cannot be avoided. Some of the finer leather products such as kid cannot be secured at any price only in very restricted quantities.

Among the prominent speakers at the convention was the Hon. E. J. Davis. The latter prefaced his remarks by saying that if there was ever a time when Canadians should work together in sympathy and fellow-feeling to make this great Dominion a nation, that time is now.

Leather Industry.

Referring to the leather industry and the shoe trade, the speaker called attention to the difficulties with which the shoemen have to contend. These concern styles and prices. The styles that suit one community would not suit another. The prices that would be all right in one community might not be so in another. Then he dealt with the leather business as it applied to his own particular business. During the war and up to the time the armistice was signed high prices obtained. When the armistice was signed up everyone and those most closely connected with the leather industry felt there would be an easing up of the long continued abnormal conditions of prices. To the great astonishment of everyone the prices that had been considered high were cases had almost doubled [illegible] business he had always been fair with the manufacturers who had placed orders with his concern and he always tried to look after and protect the home market. At times when he could have sold his leather out o Canada at a greatly advanced price over the home price, he sacrificed the profit and sold at home. To place orders now either for shoes or for leather at present prices to be delivered at some later date was risky business that should be avoided unless one was sure of his ground and had the stock.

Speaking of market conditions, Mr Davis said there was hardly a day in which notices were not received telling of the rise in price of some commodity. Tanning materials had risen in price from 20 to 400 per cent in some cases. Labour had gone up three times its pre-war price. He had great difficulty in connection with his business in obtaining hides for there is no getting away from the fact that the present leather conditions as to quantity was a straight case of the workings of the law of supply and demand. There was a shortage of stocks all over the world and the need of shoes in the war ridden districts of the old world was so great that it would take a lon gtime to catch up with the demand. All the time the home market must be kept going. It would be many years before the herds would be replenished and this meant there would be fewer calves killed than before the war.

SENATORS WILL TAKE HOLIDAY

SPECIAL LEGISLATION WILL BE PUSHED THROUGH NEXT WEEK.

(United Press.)

WASHINGTON, D.C., July 26.—With the House agreed to a recess for nearly all of August, the plans were under way to-day to push through several important bills next week.

One of the effects of the recess probably will be longer life for 2 per cent. It is not considered likely that the Senate will pass the Prohibition Infringement Bill before the House adjourns. Final approval of the measure will have to wait until the House re-convenes.

The first legislature of the programme for next week is the resolution of the Special House Investigating Committee, ordering Secretary Baker to place a large supply of food on the market immediately, in the hope of reducing prices. Following that, an effort will be made to repeal taxes on soda water and ice-cream, as promised by the Republican Steering Committee.

Legislation preventing for deportation of enemy aliens will be taken up, if time permits.

Chairman Fordney, of the Ways and Means Committee, to-day said the bill licensing and placing a high tariff on dyes will be reported next week, but probably will not be acted on then.

FOR THE CHILDREN'S FRESH AIR FUND.

The appended Scriptural quotation was enclosed in an envelope containing three dollars for the Children's Fresh Air Fund, at Jackson Park. The sender did not disclose his or her name:

"Suffer little children
To come unto Me:
For of such is
The Kingdom of Heaven."

ALLIES WILL NOT ACCEPT TIRPITZ

GERMAN ADMIRAL CAN TESTIFY IN BEHALF OF FORMER EMPEROR.

(United Press.)

PARIS, July 25.—The Council of Five, it was learned to-day, has notified Admiral Von Tirpitz, former German Minister of Marine, that his substitution for the ex-Kaiser, in assuming guilt for the war, is impossible, and cannot be considered.

Tirpitz was told he could testify on behalf of the former Emperor if he wished to take the risk of incriminating himself.

DESPERATE RUSSIAN APPEARS IN 'THE VELVET HAND'

Nicholas A. Dupaew, playing in support of Frital Brunette in her latest Bluebird production, "The Velvet Hand," is a Russian with what he characterizes as "lovely brown eyes."

Writing of his qualifications for the silent drama, Nicholas with becoming modesty says that he is five feet six inches and one-half [illegible] socks and that he has nice [illegible] hair.

His nickname, which [illegible] Nick, is "The Dea[illegible]", a distant relation of D[illegible] Ambrose, the well kno[illegible] of desperadoes. He will [illegible] Velvet Hand" at t[illegible]

WEEKLY TRAP SHOOT RESULT

PULLET AGED 161 DAYS LAYS AN EGG "RECORD," SAYS OWNER

BRANTFORD, July 26.—Hatched on February 3, a Rhode Island Red pullet, owned by Miss Winnifred Wallington of Wilsonville, laid its first egg on peace day, just 161 days after it first broke from its own shell.

Miss Wallington claims that her pullet has set a record, and so far nobody has come forward with claims of a younger chicken having laid an egg.

Latest reports from the Wilsonville chicken run say that the industrious pullet, having begun early in life, may set another record in the number of eggs it lays in a given time.

FARMERS' PICNIC

The Peterborough Branch of the U. F. O. will hold their first annual Picnic by steamer Stoney Lake, down the River, landing for Sports and Supper, on Thursday, 7th August. ## LAST EFFORT TO AVERT ANOTHER LARGE STRIKE

FIFTEEN THOUSAND RAILWAY EMPLOYEES AFFECTED--LAST MINUTE DESPATCHES TO THE EXAMINER.

G.T.R. EMBARGO

(United Press.)

CHICAGO, July 26. — Conferences were to be resumed to-day in a last effort to avert a threatened strike of 15,000 surface and elevated railway employees.

PEACE DELEGATION.

(United Press.)

PARIS, July 26. — The Bulgarian peace delegation arrived here to-day. The terms of the Bulgarian treaty are nearly completed it is understood.

CANAL FOR NAVAL USES.

PANAMA, July 26. — Four United States dreadnoughts were lifted through Gatun Lake yesterday and are anchored in fresh water at the Gatun level preparatory to resuming the voyage to the Pacific on Sunday. In the opinion of the United States naval staff the usefulness of the Panama Canal for naval uses is thus demonstrated.

OTTAWA, July 26. — The street railway strike has been settled without reference to a conciliation board on basis of 39 cents per hour, for first year with yearly advances of 2c per hour up to 45c.

SESSION CONCLUDED

MONTREAL, July 26. — The Army and Navy Veterans' Association concluded its session here yesterday re-electing to the presidency W. Tupper, of Winnipeg.

EMBARGO RESUMED.

MONTREAL, July 26. — The Grand Trunk embargo on freight with Toronto, imposed owing to the labor troubles with the teamsters has been resumed, except in the case of perishable goods for consignees who have not arranged their own cartage.

WILL FLY ACROSS THE CONTINENT

(United Press.)

NEW YORK, N.Y., July 26.—Captain Roy N. Francis, U.S.N., was at Hazelhurst Field, Mineola, to-day, superintending the overhauling of his airplane before attempting a trans-continental flight from New York to San Francisco.

Captain Francis and Lieut. T. W. Welsh arrived at Mineola yesterday afternoon from Dayton, Ohio, having driven their Martin bomber 660 miles in six hours and fifty-two minutes.

STANDARD OIL STOCK ON MARKET

FIRST TIME IN HISTORY STOCK HAS BEEN PLACED ON MARKET

(United Press.)

NEW YORK, July 26. — For the first time in history the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey will place its stock on the New York stock exchange, it was announced here following the publication of an announcement last night to the effect that $1,000,000 of cumulative preferred stock will be issued in a re-financing project. Each holder of common stock will be allowed to purchase one share of the new stock for each share of the old stock, he said. It will be offered at par to conform with the stock record as of August 15th.

Listing of the new stock on the exchange means that balance sheets will have to be offered for the public case according to the rules of the exchange. This also is a new departure. The corporation never has published a balance sheet.

The money derived from selling the preferred stock, it is understood, will be used to carry on plans for development in foreign countries.

ELEVEN PERSONS [illegible]

LAUNCH CAPSIZED--SIX BODIES HAVE BEEN RECOVERED.

(United Press.)

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. July 26.—Eleven boys and men, campers at the Boys' Club Camp at East Otis were drowned in Big Pond at noon yesterday, when choppy waters capsized the launch, towing a flat bottomed boat, in which a party of nineteen were returning to the island after a basketball game on the mainland. Last midnight the grappling hooks had claimed six boys.

Reports as to the number in the tow boat varied last night. Fourteen boys, men on the spot said, were riding in the row boat, but this was emphatically denied by those club officials, who placed the number at ten. The remainder, including the two assistants, camp directors and two tent leaders, were in the launch.

The accident occurred when the boats were about an eighth of a mile from the mainland. The version of the accident told by officials of the club in Sprinfield early to-day, differ in several important respects from the reports of persons who arrived soon after the accident happened.

A LARGE CREDIT FOR GERMANY

ELECTRICAL COMPANIES TO SHIP FOOD TO HUNLAND

(United Press.)

BERLIN, July 26.—New York financial interests have offered to extend Germany a credit of $1,000,000 for the purchase of food and raw materials, according to cable advices received by the Deutsch Bank here today from Martin Nordegg, German financial agent.

Nordegg said in his cablegram he would not close any negotiations until after he arrived here and disclosed who had offered the credit and the terms of the advancement.

Three big electrical companies in Germany, the General, Siemens, and Bergmann, are planning to import weekly immense food shipments from America, it was learned to-day. These companies will distribute the food among their 150,000 employees instead of raising their wages.

Bergmann, formerly a partner of Thomas Edison, is the prime mover in the enterprise.

FIFTY-TWO MEN WERE PLACED

Applications at the Employment Agency were fewer this week than in several weeks previous, only 57 being received.

Fifty-two vacancies were reported and 52 men placed in the city and one carpenter in Windsor.

GROCERY MARKET

Several changes are noted in the grocery markets this week, and the general tendency is towards higher levels, says The Canadian Grocer.

Prices on all laundry soaps have again advanced 50 cents per case. Some toilet soaps, too, have risen to new levels. The stronger quotations on raw materials and the declines in glycerine are the causes of the higher market.

The sugar situation is strong, with no changes in prices. Some wholesalers report very short supplies, but refineries state that there will be no scarcity. There has been some unevenness in the distribution, but it is expected that there will be plenty to meet all requirements.

Corn syrups and corn starches are firm at last week's advance, but dealers are anticipating even higher markets in view of the situation in Chicago corn, prices of which are ruling very high. Cornmeal is also quoted higher this week. Manufacturers of cocoa have advanced their prices in some instances as high as 8 cents a pound.

Teas and coffees are strong, and values are likely to be higher. The market for spices, too, is very firm. Cream of tartar is unchanged. The outlook in nuts is for stronger quotations, as indications point to light supplies, when the demand increases in the fall. Rice has again advanced, and any available is quoted from two to three cents a pound higher.

Canned goods are selling well, but many kinds are cleaned up. Salmon is a big seller, and considerable American salmon is being sold on this market.

New prices are quoted on California prunes, and these show marked advances. Raisins are in light supply and very firm in price. Grecian currants are coming on the market at high prices.

In produce lines, the markets are for the most part firm. Eggs have advanced and production has fallen off. Cheese is slightly weaker on the boards, but prices to the retailer are unchanged. Butter is firm. Cooked meats are a very active sale, and fresh meats are at steady levels.

Tight Money Pinching Many.

Thousands more are being squeezed by aching corns which can be cured quickly with Putnam's Corn Extractor. Being free from caustics, Putnam's is painless. Used successfully for fifty years. Use no other, 25c. at all dealers.

CLEAN FLOORS WELL BEFORE POLISHING

Polished floors should be thoroughly cleaned with water containing turpentine and quite a strong trace of soap, then they can be dressed with a simple polish. Use prepared liquid wax if possible. Apply with a cloth to a clean floor. The harder and closer the wood, the less liquid wax will be needed; the more coarse-grained or open the wood, the more it will take up. Leave until thoroughly dry. The polish will be better if it stands over night. Rub with a cloth of weighted brush.

Envelope drawers can be made out of old nightgowns.

PASSING OF THE NEW YORK CURB STOCK MARKET

This year will probably see the passing of the open New York Curb Market, says the New York Times. Members of the body, who, rain or shine, during the last 129 years have made the section of Broad street below Wall street, the scene of their activities, to the astonishment and amusement of thousands of visitors, are arranging to go indoors.

Wild speculation in oil shares, many of which the District Attorney brands as valuables, is the real reason for the abandonment of an outside market which has existed in one part or another of the financial district since 1790. The Curb Association, a vigilante body formed by the brokers, has been unable to cope with the wildcat traders, who have free access to the outside market. The fact that members of the association refuse to trade with the trades or to transact business in shares not regularly listed with the traders or to transact business had little effect on those who are mulcting the public of millions of dollars annually by foisting valueless securities on to the market and maintaining fictitious quotations.

The Curb Association is to go under cover, and the 300 men who have been bronzed by battling all weathers for five hours in a regular exchange. Outsiders will not be permitted to trade there. The police are competent to handle the remnants.

Great Fortunes Made

In the days when New York was allowed to bet in the open, there was a book maintained on the Curb, and one could bet anything from $10 to $500,000 on games, elections or wars. Seats for popular events always found a ready market, some of which were as active as were securities. A big sporting event always attracted attention, and at one end of the Curb one could buy tickets by bidding therefor, and at the other end bets on the same event could be laid.

Now the curb is busy buying and selling stocks and the daily turnover is valued at millions of dollars.

Fortunes have been made on a shoestring outside and the story is told of one young broker borrowing $50 after a particularly disastrous month and building thereon $500,000 within eight months.

Naturally a market like the Curb free for all, having about the same standing prior to the coming of the association as the average city market, was the scene of some amazing swindles. Fake brokers have traded in fake stocks, and have got away with real securities and cash. Not many years ago an active market was made in a certain copper company, and the promoters sold a great deal of stock. Two days later the small office which bore the name of the company was closed. Another broker now domiciled abroad for a number of years is said to have taken enough money from the clients to reside on the Continent in luxury for the rest of his days.

Other cases of petty larceny have occurred such as inviting people to bring their cash to the Curb to buy stock, meeting them there taking the cash apparently to buy the stock, and then disappearing. All these cases have occurred outside in numbers, but it should be borne in mind that they have not been any prat or parcel of the Curb proper, which stands for integrity and decent business.

Causes High Rents

Windows overlooking the market rent for amounts which would surprise householders who now complain of high rentals. For instance, one cubbyhole of a window seat, which holds 100 telephone wires and room for a broker with a megaphone, rents for $150 a month, and there are plenty to pay double that amount for this place at the moment.

The order is given by the sign language, and is immediately executed and the price signaled back, and thus over the telephone to the waiting client. It is the colored has the sign language which cause so much amusement to visitors.

CHOLERA INFANTUM

Cholera infantum is one of the fatal ailments of childhood. It is a trouble that comes on suddenly, especially during the summer months and unless prompt action is taken little one may soon be beyond aid. Baby's Own Tablets are an ideal medicine in warding off this trouble. They regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach and thus prevent all the dreaded summer complaints. They are an absolutely safe medicine being guaranteed by a government analyst to contain no opiates or narcotics or other harmful drugs. They cannot possibly do harm — they always do good. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

PERSIAN DIPLOMACY.

Not Much Was Said, but the Prince Understood the Shah.

There were great variety and charm in the society of Kissingen, writes Princess Lazarovich in her account of a holiday on the continent. There were people from the four corners of Europe, American and the orient, each having a distinct personality that brought vivid suggestions of his origin.

Prince Malkoim was the diplomatic representative of Persia for all Europe, being accredited at the same time to London, Petrograd and Rome. His wife, a beautiful Armenian princess, a Christian, was one of my dearly prized friends in London. Prince Malkoim told us one day of how he came to be a Persian diplomatic representative. He was a relative of the shah, had been educated in several countries in Europe and had become interested in the Christian religion as the root force of western civilization.

Prince Malkoim told us how he studied and pondered long to hit upon some means of bringing Christian principles to Persians in forms that they would understand, making Christianity the fulfillment of old Mithraic and Zoroastrian conceptions. Having formed a plan, he returned to Persia and began to talk to his countrymen and put before them the ideas that he believed would raise up the fallen nation. The people everywhere listened to him eagerly and followed him about in throngs. Some of them began to proclaim him a prophet and almost worshiped his person. He tried in every way to combat that tendency, in which he saw the speedy and complete wreck of his dearest hopes.

One day the shah sent for him and said:

"My cousin, you are much followed about here. You are exerting yourself too much. You need rest. Would you like to go as my ambassador to Europe—and stay there many years?"

Then Prince Malkoim added:

"I knew what he meant. So with my heart falling like a stone I answered, 'Yes, your majesty, I accept.' On that day I started on my journey westward. And all these years I have been virtually a European."

"But what did the shah really mean?" I asked.

Prince Malkoim grinned, showing his white teeth, and with a queer gurgle made the sign of a knife drawn across his throat.

MEANINGS OF DREAMS.

What Scientific Analysis of Slumber Visions May Disclose.

Scientific dream interpretation helps us to see ourselves as we really are, gives us intimate glimpses of the subconscious as well as conscious desires, fears and modes of thinking that enter into the making of our character and the shaping of our conduct, according to H. Addington Bruce in the Mothers' Magazine.

The compilers of the gaudy little paper covered dream books once so much in vogue went rightly enough on the theory that dreams are symbolic. But they erred by assuming that they are always symbolic of future events and that any particular dream element can always be interpreted as symbolic of the same kind of future event.

Those who expect modern science to provide them with a dream manual akin to the old dream books, so that every one may become his own interpreter at a glance, are consequently doomed to disappointment. Accurate dream interpretation almost always means time and effort. But it is well worth the trouble it costs. All who would discover unsuspected weaknesses and defects in themselves, who would gain a maximum of health, happiness and efficiency through right living, will do well to seek to have their dreams analyzed.

And it is not only for the light it throws on one's nature and character that scientific dream interpretation is worth while. There are dreams which rightly interpreted throw light on the state of the dreamer's physical health, sometimes enabling action to be taken that will avert serious disease.

Spoken With Feeling.

"There are all sorts of synonyms for money in this country," said the talkative man. "We call it 'tin,' 'mazuma,' 'kale,' 'dough,' and a dozen other names I don't recall just now."

A solemn looking man seated in one corner opened his mouth as if to say something and then closed it without uttering a word.

"What is your favorite synonym for money?" asked the talkative person.

"The unutterable," the solemn man replied, and then fell once more into deep thought.

No Use For It.

"Have you a five dollar bill that you don't know what to do with?"

"Yes; here is one."

"Oh, thank you. But I say, this is counterfeit."

"Well, you asked me for one I didn't know what to do with."

When Women Meet.

"That woman pretended to be glad to see me. What an actress she is!"

"But you were a match for her!"

"Yes. I pretended to be just as glad to see her."—Exchange.

His Turn to Ask.

"Am I the first girl you ever kissed?"

"Am I the first man to whom you ever put that question?"—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The best part of our knowledge is that which teaches us where knowledge leaves off and ignorance begins.—Holmes.

The celery should be cooked in boiling salter water for thirty minutes, then drained and added to other ingredients, including lightly beaten egg. Place in a greased loaf tin and bake for half an hour in a moderate oven. Use the liquor in which the celery has been cooked to make a flavored cream sauce poured over the loaf, or serve with tomato sauce if preferred.

ACTIVITY IN THE HARDWARE MARKET

COPPER IS ONE OF THE MOST ACTIVE LINES THESE DAYS.

Copper is one of the most active lines in the market these days and the metal this week shows still further advances with best-informed authorities predicting even higher levels, says "Hardware and Metal." The result of the strength in the metal is being reflected in many manufactured lines, copper rivets and burrs showing a substantial advance along with copper rods, sheets and tubing. Coper wire, electrical basis, is also up another 2c. per pound over quotations named one week ago.

The ingot metal market all the way through is showing greater activity and consequently a stiffening of the prices is noted. Lead and spelter move up 1-2c. per pound with a splendid volume of business reported in the former. Spelter is in fair demand and undertone to trading is one of strength.

Linseed oil has moved up from 2c. to 16c. per gallon in different quarters this week, establishing new high levels for this commodity. When the peak will be reached is hard to determine, though the flaxseed market seems loath to get very much above the $0.00 mark. Conditions tend to firmness at the present level, however. Business in linseed oil, though generally restricted to needs of the trade, is considered very good.

Turpentine continues to soar and new high record prices are being established in the markets to the south almost daily. Locally, prices show a sharp advance of 17c. per gallon and even higher quotations are looked upon as probable. Conditions contributing to the present advances are the shortage of the crop with the heavy overseas demand.

Ready roofing shows an advance this week, prices going up 10c. per square in some quarters. Decided strength is apparent in the market and export business, which has been placed with the manufacturers, is keeping the factories humming.

Padlocks, cotton gloves, sausage stuffers, lard presses and food choppers are among the lines to register a higher level of prices. Hay wire has eased away in some quarters, competition being a factory in this situation. Scrap prices have undergone a general revision upward this week, coppers leading the way. Much improved business has developed and outlook is considered the best since the signing of the [illegible].

FORSAKE THE UNIONISTS.

The troubles of the Union Government continue to multiply. Day after day the opposition to a permanently organized Union Party grows stronger and Sir Robert Borden and those who are associated with him in the attempt to retain in office an administration that was supposed to have been elected for the prosecution of the war, have the most difficult task in their career to conciliate the thousands of Conservatives everywhere who refuse to be herded into line to support the Union. The action of the Central Liberal-Conservative Association of Toronto, in unanimously passing a resolution to be forwarded to Sir Robert Borden informing him that the Liberal-Conservatives of Toronto will no longer support candidates of a Union policy of government, but will support straight Conservatives, will be somewhat of a "facer" for the Premier. There was not a dissenting voice to this resolution. And when H. C. Hocken, M. P., attempted to defend the Union Government and declared that it would be impossible to separate Mr. Rowell and Sir Robert Borden in future politics, he was greeted with jeers and protests. The action of this representative Conservative body will undoubtedly cause some deep thinking at Ottawa, and Mr. Rowell in particular, having burned his bridges behind him by his attack upon Mr. Hartley Dewart, must be indulging in considerable speculation as to what is to become of him, if the Conservative party, to which he has flung himself, is anxious to drop him overboard.

PETERBORO'S COAL RESERVE.

The announcement that the city has a coal reserve of 1,000 tons left from last winter, is welcome news. This supply will not go far in supplying the needs of Peterboro but it will be invaluable in meeting the emergency cases that are bound to come in the winter months, especially if the weather conditions are severe. There is a temptation to dispose of the fuel and so secure a profit by taking advantage of the rising prices but prudence should dictate a careful husbanding of this reserve. The reports from the coal mines and from those who are in a position to know the situation, are not reassuring. The United States, it is announced, is falling short by 125,000,000 tons of meeting the demands, and the situation is complicated by the fact that people who are financially able to do so are not buying their coal at the present time. The railways are best able to transport the fuel now, as later as the movement of the crops leaves them in a poor position to carry the coal supplies.

With 1000 tons as a reserve Peterboro is lucky. The coal should be kept in reserve to relieve those who will be unable to secure fuel next winter.

VARIED OPINIONS.

The Mail and Empire, the leading organ of the Conservative party in Ontario, calls upon the Government to hold the provincial elections on the same day as the referendum. In doing so the Mail argues that Mr. Dewart objects to the two votes being taken simultaneously because such a course would be injurious to his chances. But it is significant that the Central Liberal-Conservative Association of Toronto at a crowded meeting passed a resolution declaring strongly against the proposal of combining the election and referendum, and a committee was wanted to wait upon Sir William Hearst to protest against such a policy which it was declared would be suicidal to the Hearst administration.

Neither the Mail and Empire or the Toronto Conservative Association, however, seems to be worrying very much about the effect upon the temperance issue of having the two votes simultaneously taken. The only concern about the matter evidenced is of a political character. Temperance workers, however, realize that the referendum will be turned into a political issue if the election is held on the same day, and from all parts of the province protests are being forwarded to the Premier. The latter still keeps silent, and Hon. Mr. Lucas tells inquirers that "It is a good time for guessing." There should be no need of guessing if Sir William had courage enough to speak out.

A SWEEPING TURN-OVER.

The result of the Provincial elections in Prince Edward Island in which the Conservative Government was overthrown, the Liberals winning 26 seats out of 30, cannot have been very comforting news to the members of the Federal Cabinet. The dissatisfaction and discontent of the people generally with the Administration at Ottawa, is reflected in the sweeping Liberal victory in Prince Edward Island. Premier Arsenault in fact expressed the opinion that a big factor in his defeat was the fact that many electors held his administration responsible for their grievances against Ottawa. The announcement that a majority of the returned soldiers voted Liberal also has a significance that will not elude the notice of the political observers at the Capital. The veterans of the war have grievances against the Ottawa Government and they took the opportunity of showing these grievances by voting against the Conservative candidates in the Provincial campaign. Beside these factors the Arsenault administration in the Island has not been characterized by a regard for the general welfare of the Province and the electors took there first opportunity of showing their dissatisfaction by the emphatic verdict of Thursday.

FAILURE OF A REVOLUTION

If the grandiose plans made some weeks ago by British, French and Italian labor agitators had succeeded, the parliaments of those three countries might as well have ceased to function. There was to have been a general strike on Sunday and Monday last, a strike for definite political purposes. These purposes included protest against action opposing the Russian Bolsheviki, a demand for the abolition of conscription, and similar affairs of a purely political character. The policy pursued by the elected representatives of the whole people was to be reversed at the order of a class, which was to use the general strike as its weapon. The men who planned this strike included some downright Bolsheviki, chiefly in Italy, and a great many belonging to the class which has become known as not-Bolsheviki-but. Had the strike been carried out, had the parliaments taken fright, we should have had before us a victory of proletarian dictatorship. But the strike did not happen.

In France the General Federation of Labor, a body which differs from the downright Bolsheviki only in its inferior degree of courage, called off the strike on Saturday. The reason given was the vote against the Food Minister the day before, which was hailed as a token that the Chamber was giving attention to the high cost of living and the sufferings of the poor. The Chamber had done nothing about conscription and intervention in Russia, the chief objects of the general strike; but the Federation had discovered that its strike was going to be a failure, and it had to find some excuse for evading the test.

In England there is a multitude of local or special strikes, of which that of the miners is of greatest importance; but the general strike for a political purpose did not come off, nor did the House of Commons disperse. In Italy where the disorders of a week or two before had given the revolutionists most hope of success, the strikes were only local. Here, to be sure, Premier Nitti had already made the concession of promising against the Bolsheviki in Russia and in Hungary; but Italy had been taking little part in Russian affairs for a long time, and as to Hungary, the suspicion has been that Italian influence was doing as much to help Bela Kun and his supplanters as to harm them. In any event, the great demonstration of working-class solidarity was a failure and the Germans, who chose to read it as a protest against the justice of the Treaty, may get what comfort they can from its collapse.

The general strike was a pro-Bolshevist measure, and its reasons for being are still in existence. If it issued in what can only be regarded as a general failure, it indicates that the masses of the working class in Britain, France and even in Italy, are not sympathetic with Bolshevism. The reckless agitators undoubtedly knew this, but they hoped that dissatisfaction over the high cost of living and general economic displacement could be turned to their own uses. They failed in this, and democracy is that much stronger. That the governments in question are doing all they can to correct the economic conditions that favor Bolshevism is hardly to be doubted; and the last few days have shown us that so long as the public has faith in their efforts in this direction the Bolshevist cause will make little progress on its merits.—New York Times.

SECRET SERVICE HEAD THREATENED IN 'PEG

Says Attempt Made to Intimidate Him From Giving Further Evidence.

WINNIPEG, July 26. — Sergeant Albert E. Reames, chief of the R.N.W.M.P. secret service in Manitoba, a witness against the labour leaders on trial for seditious conspiracy, was threatened because of his testimony, it was learned here. "I know who the man is, he is not a foreigner, and he will be dealt with in good time," Sergeant Reames said. "He accosted me and tried to make me make certan admssons. I presume he was trying to scare me so I would not give further evidence."

Mrs. Genevevc Lpsett-Skinner, lady lawyer, writer of the interview on January 13, 1919, in which John Queen, one of the labor leaders on trial, declared himself in favor of Bolshevism, introduced a sensational element into the afternoon session.

"I told Queen who I was and what I wanted, and he told me that the workers were going to take over industrial plants," she said. "I asked him whether they were going to recompense the owners, and he said they were not worrying about it, that the owners had had the plants long enough." I said "that sounds like anarchy to me.' "He answered that it might seem so to capitalists, but that he called it bringing order out of chaos."

I asked him if he did not think the owners might object. He answered that it necessary. He said workers were all who worked with their hands, and that the Bolshevik movement was one of the workers."

A PIMPLE REMOVER THAT NEVER FAILS

Dr. Hamilton Stands Behind His Formula

Bad blood is always responsible for pimples, blackheads and humours.

Pimples, eczema and boils are the common result.

I contend that to cure these ills, the liver, kidneys, and bowels must receive attention.

My remedy, known as Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut, invariably reaches the trouble.

For putting life into sleepy organs, for forcing out every kind of waste and foreign matter, for making health-sustaining blood, where can you find such efficiency as in Dr. Hamilton's Pills?

In a thousand cases I have demonstrated that Dr. Hamilton's Pills cure facial blemishes and skin diseases.

I look upon these pills as the best blood purifier and system builder of the age, and guarantee they will cure every complaint having its origin in a weak or debilitated blood supply.

If Dr. Hamilton's Pills will not cure that tired, rundown condition, if they will not change lack of force into energy and vim, then nothing will.

By creating an abundant supply of rich, nourishing blood they maintain that standard health so much desired by those participating in the strenuous life we live to-day.

A NARROW ESCAPE AT STURGEON POINT

What might have been a serious fire, as far as Sturgeon Point is concerned, occurred in the village Wednesday afternoon. In some manner, as yet unaccounted for, a fire started in the kitchen at Mr. C. D. Barr's cottage, and in a short time this section of the summer cottage, as well as a portion of the dining room were in flames. Only the heroic work of the girls at the cottage, and from adjoining cottages, saved the entire cottage from being consumed.

Considerable damage was done and a quantity of cutlery and utensils were destroyed as well as a fine refrigerator.

LINDSAY TRACKMAN SERIOUSLY HURT

Mr. Richard Heels Supervisor of Track on the G.T.R. at Lindsay, is lying in the Ross Memorial Hospital suffering from injuries, which, it is feared, will terminate fatally.

On Thursday morning Mr. Heels was proceeding towards Cambray on a motor lorry to inspect some track-laying operations. When near that point the lory left the track and landed in the ditch. Despite the serious injuries Mr. Heels sustained, he was able to walk to the residence of Mr. Geo. Robinson, close to the scene of the accident. Mr. Robinson drove him to the hospital and Dr. White, G. T.R. surgeon, summoned. It was found that the unfortunate man was suffering from a very serious concussion at the base of the skull, injury to the back, besides internal injuries of a grave character.

Yesterday his condition was reported unchanged.

AUSTRIAN SAYS COUNTRY STRIPPED

KARL RENNER CALLS SITUATION "AN AMERICAN DUEL —SHOOT YOURSELF OR BE SHOT"—COUNTRY STRIPPED.

VIENNA, July 26.—The new terms of the Austrian Peace Treaty are making no special impression on the general public. The newspapers, however, remark that the world is still attempting to treat Austria as a great state, instead of one which has lost five-sixths of her territory, and been reduced from a great empire of fifty-five million persons to six millions, who are facing a winter in which hundreds of thousands are sure to die of famine or cold.

Bankruptcy Ahead.

The Neue Freie Presse says: "The Allies wish to force Austria into bankruptcy and thereby get a prior claim on her income, which will be applied to damages and reparations."

Dr. Karl Renner, the German-Austrian Chancellor, and head of the Peace delegation which visited St. Germain, in an interview published here, says:

"American Duel."

"We are invited to an 'American duel'—that is, we have the option of shooting ourselves or of being shot. Within the next ten days the Austrian delegates must furnish proofs that Austria is willing to pay, with assets which are non-existent."

Dr. Alfred Treichl, managing director of the Anglo-Austrian Bank, said to-day to the correspondent:

No Food, No Coal!

"Since the war Austria has been stripped gradually of her possessions, until she is now deprived of what other countries consider necessaries of life, as she is without food and without coal. The only solution for our people is emigration.

No Cash.

"With a gold reserve of possibly 300,000,000 crowns we are expected to redeem bank notes in foreign countries totalling from five to seven billion dollars, and a war loan of possibly half a billion, mostly held in Germany. Of forty billion bank notes printed in the empire, we now hold from five to seven billion.

Peace a Farce.

"Whatever the Peace terms, they probably will not be executed, as any commission sent here to supervise their execution will discover that it cannot be done."

QUIT MEAT WHEN KIDNEYS BOTHER

TAKE A GLASS OF SALTS BEFORE BREAKFAST IF YOUR BACK HURTS OR BLADDER IS TROUBLING YOU.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver troubles, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat, and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

WITH FINGERS! CORNS LIFT OUT

Freezone is magic! Corns and calluses lift right off—

Doesn't hurt a bit

A few cents buys a tiny bottle of the magic Freezone at any drug store. Apply a few drops of Freezone upon a tender, aching corn or a callus. Instantly that troublesome corn or callus stops hurting, then shortly you lift it out, root and all, without any pain, soreness or irritation. These little bottles of Freezone contain just enough to rid the feet of every hard corn, soft corn, corn between the toes and the calluses on bottom of feet. So ends the simple. Why wait? Be happy!

BARBARA TELLS MR. FREDERICK HE IS MISTAKEN IN HIS SURMISES

CHAPTER XXV.

I was stunned, unable to make any reply to Mr Frederick for a few moments. He waited, saying nothing more. All the forboding sensations I had experienced concerning Neil's business affairs rushed over me with increased impetuosity. Then suddenly came a sort of indignation. Who was this man that dared to say such things about my husband, my Neil? He was accusing him of dishonesty — at least it amounted to that.

"You are mistaken, I am sure, in what you say," I returned coldly, although I was trembling. "Neil, my husband, is an honorable man."

"I was afraid you might not take what I had to do in the way I meant it. But I had to do it. I couldn't see your husband ruin himself and—others, without a protest."

The man's face would have convinced anyone that he really believed what he said. All my indignation against him oozed away, the while I did not believe what he had told me— rather I tried to compel myself to think I did not believe it. He was mistaken, that was all. He had misunderstood Neil. He had meant well.

"I'm sorry I spoke as I did, Mr. Frederick. I am sure you mean to be kind. But I am just as positive that you are misjudging Neil—Mr. Forbes would do nothing wrong. How you got that impression I do not know. He never talks business with me, so I cannot discuss it intelligently — would not, if I could, without Neil's knowledge."

"Your loyalty does you honour, but—" he hesitated, waited a moment. Then, "but even if I lose your friendship — which I value greatly, I must tell you once more. Try and get Mr. Forbes to go slow. As I said, someone is bound to suffer. Not only you and him, but innocent parties—people who invest all they have in some wild-cat scheme because they, like you, believe in the man who is putting it over. I know what I am talking about. Please forgive me if you can, and believe that I have only done this because of my very real liking for you both. Your husband is a brilliant young man. He can make a good living without—doing things which, to say the least, are reprehensible."

He had risen while talking. Now he extended his hand to me, and after looking in his eyes I took it. His expression was sad, and I knew he had spoken truly when he said that he had meant what he had done as a kindness.

"Can you forgive me?" he smiled down at me. He was a very tall man.

"I forgive you because I know you meant to be kind. But you are as surely mistaken. When you realize it you will come and tell me, won't you?"

"I certainly shall. And no one would be happier than I if that should be the case. I leave for the West to-night, so I shall not see you again. It may be months before I am again in New York. Please do not let what I have said make you unhappy."

I kept a brave face until he had gone. Then all he had said came back with crushing force. Was Neil, in his anxiety to make money, his desire to live handsomely, doing things which "were looked upon with suspicion by conservative business men"—as Mr. Frederick had said? I wouldn't believe it! I couldn't! Why, even father had been satisfied with what Neil had told him of his business affairs. And father was terribly strait-laced. That he was also as ignorant as a baby of the methods of promoters and certain capitalists I did not know, would not have believed. No—Mr. Frederick had been misinformed.

I couldn't sit still, neither could I put my mind upon anything save what had just passed. I put on my hat and took a brisk walk, thinking to rid myself of my "foolish fears," as I called them to myself. But the sensation of foreboding remained with me. I could not shake it off.

I wished Neil were home. I had decided to say nothing of Mr. Frederick's reason for calling on me, but to urge Neil to confide something of his affairs to me, and so convince myself that he was perfectly all right in his methods.

To-morrow—Blaiche Orton Invites Neil and Barbara to Dinner.

WHALING DAYS ARE OVER.

A Once Thriving Industry That Has Nearly Vanished.

At the outbreak of the American Revolution and for a period of seventy-five years following the conclusion of that struggle whaling was the most important branch of the American fisheries. From 500 to 700 vessels sought whales in all the oceans and seas of the world, and in one year New Bedford alone sent out 300 vessels, whose cargoes of bone and oil were the basis of the industrial life of the city.

The pursuit of sperm whales reached its climax in 1857, when oil valued at nearly $4,500,000 was brought in, mostly from the south Pacific. The height of the industry was in 1846, when 70,000 persons derived their support from whales and 730 vessels, valued at $21,000,000, were engaged.

For more than fifty years the fishery has been declining, and in numerous ports that once derived most of their wealth from the industry there have for a long time existed only memories of former greatness. For a number of years the sperm, right and bow head whales that supported the fishery in early years have been very scarce and their pursuit has been unprofitable, and the present importance of the whale fishery, amounting in value to less than 2 per cent of the American fisheries, depends on the taking from shore stations of species of whales that formerly were for the most part neglected.

The glory of the whale fishery has departed forever, and the commercial if not the biological extinction of all kinds of whales is proceeding rapidly, undeterred and unlamented by the principal maritime powers.—Hugh M. Smith in National Geographic Magazine.

Braided Rivers.

A river not confined to a single channel, but broken up into a number of channels, which in turn branch and unite in a complex and confusing manner, is called a braided stream. It is caused by the slight fall of the stream, which prevents it from carrying away all the sediment swept into it by its numerous tributaries.

This material chokes the stream and forces it to spread into many shallow and shifting channels, resembling the strands of a braid. A good example of this is Jefferson river, in Montana.

What Did He Say?

Oliver Wendell Holmes once told Professor Poulton he would never repeat to any one what Tennyson said to him when he entered his house. William James pressed him to do so with the assurance, "There are no reporters here." But Dr. Holmes replied, with emphasis: "I have said that I will never tell any one. It was not a thing that I should have supposed any man would say to a guest he had invited to his house."

Automobiles Break Windows.

When a heavy automobile runs over pebbles no larger than a pea a pebble may be caught just right by the edge of the wheel and shot with such a high velocity that a broken window is the result. One firm in New York has had three windows broken, all in the same frame.

Unfeeling.

"Oh, dear," exclaimed Mrs. Van Style. "I've simply got to have a new gown, and I can't decide what material to make it of."

"Why worry over a mere trifle like that?" asked her husband unfeelingly.

Opening the Stubborn Knife.

Does your penknife blade refuse to open? Here is a certain and easy method of bringing it to terms. Place one corner of your handkerchief over the back of the stubborn blade and wind the rest of it tightly around the knife. Hold the opposite corner between the first and second fingers of your right hand (if you are right handed) and throw the knife from you with some speed. Go over and pick it up and you will find the blade opened. I have yet to find a knife sturdy that it will not yield to this treatment, and—it does save the thumb nail. Outing.

Chip of the Old Block.

"There goes a millionaire who brought his son to everybody who would listen."

"Evidently the young fellow is not like the average heir to great wealth."

"No, indeed. The old gentleman was interested in the stock market last week and when he discovered that his own son had turned the trick he was the proudest man in the United States."

Between Girls.

"She says she wishes she could see herself as others see her."

"That's just an excuse for spending a lot of time in front of a mirror."—Kansas City Journal.

LEAPS IN THE DARK.

Why the Broncho Jumped in His Wild Race at Midnight.

A former herdsman relates a thrilling personal experience connected with a stampede of cattle. He was taking a herd of 400 steers to Leadville and had camped for the night on Bear river, near its junction with the Little Snake. At midnight, when he went on guard all was quiet, but in an hour or so, for some unexplained reason, the cattle were up and off like a flash. Something had stampeded them.

He was riding an old blue colored, tine backed California broncho, just the beast for the work. He had often ridden him a hundred miles a day. The night was dark and cloudy, and he had to rely on the animal's sure footedness as he strove to stay on the flanks of the steers and turn them until their scare should cease.

It was a wild race. Four or five times the broncho gave tremendous jumps, but landed right and went on in good shape. In the course of an hour or so the man had the beeves quieted.

When daylight came, being curious to learn what obstacles had occasioned those tremendous jumps of the broncho, the man set forth to look over the ground. Leaving the bottom land, the steers had ascended a gentle acclivity, and on the plateau at the top he had kept circling them.

The plateau was intersected by a canyon about four miles long and from 1,500 to 2,000 feet deep. Its walls inclined toward each other at the top and the distance across was fifteen or twenty feet.

During the chase the broncho had jumped that frightful chasm four times. His hoof marks were plainly visible, and down in the debris, hundreds of feet below, were a dozen mangled steers that had been crowded off.

STORY OF A SONG.

"Ben Bolt" and Its Author, Dr. Thomas Dunn English.

Of all the American songs none is so hauntingly sweet as that beginning:

Don't you remember sweet Alice, Ben Bolt—
Sweet Alice, whose hair was so brown,
Who wept with delight when you gave her a smile
And trembled with fear at your frown?

Dr. Thomas Dunn English, its author, contributed his poem to the New York Mirror in 1843. It was a work of love, written without compensation to oblige the editor, N. P. Willis, who had recently undertaken to put the paper on its feet.

The poem had a pathetic lilt that attracted no little attention, but its fame did not come until later years. In 1848 Nelson Kneass, an actor, adapted the poem to an old German melody and the air captivated the American people. Then the song crossed the water, achieved an equally great success in England and literally ran round the world.

It remained for George Du Maurier to immortalise "Ben Bolt" in the play "Trilby," where the gentle victim Svengali sings the air so sweetly to Taffy the Irish and Kitty [illegible].

THE
EMPLOYMENT SERVICE
OF CANADA

The PROFESSIONAL and BUSINESS SECTION has been established to assist professional, business and technical men and women.

Many officers, soldiers, sailors and war workers, who sacrificed their positions during the war, now desire to secure employment in the occupations for which they have been specially trained.

Employers should not wait until increasing business forces them to employ anybody they can obtain, but should look ahead and avail themselves of this unusual opportunity to enlist the services of highly trained workers, ordinarily secured only with difficulty. On application there can be referred to you, for example:—

The Shanty-Man.

As the interlocking switch system extends its control of the railway tracks in Canada, the switch-tender, domiciled in his little shanty beside the right of way, disappears. The shanties came into being with the first railroad, and from the beginning the shanty-man made them hospitable places for other railway workers to drop in for a short visit. They were dry when the weather was calm, and their small stoves radiated an inviting warmth in winter; the blizzard might blow its hardest outside, but here was heat and comfort and a host, when he was not out looking after his switches, who had heard the gossip up and down the line, and was a good teller of old tales and listener to new ones. Usually he had come to his shanty after active service as a trainman. The travelling public will hardly know the difference, but to the smaller world that works and lives on the railroad the passing of the shanty marks the end of an era, and the shanty-man's stove will be sadly missed.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

STARTING MONDAY MORNING, 28TH JULY—All those entered in the Contest, or those who wish to enter, will be furnished with Free Vote Books if they call on the Contest Manager at the Grand Opera House. With one of these Vote Books you can easily secure thousands of Votes in a day, and they are free to all that wish to take an active part in the campaign. So be sure and come in Monday Morning and get a coupon Book so that you will get an even start with the other Candidates, for remember, the time in which you have to collect Votes is very short, as the Contest Closes on the 15th of August, 1919.

The Names and Number of Votes that have been cast for each will be shown on the Screen at the Grand Opera House each day.

The soliciting of Votes in or around the Theatre will not be allowed, and anyone violating this rule is subject to being withdrawn from the list. This restriction is made so that each individual Contestant will have the same opportunity to win.

Three of Peterborough's prominent citizens will have charge of the counting of the Votes, and the awarding of the Prizes.

Be sure to come in early Monday Morning, and be one of the first to get one of the Free Vote Books, and start saving the Votes at once. 'Phone number in the Contest Department at the Grand Opera House, 200.

"THE BONDAGE OF BARBARA" RATED MAE MARSH'S BEST

BRILLIANT ARTISTE SCORES IN UNUSUAL ROLE—CAST AND SETTINGS SPLENDID IN NEW GOLDWYN PICTURE COMING TO THE GRAND THEATRE MONDAY, TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY.

Brilliant Artiste Scores in Unusual Role—Cast and Settings Splendid in Goldwyn Picture Coming to The Grand, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday

Mae Marsh in a play by turns startling and charming—that is what is promised in "The Bondage of Barbara", newest of her series of Goldwyn successes. The whimsical star, now a full-fledged mistress of comedy and drama by reason of her steady development in Goldwyn Pictures, finds in Barbara Grey a role that would have taxed her a year ago.

Ranging from delicate, enchanting comedy to scenes such as would be seized upon with delight by any dramatic actress, Mae Marsh without effort achieves distinction throughout. She is amazing.

A brilliant supporting cast, beautiful settings and photography of a kind to draw murmurs of appreciation from audiences—all these factors enter into the production of a Mae Marsh photo-drama which, it is predicted, will evoke national praise. Undoubtedly it will start anew the discussion her plays invariably cause, but "The Bondage of Barbara" will leave no doubt in the minds of the careful critics that it is her supreme accomplishment.

CATARRH COLDS BRONCHITIS

CURED WITHOUT DRUGS

It is really impossible to treat Catarrh, unless by inhaling the soothing germ-killing vapor of Catarrhozone. Its rich, fragrant essences are breathed from the inhaler to every sore, diseased spot in the breathing organs. Not a single germ can escape the healing fumes of Catarrhozone, which acts on the infected linings of the nose and throat just as an ointment would act on a cut finger. You see, Catarrhozone soothes cleanses, heals. It cannot fail to reach and cure Catarrh; it's simply a wonder on weak throats, bronchial coughs, deafness, buzzing ears, and all other symptoms of Catarrhal cold.

Get Catarrhozone to-day. Complete outfit costs $1.00 and is sufficient for three month's use. Smaller sizes 50c, all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont. Canada.

Last year the wheat output of the Prairie Provinces was estimated at [illegible] bushels.

ALLIED ARMY OF OCCUPATION

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, July 26.—The size of the force required for the occupation of the Rhineland, under the terms of the German Peace Treaty, was the question under consideration by the Supreme Council at to-day's session.

For the present, it is said, the force of 150,000 men is likely to be considered necessary on the left bank of the Rhine.

The organisation for the military occupation of Silesia during the taking of the plebiscite there was also discussed by the Council.

The general understanding is that all the Allied and associated Armies will be represented.

JACK PUTWAIN IS DYING.

Jaw and Mouth Paralyzed and He is Unable to Eat.

TORONTO, July 26. — Jack Putwain, the young Toronto bank bandit who was shot in the head when he attempted to hold up R. T. Laing, manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia at Agincourt, in May, is dying at the Jail Hospital. Paralysis has set in and he cannot eat. His mouth and jaw are paralyzed and he has to be fed with liquids. It is only a matter of time.

WEAK, SICKLY FOLKS REGAIN HEALTH QUICKLY BY NEW REMEDY

A BLOOD-FOOD NOW MANUFACTURED THAT ACCOMPLISHES MARVELS.

Lots of people that were thin and miserable for years have recently been restored by this simple treatment. All you have to do is take two little chocolate-coated tablets with a sip of water at the close of each meal.

The tablets which, by the way, are called "Ferrozone," are in reality a perfect food for the blood. They contain exactly those elements your blood lacks when it becomes thin, weak, and unhealthy.

This is just the time to use Ferrozone; it excites splendid appetite, gives digestion splendid aid, supplies nourishment for all weak organs. At once you feel buoyant and strong. Nutritious blood courses through your veins, supplies strength, makes you tingle with animation and ambition.

No more headaches.

None of that tired languor.

You feel like doing things because Ferrozone completely renews and strengthens your whole system.

No medicine on earth gives such quick, lasting benefits as Ferrozone. It has raised thousands from downright weakness, brings robust health simply because it contains the fortifying elements that run-down systems require.

One week after using Ferrozone you'll feel like new, you'll appreciate what real robust health means. In a month you'll scarcely credit the push your vigor and spirits have received. Ferrozone is more than a tonic because its work lasts, its benefits remain and are not temporary. It restores health where other treatments fail, and should be used by every man woman and child. Try it, 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50. Sold by all dealers or by mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ontario.

Attractive Investment

Worthy of the Attention of Local Investors

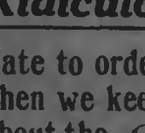
Many investors now regard Industrial stocks as more desirable from every point of view than most other investments now on the market.

And the reason is that if discrimination is wisely used in the selection Industrials offer a degree of safety and assured income bearing hard to equal.

Brokers used to be very careful about recommending any investment except municipal securities. But now Industrial stock is coming to its own, according to a well-known banker, who has much to do with placing them. He says:



"Buying municipals from each other is just like taking in one another's washing, because it don't add anything to the country's production. ..If you buy Industrial stock you are taking steps to increase production and get money in circulation for wages. In fact, you are getting a stake in the country, and extending your interest as far as the company stock, you have a chance to share in big profits."

are offering for investment in the City of Peterboro a limited amount of its par value stock.

In view of the nature of the company's undertaking in promoting this industrial and public utility, which is bound to enjoy a rapid growth and development its stock is considered a most attractive investment.

Why let such an opportunity as this pass?

NEW GEOGRAPHY FOR ONTARIO SCHOOLS TO BE UNDER PREPARATION IN A YEAR

What the coming of peace the new problem of rearranging the map of Europe is to the fore and will soon be a real problem in Toronto. Hundreds of men are now working in Paris on the new boundaries of Europe, and soon in every city in the world, Peterboro included, new geographies will have to be issued. Altogether many thousands of men, draughtmen, lithographers and printers, will be at work on the new textbooks, and many millions of dollars will be involved. The anticipated map of Europe will look about as strange to us as the map of Europe at the zenith of Napoleon's conquests and his empire looked to us before the war. The old kingdom of Poland that has not appeared by itself since the early eighteenth century will be on the new map. Schleswig and Holstein on the Danish peninsula will be Danish in color. A new color altogether will have to be used for the internationalized sections of Dantzig and Constantinople. Altogether between 80,000 and 90,000 square miles will be rearranged.

The educational authorities at the Parliament Buildings are thinking of the changed conditions of affairs already, and fortunately the old contract of the geography runs out next year.

An official of the department said today that the contract for the present geography expires in 1920. The Minister is now considering what book will replace it. The war has made so many changes in political and map geography that the book is in those respects almost out of datet. No time will be lost in getting a new book. The present book will be used for another year.

The new factor of increased prices will be here also. One of the big publishing firms said today that they figured that the increased prices of wages and chemicals would make the map prices more than 100 per cent. more than they were before the war. All of our maps come from the United States or England. Only the Stovell Company of Winnipeg make maps in Canada.

British journalists have been invited to visit Denmark.

Americans in Austria are placing orders for artificial flowers.

DUNCAN M'FARLANE IS SUPERINTENDENT OF PETERBORO'S GOOD ROADS SYSTEM

WAS APPOINTED AT A SPECIAL MEETING OF THE COUNTY COUNCIL YESTERDAY—BELMONT AND METHUEN JOIN THE GOOD ROADS GROUP, INCLUDING MONAGHAN, OTONABEE AND ASPHODEL.

A LONG SESSION

Duncan McFarlane, of Otonabee, was appointed superintendent of the Good Roads system adopted by the townships of Otonabee, North Monaghan, Asphodel, Belmont and Methuen at a special meeting of the County Council yesterday afternoon. His salary is on the basis of $1,800 a year, from which sum he pays all his expenses.

Reeve Griffith of the combined townships of Belmont and Methuen, joined the good roads group yesterday, thereby uniting all the southern townships into an unbroken belt across the county and filling in the gap and completing the link between the roads of Hastings on the east and Durham on the west.

The Belmont Roads.

The roads designated by Reeve Griffith for improvement under the Provincial system are:

(1) The Marmora road from the eastern boundary of the township to the western through old Havelock;

(2) The 8th concession line south and north of Havelock to lot 33 on the 8th concession;

(3) The Cordova road from the east end of Havelock to lot 20 in the 2nd concession.

In the discussion of the acceptance of the Good Roads scheme by Reeve Griffith's municipalities there was some question as to whether Methuen would be included with Belmont. The latter township had taken a pronounced stand in favour of the county roads idea, but Reeve Griffith remarked that some of the Methuen farmers also wanted it. The understanding of the Council was that both townships were admitted.

An Experienced Road Builder.

Mr. McFarlane, addressing the Council, stated that he had been in charge of the road work in Otonabee for ten years and latterly had been in the implement business as a traveller. The township had offered him $5 a day to resume the work after they had tried out another man for two years. That wage was offered him before the war. Mr. McFarlane said he was thoroughly familiar with road machinery.

Passed By-laws.

The appointment of the superintendent was accomplished after four hours had been consumed in what seemed to be fruitless discussions that produced a sheaf of motions and amendments, the majority of which weren't put to a vote. It was half past six by the clock in the County Council chamber, which religiously follows the standard and rural time, or half past seven by the city clocks when the vote was taken. Only twelve members had endured the protracted session, and County Clerk Elliott counted heads to make sure there was a quorum present. The other five had disappeared, one or two of them as early as five o'clock.

County Solicitor E. A. Peck, in the role of "whip," set out to round up the absentees, but returned with the information that he was unable to find any of them in the Court House premises.

Special Tax of 7 Mills.

The twelve members who had stayed to the finish were disbanding after the Council gave a majority of two in favour of Mr. McFarlane, when Mr. Peck reminded them that the appointment had to be confirmed by by-law, that another by-law had to be passed designating the Belmont roads and still another providing for the borrowing of an extra $1,800 which will be raised by a special levy of two mills on Belmont-Methuen. This road tax on the three other townships produced $18,287, it was stated, and the additional $1,800 increases the working fund to $14,487.

Late in the Season.

Mr. McFarlane must be approved as superintendent by the Highways Department, and by time road building or improvement operations begin the summer will be well advanced. This fact was recognized by the Council, but the advocates of action are satisfied that part of Peterborough county has launched upon the Provincial good roads system, however late as it may be. It was intimated that this year's work would produce comparatively small results, but everything was expected to be ready for next year when some of the remaining townships may adopt the system.

For the present the cost of the work will be borne by the five townships, but the appointment of the superintendent had to be sanctioned by the whole Council.

Mr. Would's Demand.

At the special meeting on June 30th, the reeves and deputies of Monaghan, Otonabee and Asphodel were appointed a committee to interview Mr. Chas. Would of Asphodel who had been suggested as superintendent and to bring in a recommendation to the Council.

Reeve Anderson reported yesterday that Mr. Would had named a salary of $1,800, plus his telephone and railway expenses. He was to pay for his own automobile upkeep. It was agreed that he might be recommended, but there was some feeling that Mr. Would's valuation of his services was too high.

The instructions to the special committee as set out in the motion at the previous meeting contributed to the delay in yesterday's proceedings. After half a dozen names had been submitted to the Council and hours spent in discussion, that motion was referred to with some suggestion that there should be some recommendation from the committee. In that connection it was proped to adjourn until the mem- was proposed to adjourn until the mem- supper at the Munro house, and even a Saturday morning meeting was mentioned. The County Clerk, however, intimated that he had the expense checks made out for one day only, and other members were averse to further delay. That item of the debate, however, came in the last minutes of the meeting. Volumes had preceded it, but the Council would probably prefer the deletion of the details, including certain thunderous thumps by way of emphasis that threatened to splinter one of the desks.

The Warden Named.

Early in the session Reeve Bullied moved, seconded by Reeve Clark, that Warden McIntosh be appointed superintendent.

That was followed by Reeve Shaw's motion, seconded by Reeve Griffith, that the Council go into committee of the Whole to hear the Warden.

Warden McIntosh said he had been twenty years in municipal work, during which he had done a great deal of road building. He had a thorough knowledge of road machinery except a roller. "If I am appointed," he said, "I will guarantee a dollar's worth of work for every dollar expended."

Asked by Reeve Shaw to name his salary, the Warden replied that he would leave that to the Council to do what was fair.

Hot Water for Sick Headaches

Tells why everyone should drink hot water with pinesphate in it before breakfast.

Headache of any kind, is caused by auto-intoxication—which means self-poisoning. Liver and bowel poisons called toxins, sucked into the blood, through the lymph ducts, excite the heart which pumps the blood so fast that it congests in the smaller arteries and veins of the head producing violent, throbbing pain and distress, call it headache. You become nervous, despondent, sick feverish and miserable, your meals sour and almost nauseate you. Then you resort to acetanilide, aspirin or the bromides which temporarily relieve but do not rid the blood of these irritating toxins.

A glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, drunk before breakfast for awhile will not only wash these poisons from your system and cure you of headache, but will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary canal.

Ask your pharmacist for a quarter pound of limestone phosphate. It is inexpensive, harmless as sugar, and almost tasteless, except for a sourish twinge which is not unpleasant.

If you aren't feeling your best, if tongue is coated or you wake up with bad taste, foul breath or have colds, indigestion, biliousness, constipation or sour, acid stomach, begin the phosphated hot water cure to rid your system of toxins and poisons.

Results are quick and it is claimed that those who continue to flush out the stomach, liver and bowels every morning never have any headache or know a miserable moment.

The United States Court has broken up the monopoly of the fish industry of the North Atlantic States.

THE CAUSE OF BACKACHE

Only in Rare Cases Does Backache Mean Kidney Trouble.

Every muscle in the body needs constantly a supply of rich, red blood in proportion to the work it does. The muscles of the back are under a heavy strain and have but little rest. When the blood is thin they lack nourishment, and the result is a sensation of pain in those muscles. Some people think pain in the back means kidney trouble, but the best medical authorities agree that backache seldom or never has anything to do with the kidneys. Organic kidney disease may have progressed to a critical point without developing a pain in the back. This being the case, pain in the back should always lead the sufferer to look to the condition of his blood. It will be found in most cases that the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to build up the blood will stop the sensation of pain in the ill-nourished muscles of the back. How much better it is to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for the blood than to give way to unreasonable alarm about your kidneys. If you suspect your kidneys, any doctor can make tests in ten minutes that will set your fears at rest, or tell you the worst. But in any event to be perfectly healthy you must keep the blood in good condition, and for this purpose no other medicine can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Grand Opera House Voting Contest for Automobile and Diamond Ring Starts Off With a Great Rush

The Automobile and Diamond Ring voting contest, which has just been announced by the management of the Grand Opera House, promises to be a very interesting one, and the interest manifest so early in the race is very pleasing to the management of the theater. The prizes are to be a 1919 Chevrolet Touring Car, which was purchased from the Manning Garage, who are exclusive agents for the Agent for the Chevrolet. In addition to the Automobile, a $100.00 Diamond Ring and a $50.00 Diamond Ring will be given as second and third prizes, and which were purchased from the Warne Bros. Jewelery Store, and can be seen on display in the windows of their store. The Automobile is valued at $900.00 and the Diamond Rings at $100.00 and $50.00, each making a total of $1,140.00 in prizes that will be awarded to the three contestants that have the largest number of votes by the 15th of August, 1919. This is without doubt the shortest contest of its kind where prizes of such value are offered. Each detail of the contest has been worked out in such a way that each and every one entered in the race will have the same opportunity to win the automobile. Already a large number of names have been entered to compete for the prizes, and no doubt many more will be received to-day, the fact that the campaign lasts only 3 weeks and a half, which is a very short time for prizes of this value to be used, is an incentive for the contestants and their friends to get busy early in the race. A coupon which is good for five votes is given with each and every paid admission at the box office, and when the holder of this coupon writes the name of the contestant that they wish to vote for on it and drop it in the ballot box, it will be added to the contestants curtain count, which will be thrown at the Grand Opera House every day at each performance.

No contestant will be permitted to compete as a representative of any club, church, labor or social organization, with the intent of turning the prize that they win over for the benefit of the organization. This restriction is made so that it will be fair to all, and so that each contestant will have the same opportunity to win. Be sure and get your votes every time you go to the theater, and cast them for your favorite, or better yet, enter the contest yourself, just fill out one of the nomination blanks and drop it in the ballot box at the theater, and be sure and see the Contest Manager and have the plan of the contest explained to you.

All the contestants that wish to take an active part in the campaign will be furnished with a free vote book if they call on the Campaign Manager Monday morning. All of these prizes will positively be awarded to the three contestants that have the largest number of votes by August 15th, 1919, regardless of the number of votes that the contestants may have, so get in the race and get a good start and keep it up until the 15th of August, and be the winner of the Automobile, or one of the Diamond Rings.

On another page of this issue you will find a complete list of those that have been nominated with the number of votes that have been cast for each up to date. If your name is not included in the list be sure to nominate yourself to-day.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Said

"After all, what a man does with his money is to invest, and there is no better way to invest it than in Life Insurance."

As an ESTATE BUILDER there is nothing to equal Life Insurance.

TAKE THE FOLLOWING ACTUAL RESULT

A young man, sixteen years of age, took out a 15-year Endowment (No. 210180) in the Sun Life of Canada, which matured on the first of April. This young man paid annually $66.30 for fifteen years, and he has now, through that investment, an immediate estate of $1,425.00 in case of death.

DO YOU KNOW THAT THIS AMOUNTS TO ALMOST 15% COMPOUND INTEREST ON EVERY DOLLAR HE PAID? (No wonder Sir Wilfrid said (and he might have added, No better place than the Sun Life of Canada), "There is no better way to invest it than in LIFE INSURANCE."

THE GOVERNMENT HELPS THE MARKET

Agreements by the British Government to take over from Scotch curers unsold herrings to the extent of 400,000 barrels on September 15 has given a new stimulus to the herring fisheries in that country. The schedule of prices as arranged can not be but satisfactory, and it is understood that the fishermen have agreed that 56 shillings will be acceptable to them. The limit placed on the quantity of herring to be taken over by the Government may restrict fishing operations somewhat but fishers have apparently accepted the principle that a "half a loaf is better than none." The herring being taken in Scotland at present are still of poor quality and prices have ruled low. The sale of Scotch herring in the American market and in Europe will depend largely upon its quality, so that it would seem ill-advised for fishermen to undertake heavy packing operations until the quantity is satisfactory. The poor herring will not sell anywhere, and it would certainly be an imposition on the British Government if it were to be obliged to take over a stock that the trade would not dispose of.—N. Y. Fishing Gazette.

CHEESE BOARDS NOT PLEASED WITH 25c FIXED PRICE OFFER

BRITISH COMMISSION REPLIES WITH A TAKE IT OR LEAVE IT TONE

BROCKVILLE, July 26.—A meeting of vast importance to the cheese industry not only of Brockville district, but to all Canada, was held here in the form of a joint meeting of the Brockville Dairymen's Board of Trade, together with representatives of the Boards of Trade of Cornwall, Morrisburg and Iroquois, and representatives of the dairy industry in Napanee district.

The meeting was addressed by Sir Thomas Clement, chairman of the Butter and Cheese Import Commission, appointed by the Ministry of Food in Britain, to handle the dairy products in England as a business concern; Mr. F. Warren, Director of Butter and Cheese supplies under the British Ministry of Food; Dr. J. W. Robertson, C.M.G., Ottawa, Canadian director of food supplies in Europe; Messrs. James Alexander and A. A. Ayer, prominent exporters, of Montreal. After Messrs. Robertson and Warren and Sir Thomas Clement delivered addresses, in which they stated that owing to the British taxpayer's burden, a price of one shilling and sixpence had been placed on goods in England, not more than twenty-five cents could be placed on goods at Montreal, less price of freight from Brockville and all other Boards in Canada. General discussion, sometimes heated, ensued, and the following resolutions were passed:

"That whereas we representatives of Cornwall, Iroquois, Napanee and other Boards, assembled in the Brockville Dairymen's Board of Trade, this 24th day of July, 1919, having just now learned from representatives of the British Ministry of Food that they have, by authority of the said British Ministry of Food, offered only the price of cheese 25 cents a pound, less cost of freight from factory to Montreal."

"And whereas, said representatives of the British Ministry of Food have stated that if the cost of handling cheese and that of exchange can and will be reduced, the price of cheese will be increased to producers;

"Therefore resolved we representatives of producers urge on our Dominion Government to take some action to reduce the cost of exchange, even if it does involve the giving of a large sum of credit by our Government to the British Government for purchase of our Canadian cheese, as we are not satisfied with the named price of 25 cents per pound of cheese, and feel it will have a depressing effect on the cheese industry, and that a copy be sent to Sir Robert Borden, the Prime Minister."

In replying to a vote of thanks Mr. Warren said that he frankly could not remember having heard a stronger expression of opinion than he had heard on the Brockville Board. He reviewed his transaction in Denmark, where the whole product had been purchased within less than a day, and how a sacrifice to Danish producers in order that they might maintain the British market. He was very sorry that he would have to return to London, feeling that he had not given entire satisfaction. He would be happy to present any resolution, but would have preferred to return with none at all.

DUNCAN M'FARLANE IS SUPERINTENDENT

Mr. Peck was called upon at that stage to supply an answer to Reeve Bullied's question as to whether the Warden should first resign from the Council before he could apply for the position or get it.

Mr. Peck stated that Mr. McIntosh could resign as Warden, but not as a member of the Council. To do that he would have to go back to his township council and there hand in his resignation as Reeve.

Mr. Shaw pressed the Warden to indicate the salary he would expect.

Warden McIntosh—I would take $1,500 and bear all my own expenses.

Reeve Shaw, moved, seconded by Reeve Griffith, that the Warden be appointed superintendent of the County Roads system.

Ex-Reeve Walsh Proposed.

Reeve Coughlin, of Douro, stated that ex-Reeve M. Walsh had offered to take the position at $1,500 and pay his expenses. He moved, seconded by Reeve Clark, that Mr. Walsh be appointed.

Reeve Anderson Next.

Reeve Brown moved, seconded by Reeve Coughlin, that Reeve W. A. Anderson of Otonabee be appointed.

Replying to this motion, Mr. Anderson remarked that he was deeply interested in the success of the Peterborough County Roads system. "With only three or four municipalities in the system," he said, "it may be hard to pay the Superintendent's salary and the other costs until all the townships do what Reeve Griffith has done today. If we get a good, conscientious man we need have no fears. If I were appointed I would give my time on a daily rate based on a yearly salary. I'd be willing to take hold of it at the start on the basis of $2,000, paying all my expenses, but I would charge only for the days on which I would be actually engaged."

Reeve Shaw—You wouldn't be working in the winter.

Members stated that this offer was the best that had been made.

Reeve Matheson moved, seconded by Reeve Lean, that Mr. Anderson be appointed.

Mr. Clark announced the withdrawal of his support to Mr. Coughlin's motion for the reason that Mr. Walsh was not a resident of any of these townships.

Mr. Coughlin—Douro is ready to go in, but she is staying out because she fears that the superintendent who will be appointed will not give her a fair shake.

Mr. Anderson—The superintendent may be dismissed at any time.

Mr. Coughlin—But the Department has the final say.

Followed an argument on the question as to what extent the Department would interfere.

An Easterner.

Reeve Griffith proposed the name of David Little. He said that Mr. Little was an old railroad builder with a wide experience with road machinery, and would take the job for $1,800, paying his own expenses.

Reeve Lean seconded Mr. Griffith's motion in favour of Mr. Little, and Reeve Shaw seconded Mr. Coughlin's motion.

Such was the trend of that phase of the meeting. The next stage was a recess of fifteen minutes following the Clerk's suggestion that the applicants within the Council make out their applications in writing, accompanied with a notice of resignation. If the Council chose any member as superintendent, his resignation would be accepted first in order that the proceedings would be proof against injunctions. The resignations of the others would then be torn up.

This interlude had the effect of eliminating both the Warden and Reeve Anderson as possibilities for the position, as neither applied.

Deputy-Reeve Eason's characteristic "let's do something" brought results. Mr. McFarlane had submitted a revised application in which he offered to do the work for $1,800 and pay his own expenses.

Reeve Nicholls moved, seconded by Reeve Brown, that the representatives of the interested townships get together and recommend some man.

Reeve Coughlin countered with a motion to adjourn, seconded by Reeve Lean.

And finally Reeve Anderson moved, seconded by Deputy-reeve Middleton, that Mr. McFarlane be appointed at a salary of $1,800. It should be recorded by way of elucidating the proceedings that before the Nicholls-Brown motion for a committee's recommendation, Mr. Eason and Mr. Bell had moved in favour of Mr. McFarlane, and Mr. Brown, seconded by Mr. Nicholls, proposed Mr. Would.

It was the Coughlin proposal of an adjournment that precipitated action.

Warden McIntosh called for the vote on the Anderson-Middleton motion in behalf of Mr. McFarlane, and upon Reeve Shaw's suggestion a standing vote was taken resulting in 7 to 5.

The members had reached for their hats and some of the hardy twelve were out in the hall feeling that they had done a day's work when Mr. Peck reminded the Council of the by-laws which he had drafted and prepared.

With that the 12 dropped into the nearest seats, and the Warden promised them that ten minutes would wind up the straggling ends of by-laws that put part of the last reluctant county into the Good Roads fold.

TO ABOLISH CENSORSHIP

Removal of Canadian and British Cable Censorship on July 23rd.

The Great North Western Telegraph Company announces that the Canadian and British censorship of cable and wireless messages will be withdrawn at midnight, July 23, after which time such messages may be exchanged with all British territory with the same freedom as to use of code, etc., as existed prior to the establishment of the censorship. Many foreign administrations, however, still maintain censorship, and until these countries announce the abrogation of their censorship, restrictions on cable messages to and from such countries will remain in force. The following are the principal countries which have not yet announced the abolition of their censorship: France, Italy, Japan, Portugal, Belgium, Holland, Scandinavia, Switzerland, occupied Germany, Turkey and the Balkan States.

PURCHASE OF RANKS WAS ABOLISHED

On Tuesday, July 29, 1871, a Royal warrant, abolishing the appointment to the position of officers in the British army of those for whom they had been purchased by themselves or their families was signed by Queen Victoria. An act of Parliament for this purpose, introduced and advocated by the late William Ewart Gladstone, then Prime Minister, had been accepted by the Houses of Commons and Lords. This royal warrant declared that on and after the 1st day of November in that year, "all regulations made by us or any of our royal predecessors, or any officers acting under our authority, regulating or fixing the prices at which any commission in our forces may be purchased, sold or exchanged, or any way authorizing the purchase or sale or exchange for money of any such commission shall be cancelled and determined"; for which last word we now in modern common English should say "terminated." The last war shows the benefit of this abolition by the efficiency of officers and by privates rising to commissioned ranks.

HER LITTLE GIRL HAD DYSENTERY

Bowels Moved as Many as 25 Times a Day.

Dysentery manifests itself with varying degrees of intensity, but in well marked cases the attack is commonly preceded by some amount of diarrhoea, which gradually increases in severity, and is accompanied with griping pains in the abdomen. The discharges from the bowels succeed each other with great frequency, and the matter passed from the bowels, which at first resembles those of ordinary diarrhoea soon change their character, becoming scanty, mucous or slimy, and subsequently mixed with, or consisting wholly of blood. Never neglect what at first appears to be a slight attack of diarrhoea or dysentery may set in.

Cure the first symptoms by the use of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

Mrs. Jno. V. Tantou, R.R. No. 8, Watford, Ont., writes:—"My daughter was taken down, two years ago, with dysentery, and I could find no help for her until I got a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. She was only two years old, and ate something different to what she was used to. She had as many as twenty-five movements a day, and mostly blood. We had the doctor several times, but no relief came until we used 'Dr. Fowler's.' I would not be without it in the house for a good bit."

Be sure and get "Dr. Fowler's" when you ask for it. Price, 35c. a bottle, put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

MOTOR WEATHER GUIDE.

How many, after starting out on a motor trip for the day have been painfully disappointed with the weather and had all their plans frustrated. Here are a few weather suggestions which might be observed by the autoist when planning his next picnic or motor trip in the country:

A grey sunset or one where the sky is green or yellowish-green, indicates rain. A red sunrise, with clouds lowering later in the morning, also indicates rain. A halo occurring after fine weather indicates a storm. A coronal growing smaller indicates rain; growing larger, fair weather. A morning rainbow is regarded as a sign of rain; an evening rainbow of fair weather. A deep blue color of the sky, even when seen through the clouds, indicates fair weather; a growing whiteness, an approaching storm. Fogs indicate settled weather. A morning fog usually breaks away before noon. A particularly fine morning with heavy dew will likely bring rain before night. Unusual brightness or twinkling of the stars, likewise rain.

JACKSON STILL AT THE TOP OF THE LEAGUE

LEADS ALL THE CITY LEAGUE REGULARS WITH THE STICK—HEAD, ORIENTALS' CATCHER, IS SECOND IN THE LIST—THE OFFICIAL FIGURES ON THE PERFORMANCES OE CITY LEAGUE PLAYERS AND TEAMS.

Walter Jackson of the Matthews-Blackwell team, back in the game again this week, added four points to his record and is still leading the City League hitters with the fine average of .450. Head, the Oriental catcher, is the second regular with .409, and Adams of the Packers and Cavanah of the eD Laval are tied for third place with .385. Cherrett of the Orientals comes next with .375 and leads all the players who have participated in all the games played by their team. Cherrett shares with Lowe and Jackson of the Matthews team the honor of leading the League in run-getting, each having thirteen runs to his credit.

The team averages show Orientals leading both in fielding and hitting with the Matthews-Blackwell second in both departments.

COUNTIES FINED FOR BAD ROADS.

Lennox and Addington Pay $450.00 For Not Making Repairs.

TORONTO, July 25.—Judge Madden this week found the counties of Lennox and Addington guilty of continuing a nuisance by not keeping the Napanee Road in repair.

Besides paying the fine of $250.00, they will be held to pay $100.00 more for contempt of Court in refusing to abate the nuisance. Several doctors and citizens testified to the deplorable condition of the road.

CHINA, TOO, IS ALIVE FOR BETTER HIGHWAYS.

Kingau Whang of Pekin, China, is the special commissioner sent out by that country to investigate economic conditions in this country. He states China is keen for motor cars and trucks, and is awakening to the need of better roads. There are more than 1,000,000 soldiers in the army; most of them are to be put on road building during the coming year.

"Overseas" countries are an unlimited field for Canadian and American manufactured shoes.

UNIONS RECOVER FROM THE ONE BIG UNION MALADY

C.P.R. Machinists Reorganize Regaining Strength—Not More Than Five Per Cent. For O.B.U.

WINNIPEG, July 26.— The members of the Canadian Pacific Railway Lodge 182 (machinists), met Thursday night, James Somerville, international representative, having called the meeting, the object being to re-organize the body. This was accomplished with a total of over 200 from the old membership of approximately 860, and it was announced that many others had signified their intention of joining within the next few days.

Loyal Lodges.

"All the five lodges," Mr. Somerville stated, "comprising the machinists and helpers, are being reorganized. I further anticipate that all of them will show loyalty equal to that of the international number 182. Outside of the city, I am in a position to state, all our lodges are remaining loyal to the international organization, and not more than five per cent. of the membership is likely to go over to the one big union. I say this advisedly.

Reorganization.

"The other four suspeded lodges of machinists are in course of re-organization, and this work will be completed within the next few days. I might add that Local 457, comprising the machinists employed in the contract shops, is solid for international. The new delegates were elected to the Trades and Labour Council, and is expected to support the constitution of the Trades Congress."

Last Joint Meeting.

Winnipeg, Man., July 26.— A special meeting of the Trades and Labour Council will be held next Tuesday evening to consider the report of the committee appointed on constitution for the central labour body. This may be the last meeting at which the members of the unions affiliated with the international bodies and those favouring the one big union will be together in the same body.

SCARLET HEELS ON BLACK SHOES

LONDON.—The little scarlet heel worn on a black shoe is one of the most attractive little fashion fantasies of the moment. Worn in conjunction with the white stocking it is rather fascinating for the dansants, and also for informal little dances.

At some of the famous costumieres the red heel is adopted by the mannaquins when they are showing madame the latest Paris confection—positive sign of its smartness. Of course, with a shoe of this kind nothing but a silk stocking must be worn.

The initial bracelet is having a great vogue—it is demure in comparison with the fashionable broad bracelets worn above the elbow, and now in evidence with the popular short sleeve.

The tiny initial made of diamonds reposes on the neat moire ribbon that is so fashionable as a wrist bracelet. The initial may be that of the wearer or that of the fiance who has presented the gift.

I notice a great many "hoop" wedding rings in the west end shops. They are in gold and platinum, and are like miniatures of the slave bangle in shape. I have not observed them on the fingers of newly-wedded brides, however.

Checks are still very much worn, and there is a black and white check mackintosh that a very popular because it is not expensive. Checks are, of course, always more or less a side line in fashion matters, but the most aggressive draught-board shaped checks are to be seen for pyjamas in pink and white and blue and white.

Pom-poms are being used again on hats, but they fall over the brim of the chapeau and are quite a quaint little fantasy.

TO PROVE HIS FAITH.

A "Holy Roller" Let a Rattler Bite Him Five Times.

TUSCUMBIA, Ala.—To exemplify his faith in the religion he had accepted and in the power of the Almighty to save those who put their trust in Him, Cleveland Harrison, 32 years old, a citizen of Colbert County, is dead after two days' intense suffering from the bites of a rattler at a meeting of the so-called "Holy Rollers," which was being held near Tuscumbia last week. The pastor in charge of the meeting stated that one of the sect, who had such great faith that he would allow a rattler to bite him, felt sure that he was immune from the poison at St. Paul at one time was immune from the strike of a serpent.

Harrison at once came forward. He caught the snake just below the neck and the rattler struck him five times in rapid succession on the arm between the elbow and wrist. The minister stated that Harrison had allowed himself to be bitten before, and surely there would be no harm result from the bites. Harrison was at once seized with sickness, and after lingering two days died, despite the attention and treatment of physicians.

There has been more demand for Montreal potashes in Britain, but stocks are very small.

DIRECT ACTION FRANKLY BOLSHEVISM, LONDON PRESS FORECASTS BITTER FIGHT

LONDON, July 26.—The British press made no attempt to conceal its alarm over the direct action ballot pointing out that a strike embodying political demands would mean a direct blow to organized government, tending toward Bolshevism. "It would mean," said the Evening News, "that the miners, railwaymen and transportation workers claim the right to force their views on the rest of the nation, under the penalty of poverty, and starvation, if resistance was offered. This is frankly Bolshevism. It means an attempt to place the House of Commons under the authority of the workingmen's council."

The Westminster Gazette declared: "The strikers are proposing to usurp the power which constitutionally is given to Parliament. If the trade union movement commits itself to that line of action, it will be broken. There may be a sharp struggles in the process and suffering may be inflicted on a vast number of innocent persons, but the end is certain."

The Evening Standard said: "It is almost incredible that any body of trade unionism contemplates such a challenge to the nation."

Most of the papers do not believe the workers will tatke the extreme step of a general strike, but that more moderate counsels will prevail. If the "trinle alliance" decides to strike however, the Government apparently is determined to fight to a finish.

HISTORY OF THE 93RD BATTALION

By C. R. WIDDIFIELD

The following paragraphs concerning the 93rd Battalion are from the book which is being written by Mr. C. R. Widdifield, a former officer of Peterboro's famous unit. The remainder of the book will be completed as soon as Mr. Widdifield receives the necessary information concerning the rest of the boys.

The order for the mobilization of the 93rd. Canadian Infantry Battalion was issued from Ottawa on the first day of November, 1915.

At this time it was found by the military authorities of Canada that the system then in operation for obtaining recruits for the Canadian army was not working satisfactorily, and some other system had to be enforced if Canada were to do her full share in this great international war.

The new method inaugurated at this time, was to have each county or union of counties raise a complete battalion, and for this purpose to systematically organize the whole county for the obtaining of recruits.

The 93rd Battalion was one of the first, if not the very first battalion, raised in Canada under this method, and was the outgrowth of a neucleous of men already recruited for the 80th. Canadian Infantry Battalion, which was at that time training at Barriefield.

First Commanding Officer.

The first commanding officer of Peterborough's own battalion was Lieut.-Col. Joseph Mills, who at the time this unit was first organized, was in France, being an original 2nd Battalion officer, going there with the rank of Major and was subsequently promoted to the rank of Lieut.-Col. Colonel Mills, however, was not in command of Peterborough's battalion very long, as soon after his return to Canada, he received a staff appointment. The next and last commanding officer was Lieut.-Col. T. J. Johnston, who practically had command of the unit from its inauguration, and remained at its head till the same was broken up a year later in England.

This unit recruited throughout all the winter of 1916, having its headquarters at the city of Peterboro, with detachments in Apsley, Lakefield, Havelock, and Norwood, about the first of June 1916, moved to Barriefield, where it remained under canvas till the 12th of July, 1916, when it entrained for Halifax, enroute for England. While in Peterborough County, the battalion always received a good name from everybody, and always behaved themselves as individual members, like gentlemen and soldiers, taking part in all the social entertainments and in all other ways mixing and making friends with the civil population. During the winter the battalion organized a hockey team, which won its group in the intermediate series of the Ontario Hockey Association, and was eventually returned as military champions of the province of Ontario.

Leaving Peterboro.

Many people will remember the day when the boys left Peterborough for Barriefield, as never before in the history of the city was there such a crowd at the Grand Trunk station, as there was that day, and the boys left with the feeling that their future events would certainly be appreciated by the people left behind. While in Barriefield, the 93rd Battalion was recognized as one of the best disciplined units which had ever been camped on those famous old grounds, and their knowledge of drill, and military manouvres were in the same class.

After several different orders and many delays, the unit broke camp and on the night of July 12th., amid cheers of other battalions, marched from Barriefield to Kingston where in two detachments, the battalion started on their first steps for foreign shores.

The journey to Halifax lasted for two days, and on the night of the 14th July, 1916, the trains pulled into the station, where the next day they boarded the Empress of Britain, and that night steamed out of the famous old harbor, and everyone then really realized that he was taking a journey, the outcome of which was very uncertain.

The Sea Journey.

The journey on the boat lasted ten days with no disagreeable happenings, as the water was as smooth as a billiard table all the way.

On the arrival of the ship at Liverpool, the battalion entrained for a destination, which was only known to a few, and which eventually turned out to the small village of Westenhanger, in the county of Kent.

The camp was about two miles distant from the station, and known as Otterpool Camp, the place of one of the first air raids over Great Britain by the Hun, and where only a short time before several soldiers were killed by a bomb dropped from a German machine.

The camp was nicely situated on high ground, however, the accommodation was not of the best, and not nearly as good as we had in Barriefield.

The battalion remained there until some time in September, when those who had already not been drafted to some unit in France were amalgamated with the 39th battalion at Sandling, which unit afterwards became the 6th Canadian Reserve Battalion. It was at this time that the famous band of the 93rd. Battalion, which had so often delighted the people of Peterborough with their music, was broken up, and after much trouble and many disputes, the instruments of the band were sent to Peterborough, where they rightfully belonged. It was while at Otterpool that all the men underwent their final medical inspection, and some of the men were declared unfit for actual front line work, while others were found unfit for any service in France whatsoever, and for this reason many never got any farther than England, and eventually returned to Canada at an early date.

Units at the Front.

The reader will remember that the units at the front, which the 93rd reinforced at this time, were very numerous and scattered throughout all the Canadian Corps, however, the reason for this is as follows:

At the time of the war when the battalion arrived in England, no systematic plan of reinforcing front line units was in force, such as afterwards was formed, and any unit in France which needed more men, were liable to obtain them from any quarter in England where there happened to be Canadians stationed.

The plan which was afterwards worked out, was to form reserve battalions or regiments in England, which reserved battalion always supplied men to the same units in France, according to the part or district in Canada where the men came from. Thus, if this plan had been in operation in July, 1916, the 93rd. battalion would have been taken over by the 6th Canadian Reserve Battalion, the Eastern Ontario Regiment, and would have been divided as reinforcements among only a stated number of units, in the firing line, instead of being drafted among so many.

The units for which the 6th Canadian Reserve Battalion trained men were at first the 2nd and 21st battalions, however, early in 1916, the 38th. and Princess Pats were added to the list.

Before commencing the personnels it might not be out of place to mention the service of the medical officers, Majors J. H. Eastwood and G. S. Cameron, who, between them examined all the candidates for enlistment into the 93rd Battalion, and who were always ready and willing at any time to perform their share of the work in this respect.

As a sample of the personels the following will suffice:—Lieutenant Colonel T. J. Johnston.

Enlisted in the C. E. F. on the 5th day of September 1915, and was appointed senior major of the 80th. Battalion, and took charge of recruiting "D" Company for this unit. When the 93rd. Battalion was formed, he took the same position, and on the appointment of Lieut.-Col. Mills to the staff, was appointed commanding officer. He was in France with the 18th Battalion, returning from there on the 9th day of January, 1917, and eventually to Canada, where he was honorably discharged on the 28th. day of May, 1917.

ENGLAND'S NEWLY RICH IN MAD RUSH FOR ART

Those Enriched by the War Pay Any Price Demanded for Another Treasure.

LONDON — England's newly rich, the persons who have accumulated millions during the war and since, are buying at any price demanded, furniture from some of the ancient houses of the country, jewels form some of the looted palaces of Russia and other continental countries and paintings from anywhere if they bear the mark of time.

There is no lack of jewls for those who have te price and are willing to pay. Many beautiful pieces of jewelry the history of which is not given by the dealers, but which experts say could come only from the wealthiest families in Russia, are finding their way into the market. Enormous prices are being asked and promptly paid while the cost of ordinary stones, diamonds for instance, has risen to unheard of heights. Many old English families also are selling off their jewels.

Flowers and fruit for the elaborate entertainments which are beginning to mark the appearance of the newly rich are commanding fancy prices, such as $25 for an orchid and $1.50 for a peach.

Automobiles are very scarce and expensive in Britain. Some of them command as much as $10,000 to $15,000 and they are models of three and four years ago, while new machines are almost unobtainable. The maker of the most famous English car turns out only about 800 each year, and it is said he has already booked his entire output for this year and next.

This extravagance is attracting wide attention from newspapers and public men. "Peace has brought an orgy of spending," says one writer, "which high prices do nothing to check. The higher the price the easier it is for those who have money to draw the big lines of demarcation between themselves and the crowd.

FRENCH TROOPS GO TO ESCH

FRANKFORT, July 26. — French troops have been sent to Esch, Luxemburg, on the demand of the Communal Council, to protect the foundries. This action was taken because of the departure of American troops from Luxemburg.

RECORD ESTABLISHED FOR EARLY CUTTING OF WESTERN WHEAT.

BRANDON, Man., July 26. — Robert Roderick, farmer of Brandon Hills, is cutting wheat. He commenced one field on Tuesday that was sown on April 15. He declares it is the finest crop since 1914. It is thirty years since wheat was cut in this particular district during July. Wheat fields in the Assiniboia River Valley are ripening fast.

FRUIT MORE PLENTIFUL.

Recent rains have helped the fruit districts considerably, and at the same time helped the consumers to buy fruit at lower prices than would otherwise have been possible. Nearly half the varieties shown on the wholesale market yesterday were offered at considerably lower prices than earlier in the week.

Canteloupes, for instance, were down to $6.50, as compared with $8.00 on Monday and Tuesday. Currants were selling at 15 cents, and the last of the gooseberries were around $2.50 for a large basket. Fairly good green peppers could be bought at $1.00. Green beans were as low as 40 cents, as compared with $1.00 on Wednesday. Cucumbers were also amongst the lower priced variety, selling at 50c and 75c for a large basket.

"The rains over the week-end," said a wholesale dealer, "made all the difference. Had it not been for the rains prices would have advanced considerably, and in some cases would have doubled. To-day's fruit is perhaps the best, taking it all around, that we have had this year."

PLAGUE OF LOCUSTS ALMOST OBSCURE SUN

RIO JANEIRO, July 26.—This city and vicinity are suffering from a plague of locusts. Clouds of locusts from the south swept in upon town massed in such dense swarms that in some places they almost obscured the sun. Damage to the crops and to vegetation in general in the interior is feared.

VOL. XLIII NO. 22 — PETERBOROUGH, MONDAY, JULY [illegible] 1919 — PRICE TWO CENTS

CONSPIRACY DISCOVERED

REVOLUTION PLANNED IN ITALY—WAS ORGANIZED ABROAD.

STRIKE THE PRETEXT

(United Press.)

ROME, July 28.—Government officials, according to the "Popolo Romano" to-day, have discovered a conspiracy organised abroad, in complicity with Italian revolutionaries, aiming at a revolution in Italy.

The revolution was to have been staged under the pretext of a general strike, 20th and 21st July, the newspapers stated. The conspiracy is said to have centred in the Italian industrial and agricultural districts where the peasants were promised a division of the lands.

Following Premier Nitti's speech before Parliament, in which he presented the German Peace Treaty for ratification, the Senate gave a unanimous vote of confidence in the Government.

The Premier emphasised the necessity for the Italian people co-operating with the Government in its efforts to maintain order throughout the country. This was essential, he said, if Italy expected to obtain credit from the Allies, urging the reduction of unnecessary expenditures.

Premier Nitti declared that Italy must raise ten billion lire from foreign sources.

ALAN STUDHOLME DIED THIS MORNING

WELL KNOWN LABOURMAN HAD A STROKE.

(Canadian Press.)

HAMILTON, July 28. — Allan Studholme, labor member for East Hamilton, in the Ontario Legislature, died this morning from a stroke which came last week when he was attending a football game. He was born in Birmingham, England, in 1846. For many years he was the only labor member in the Ontario House.

CLEVELAND TRACTOR HAULED SHOW DRAYS

[illegible] ability of the Cleveland tractor for which Mr. G. A. Gillespie has the agency was demonstrated on Saturday night and early Sunday morning in hauling the big circus waggons of the Polack shows. The tractor hauled all the waggons out of the Exhibition grounds after which they were drawn by teams to the G. T. R. freight yard at Charlotte, and the last two waggons were pulled in tandem from the park to the station by the tractors. Some of the waggons weighed eleven tons. The train was made up about seven o'clock yesterday morning and left for Hamilton at 7.30 o'clock.

Ewes, $9 to $10.50; lambs, $19.50 to $20.

Hogs, fed and watered, $24 to $25.

Calves, $17.50 to $19.

GRAY-DORT SALES ARE INCREASING

The Duffus Garage reports the sales of Gray-Dort cars to be on the increase and running up into the double figures. Within the past week or two twenty-seven individual Gray-Dorts have been sold and other valuable prospects are in sight. These sales have been made principally to some of our most influential citizens, and are indications of the wisdom of the Duffus Garage in linking up with the Ford another medium-priced car, with increased power, strength, up-to-date equipment and more luxurious upholstery. When you give the Gray-Dort a second look from the curb its merits stand out unmistakably.

THE WEATHER

Yesterday was another warm Sunday, the highest point reached being 93 degrees. Have you noticed how many of our really hot days this summer have come on Sunday? Yesterday makes the eighth day for July of 90 degrees or over. The storm of last night while big in promise, did not bring very much rain, only .03 of an inch. Heavy rain fell in other sections, however.—W.P.

COAL CRISIS IN WINNIPEG

(Special to The Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, July 28.—Winnipeg is confronted with the most serious coal crisis in its history, according to the opinion expressed by Alderman Frank Fowler on Saturday.

Wholesale and retail dealers voiced similar opinions. Unless drastic action is taken immediately to solve the problem, local consumers will not obtain Western coal next winter.

Dealers said that between four and five thousand miners at Western mines have been on strike since 23rd May, and transportation to Winnipeg is virtually tied up.

AMENDMENTS TO LEAGUE COVENANT

CHARLES R. HUGHES DECLARES IN FAVOUR OF PEACE LEAGUE.

(United Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Charles R. Hughes, in a letter to Senator Frederick Hale, of Maine, made public to-day, declared in favour of a League of Nations, but maintained that certain reservations and interpretations to the present Government were necessary to protect American interests.

The interpretative reservations suggested by Hughes were:

1—That any nation, after giving the two years' notice of withdrawal, shall cease to be a member of the League despite any charge of non-fulfilment of any intrnational obligation, providing the withdrawal would not release the Power from any debt or liability.

2—That questions relating to immigration or import duties, while they do not affect any international engagement, should be regarded as matters of domestic policy and not within the jurisdiction of the League.

3—That the United States, under the Article of the Covenant (referring to the Monroe Doctrine) does not relinquish any of its traditional attitude toward purely American questions, and that the United States may prevent the acquisition by a non-American Power of any territory or control in the Western Hemisphere.

4—That the United States, under the Article of the Covenant, does not assume any obligation to employ its Army or Navy in any expedition that is not authorised by Congress.

FOURTH ANNIVERSARY SALE

PETERBORO SHOE STORE OFFERS A BENEFIT TO THE PUBLIC.

Not in the memory of the present generation have shoe prices been as high as they will be in a short time, according to what can be learned on the subject. No guesswork about it—leather and other materials, wages, etc., command prices hitherto unheard of, and are becoming more costly almost daily. It is hard to say what fall prices will be, but the increases promise to be of surprising proportions. Such being the case, the opportunity for saving money at the anniversary sale of the Peterborough Shoe Store, now going on, should create a big rush of business. Those who are now, or will be, in need of shoes for the fall and coming winter have everything to gain and nothing to lose by taking advantage of this sale at once. The announcement of the Peterborough Shoe Store in Friday's Examiner of very radical reductions in the prices of footwear, will give many a chance to save while this sale lasts. Everybody interested ought to take advantage of the offerings made. This firm has had a very satisfactory year's trade, and are willing to sacrifice prices now for ready money, and to make room for next season's stocks.

WINDS SWEPT LAUNCHES FROM THE LITTLE LAKE

High winds blowing across the Little Lake last night made of it a "no man's land" for the launches and smaller craft that braved the gale. Waves rolled past the cemetery point so high that the boats could not turn westward into them and had to tie up on the lea shore of the cemetery for the night while their occupants had to walk home. Other boats drifted in to the Crescent street wall and stranded there. It was easy and safe enough crossing the lake with the wind but turning was very dangerous and it was practically impossible to make any headway against the big waves that were rolling high with white crests that stood out sharply against the growing darkness.

TROOPS LOOK FOR A NEW HOPE

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, July 28. — Troops of the Hungarian Soviet government at Budapest, were said to be about to abandon support to Bela Kun, head of the Communist government there, according to advices received here to-day from Vienna. Bela Kun's financial embarrassment was reported to be very serious. It was said that the Soviet government had nothing but paper money that had ceased to have value.

CONSUMERS MAY ORGANIZE TO COMBAT HIGH PRICES

WASTAGE AT STORAGE PLANTS IS A SCANDAL, DECLARES MRS. J. CAMPBELL MACIVOR.

HIGH PRICES

(Special to The Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, July 28.—There is no reason for high prices of eggs and the wastage at storage plants is a scandal. This opinion was expressed on Saturday by Mrs. J. Campbell MacIvor, editor of the Women's Century, the official organ of the National Council of Women, in an interview with an Examiner correspondent.

Mrs. MacIvor and Mrs. W. R. Jackson are on the way home to Toronto from a seven weeks' tour of the West.

"The Government is the only institution that can deal with the matter," Mrs. MacIvor continued. "We ought to have Government storage plants. But prices will never be reasonable until consumers' leagues are formed all over the Dominion. Consumers are the only body of people not organised. We cannot deal effectively with organised trade until we are organised ourselves.

"The National Council of Women have taken the matter up, and Mrs. Newhall, of Calgary, is endeavouring to get consumers organised."

When asked for her opinion of the butter situation, she said the reason for the high price was the shortage created by the enormous export to Great Britain.

Mrs. Jackson and Mrs. MacIvor left on Saturday for Toronto.

PASTOR DEMANDS FREE SPEECH

REV. DR. BLAND MAKES STATEMENT IN BROADWAY METHODIST CHURCH—SHARP REPLY FROM MEMBER OF BOARD.

TORONTO, July 28.—A sensation developed in the Broadway Methodist Tabernacle, corner of College street and Spadina avenue, at the regular evening service yesterday when Rev. Dr. Salem G. Bland, who only recently became pastor of that church, made a statement alleging a hostile attitude on the part of officials of the Quarterly Board towards his statements both from the pulpit and in other public meetings respecting the labour problem. Dr. Bland, who hails from Winnipeg, is well known as a radical thinker and a candid speaker and his participation in one or two local labour demonstrations has aroused some criticism.

Proceedings Illegal.

Dr. Bland stated that a short time ago the Quarterly Board met and passed a resolution by a majority of one censuring him for his identification with the labour movement, that he thereupon placed his resignation in their hands, which they accepted, that later this whole proceeding was found to be illegal and that Saturday another meeting of the Board was called by him at which the Board confirmed its former position. Dr. Bland then emphatically stated that his public pronouncements on the labour problem he believed to be Christian and Methodistic and that no person or body of persons could prevent him from publicly expressing his views on the labour problem. When he concluded his statement the congregation warmly applauded him, but just as his hands were raised to pronounce the benediction, Mr. M. A. Sorsoleil rose from his seat in the congregation and, addressing Dr. Bland, said that he had created a totally erroneous impression of the Board's position on the labour question. Then came this rejoinder from Dr. Bland, "In my first conversation with you, you said 'They think that you are exploiting the Church at the expense of labour'."

According to the discipline of the Methodist church, Dr. Bland's pastorate there cannot be terminated until one year after assuming it, which means that he will continue to preach in Broadway Tabernacle until about July 1, of next year. The controversy between him and his Quarterly Official Board will by that time have been dealt with by the Conference authorities.

TOMATOES BECOMING MORE PLENTIFUL NOW

Tomatoes and thimbleberries will be leaders in the fruit and vegetable retail trade this week. Tomatoes will sell down to 15 cents or less a pound and thimbleberries at 30c or less a box. There are a few huckleberries offering with some late raspberries.

W. J. Oke reports the arrival of a car of bananas which was being distributed to the retail trade this morning. Potatoes are beginning to come freely into the market with the price slowly receding. The potato market is generally strong and will show a tendency to hold its firmness until the later varieties are harvested.

Early plums are on the way and may be nearly twice as dear as last year.

Grimsby reported by telephone this morning that none of last night's storms passed over their district which needs rain at once.

WIDER DISTRIBUTION FOR THE DAILY PAPERS.

As the postmen do not deliver mail on Saturday afternoons, the Postal Department directed the daily papers to be sent to a bookseller for distribution.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., has requested the department to send these papers to whatever newsstand is selected by the subscriber and not to any one man. Mr. Burnham also states that if the postmaster is notified, the subscriber may have his paper sent in this way.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR THE COMMISSION

LABOUR LEADERS WILL ATTEND WHEN THE COMMISSION RE-ASSEMBLES.

(Special to The Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, July 28.—Wide opposition to the Robinson Commission, and some resentment against it, has developed in the ranks of labour. In spite of this fact, however, labour leaders will attend when the Commission reassembles on Tuesday [illegible] ing.

The failure of the Commission to handle the question of discrimination, coupled with the attitude of Judge Robson, Commissioner, who adjourned the Commission on Thursday with the statement that labour must first prove the strike free from criminal taint before the Commission could take further action, is responsible for the changed attitude toward the Commission.

"We asked for a Commission," said Ernest Robinson, secretary of the Trades and Labour Council, today. "So I suppose we will go ahead with it."

The sore spot in the whole matter, however, is that labour has been asked to accept the assumption that the strike was wrong and unjustified, and to bring proof to support the contention that the big walk-out was legitimate and justifiable.

"I do not see why [illegible] should be asked to prove something that has not been charged against them," said Mr. Robinson. "[illegible] sidered innocent [illegible] the same thing apply in this case?"

REV. F. E. MALOTT GAVE AN ADDRESS AT SUMMER SCHOOL

At the Summer School held in Belleville last week, the Rev. F. E. Malott, of this city, gave the closing address on "How to Use the New Testament in Teaching." What we do in Sunday School is about the most serious thing we do, and sometimes it is done inadequately and unscientifically, said Mr. Malott. His criticism he wished to be of a constructive character. A hopeful feature is the fact that from year to year many young people gather for study in schools such as this and go home as leaders in religious education.

SALVATION ARMY BAND WENT TO BOWMANVILLE

In a fleet of eight automobiles the Temple Band composing (38) members journeyed to Bowmanville yesterday. Leaving the Temple at 6.45 the first car reached Bowmanville at 8.30 and the last arriving at 9.30 a.m. Only one mishap was encountered on the outgoing journey being a small puncture. This was soon fixed and the car reached its destination without other mishaps.

On arrival in Bowmanville breakfast in first class order was served to the men also provision was made for a wash and brush up.

At 10.00 a.m. the band held its first open air service after which heading The Great War Veterans who attended the army for Morning Service and were addressed by Chaplain Capt. MacElhiney who accompanied the band for the day.

Following the open air Services in the afternoon which were appreciated and well attended a great musical Festival was held presided over by Mr. Holcroft in the Army Hall, this being packed to its utmost capacity.

Another open air service in the evening was held followed by the last meeting of the day. This again was well attended and at the close of this service about 9.00 p.m. the return journey was made with a few slight mishaps to the cars all the men arrived safe this morning early after spending one of the best days in the history of the Temple Band.

All previous records being smashed both financially and otherwise.

TORONTO STRIKERS RETURN TO WORK

THE MEN RETURNING TO A 48-HOUR WEEK—FEW CHANGES.

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, July 28. — With the stupendous total of nearly $2,100,000 lost in wages by the thousands of strikers in the Toronto metal trades industry who been been out since the first of May, the men have bowed to the inevitable and will return to work defeated. This strike, which stands without parallel in Toronto, represents a total loss of approximately four hundred thousand working days, in view of the fact that one time many thousands of workers in other lines of industry aligned themselves with the metal trades workers, in sympathetic action to force a settlement for the machine men.

Return to Work.

The men return to work on a 48-hour basis with pay for 50 hours. The machinists held their meeting on Saturday night and by a divided vote, decided to accept the employers' offer which has been open to them for a month, and which they could have obtained at the very outset of the strike. The pattern makers also voted in favour of returning immediately, while the decision of the moulders has been left in the hands of their union executive officials. The boiler makers and blacksmiths complete the roll of the principal crafts affected.

Original Demands.

The original demand was for a 44-hour week, with substantial increases in the wage scale. While this has not been obtained, certain concessions have been made by the employers and the men expect that a rate of approximately 76 cents per hour will prevail. The general expressions of opinion among the men forecast a more intensive organization which will centre the entire metal trades industry in one provincial council, which in case of future dispute, will be able to make its pressure felt throughout the province at any stated time. Such an organization has been mooted for some time and officials in the various unions while refusing to make any statement for publication to the effect, tacitly admit that such a programme has been favoured.

One of the questions which will have to be settled now is that of adjusting the wage schedules being paid by the various shops that signed up with the union during the strike.

Such firms are now paying higher than the general rate, and will doubtless cut their rates to meet the scale being paid by the larger employers.

It is not expected that the men will just when the general return of the men will commence as several minor points will have to be adjusted, but union headquarters reports that they are already returning to the various shops in small numbers. It will also be difficult to obtain an accurate estimate of the number of men returning, but a conservative figure places their number at thirty-five hundred.

REPLIED TO REV. MR. M'KENZIE'S LETTER

MOTHER ASSURED HEAD OF GROVE SCHOOL THAT HER SON HAD NOT BEEN SEVERELY WHIPPED.

A sequel to the police court case in which two boys were given a taste of the "cat" for breaking into a number of stores was the reply of the mother of one of the lads to Rev. Mr. McKenzie, of Lakefield, who in a letter to the press criticized Magistrate Dumble's sentence. The mother thanked Mr. McKenzie, who is principal of the Grove school, for his interest in the welfare of her son, and assured him that the whipping had been given at her request. When she had taken her boy home the marks of the strap were scarcely visible, and in her own statement the policeman had been less severe than she herself would have been.

A police officer, referring to this form of chastisement, remarked that some of the censure that had been written and spoken seemed to assume that this duty was relished by the man who was detailed for it. There had been verbal pictures of big policemen wielding the cat like Cossacks. In this case the mother requested the police to whip her boy as a warning and a corrective to save him from the "reformatory" to which he might have been committed and there thrown in with companions more experienced in crime than himself. Police deny that they had ever been severe with boys, and usually no whipping is given unless the parents request it.

The mother remarked that she wished the facts of the case would be given to the public and to the authorities mainly for the reason that she hoped that no steps would be taken against Magistrate Dumble because of her request, which she believed had largely guided His Worship in dealing with the two boys.

LANDED A BIG FISH ON SATURDAY

Mrs. E. L. Ingall and daughter, Miss Effie, landed a good sized maskalonge at Stoney Lake on Saturday. The fish was secured quite close to "Medawawbeek," the pretty island cottage belonging to Mr. and Mrs. John Nugent of Brock street.

ONLY ONE CASE.

A case involving a breach of the Motor Vehicle Act was the only item on the police blotter this morning.

MUST SUBSTITUTE NEW GOVERNMENT

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, July 28.—Commenting on the Allied message to the Hungarian people, promising the lifting of the blockade and food relief if a Government with which the Peace Conference could deal was submitted for the Bela Kun Government, Paris newspapers make the point that this action by Supreme Council is tantamount to breaking off all negotiations with the Hungarian Government as at present constituted.

DERBYSHIRE MINERS RETURN TO WORK

TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND ARE STILL OUT IN THE YORKSHIRE DISTRICT.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, July 28.—All the miners in Derbyshire who went on strike last week returned to work to-day as a result of the settlement of the mining dispute reached between the Miners' Federation and the Government.

In Yorkshire, however, 20,000 miners are still on strike.

Herbert Smith, the leader of the Yorkshire miners, who remained aloof from the conference last Friday in London at which the settlement was reached, maintains that the employees must make the next move toward the effective readjustments arranged between the Federation and the Government.

REVOLUTIONISTS WERE EXECUTED

OLD BELA KUN HAD A BIG RECORD LAST MONTH.

(Canadian Press.)

[illegible] month of June, 81 Hungarian revolutionists against the present Hungarian Government were shot or hanged by order of Bela Kun, according to a statement in a copy of Bela Kun's organ, the "Voros Ujhag," of Budapest, which has just been received here.

The newspaper comments on the Hungarian Communist leader's strong attitude.

REVOLTS SUBDUED.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, July 28.—Regarding recent reports of mutinies of the garrisons of Croatia, a Belgrade despatch today declares that the revolt was purely local and was quickly subdued. It adds that there are proofs that the mutinies were brought about by agitation on the part of the foreigners.

SOLDIER DIED ON HOSPITAL TRAIN

SAD FEATURE OF JOURNEY FROM PORTLAND, MAINE.

TORONTO, July 28.—It was an exceptionally sad hospital train that reached North Toronto on Saturday evening. One man, Pte. J. P. Murphy, had died very suddenly when about three hours on the journey from Portland, Maine, where the Essequibo docked on Friday afternoon, one hour after the men were all entrained.

Pte. Murphy was ill from neuphritis, but not so dangerously ill to be left behind. Fifteen minutes before his death he was walking around in the coach. The doctor, who was in the next compartment when the cry came for help, had not time to reach Pte. Murphy before he was beyond hope of recovery. He died from sudden hemorrhoids.

Altogether on the hospital train, there were eleven officers and 194 men, 20 of whom were double amputation cases, 26 stretcher cases, and 16 tubercular patients, who suffered on account of the long confinement in the hot coaches.

One man had had a severe hemorrhage on the way. He was taken in a special ambulance to St. Andrew's Hospital.

BLACKS AND WHITES STAGE ANOTHER KILLING MATCH

POLICEMAN SHOT IN THE ARM—TWO BLACKS BITE THE DUST.

ORIGIN OF TROUBLE

(Canadian Press.)

CHICAGO, July 28.—The situation in the Black Belt of Chicago, where race rioting late yesterday resulted in the death of two negroes and the injury of perhaps fifty or more whites and blacks, including four patrolmen, is under the control of the police to-day.

Accounts of the origin of the trouble differ, but the version accepted by the police to-day is that fighting started at the 29th Bathing Beach, where whites and coloured people are accustomed to swim in Lake Michigan, although the two races are separated by an imaginary line.

This version of the affair says that a negro boy on a raft crossed the boundary line, and that while boys threw stones, knocking the coloured lad into the water, he was drowned.

After this fighting had begun, the trouble broke out further when, near the centre of the coloured district, John O'Brien, a policeman, was attacked by a mob at 39th and Vat Streets, after he had tried to rescue a fellow-policeman from a crowd of negroes. Several shots were fired in his direction, and he was shot in the arm. He drew his revolver and fired into the crowd, three coloured men being hit.

One of them died later in the hospital.

LETTER TO WILSON.

(Canadian Press.)

CHATTANOOGA, July 28.—A declaration that before the negroes of the country again will submit to many of the injustices which "we have suffered at the hands of the white men," they will have to kill more of them than the combined number of soldiers that took part in the great World War, is made in a letter written to President Wilson by Rev. J. G. Robinson, presiding elder of the African Methodist Episcopal Church at Chattanooga, and made public here to-day.

The letter, written by Rev. Robinson, who acted as spokesman for the delegation of bishops and laymen of the African Church, which presented a pledge of loyalty to President Wilson at the outbreak of the war, appeals for the President's support in their behalf to prevent lynchings, and to have the Southern [illegible] negroes on the jury.

TROUBLE RENEWED.

(Canadian Press.)

CHICAGO, Ill., July 28. — The trouble between the whites and the negroes was renewed in Chicago's Black Belt to-day when Moses Thomas, a negro, fired several shots at a waggon load of white workers being taken to a south side factory.

When an attempt was made by the whites to disarm him, several blacks rushed to his assistance.

The police quieted the disturbance, and reported that nobody had been injured.

HUNS LOSE IRON ORE BEDS.

Output Will Be Cut Almost in Four —Less Coal.

Figures prepared by a member of the British Financial Commission on the subject of Germany's losses in the iron and steel industry as a result of the peace treaty, indicate a reduction of 74 per cent. in her iron ore output; 28 per cent. in her coal industry, while she releases to the allies 116 blast furances and 141 foundries. She loses 74.7 per cent. of her zinc and 87.9 per cent. of her blast furnaced.

It is estimated that her annual pre-war production of steel ingots through concession of territory in France alone, will be reduced to fourteen million tons from twenty million tons, while France's capacity will be increased from five million to eleven million tons.

OH, YES, SHIP WAS CHRISTENED—SO WERE SPECTATORS

NEWARK, N.J., July 28.—A dozen ordinary folksey people who never dreamed of having a champagne bath were liberally doused with 'wealthy-water" when Miss Hazel Hannah, pretty resident of Montgomery, Ala., knocked a foul in christening the new ship, Fourth Alabama. As the new ship started to slip on the ways, Miss Hannah swung the champagne bottle and hit the prow a glancing blow. The ship was officially christened all right, but so were the front rank of spectators.

SILVER PENCIL WAS FOUND IN TREE.

Last spring, Matthew and John Linton, of Plainville, cut down a large cedar tree about four feet in diameter.

While splitting the wood last week a silver pencil, with the inscription, "Tom Haig's Old Rye Whisky, Best in the World," was found in the centre of the tree.

It is believed that the pencil was hung on the tree, when the tree was young, when men were cutting ties for the old Cobourg and Peterborough Railway nearly seventy years ago, and the tree has grown around it. The silver is a fine grade, and pronounced better than that in use to-day.

GET ON THE LISTS.

Those who are eligible to vote on the coming prohibition referendum and in the coming elections, which apparently are not far away, should not fail to realize the importance of having the enumerators put their names on the list. The work of compiling the voters' lists will be completed on Friday, and although it will be possible later to have additions made on appeal, the electors will save themselves much time and trouble by making sure that their names are put on this week. Many houses in the city are closed just now because of the absence of the occupants on vacation trips, and as the enumerators are securing their information at residences and not at at business places or factories there is a possibility that many names may be omitted unless the voters themselves see to it that their names are included. Mr. J. F. Strickland is the chief enumerator for West Peterboro, and those who have reason to believe that they have been missed would do well to get in touch with him during the next day or two. After Friday there will be no chance of getting on the lists without the bother of an appeal. Voters should protect themselves and take no chances.

NOT SERIOUSLY THREATENED.

The announcement by the United States Shipping Board of the intended construction of two mammoth steamships for the transatlantic trade indicates that it may be some time yet before aerial navigation is so perfected that dirigibles such as the R-34 will offer serious opposition. The big British dirigible took three days to cross the Atlantic; the new liners planned by the United States Government will make the crossing from New York to Europe in twenty-four hours longer, a matter of four days for the voyage. The steamships will be 1000 feet long, equipped with oil-burning engines, and having in all ten decks, with accommodation for three thousand passengers, one thousand of whom will be saloon passengers. In addition the vessels will be able to carry cargoes greater than have ever before been sent to sea in ships. They are to be fifty feet longer than the Leviathan (the former German liner Vaterland), and will have a gross tonnage of 55,000 tons. With steamships of this type plying regularly on the Atlantic and doubtless Great Britain is planning similar vessels, there will have to be many improvements both in safety devices, speed and comofrt for pasengers in aerial transportation, before the steamship is seriously threatened by the ships of the air.

LET US UNITE.

All through the war, while German guns were pounding Allied front lines, and German bombs were battering Allied cities ordinarily far beyond the danger zone, German propaganda no less desperately spread poison gas through every Allied nation in a frantic endeavour to create misunderstanding and differences which would weaken their co-operative war efforts. And we have to-day in Canada, in shame let it be said, men so stupidly blind or so daringly unscrupulous as to attempt to serve sectional or private ieentr tawgyobs Vcmfwy sisrnoe cond among the varied elements which we must weld into a solid, coherent nation if Canada is to find her real and rightful place in the world.

The worst of these conspirators are those, in this province and elsewhere, who by playing upon differences in language, religion, and in ideas about education, would set Quebec against the rest of Canada, and the rest of Canada against Quebec. Their success would hamstring Canada's progress, would set her back hopelessly in the international industrial race, and would eventually smatch the Confederation, if not the Empire. It is to this end that the extremists of Quebec, and the equally culpable bigots who beat the same drum in Ontario, are working, whether by reasonable design or blind, bull-headed stupidity.

Properly understood and properly handled, Quebec, instead of a source of discord, should be an influence to ponify and harmonize the other variant elements now boiling in the national melting-pot of the Dominion.

Quebec is progressing, and slow to appreciate that kind of quiet humor. The average French-Canadian is appreciative, law-abiding, and rooted deep in his native soil with an affection which newcomers to this new world often fail to understand. His outlook may not be broad, for he knows little and cares less for the swirling world outside his pleasant back-water, but it is unclouded by any of the red heresies which are sweeping away old foundations elsewhere. Naturally, his attitude in all things is conservative—and the Lord knows we ne°d, in these days of frenzied radicalism, a stronger el°ment of cool deliberation in our public affairs; more of the disposition that, while proving all things, holds fast to that which is good.

But Quebec went wrong on the war; it voted almost solidly against the Conscription required to support our men overseas, say the irreconcilables. Which illustrates the weakness of most general statements. If voting "anti" was "treason," there were thousands more traitors in Ontario than in Quebec, and a score of thousands more in other provinces. The official returns show that while in Quebec 220,070 civilian electors voted against the Union, the "antis" in Ontario numbered 235,998, and in the other provinces 249,592. Quebec in fact, contributed considerably less than half of the opposition votes. So even if Union Government were as popular to-day as a year ago, there is slight ground here for feeling against Quebec. Anyway, the thing is past and gone. The issue is dead. New issues are alive and impending. Let's forget and get together.

Canada needs Quebec—needs the sanity and sobriety of her counsels as much as her wealth of forest and stream and mine and soil. The statesmanship which fails to utilise all these assets in Canada's impending difficulties is weak and short-sighted, or worse. Apart from her firebrands, whose influence has weakened greatly the last couple of years, Quebec is not exorbitant in her desires. Her people are proud and sensitive and very susceptible to real or fancied slights even from sources which should be negligible. We must have regard for these susceptibilities and consider carefully the conditions upon which they are based and the demands that thence arise. French-Canadians are entitled to generous treatment, both as fellow-citizens and as a minority in a British country under a flag which stands always for tolerance and fair play. Their views are entitled to respect and their constitutional privileges demand not only justice, but generosity and friendly conciliation.

The alternative is up to the rest of Canada whether Quebec shall be a liability or an asset; a problem or a partner; whether it shall become a clog in the gears or more power in the motor of this great Dominion.—Montreal Star.

By Speeding the Liver Dr. Hamilton's Pills Bring Good Health

Good for Men, Women, Children

After a strenuous day outdoors, when winds, heat and exhaustion have combined to take away one's freshness and caused the skin to wrinkle and sag—or after a tedious or fretful day indoors— one often has urgent need for some quick rejuvenator. Maybe there's a dance on for the evening, or some other social event. How in the world can one make herself presentable, looking as she does? It's quite easy.

Just get an ounce of powdered saxolite and a half pint with hazel at the nearst drug store, mix the two and bathe the face in the solution for two or three minutes. Then look into your mirror and behold the wonderful transformation! Wrinkles have vanished, loose, tired muscles have been rested and "firmed up," marks of fatigue have flown, and you look so much brighter and younger you can hardly believe your eyes. No one need hesitate to try this, the witch hazel and saxolite being so perfectly harmless.

CONDITIONS IN ITALY.

Not As Bad as Made Out, Says New Consul at Montreal.

MONTREAL, July 28.—The newly appointed consul general for Italy in Canada, Chevalier Gulio Riccfordi, has arrived in Montreal to take up his duties of office. Chevalier Riccardi, who comes here in succession to Chevalier Leopoldo Zunini, held the consulate of his country until recently in Rio de Janerio, and has formerly been in the consular service in the United States. He has just returned from Rome, where he went for a vacation of three months. He states that the political situation in that country is fairly quiet, and that the labour troubles have been exaggerated. The chief problem at present is that of food supplies and that arises principally from the lack of tonnage.

BRITISH LABOR HOPES TO RULE

WOMAN LEADER TELLS OF TRIPLE ORGANIZATION TOWARD BLOODLESS REVOLUTION

NEW YORK,— When Frank A. Vanderlip, on his recent return from Europe, said that England had narrowly escaped a revolution during the labor troubles of last Winter, none of his startling assertions aroused so much attention as this in the United States.

Miss Margaret Bondfield—in this country as the representative of the National Federation of Women Workers of England, considered one of the foremost labor leaders of that country—now says that the revolution there has already begun and that forces the strength of which is not recognized outside of Great Britain are already organized and need but to be extended to bring about, in an orderly manner, fundamental changes which would put the workers in possession of the Government and the industries. First, she expects a labor Parliament within a few years: "but that," she adds, "would only be a beginning."

"The labor movement in England is organized in three branches, distinct yet working together," said Miss Bondfield in Washington the other day when asked what the forces she referred to were. "It is unlike anything you have in this country, and I am here in the hope that something similar will be undertaken by the workers of the United States, for we have national as well as international aims. You have the beginnings of the movement, but they are not developed as they are in England. The worker in England is organized from three main aspects or functions; first as a producer in the labor union; second, as a consumer in the co-operative union and third, as a citizen in the Labor Party.

British Labor's Trinity

"It is, you see, a trinity, three in one, but each keeps to the separate field of activity. There is no supreme authority over all; unity and harmony of action is obtained by joint committees, which meet for the consideration of policies that apply to all. Thus these forces are brought to bear on every question of importance that arises on any one of the three sides of the problem.

"Take the trade union first. We have 4,500,000 members and are now making plans to increase their strength by the amalgamation of large groups. A committee of twelve from the Trade Union Congress is at work on a scheme to incorporate in a new plan the advantages of the form of both the industrial union and the craft union, with some eliminations from the craft form, which hitherto has been the accepted one. The new plan will aim at industrial grouping, all the unions in one particular industry linked. This will include unskilled, as well as skilled, workers, everyone, for example, in a mine, even the donkey boy and the girl at the pit brow. In the basic form the organization has been through the industries, in clearly defined groups. Wage claims were put in separately, by one craft at a time. Under the new form we expect to put in wage claims as a whole, for the industry concerned.

"For instance, in the textiles the spinners would put in a wage claim; then, a month after, the weavers would ask the employers for a raise, with the danger of bringing on an industrial crisis and holding up the whole industry to the disadvantage of both the employers and the employes. We will still have craft groupings for we want to preserve all the fine standards of workmanship, but the policies will be along the broad lines of the industrial group.

"On the question of pay the general feeling in our country is that the stability of workers depends on how far we can get in obtaining a decent standard for the men at the bottom. That standard must be not only one that will provide the actual necessities of food and clothing and shelter but one that will make guarantees for recreation and against sickness. You can see how low some of these are now when it is known that the Board of Trade this week voted for only 28 or 30 shillings a week for some classes of workers. Before the war the Rowntree standards were 21 shillings a week, and the purchasing power of money has sunk so since that what a shilling will buy is cut in half. We must have better conditions, and strong labor unions were never so imperative as they are now.

Work of Co-operatives.

"But there is another way of bringing about the changes we aim at—the co-operative movement, which has now reached an extent that it caters to about one-third of our population though the actual shareholders number less. The co-operative Union does a wholesale and retail business and is also reaching out for the source of supplies, the raw material. We have a large staff of lecturers abroad in England to increase the already great body of co-operators, and we expect to control prices by becoming the largest purchasers, and that very soon. We are already strong enough to control the price of tea, because we are the biggest buyers; we own not only ships for bringing the tea to England, but also tea plantations. We are not yet in control of flour, but advancing toward it."

"Have you reduced the price of tea?" we asked.

"We have kept it from going higher," was the answer, "just as during the war when the Government fixed the price of the loaf of bread at nine pence we continued to sell ours at eight, and on account of the public need then permitted the poor who were not members of the Co-operative to buy of us. But our policy is to sell at the market price; the gain to our consumers comes in through the distribution to them of the profits. The shareholders get nothing; their investment is for the purpose of participating in the benefits of the Co-operative.

"Through the extension of this movement, along with the others, we expect to get control of England. We want to get back of merchandizing to the control of raw materials, so that anything not owned by the Government will be owned by the people through the Co-operative. Some places in England are now wholly co-operative. In Long Buckby, a place of 2,500 inhabitants, they are all co-operators, not only for the necessities of life, but for recreation also. They have a co-operative theatre and cinema. In Barrow, a shipbuilding centre, there is one huge Co-operative store, occupying a block, where practically all the shipbuilders and other workers do their buying.

"There is another advantage to society derived from the Co-operative; it develops the member's capacities; he becomes a part of a great business and there is aroused and developed a consciousness that his consent as to what he shall pay and how he shall be served is a factor of importance.

Political Ambitions.

"Besides the producing and the consuming functions there is the political side, and we come to the Labor Party. The difference between the labor union and the Labor Party is that the Labor Party represents the interest of labor as a whole, not trade questions, but questions affecting the country as a whole—education, the industries, how to get close to our own Government. Ireland Scotland. There is a tremendous movement for home rule in Scotland and Egypt, and for intervention in Russia."

Where will private enterprise be under the proposed plan "

"We expect to eliminate private profit as an incentive to effort. Through the Co-operative and the Government we will absorb all private profit. The capitalist and the profiteer will be eliminated. It is a mistake to think you can't get the best out of a man without the reward of money. We are doing it now in England. The Directors of the Co-operative receive annually $5,000 of your money, and the work itself, the opportunity of striving for the benefit of a great number of fellow beings, is attracting some of the smartest men in England. The business is an immense one to handle and affords room for the exercise of the highest ability."

"In your England of the future, do you forsee the highest ability as content with $5,000 a year?"

"Five thousand dollars is no big catch, but it is security. But what we expect— in fact already see with us —is that the appeal to effort will change. There will be a change in the reward from the satisfaction of renreward from the satisfaction of rendering service—equality of income with the security for all, the brain released to soar for the service of man. It will be a recoil from the beastliness of the money view of society. It is coming. Unless the reactionary forces try to stem the tide we can have the revolution without violence We want no smashing up of things because we cannot go too fast; we must take the rank and file with us.

Seek Peaceful Method.

"There is a small group in England that wants to smash things up, but most of us think that isn't the right way nor even the quickest way. The revolution has already begun; it only has to continue. Before the war we wondered how we would ever get rid of the big estates in England—that seemed a chief problem. Now they are being broken up, sold by the owners on account of taxation; in other ways taxation will be the leveler."

"What will the Government and the Co-operative own, separately, according to your plan?"

The Government will own the land, minerals, the railroads and other transportation utilities and national resources of this kind, while food, clothing and the like will be developed through the Co-operative.

"Each of these branches is now making a strong advance. The teachers are joining the trade unions in great numbers, and we are also receiving great help by additions from the actors and actresses. The movement to join the union is fairly sweeping through the stage world. In the Co-operative banking is rising to higher importances. That received its impetus, characteristically, out of a miners' strike. The trade union money and the mine employers' money were deposited it the bank. The bank refused to advance the strikers their money promptly, with the purpose, it was charged, of helping the employers. The strikers turned to the Co-operative; the money was advanced on the pledge of the men. Later the trade union money was withdrawn from the bank and deposited in the Co-operative. Now $40,000 a week is being deposited in the Co-operative banks.

"There is one other important link. Each of these branches has an international connection. The co-operative movement also has international connections in France, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway, Sweden, and other European countries. The political movement is linked up with France, Italy and other European countries. Labor unions have long had international organizations."

Miss Bondfield came to this country as a delegate to the annual meeting of the American Federation of Labor. She is a member of the recently appointed Joint Industrial Council of Great Britain, composed of 400 representatives of the workers to devise a plan for the harmonious conduct of the industries of Great Britain.

SNAKE AS BIG ROUND AS A PHONE POLE.

WAVERLEY, OHIO, July 28. — Somewhere in the neighborhood of the aqueduct and the ruins of Emmitts Mills and the old distillery building is a snake which those who claim to have seen it declare is all of 20 feet long and as big in diameter as a telephone pole.

Two years ago this snake was seen by Gus Reed; last year another party saw it, and a few days ago Mr. Reed saw it across the road, leaving in the dust its track, which measured ten incres across. The snake is said to be among the ruins of the old mill and the distillery building.

It is said that a woman came to Waverley some years ago, bringing several big snakes with her. She had just quit the snake charming business. One of the snake escaped and it is believed that is the one that makes its home in the ruins of the old distillery.
